In a recent interview with Mr. Ritchie regarding this decided innovation in advertising, Mr. Ritchie stated: "We have been enjoying the patronage and confidence of the buyers of this community for some time now and by always trying to keep our stocks complete the saying that 'You can get it at Ritchie Bros.' has become a household expression. In giving away this piano we are actuated by a double purpose, to show our appreciation of the patronage of our friends during the past, also to encourage new trade and to bring the splendid values we are now showing in all lines to the attention of every buyer in this territory. The plan we are using in giving away this piano is equitable and fair to all, simply this, every person buying one dollar's worth of any thing in our store will receive a coupon for 100 votes. The person returning to us on Febuary 1, 1915, the largest number of votes will be given the piano absolutely free of all cost. No favors will be shown. Our reputation for 'square dealing' assures our customers of that fact."

This three hundred and fifty dollar Mozart Parlor Grand piano is surely a present worth having and we predict a very "merry race" for coupon votes during the next few months.

Ritchie Bros. are surely to be congratulated upon their broadminded methods and "Trade Getter" advertising system.

Horticultural Exhibition.

The Orangeville Horticultural Society will hold its second annual Exhibition in the Town Hall on Friday evening, Aug. 28th. This year's Show promises to be a big success. The Prize List has been enlarged considerably and arrangements are being made to ensure having exhibits of first class quality. Members are urged by the Directors to make a special effort to exhibit their own products and to encourage their friends and neighbors to do likewise. Competition is open in all classes. Members of the Society will be allowed to make any number of entries free of charge. Non-members will be charged a nominal entrence fee of 10 cents. Entries must be made before 6 o'clock on the day preceding the Exhibition and all articles must be in place at 11 o'clock on Friday. At Valcartier Camp.

In a letter to his sister, Ruth, dated Aug. 22nd, Lieut. Harry B. McGuire, of the Overseas Contingent of the 36th Regiment, writes:—

"Bill and I made a flying trip down to Quebec to-night. We arrived at camp on Friday at 2 p.m. after leaving Toronto on Thursday at 12 o'clock (noon). The trip on the train was splendid. We came by C.N.R. to Ottawa, then C.N.Q. to Quebec and then Q.& L.St.J. to Camp. The scenery along the St. Lawrence was very fine. The location of the Camp is admirable from a scenic viewpoint, as it is surrounded by mountains which are beautiful to behold. The Valcartier river runs by the Camp. We are in the woods, so to speak, although everything has been cleared and prepared on an elaborate plan. The Camp is laid out on broad lines and is still being enlarged. Troop trains are arriving every day and night. We are forming into battalions now. We have contingents here from the 15th, 34th, 35th, 36th, 44th and two or three other regiments. Capt. Collins has command of one company of 120 men and I have command of the other company of the 36th, also numbering 120 men. Of course all the appointments are pro tem. just now and it may be that none of us will get a company. 120 men is a large number to manage, but we are getting along nicely. They sleep 15 in a tent and we are down to service grub and service style. No more banquets or big dinners for us.

"During our trip to Quebec to-night we visited the Chateau Frontenac and saw the beautiful scenery from the promade."

Bowlers Were Successful.

Of the six rinks, which competed at the bowling tournament in Grand Valley last week, no less than three returned home with prizes. The McMillan rink were runners up in the trophy event. The rink made a strong bid for the first prizes but were beaten out by T. J. Hamilton, of Fergus, by one shot. The second prizes were four quarter-cut oak rockers. The Brown rink won the Association event and incidentally four handsome club bags. Fred Ritchie's quartette were runners up in the Consolation event, losing the first place by the narrow margin of one shot. Their prizes were four cut glass water pitchers. The players on the successful rinks were:—T. H. Greenis, Carson Jeffers, R. H. Robinson, J. D. McMillan; J. D. Torrie, C. R. McKeown, Dr. Campbell, Geo. E. Brown; Thos. Wright, Fred. Wright, W. A. Findlay, F. W. Ritchie. 37 rinks took part in the Tournament, which was a pronounced success despite the wet weather, which delayed the playing somewhat. A member of the local Club, with a fondness for records and statistics, informs The Banner that the members of the Orangeville Club have won no less than 157 prizes at the different Tournaments.

GREAT MIDWAY.

Con. T. Kennedy Promises Wonders for Canadian National Exhibition

The Midway at the Canadian National Exhibition this year promises to be something to write home about. When Con. T. Kennedy, the King of the Carnival Showmen, came to the Exhibition last year he had little conception of the size of the Canadian National Exhibition. He learned a lot during the two weeks.

No sooner was the exhibition over than he started raking the amusement world for material to give us a Midway worthy of the Fair. He writes that he has got the goods to do it. That means that we are to have the greatest Midway ever put on anywhere. It will be clean, wholesome fun, but in large quantities, so if you yearn for the sweet song of the speiler, the smell of the sawdust and the red lemonade you know where to find it.

Had an Ankle Broken.

While Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Curry, Zina St., were driving near The Maples on Sunday afternoon, their horse became frightened and began acting badly. Becoming alarmed, Mrs. Curry attempted to jump from the rig, and in doing so had the ill-luck to break a bone in her left ankle. The muscles of the limb were also sprained and torn and the unfortunate woman was severely bruised about the thigh by striking the buggy wheel. As soon as he got the horse under control Mr. Curry drove to J. W. Hoare's residence nearby and secured aid. He also phoned to Mr. O. Wilder, who went out with his auto and brought Mrs. Curry home. Dr. Henry set the break and the patient is doing as well as can be expected.

A Lantern Lecture.

Mr. H. D. Martin, of Toronto, gave an interesting lantern lecture in St. Andrew's Church on Monday night. The speaker, who visited Orangeville in the interests of the British and Foreign Bible Society, gave a realistic description of a Trip Around the World with Colporteurs and Bible Women. Mr. Martin spent Sunday in town, speaking in the Baptist Church at the morning service and in St. Mark's at night.

M.P.P. Has Broken Wrist.

While in the act of cranking his auto in front of his office about one o'clock Saturday afternoon, C. R. McKeown, M.P.P. for Dufferin, had the misfortune to have his right arm broken about two inches above the wrist. The break, which is known to the medical profession as a Colles fracture, was caused by the engine back firing. Mr. McKeown was preparing to go to Shelburne when he met with the accident. His auto is equipped with an electric self-starter, but this happened to be out of order and he was obliged to resort to the crank. Dr. Carson reduced the fracture and our member is about the streets as chirpy as usual, although carrying the injured arm in a sling.

Exploded Dynamite

Two thunderous reports on Friday evening startled the citizens of the town and gave rise to rumors that the enemy was in full force at our very door. Rumors of many kinds spread from house to house and from street to street, and some people began to show signs of hysterical collapse. Many were the explanations given for the "seasonable" but unwelcome, the terrifying warlike sounds, and some of them were luddicrous in the extreme. The pick of the 36th being on the way to the front, there would be nothing for it but to form up a homeguard of grizzled veterans who had been called out during the Fenian Raid; but, fortunately, before decisive action was taken an explanation was found and the citizens cooled down as quickly as they had become heated. The destruction of surplus dynamite by employees of the C.P.R. was the cause of the excitement. It seems that the railway authorities had given orders that all dangerous material in their possession should be immediately got rid of, and it was the blowing up of this stuff that caused the fun. Two large bundles of dynamite were exploded in an open field, and the jar was felt and the noise heard miles away.

St. Luke's Garden Party

St. Luke's Church, Mono, will hold its annual garden party on Mr. Ira Allen's grounds, lot 16, con. 5, east, Mono, on Friday evening, Sept. 4th. The committee in charge is arranging for a varied programme of music, addresses and other entertainment. Music will be provided by the Trimble Family, of Laurel, and other talent. Short speeches are expected from John Best, M.P., Revs. G. W. Tobbs, A. J. Fowlie, J. W. Dudgeon, D. B. Langford and other speakers. Dr. Carson will occupy the chair. Supper will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock. Admission 25c and 15c.

We have the agency for cut flowers, wreaths, bouquets, etc., from Dale Estate, Brampton, at Jeffers' Drug Store.

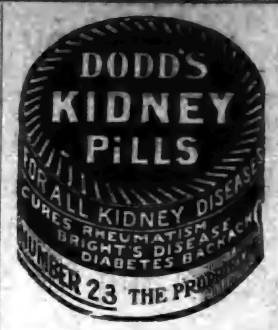
THE DUTY OF THE HOUR.

Increased Production From the Land Essential.



The Interests of the Empire Demand It.

The outbreak of hostilities in Europe has created a situation in regard to food supplies never experienced in the history of this country. Whether the war be long or short in its duration there is bound to be a shortage in food products in Europe. Should the war be continued during 1915 the reduction in crop production in the countries directly engaged will be reduced to the minimum. Even should peace be secured in a few months' time the situation created by the withdrawal of millions of men from productive labor will seriously affect the 1914 harvest in Europe. Great Britain may not be so seriously affected in this respect as the countries on the continent. The home land will have enough help left to at least take care of this year's harvest. But Great Britain only produces a portion of what she consumes. The balance must come from the outside, and as the European sources of supplies will be cut off to a large extent whether the war be long or short, people in the home land are bound to suffer to a greater or less degree.

The situation thus create should therefore appeal to every Canadian farmer. There should be no hesitation whatever about increasing production. So far as the 1914 crop is concerned that is fixed. The only thing to do is to have it gathered in and carefully husbanded. The crop of 1915 should, however, claim attention. It is possible to increase that crop very materially, and this should be done. The 1914 crop is being harvested earlier than usual. This will give farmers ample time to prepare land for fall wheat. We believe it to be in the best interests of the farmer himself, and of the Empire as well, that the acreage of fall wheat should be very largely increased this fall. The war is bound to create a shortage in wheat production in Europe, and Canadian farmers should take advantage of the situation by increasing the acreage of fall wheat this season as much as possible. It may interfere with crop rotation for the time being. But a serious situation has arisen, and the Canadian farmer must play his part in meeting it.

As to the other food products, production cannot be increased on as large a scale in a given time as with grain. It takes time to increase cattle production, though a great deal may be done by keeping up the milk flow and increasing the supply of butter and cheese. Cheese is one of the staple foods of England, of which Canada supplies a large quantity. It should be possible to increase the output of cheese very considerably before the season closes, by feeding and caring for the cows better. Another line of production that can be increased comparatively easily is that of hogs. It should be possible to largely increase Canada's output of hogs by 1915. England's chief source of bacon supplies is Denmark. If this source of supply should be cut off, which might happen at any time, the home land would be seriously affected.

But whether it be in cheese, wheat, butter, bacon or anything else in the food line, the situation created by the war in which the British Empire is now engaged, makes it incumbent upon every farmer to increase production in every way possible. And it should have the co-operation of the cities, too. City authorities could do a great deal to help by directing unemployed labor to the farms.—The Canadian Farm.

A Destructive Thunderstorm

This vicinity was visited by one of the worst thunderstorms of the season, accompanied by a heavy downfall of rain, early on Tuesday morning. A. McArthur's and F. Baker's barns in Caledon township were struck by lightning and burned to the ground. Mr. McArthur had only the day before completed repairs he had been making to his barn during the present summer. Fortunately his crop, with the exception of the hay and fall wheat, was not stowed in the barn. The horses were got out safely, but J. Hurren, the carpenter, lost all his kit of tools, and his assistant, Mr. Ross Leitch, lost his buggy and harness and a new suit of clothes. There was insurance of $1,100 on the premises, but Mr. McArthur's loss will be a heavy one. Mr. Baker lost his entire season's crop, which is a heavy one. In addition to the above we learn barns were also burned belonging to Peter McDevitt, of Caledon East, and Mr. Cook, near Orton.—Erin Advocate.

A DEPENDABLE CROP.

We have heard many expressions of surprise at the rapid advancement which the corn crop is making in its conquest of the north. A few years ago many sections which are now raising large acreages of ensilage and cob corn, did not think it advisable to plant more than perhaps half an acre or an acre of this crop, believing that it could not be depended upon in the district to yield a satisfactory crop. Gradually, however, Old King Corn has marched northward, and to-day we find in quite northerly districts stock farmers depending on this crop for their winter's roughage, and depending not in vain. It has been a dry summer and in some sections other crops have been partial failures, but where the corn was given any kind of a chance by way of fertilization and cultivation it has grown luxuriantly, and promises to yield a crop sufficiently large to carry the live stock on these farms over winter in first-class condition. Corn is one of the most dependable crops we have. It does not stand cold weather well but will yield fairly good crops even in cold, damp seasons, and when the summers are hot and dry it out-distances any other crop which the farmer can grow. During the coming winter silage will take the place of hay in much of the feeding operations in Eastern Canada. Straw is also short in many districts, and were it not for the fact that a fairly good crop of corn is rapidly reaching maturity feed might be very scarce on many of the farms where the drouth has been the most severe.

There is a lesson in this for the man who has not already been converted to corn as one of his main crops. He cannot afford, if his farm lies in any latitude where corn will succeed at all, to do without this valuable crop. It is more easily cultivated than the root crop, yields a higher amount of feeding material to the acre, and may be relied upon one year after another. We look to see even more corn sown next spring than has been the case in the past year, that is if farmers generally take the matter seriously and do what all indications point out that they should. —Farmers' Advocate.

TORTURED BY CONSTIPATION

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Paralyzed Bowels and Digestion

ST. BONIFACE DE SHAWINIGAN, QUE. Feb. 3rd, 1914.

"It is a pleasure to me to inform you that after suffering from Chronic Constipation for 2½ years, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". While I was a student at Berthier College, I became so ill I was forced to leave the the college. Severe pains across the intestines continually tortured me and it came to a point when I could not stoop down at all, and my Digestion became paralysed. Some one advised me to take "Fruit-a-tives" and at once I felt a great improvement. After I had taken four or five boxes, I realized that I was completely cured and what made me glad, also, was that they were acting gently, causing no pain whatever to the bowels. All those who suffer with Chronic Constipation should follow my example and take "Fruit-a-tives" for they are the medicine that cures".

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

FELL TO HIS DEATH.15

Mr. Stafford Troughton, of Alloa, Killed While Driving

Mr. Stafford Troughton, of Alloa, was almost instantly killed on Friday afternoon last.

He was driving with a youth named Graydon on the cross road near Snellgrove station. The horses frightened at a railroad train started to run away. Mr. Troughton, evidently fearing the youth could not hold the animals, grasped a lins which hauled the horses into the ditch. Mr. Troughton was thrown out of the vehicle, the youth says, alighting on his feet. What happened next is not known, but shortly afterwards, when the people who had seen the trouble arrived on the spot. Mr. Troughton was found lying dead. Medical examination afterwards disclosed that his skull had been fractured.

Mr. Troughton was 66 years of age at his untimely death. He was a native of Chinguacousy.

For a number of years Mr. Troughton was a resident of Brampton. He was engaged in pump manufacturing in Main St. North. He was a clever worker in wood and iron. For a while he had a cabinet repair shop at the corner of Queen and Chapel streets. He was also a woodworking foreman in the foundry.

Some years ago Mr. Troughton went back to the old homestead at Alloa. When a demand for a blacksmith shop arose in the neighborhood he started one on the farm. Mr. Troughton was a typical handy man and could do a first-class job at anything he undertook.

Mr. Troughton married Miss Cameron, who survives him, two sons and a daughter, all grown up. Mr. Troughton was a Presbyterian and a Conservative in politics.

He was a quiet, unassuming man whom everybody liked as a friend and neighbor. The death of this valuable citizen is deeply regretted in the community, and the family have the sincere sympathy of all in their great affliction.—Peel Banner.

Mr. Jos. Pierson, ex-reeve of Tecumseth, is in charge of the Beeton House of Refuge during the absence of Governor Swan, who is taking a well-earned holiday.

The marriage of Miss Gladys B. Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Robinson, of Hamilton, and Mr. Bert Ambrose Scott, of Regina, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Scott, of Toronto, formerly of Grand Valley, took place in Wesley Church, Hamilton, recently.

Had Nervous Dyspepsia

With Frequent Sick Headaches and Much Pain After Eating — Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Cured.

This letter is from a lady who gained 14 pounds by using the great food cure. It did wonders for her in improving her general health. She is enthusiastic in its praise, and refers to her neighbors as witnesses of the splendid results obtained.

Mrs. Susan Dobson, Spring Hill Mines, N. S., writes:—"It is with pleasure that I write to you in praise of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was troubled with dyspepsia, and could not eat without suffering much pain; also had sick headaches frequently, and my nerves were in bad condition. About ten years ago I took a thorough treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, using altogether 21 boxes, and since then can eat anything, have been freed from headaches, and my health has been greatly improved in every way. I gained 14 pounds in weight, and feel sure I owe everything to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You may use this letter, and my neighbors can tell you of my condition before using this treatment."

HE WAS A MIGHTY KING.

If the Record on the Tomb of Sardanapalus Be True.

An ancient legend tells us that Sardanapalus was the founder of Tarsus, while others ascribe that honor to Sennacherib, king of Nineveh, of whom the Bible record speaks. An interesting part of this legend about Sardanapalus, the last of the Assyrian kings, tells us that he recorded on his tomb near Anchiale, a nearby city, in one day, a feat surely worthy of any king. But the kings of those days, it must be remembered, took as much license with the record on their tombs as any Munchausen who ever lived.

We are also told that on this tomb was a statue of the king snapping his fingers, while this inscription was written beneath: "Sardanapalus, son of Anakyndaraxes, built Anchiale and Tarsus in one day. Eat, drink and play, for everything else is not worth this" (a snap of your fingers).

Whether this statue and its description are purely mythical or not, the tradition was probably current in Paul's time, as his own words indicate: "If after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me if the dead rise not? Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die." What greater contrast could there be than between the strenuous, manly, undaunted apostle and the voluptuous, blase king who was said to have founded the city where, hundreds of years later, St. Paul was born?—Christian Herald.

BEST OF ALL JOURNALISTS.

St. Mark Has Been Called the Reporter Among the Apostles.

The greatest journalist the world ever knew lived 1,500 years or more before the invention of type, according to Rev. Dr. Frank N. Palmer, who awarded the palm to St. Mark and wondered at the marvels that he might have accomplished if he had lived in the days of printing presses.

St. Matthew put his chronicles in twenty-eight chapters; St. Luke used twenty-four to tell his story; St. John used twenty-one, but St. Mark covered all the details more vividly in sixteen, and, true to the spirit of action that animates his kind, put a miracle in every chapter.

St. Mark, Dr. Palmer said, was the reporter among the apostles. His viewpoint, his language and his marvelous ability to give action and climax, clash and color in a sentence should be a glowing example to the newspaper writers of this day.

Each of the other apostles speaks of skies that opened. Mark says they were rent asunder. He is the only one among his brethren who stopped dutifully to describe the color of a given scene. In the writings of his fellows it is told that the people went to the Sermon on the Mount. Mark writes vividly that the people ran.

In writing for the Romans he used colorful allusions and the references to wild beasts to touch their intelligence in sympathetic fashion at every stroke. —Philadelphia Bulletin.

Stellar Elements.

The spectroscope shows the lines so far in stellar research of forty-five elements well known here in the earth. Hydrogen exists in all stars in enormous quantities. Iron and a number of other metals likewise are incandescent in the sun, and in all other suns bright enough to send rays into the grating for analysis.

An element named coronium is now seen glowing in the envelopes of the sun, but it has not been discovered here on earth yet. Helium was seen in the sun for a number of years before it was finally discovered in the earth. Stars vary in the character of the rays emitted; therefore all suns are not alike. And the differences indicate differences in their ages.—New York American.

Wanted Information.

At Bellevue hospital many of the eccentrics are harmless and willing men known as "self committers." That is, they have had themselves committed to the public institutions while out of employment.

One of these was put in charge of a contagious case for the first time.

"Remember, Clancy," said the doctor, "this case must be isolated."

"All right, sorr," was the reply. "Where will I get the ice?"—New York World.

Flight of Life.

Child, child! No more! As if driven on by unseen spirits the sun steeds of time are running away with the light chariot of our destiny, and for us remains nothing except with high courage to hold fast the reins. And now to the right, now to the left, from a bowlder on one hand or a precipice on the other, to guide the steeds in safety. Whither it goes, who can say? One scarcely remembers whence he came.—From Goethe's "Egmont."

What Worried Him.

"What side are you on in this debate?" asked the constituent.

"I don't like to say," replied the young statesman. "My own opinions don't matter so much, but it worries me to realize that whatever way I vote I'm almost sure to hurt somebody's feelings."

Vain Man's Weakness.

Pity the poor egotist whose vanity has swollen to the point that he thinks he can influence a woman in the matter of dress.

Knowledge and timber shouldn't be much used till they are seasoned.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Hot Weather Ailments.

A medicine that will keep children well is a great boon to every mother. This is just what Baby's Own Tablets do. An occasional dose keeps the little stomach and bowels right and prevents sickness. During the hot summer months stomach troubles speedily turn to fatal diarrhoea and cholera infantum, and if Baby's Own Tablets are not at hand the child may die in a few hours. Wise mothers always keep the Tablets in the house and give their children an occasional dose to clear out the stomach and bowels and keep them well. Don't wait till baby is ill — the delay may cost a precious life. Get the Tablets now and you may feel reasonably safe. Every mother who used the Tablets praises them and that is the best evidence there is no other medicine for little ones so good. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Charity thinketh no evil. With an unwilling ear and a sad heart it hears bad news. It glories in no man's downfall—in no one's misfortune. It rather holds down its head and partakes of his shame. It rejoices in the belief that everybody is sincere. Where it cannot succor want it will condole.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, SEPT. 3rd, 1914.

THE WORLD'S CAUSE

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the British Admiralty, in an interview with an American journalist, William G. Shepherd, says that Great Britain is now fighting the battle of freedom and democracy for the world. "We are at grips with Prussian militarism," he says. "If Germany wins, it will not be a victory of the quiet, sober, commercial elements of Germany, nor of the common people of Germany, with all their virtues, but the victory of the blood and iron military school, whose doctrines and principles will then have received a terrible vindication."

That is absolutely true. If Germany wins, there will be no peace for the world; the neutral powers will be in imminent danger from the military ambition of the princes and lords of Germany. The very virtues of the German soldiery, the splendid organization, the unquestioned courage of the troops, will become menaces to the world. This continent cannot escape, with its huge area, its magnificent resources and its comparatively small population it is full of rich prizes for military ambition and despotic power. America is a continent of republics, and the only exception is a British democracy. For that kind of peaceful, industrial civilization Prussian militarism has nothing but contempt and hatred.

Not only would peace and liberty be endangered by Prussian ambition, but the whole fabric of business and industry would be threatened. The United States may gain some advantage, but even the resources of the United States would be severely taxed by such a chaos as would be produced by the letting loose of the ambitions of a military despotic power.

But the success of Great Britain would have a steadying effect upon the world. Great Britain is not in this war for conquest. It has entered the war reluctantly, as an act of good faith toward an ally and a neutral power. Its interests are virtually the same as those of the United States—peace, freedom, democracy, and the restoration of the steadiness of business. A decided victory over the German forces would mean an immediate improvement in business in the United States and in almost every other part of the world. It would mean that these advantages would be shared even by Germany, whose peaceful progress would be at once resumed if the fanatical ambition of its princes and war-lords were curbed.

In a word, as Winston Churchill says, it is the old struggle of a hundred years ago, against Napoleon, who terrorized and almost paralyzed Europe for twenty years. The Kaiser, owing to his fanatical belief in his mission, is even more dangerous and disturbing than Napoleon. The world will never breathe freely until he is subdued. The world is on its defence. It must fight for its right to carry on its peaceful industry, to till its farms, and build up its cities without fear.—The Daily Star.

Bank Notes Are Good.

To prevent any uneasiness or unnecessary trouble on the part of those not familiar with financial matters and with the strength of our Canadian banking system, the Minister of Finance has issued a timely and reassuring statement. He outlines the effective steps which the Government is taking to ensure an abundant supply of currency during the war and authorizes payments in bank notes instead of in Dominion notes or gold. This is to say, the familiar $5, $10 and $20 bills, and those of higher denominations, issued by our Canadian chartered banks, have now exactly the same value as gold. Railways, express companies, merchants, everybody in Canada, will continue to receive and make payments in bank notes. Our Canadian banks are in splendid position to meet any demands which may be made upon them, as their reserves are exceptionally strong.

LOOK AFTER FOREIGNERS

Chief Marshall Vested With Important Authority.

Chief Marshall has received a letter from Col. Sherwood, Chief of the Dominion Police Force, informing him that by an Order in Council dated Aug. 15th, 1914, he has been vested with all the authority possessed by constables of the Dominion Police Force with reference to the arrest, detention and parole of German, Austrian or Austro-Hungarian officers, soldiers, recruits or subjects residing in Canada. The Order-in-Council provides for the arrest and parole of persons of this class who are suspected of planning to leave the country, of espionage, or of attempting to give information to the enemy. After their arrest they may regain their liberty by signing an Undertaking to report regularly to the proper authorities, to observe the laws of Canada and such rules as may be specially laid down for their conduct, to abstain from taking up arms and also from communicating to countries in a state of war with Canada any information which may come into their possession. Upon giving this undertaking, the persons paroled will be furnished with identification cards for their own protection. If any suspect who is arrested declines to give an undertaking he will be handed over to the military authorities who will hold him as a military prisoner.

The only German in Orangeville is a young man named August Boppell, who has been employed in the quarries all summer. So far his freedom has not been interfered with in any manner. Chief Marshall would like citizens or residents of the district surrounding Orangeville to furnish him with the names and information as to the whereabouts of Germans, Austrians or Austro-Hungarians whom they may happen to know living in the neighborhood.

HORTICULTURAL SHOW.

A Fine Display of Flowers, Fruits and Plants—The Prize Winners.

Asters, petunias, verbenas, pansies, dahlias and a score of other beautiful blooms, in all the colors that Dame Nature can supply, attracted a large and appreciative audience, some of them also highly colored, to the annual exhibition of the Orangeville Horticultural Society, which was held in a large marquee in Alexandra Park on Friday afternoon and evening last. The tent, supplied by Mr. H. A. Dorrance, District Representative of the Department of Agriculture, was very suitable for the occasion, but somewhat limited in capacity for such a flower-loving people and such a semi-tropical home of horticulture as the southern end of Dufferin County. But aside from the crush, everything was as lovely as the snap dragons, geraniums and fuchsias that lent their beauty to the scene.

A noticeable feature was the number of elderly people present, they almost outnumbering the young folk; but all were attired in the latest New York (Paris is otherwise engaged) modes, and the scene was attractive to a degree almost bewildering to the unsophisticated visitor from the farm, the foundry, the store and the office. Judging by the display of flowers, fruit, vegetables and pastry, and the gaily gowned ladies present, the society can congratulate itself on the success which attended its last exhibition, and it will doubtless go on and improve in quantity, quality and popularity as time advances.

We give below a list of the prizes, and though some may feel slightly disappointed, we believe that the judges were both competent and fair. It is impossible to particularize, but the asters shown by B. Lewis are certainly worth special mention. They were without doubt the handsomest blooms to be seen within a radius of miles. The nasturtiums shown by Mrs. Suggitt and the collection of cut flowers by Mrs. Irodale were also very pretty. The show of vegetables was not surprisingly fine, though there were some very neat exhibits. The collection by Mr. H. F. Tuck was unique and contained some that were never shown here before. In the pastry line the bread, cakes, pies and biscuits made one's mouth water to look at them. Homemade bread is not yet a lost art. In Irish lemons, Mrs. Suggitt took first, with Mrs. Fairbairn a good second. The prize winners are:—

Boy Scouts.

The first annual camp of the Orangeville Boy Scouts was a decided success. It was held in Hockley Valley on the Wheelock Dam through the kindness of Mr. I. J. Murphy, from Monday until Thursday, Aug. 24th to 27th. The Troop treked to the Camp with their bell tents and wagon arriving in time for dinner. On the way eggs were purchased and arrangements were made for a regular milk supply. After dinner the surroundings were surveyed, and the Camp name was given, "Camp Connaught." A bridge was thrown across the River Nottawasaga, and during the operation a certain furry wild animal was discovered in the wood pile. The animal was promptly despatched by a shot in the head by Commissioner Rev. G. W. Tebbs. Two of the Scouts afterwards spent the rest of the afternoon practising taxidermy: Before supper time an enjoyable swim was indulged in, in the swimming hole near the Camp. After supper beds were prepared in the tents, and a big camp fire was built, and the rest of the evening was spent in telling stories and singing songs. The "Star" of the concerts was Bunty Lewis. A daily camp newspaper was edited by Scouts Art. McPherson and Bert Tebbs to the great delight of everyone in Camp. These daily editions have been carefully preserved in the Troop Archives. The title of the paper was "The Hockley Herald." On the second day Scout games were indulged in, and practicing in signalling was given. On Wednesday night electric flashlight signalling was practiced from the top of a hill about a mile away. Some of the Scouts enjoyed the fishing on the river, and Scout Peavoy displayed a lot of skill in snaring suckers, while Sammy Jenkins preferred the more aristocratic method of hook and line. Mr. Murphy, the owner of the camping ground, visited the Camp and gave the boys a topographical talk of great interest, taking them to see some ancient millstones reposing in the bush near Camp. We had a lot of visitors on Wednesday afternoon, and two of Orangeville's young hopefuls spent the night in the bush near the Camp on sinister mission bent, wrapped in two grey blankets. Their plans went agley, perhaps owing to the fact that the Scouts were wide awake, sentries having been posted to guard the camp. By way of a counter attack, their "base" was discovered, and much to their chagrin, their breakfast was commandeered. On Wednesday evening several of the people living near the Camp spent the evening with us, and round the big campfire, our Commissioner, Mr. Tebbs, gave us a talk on "Climbing the biggest mountain in Ceylon to see the sunrise." We dreamt of tigers and snakes all night. On Thursday a kind friend visited us, and brought us a big box of chocolates, a lot of oranges, bananas, tomatoes and sweet corn. Another friend in town sent us out some cobs of corn. The cooking was fine, although the gravy got a little bit black, and the porridge "Scout" Sam prepared was a little bit grey, and the apple "sarce" was a wee bit lumpy, but we all grew sleek and fat and brown as the days went rapidly by. We had the best of weather. We were the best of friends, and when the time came for us to pack and come home, who should meet us but Scout Peavoy's father with his horse and democrat, and took back to town with him all our heavy baggage, leaving us nothing to carry in the wagon but our pots and pans, for we needs must wind up our 1914 Camp with a corn roast, that like Oliver Twist, made us long for "MORE."

Back from England.

Prof. Cotton, of the staff of Wycliffe College, Toronto, Mrs. Cotton and son spent Monday and Tuesday with friends in town. Prof. Cotton, who is a former Mono boy and a graduate of Orangeville High School, has just returned from a business and pleasure trip to England. He left for the Old Country last Good Friday and was in England when war was declared. He says the English people received the fateful news with wonderful calmness. They realize it will be a hard struggle, but the whole people are united in their determination to see the war through to the bitter end. The feeling in England, Prof. Cotton states, is that war with Germany was bound to come sooner or later. Prof. Cotton returned on the Cunard liner, Andania, landing on Aug. 16th. The liner took a northerly course, avoiding the regular ocean routes, and made the journey without any unusual incident. At night the port holes were covered and all lights carefully concealed in order that the presence of the vessel might not be revealed to any hostile cruisers. One cruiser was sighted near Newfoundland but the officers of the liner decided it was a British vessel. Prof. Cotton visited England in the interests of Wycliffe College and was very successful in his mission.

Women's Patriotic Society.

The Women's Patriotic Society is holding a meeting of all the women of the town in the Public Library Auditorium on Friday, Sept. 4th, at 7.30 o'clock to decide the work to be undertaken for our soldiers. The help of all our women is needed and all are earnestly invited.

Mrs. E. H. Smith left for her future home in Ottawa yesterday evening. The good wishes of their Orangeville friends go with Mr. and Mrs. Smith to their home in the Capital.

—Orangeville High and Public Schools reopened on Tuesday with full staffs of teachers. There was an excellent attendance of pupils notwithstanding the drenching rains. The Public School staff is delighted with the improvements to the school, which has undergone extensive repairs during the vacation.

Mrs. Reuben Waltenbury.

The death of Mrs. Reuben Waltenbury, of Alton, occurred in Lord Dufferin hospital on Friday as the result of a long illness due to anaemia. Deceased lady was 45 years of age and leaves a husband but no family. The remains were conveyed to her home at Alton, the funeral taking place to the Alton cemetery on Monday afternoon. Rev. Donald McKay conducted the burial service.

AN EXCELLENT GAME.

What Fergus Thought of Orangeville—Wingham Lacrosse Match.

Followers of The Dufferins will be interested in the following report of the recent Orangeville-Wingham lacrosse game, which we have clipped from the columns of The Fergus News-Record :—

Last Wednesday an excellent game of lacrosse was played in Victoria Park between the Intermediate teams from Orangeville and Wingham. These teams were very evenly matched, and each won two games in their district. Each won on their home field. Although the score would indicate that Orangeville had a slight advantage in the deciding game, yet there was very little to choose between the two teams.

About sixty people came from Wingham on the two o'clock train as there was an excursion from that place, and a special train brought the Orangeville supporters in. There was also a goodly number of Fergus people at the game, so that the gate receipts were large.

In the first quarter Orangeville was the first to score, but Wingham tied the score in a short time, and soon after scored their second goal. It began to look as if Wingham would have things all their own way, but Orangeville evened up the score near the end of the quarter. About this time a fight started among the spectators but ended without any disastrous results.

In the second quarter Orangeville had decidedly the best of it. They scored the first goal of the quarter and also the second and third. Wingham only managed to get one goal in this quarter. Just as the time was up the ball again found its way into the Wingham goal, but as it had been kicked in, it was not allowed. Score at half-time, Orangeville 3, Wingham 3.

But the worst was yet to come for Wingham. Although they scored the next goal, Orangeville scored three more in a row, making the score at three-quarter time 8-4.

Things began to look pretty blue for Wingham when Orangeville scored their ninth goal, giving them a lead of five goals. But Wingham suddenly woke up, and in the last ten minutes or so they scored four goals. They completely outclassed the Orangeville team and with a few minutes more would undoubtedly have tied the score.

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen,
The saddest are these—it might have been."

The final score was 9-8.

The style of playing by these two teams was altogether different from that used by the teams of this district. Their stick handling was not so good, but their speed and endurance were excellent and a fast pace was kept up from beginning to end. The advantage which enabled Orangeville to win the game probably lay in the fact that they seemed to have a dozen times as many supporters as Wingham, and they were all well able to yell, even the ladies.

SHOOTING RESULTS

Following is the result of the shooting by members of the Orangeville Rifle Association in the Dominion of Canada Prize Competition. The prize was won by Principal Alex. Firth, of Orangeville Public School, with a score of 361 out of a possible 420 points. Mr. J. E. Dyer, a crack East Garry rifle shot, was in second place with a score of 310. The shooting was much better this year than it has ever been before, and a much greater interest was taken in the Competition. On Wednesday, Sept. 9th, there will be a Consolation Match for all members who did not win anything at the previous match. The standing of the competitors in the Dominion of Canada competition follows :—

Dufferins Lose Round.

The return game between The Dufferin and Hanover lacrosse teams was played on Idylwyld Park yesterday afternoon. The locals played a hard, plucky game but the big lead of 7 goals secured by Hanover last week proved too great a handicap to overcome. The Dufferins won yesterday's game by 9 to 5, but lost the round by 14 to 11. The game drew a big crowd and everybody was delighted with the playing of The Dufferins. What the green shirts lacked in experience and strategy they more than made up for in speed and vim. A fuller report will appear next week.

Anderson-Cuthbert.

At Winnipeg on Thursday, August 27th, Russell Anderson, of Winnipeg, formerly of Orangeville, was united in marriage to Miss Evelyn Laura Cuthbert, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Cuthbert, of 533 Dominion St., Winnipeg. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. Whiting, pastor of Young Methodist Church. The bride is a grand daughter of the late Robert Cuthbert, of Bray, County Wicklow, Ireland.

CALEDON.

A most enjoyable time was spent by those who had the good fortune to attend the Old Time Faire and Corn Roast held on Mr. Thos. Smith's spacious lawn on Friday evening, Aug. 28th, under the auspices of The Swastika Embroidery Club. An excellent programme was furnished by the ladies, who spared neither time nor pains in fitting up the grounds for the event. The different refreshment booths were attractively decorated and the young ladies in charge wore very pretty costumes specially designed for the occasion. The Alton orchestra furnished a fine musical programme and has seldom, if ever, acquitted itself to better advantage. The entertainment was altogether out of the ordinary run of lawn party events and was admirably calculated to leave very pleasant recollections coupled with a desire for more of the same kind. The young ladies are to be congratulated upon the enterprise and ingenuity shown in devising and carrying out their plans.

Mrs. James G. Walker.

Mrs. Jas. G. Walker, a well-known and highly respected resident of Mono, entered into rest at her home, lot 24, con. 2, west, on Friday, Aug. 21st. Her death followed a long-illness from cancer. Deceased was well liked by everybody who knew her. She was a devoted wife and a loving mother and will be greatly missed throughout the community in which she resided. She was 53 years and 5 months of age. The funeral, which was very largely attended, was held from her late residence to Shelburne cemetery on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 23rd. Rev. Mr. Fowlie, of Camilla, conducted the services at the house and Rev. Mr. Stevenson, of Shelburne, officiated at the grave. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, among them being a sheaf from Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Mann, of Camilla, a heart from Mrs. Wm. Fleming and Mrs. John Manning, of Elba, a bouquet from the Misses Baker, Elba, a sheaf from Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cockerill, Granger, and a wreath from the Walker family. The pallbearers were Messrs. Samuel and Andrew Roney, brothers, John Whiteside and Wm. Cockerill, brothers-in-law, Ephraim Woolner and Eben Woolner, cousins. Besides her husband the late Mrs. Roney leaves to mourn her loss a family of four sons and two daughters. The sons and daughters are William, James, Samuel, John, Sara and Alma, all at home.

W. J. McClellan.

Mr. W. J. McClellan, a well-known resident of Alton, passed away at his home in that village on Friday last after a long and trying illness. GEO. WILLIAMSON DEAD.

Former Orangeville Man Dies Suddenly in Brandon.

At mid-night Thursday, after a day in the open, George F. Williamson died at his home, 351 Third street, aged 44 years. The fact that Mr. Williamson had been out the larger part of yesterday is an indication of the suddenness with which the summons came, and his bereaved family and scores of friends are overwhelmed by the shock. Mr. Williamson had suffered for a considerable length of time with asthma, but there was no time yesterday or at any time lately that this affliction had gained headway upon him. Though not exerting himself he had been attending to business with but few interruptions and yesterday he was out in his automobile. An attack of asthma presumably overweighed his heart action, and with scarcely any foreboding of death's coming the end had taken place.

Mr. Williamson was one of the widely known residents and business men in Brandon, and was an energetic and desirable force in any circle with which he mingled. He came to Brandon thirteen years ago and joined his father, Truman L. Williamson, in the Manitoba Windmill and Pump Company. He came west from Orangeville, Ont., where he had been city engineer for some time. He put a great deal of vitality and interest into the company, and the field at that time being open and inviting he cultivated it with a thoroughness and ability that made the Manitoba Co. known in several other provinces besides one. The amount of business that was brought in by this active young manager made this organization one of the leading and successful ones here. Truman L. Williamson survives his son and is salesman for the company. He was founder of the company, but when George F. Williamson came to Brandon the most of the responsibility devolved upon him. Mr. Williamson is also survived by his wife and three children, two girls and a boy. He was a member of the Masons, and had formerly been a member of the Brandon Auto Club. The funeral will be from his home, 451 Third street, but the time has not yet been decided. — Brandon Daily News, Aug. 21.

JOHN NEIL DROWNED.

Former Resident of Orangeville Meets with Death at Melita, Man.

A message was received here late on Wednesday of last week stating that John W. Neil, formerly a well-known resident of Orangeville, had been drowned at Melita, Man. earlier in the day. The intimation of the sad occurrence was sent by Mr. Jas. A. Glover, of Brandon, Man., also a former citizen. Mr. Neil and family moved from Toronto ten or twelve years ago. While living here deceased ran a livery business on Mill St. He was a public spirited and highly respected citizen. He served in the town council for several years and was prominent in the Masonic fraternity, being a Past Master of Harris Lodge of this town. After leaving here Mr. Neil was engaged in the livery business on Yonge St., Toronto, for some years. He has been living in the West for several years and early in the present year was appointed Manitoba organizer for the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada. As provincial organizer Mr. Neil made his headquarters at Winnipeg, but his work took him to all parts of the Province. Deceased was about 55 years of age and leaves a family of four sons and two daughters, namely, Lester, of Cobalt, John, of Hamilton, Mrs. Chas. Porter, Miss Gora, Fred and Harry, living in Toronto. Mrs. Neil died in Toronto about five years ago. Deceased was a member of Orangeville Lodge A. O. U. W., in which he carried $2000 insurance. The remains were brought to Toronto for interment, the funeral taking place from the Union Station to Prospect Cemetery on Saturday.

The Late Wm. Beamish.

The late William Beamish, whose death was briefly noted in last week's issue of The Banner, had been proprietor of the Ontario House in Caledon East for many years. He was a model hotelkeeper and always conducted a very orderly and well-kept house. He was in his 71st year and is survived by a widow and two daughters, Misses Bertha and Louise, both residing at home. Deceased was a member of the Anglican Church, a Conservative in politics and a member of Caledon East L. O. L. No. 293. He carried $1000 life insurance in the Orange Mutual and was also insured for $2000 in the A.O.U.W. There was a very large turnout to the funeral, which was held to St. James' Church cemetery on Tuesday afternoon following his death. A service was held at his late residence conducted by his pastor, Rev. Frank Herman, assisted by Rev. J. G. Rogers, of Mount Dennis. A large number of the members of the Orange Order attended the funeral in a body to pay a last tribute of respect to the memory of their departed brother.

Golden Wedding.

On Tuesday, August 11th, Sunny Bank farm, East Luther, was the scene of a very pleasant and rare event when Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Hills celebrated their golden wedding. Mr. Hills was born in Guelph October 12, 1842. Mrs. Hills, nee Matilda Rutledge, was born in Toronto Township, near Streetsville, on Aug. 4, 1846. On August 11, 1864, they were married at Marsville. To them eleven children were born, two having died some time ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Hills came to East Luther some forty-eight years ago, when it was all forest. Mr. Hills has had to stand with his back to a tree and fight the wolves till help came. The forest is now all cleared, beautiful bank barns and brick houses are seen, automobiles take the place of oxen, two cents will post a letter now while it took three then, and many other different changes. They have been members of the Methodist church for over fifty years, first attending church at the Colbeck old school house, which is now destroyed.

The guests, numbering about twenty-five, sat down to a very dainty wedding dinner. To the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. Meek, the bridal party took their places under an oleander loaded with blooms, the bride wearing the bridal veil her three daughters had worn on their wedding days. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Meek, after which Mrs. Frank Hills read a suitable address and Rosena Bruce and Wallace Hills presented a wedding ring and bouquets, Jean Bruce and Bazil Hills a purse of gold and a bouquet of sweet peas and Myrril Bruce and Lloyd Colbeck a mantle clock, all of which were signed up on behalf of their family and Mr. Boden, the oldest friend.

At nine o'clock the party dispersed, wishing the old couple joy.—Star and Vidette.

FACED FOUR LIONS.

Coolness and Daring of a Plucky Kaffir Herdboy.

Four lions attacked a herd of cattle on a farm at Romsay, South Africa, says the Rhodesia Herald. The herdboy was standing on an ant heap examining a pair of boots he had got the day previous, when he heard a low growl near him. On looking up he saw that three lions had got hold of three cows, while another lion stood looking on.

The boy pulled off his boots and threw them at the nearest lion, and then made a rush for them with a stick, shouting at the same time at the top of his voice to another herdboy to bring a gun.

In the meantime two lions had got their cows down, but, nothing daunted, the Kafir made a rush for them, and the lions moved away from their prey. The boy then rounded up his cattle (he had 108 head), and while he was doing so had to chase the lions away several times. When he was at one side the lions would try to catch the cattle on the other. However, he brought all his cattle safely home, though one of the cows afterward died, the claw of a lion having penetrated her lung.

For cool daring it would be hard to beat the chasing of four lions single handed and with no weapons except a pair of boots and a stick.

LEARNING HOW TO UNLEARN.

Modern Scientists Harking Back to Thales of Miletus.

When we were young and knew without doubt that the molecule was composed of two or three ultimate parts, called atoms, we listened complacently to the statement that "science progresses in a straight line, philosophy around in a circle, or at best along a helical spiral." Now that we are older and believe that the simplest atom has nearly 1,800 parts, we find that perhaps the helix is expressive of science as well, observes the editor of the Engineering and Mining Journal.

We believe, with the alchemists, that the so called elements are fundamentally the same. Whether we will transmute one to another remains to be seen; we follow the alchemists in attempting it.

Were one of the Greek philosophers, Thales of Miletus, for instance, to stroll into a modern assembly of physicists and chemists, the language would be more troublesome than the ideas. He would hear the physical chemist remarking cheerfully that there is no matter, for that which we call matter is only energy, and Thales would remark, "Plagiarist." The disciples of relativity, the ultra modern physicists, would tell him that space and time are one, and Thales would sigh to think of his boyish debates.

John Locke.

John Locke, whose "Essay on the Human Understanding" was the first work that attracted attention in England to metaphysical speculation, was born at Wrington, England, Aug. 29, 1632, and died at Oates, England, Oct. 28, 1704. The chief purpose of the essay was to find the original source and scope of human knowledge. The conclusions he arrived at in this study were that there is no such thing as "innate idea; that the human mind is as a sheet of white paper prepared to be written upon; that the knowledge thereon written is supplied by experience and that sensation and reflection are the two sources of all our ideas." He made the first sketch when he was thirty-eight years of age and finished it seventeen years later. The book was bitterly attacked.

A Boat Survival.

The dghaisa (pronounced dyaa), the gondola of Malta, is a survival, says John Wignacourt in "The Odd Man in Malta," of the oldest vessel ever used and varies little in shape from the Egyptian boats of the dead. Actually the eye of Osiris is still to be seen upon the prow. It is propelled by two experienced oarsmen, one of whom always stands. When the Gregale wind is sweeping the harbors and the steam ferries are unsafe you can still use the trusty dghaisa. It is a gay little craft, painted in brilliant colors—in this respect a contrast to the somber gondola of Venice.

Pleasant For the Callers.

Two ladies made a formal call on a distant acquaintance. The maid asked them to wait until she ascertained whether the person inquired for was in. Presently she tripped downstairs and announced that "the lady was not at home." One of the callers, finding that she had forgotten her cards, said to her friend, "Let me write my name on your card."

"Oh, it isn't at all necessary, miss," put in the maid cheerfully; "I told her who it was."—New York Globe.

Gone For Good.

"Is it true, mother dear, that everything old fashioned comes back in time?"

"With one exception, daughter; the woman who saved the train by flagging it with a red flannel petticoat. She will never come back."—Baltimore American.

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can. — "I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. FRANK EMSLEY, 903 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.

Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

HOW TO TELL A POOR QUEEN.

A poor queen may be known by the following points: First—By the uneven appearance of the brood. The queen does not lay regularly in every cell, but skips back and forth, producing brood where capped cells are interspersed with empty cells and open brood. Second—More than one egg in the cell when the colony is strong. This condition in summer always indicates either a poor queen or laying workers. The latter will be known by the fact that there are usually quite a number of eggs in the cell, and these produce only drones. Sometimes in the spring a good queen will place two eggs in some cells, because the cluster of bees is so small that she cannot find protected cells enough to hold the eggs she is prepared to lay. Third—A poor queen will leave the worker brood and go down to the corners of the combs to lay in drone cells. A good young queen will not lay drone eggs at all on the start. Fourth—Crippled queens are not usually good. Fifth—Old queens are usually shiny and slippery looking. They are often stiff in their movements and slow. Sixth—When bees are cross or do not work well, it is sometimes the fault of the queen. Seventh—Drones in worker cells are an indication of a poor queen. Eighth—A queen which goes through the queen excluder is always a nuisance, and, especially if she does this for the purpose of finding drone comb, she should be disposed of.

Relief at Once Cure Certain

Conclusive Evidence That Dr. Chase's Ointment Cures Itching Piles.

Mr. John G. McDonald, Pictou, N.S., writes:—"I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for itching piles, and found that the first application gave relief. After using a few boxes of the ointment I was completely cured, and can recommend it highly to all sufferers from this disease. You have my permission to use this letter for the benefit of others."

Mr. James M. Douglass, Superior Junction, Ont., writes:—"For about six years I suffered from piles, and often could not work for two or three days at a time, so great was the suffering from pain and itching. Doctors treated me in vain, and I tried many treatments before I came across Dr. Chase's Ointment. Two boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me, and for several months I have had no return of this annoying ailment."

There can be no doubt that Dr. Chase's Ointment is the most effective treatment obtainable for every form of piles. 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

A. E. ANNIS, Secretary

ENGLAND'S PREMIERSHIP.

A Coveted Office That Brings Misery to Its Incumbents.

The lot of the British premier is like that of the policeman in the Gilbertian ballad—not a happy one. After Lord Derby had been prime minister he said that he had had only two happy days in office, one being the day he entered it and the other the day he retired from it.

Peel wrote: "It is impossible for me not to feel that the duties are above all human strength; at least, above mine." Peel also once made the curious statement that if his nose had not bled every night during his premiership he could not have borne the load of his position.

Lord Palmerston was so much affected by his work that he had a special high desk built, which necessitated a standing position. He explained that if he fell asleep while trying to keep up with his work the fall would awaken him.

Disraeli frequently stated that no man could have any notion of the arduous life, and when Gladstone was released from the duties of prime minister he leaped head over heels down a grass bank at Lord Evans' through sheer delight.

Lord Rosebery once wrote the following concerning the duties of prime minister: "He has to deal with the sovereign, with the cabinet, with parliament and with public opinion in its various kinds and degrees. Some of his colleagues he must convince, some he may have to humor, some even to cajole. It is a harassing, laborious and ungracious task."—New York Times.

A PAIR OF SLIPPERS.

Story of an Eccentric Man and a Curious Monument.

There stands in a church in Amsterdam an ancient and curious monument of white marble which always attracts the attention of visitors, and their curiosity is usually heightened by its inscription. On the monument are engraved two slippers of a singular shape, with the inscription "Effen Nyt," which in English would be "even nothing," or, more colloquially put, "nothing else." The story that is told of this strange device is as follows:

A certain rich man who was very extravagant in his tastes became possessed of the idea that he had just so many years to live and no more, and he calculated that if he spent a stated portion of his principal every year his life and his property would expire together.

He was lavishly generous to others as well as indulgent of his own whims, and it so happened that he died the very year he had prophesied would be his last. He had furthermore brought his fortune to such a low ebb that after his few debts were paid nothing remained of all his possessions aside from the clothes in which he was to be buried but a pair of curious old slippers.

Some of his relatives to whom he had been kind during his life erected this strangely decorated monument to mark his burial place.—Washington Star.

Human Strides.

Many correspondents have been testing the length of their stride, even those small boys who pace out the length of a cricket pitch in assurance that twenty-two long steps make twenty-two yards. But a walker from the city avers he comes as near as most men to the yard to the step on a long walk. He stands five feet eight and one-half inches, has a swing from the hips and has always between milestones stepped from 1,690 to 1,710 paces to the mile. That, of course, is a solitary walk. In a regiment the pace must be set by the average of the longest and shortest stepper.—London Opinion.

Empty Bags.

Andrew Carnegie once gave a clergyman a donation for his church and at the same time another gift for a brother clergyman who had fallen into destitution.

"But I doubt if he will take this money, Mr. Carnegie," the clergyman said doubtfully. "He is very proud."

"Oh, he'll take it," said the ironmaster. "Poverty destroys pride. How can an empty bag stand upright?"

Mean Man.

Stamp Clerk—This letter is over weight, madam. Woman at Window—Well, of all the mean people! Why, I've mailed hundreds of letters that weren't anywhere near full weight, and now that I'm sending one just a little bit over you want to charge extra for it.—Boston Transcript.

A Safe Background.

A man rather untidy in his personal habits was discussing the question of a new waistcoat with a friend.

"What color would you advise?" he asked the friend.

"Why," said the friend, "I'd get one of soup color!"—Saturday Evening Post.

The Burned Church.

Jim (regarding damage to church by fire)—Good job it wasn't a factory, Bill. Bill—You're right, mate. Only one man put out of work, and he draws his money.—London Punch.

Probably an Accident.

"Did you notice how pale the bridegroom was?"

"No. How did you happen to glance at him?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Not ignorant of misfortune, I learn from my own woes to aid the wretched.—Vergil.

LIKING WHAT WE HAVE TO DO.

Anne Guilbert Mabon.

"Dusting is the most disagreeable work there is; I hate it!" fretted Agnes, as she went about her task scowlingly and unwillingly.

"It depends how you look at it," spoke up grandmother from her easy-chair by the fireplace. "I suppose you wouldn't care very much about washing windows, either, would you?"

"I should say not," responded Agnes. "I hate all that kind of work."

"And yet," went on her grandmother, "there once was a very rich girl, who never knew what it was to have to work, who chose washing windows as the best thing she could think of to amuse herself."

Agnes paused in her work and regarded her grandmother with astonishment.

"It's true," said the old lady. "The story is told that when Queen Victoria was a girl she went to visit an aunt. The aunt, wishing to do what would please and entertain her niece most, asked Victoria what she would most like to do. The girl replied that she had always wanted to wash windows. The aunt gave her her wish. Bucket and wash cloths were brought forth and the girl then afterwards was queen of England scrubbed away at the windows as long as she pleased."

Agnes went on with her dusting, thinking vigorously all the while. "I suppose," she said, at length, "it really isn't what we do, after all, that counts; it's the way we look at it."

"That's just it," answered grandmother. "Everything in this world is work of some kind, whether we call it so or not. It's as much work to play on the piano, or to play tennis, or to make taffy, or write letters to one's chums, as it is to dust or sew or do some other useful task. We can make any occupation pleasant if we try to. Even dusting can be made interesting if you look at it that way, see how well you can do each article, take a real interest and pleasure in making it just as clean and shining as you know how. It's not the work, but the way we look at it that makes the occupation pleasant or distasteful. One of the best resolutions a girl can make is that she will resolve to like what she has to do, to enjoy whatever it is and like what she has to do, to enjoy whatever it is and to do it the very best she knows how. It makes the work so much easier and pleasanter. It makes you cheerful and happy, too."

"I'll try it after this," said Agnes carefully dusting the intricate carving of the cabinet before her.

HOW TO WIN BATTLES.

More Victories are won by seige tactics than by assaults.

Apply this to businesss and see what it means; it means that continuous and steady advertising is more resultful than campaigns that come and go, come and go with long intervals in between.

For an advertiser with goods to sell to suspend his selling effort now is to make conditions worse for himself, and is no sign of that courage which is supposed to possess every Canadian heart in these war times.

Win and hold your position in business by steadfastness in attack.

A SERIAL STORY

ANNA, The Adventuress

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

CHAPTER XXVIII.—continued.

"She shot him, of course," the doctor answered. "It is quite plain—motive and everything. One can picture the whole scene. The man is probably her husband, a disreputable lot by the look of him. He finds his way here and waits for her. She returns—with the other fellow. Of course there's a row—either she or the other fellow shoots him. You will see what those scraps of paper are which they probably took from him and burned."

"I have a very strong idea," the detective said slowly, "that it was a marriage certificate."

"If you can prove that," the doctor answered, "it should hang her. You are not letting her go, are you?"

The detective smiled.

"There is not the slightest object in arresting her," he said, "unless she tries to leave London. We can do that at any moment, and if we leave her alone she is far more likely to give herself away. How about the man?"

"He will die," the doctor answered.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Steel Edge of the Truth

The manservant, with his plain black clothes and black tie, had entered the room with a deferential little gesture.

"You, will pardon me, sir," he said in a subdued tone, "but I think that you have forgotten to look at your engagement book. There is Lady Arlingford's reception to-night, ten till twelve, and the Hatton House ball, marked with a cross, sir, important. I put your clothes out an hour ago."

Nigel Ennison looked up with a little start.

"All right, Dunster," he said. "I may go to Hatton House later, but you needn't wait. I can get into my clothes."

The man hesitated.

"Can I bring you anything, sir—a whiskey and soda, or a liqueur? You'll excuse me, sir, but you haven't touched your coffee."

"Bring me a whisky and soda, and a box of cigarettes," Ennison answered, "and then leave me alone, there's a good fellow. I'm a little tired."

The man obeyed his orders noiselessly.

"I have put the onyx buttons in the single-breasted white waistcoat, sir," he remarked, before leaving the room. "I saw Mr. Hamilton to-day, outfitter, sir, at Poole's, and he advised me to put the double-breasted ones away for the moment. I wish you good-night, sir."

Ennison roused himself with an effort, took a long drink from his whisky and soda, and lit a cigarette.

"What a fool I am!" he muttered, standing up on the hearthrug, and leaning his elbows upon the broad mantelpiece. "And yet I wonder whether the world ever held such another enigma in her sex. Paris looms behind—a tragedy of strange recollections—here she emerges Phoenix-like, subtly developed, a flawless woman, beautiful, self-reliant, witty, a woman with the strange gift of making all others beside her seem plain or vulgar. And then—this sudden thrust. God only knows what I have done, or left undone. Something unpardonable is laid to my charge. Only last night she saw me, and there was horror in her eyes . . . I have written; called—of what avail is anything—against that look . . . What the devil is the matter, Dunster?"

"I beg your pardon, sir," the man answered, "there is a lady here to see you."

Ennison turned round sharply.

"A lady, Dunster? Who is it?"

The man came a little further into the room.

"Lady Ferringhall, sir."

"Lady Ferringhall—alone?" Ennison exclaimed.

"Quite alone, sir."

Ennison was dismayed.

"For Heaven's sake, Dunster, don't let her out of the carriage, or hansom, or whatever she came in. Say I'm out, away, anything!"

"I am sorry, sir," the man answered, "but she had sent away her hansom before I answered the bell. She is in the hall now. I——"

The door was thrown open. Annabel entered.

"Forgive my coming in," she said to Ennison. "I heard your voices, and the hall is draughty. What is the matter with you?"

Dunster had withdrawn discreetly. Ennison's manner was certainly not one of a willing host.

"I cannot pretend that I am glad to see you, Lady Ferringhall," he said, quietly. "For your own sake, let me beg of you not to stay for a moment. Dunster shall fetch you a cab. I——"

She threw herself into an easy chair. She was unusually pale, and her eyes were brilliant. Never had she seemed to him so much like Anna.

"You needn't be worried," she said quietly, "The conventions do not matter one bit. You will agree with me when you have heard what I have to say. For me that is all over and done with."

"Lady Ferringhall! Anna!" he exclaimed.

She fixed her brilliant eyes upon him.

"Suppose you call me by my proper name," she said quietly. "Call me Annabel."

He started back as though he had been shot.

"Annabel?" he exclaimed. "That is your sister's name."

"No, mine."

It came upon him like a flash. Innumerable little puzzles were instantly solved. He could only wonder that this amazing thing had remained so long a secret to him. He remembered little speeches of hers, so like the Annabel of Paris, so unlike the woman he loved, a hundred little things should have told him long ago. Nevertheless it was overwhelming.

"But your hair," he gasped.

"Dyed!"

"One's corsetiere arranges that. My friend, I am only grieved that you of all others should have been so deceived. I have seen you with Anna, and I have not known whether to be glad or sorry. I have been in torment all the while to know whether it was to Anna or to Annabel that you were making love so charmingly. Nigel, do you know that I have been very jealous?"

He avoided the invitation of her eyes. He was indeed still in the throes of his bewilderment.

"But Sir John?" he exclaimed. "What made you marry him? What made you leave Paris without a word to any one? What made you and your sister exchange identities?"

"There is one answer to all those questions, Nigel," she said, with a nervous little shudder. "It is a hateful story. Come close to me, and let me hold your hand, dear. I am a little afraid."

There was a strange look in her face, the look of a frightened child. Ennison seemed to feel already the about Anna the recluse, a paragon of virtue, and Annabel alias 'Alcide,' a dancer at the cafe chantants, and concerning whom there were many stories which were false, and a few which were true. I—well, I borrowed Anna's name. I made her my unwilling confederate. Sir John followed me to London and married me. To this day he and every one else thinks that he married Anna.

"Act three. Anna comes to London. She is poor, and she will take nothing from my husband, the man she had deceived for my sake, and he, on his part, gratefully disapproves of her as Alcide. She tries every way of earning a living and fails. Then she goes to a dramatic agent. Curiously enough nothing will persuade him that she is not Alcide. He believes that she denies it simply because owing to my marriage with Sir John, whom they call the "Puritan Knight," she wants to keep her identity secret. He forces an engagement upon her. She never calls herself 'Alcide.' It is the Press who find her out. She is the image of what I was like, and she has a better voice. Then enter Mr. Hill again—alive. He meets Anna, and claims her as his wife. It is Anna again who stands between me and ruin."

"I cannot let you go on," Ennison interrupted. "I believe that I can give you great news. Tell me where the fellow Hill took you for this marriage ceremony."

"It was behind the Place de Vendome, on the other side from the shadow of tragedy approaching. He stood by her side, and he suffered her hands to rest in his.

"You remember the man in Paris who used to follow me about—Meysey Hill they called him?"

He nodded.

"Miserable bounder," he murmured. "Turned out to be an imposter, too."

"He imposed on me," Annabel continued. "I believed that he was the great multi-millionaire. He worried me to marry him. I let him take me to the English Embassy, and we went through some sort of a ceremony. I thought it would be magnificent to have a great house in Paris, and more money than any other woman. Afterwards, we started for dejeuner in a motor. On the way he confessed. He was not Meysey Hill, but an Englishman of business, and he had only a small income. Every one took him for the millionaire, and he had lost his head about me. I—well, lost my temper. I struck him across the face, twisted the steering wheel of the motor, sprang out myself, and left him for dead on the road with the motor on top of him. This is the first act."

"Served the beast right," Ennison declared. "I think I can tell you something which may be very good news for you presently. But go on."

"Act two," she continued. "Enter Sir John, very honest, very much in love with me. I thought that Hill was dead, but I was frightened, and I wanted to get away from Paris. Sir John heard gossip about us—Ritz."

"I knew it," Ennison exclaimed. "Cheer up, Annabel. You were never married at all. That place was closed by the police last month. It was a bogus affair altogether, kept by some blackguard or other of an Englishman. Everything was done in the most legal and imposing way, but the whole thing was a fraud."

"Then I was never married to him at all!" Annabel said.

"Never—but, by Jove, you had a narrow escape," Ennison exclaimed. "Annabel, I begin to see why you are here. Think! Had you not better hurry back before Sir John discovers? You are his wife right enough. You can tell me the rest another time."

She smiled faintly.

"The rest," she said, holding tightly to his hands, "is the most important of all. You came to me, you wished me to speak to Anna. I went to her rooms to-night. There was no one at home, and I was coming away when I saw that the door was open. I decided to go in and wait. In her sitting-room I found Montague Hill. He had gained admission somehow, and he too was waiting for Anna. But—he was cleverer than any of you. He knew me, Nigel. 'At last,' he cried, 'I have found you!' He would listen to nothing. He swore that I was his wife, and—I shot him, Nigel, as his arms were closing around me. Shot him, do you hear?"

"Good God!" he exclaimed, looking at her curiously. "Is this true, Annabel? Is he dead?"

She nodded.

"I shot him. I saw the blood come as he rolled over. I tore the marriage certificate from his pocket and burnt it. And then I came here."

"You came—here!" he repeated, vaguely.

"Nigel, Nigel," she cried. "Don't you understand? It is I whom you cared for in Paris, not Anna. She is a stranger to you. You cannot care for her. Think of those days in Paris. Do you remember when we went right away, Nigel, and forgot everything? We went down the river past Veraz, and the larks were singing all over those deep brown fields, and the river further on wound its way like a coil of silver across the rich meadow-land, and along the hillside vineyards. Oh, the scent of the flowers that day, the delicious quiet, the swallows that dived before us in the river. Nigel! You have not forgotten. It was the first day you kissed me, under the willows, coming into Veraz. Nigel, you have not forgotten!"

"No," he said, with a little bitter smile. "I have never forgotten."

She suddenly caught hold of his shoulders and drew him down towards her.

"Nigel, don't you understand. I must leave England to-night. I must go somewhere into hiding, a long, long way off. I killed him, Nigel. They will say that it was murder. But if only you will come I do not care."

He shook her hands off almost roughly. He stood away from her. She listened with dumb fear in her eyes.

"Listen, Annabel," he said hoarsely. "We played at lovemaking in Paris. It was very pretty and very dainty while it lasted, but we played it with our eyes open, and we perfectly understood the game—both of us. Other things came. We went our ways. There was no broken faith—not even any question of anything of the sort. I met you here as Lady Ferringhall. We have played at a little mild lovemaking again. It has been only the sort of nonsense which passes lightly enough between half the men and women in London. You shall know the truth. I do not love you. I have never loved you. I call myself a man of the world, a man of many experiences, but never knew what love meant—until I met your sister."

"You love—Anna?" she exclaimed.

"I do," he answered. "I always shall. Now if you are ready to go with me, I too am ready. We will go to Ostend by the early morning boat and choose a hiding place from there. I will marry you when Sir John gets his divorce, and I will do all I can to keep you out of harm. But you had better know the truth to start with. I will do all this not because I love you, but—because you are Anna's sister."

Annabel rose to her feet.

"You are magnificent," she said, "but the steel of your truth is a little oversharpened. It cuts. Will you let your servant call me a hansom," she continued, opening the door before he could reach her side. "I had no idea that it was so abominably late."

He scarcely saw her face again. She pulled her veil down, and he knew that silence was best.

"Where to?" he asked, as the hansom drove up.

"Home, of course," she answered. "Eight, Cavendish Square."

DRAINING SIMCOE.

The work of drainage goes on apace in Simcoe County. In one month B. E. Foyston, of the O.A.C., whose home is at Minesing, was sent up to survey 500 acres for drainage, and he is coming back for another visit to survey still more. Over 135 acres at least, will be in the next job.

L. C. Kitchen, who lives a few miles south of Stayner, is a drainage enthusiast. He has 2,700 tile on his place, and could stand more. He believes that the last two years have been so dry that there has not been the same apparent need for it, and that when a few wet seasons come attention will be directed to underdrainage even more than ever.

On his farm, the only purpose for underdraining was to clear out the basins in the hillsides and uplands where water might collect and stand. He tells of two fields where there were some of these basins, covered with a growth of water willows as high as a man's head. These basins were full of water till long after seeding was past, and were virtually waste land. He put in a team of horses and pulled out the willows, then drained with two big tile drains, and now it is the best land on the place, growing oats this year that were so heavy and tall that the machine could hardly cut them.

In his first tiling work, Mr. Kitchen made the mistake, he says, of running two and one half inch tile entirely, which was too small for the work unless two or three tiles were laid into each basin.

Much of the work in this locality was done by Mr. Lemon, of Creemore, who charged 15c per rod for laying the tile at any distance, running on an average from sixteen inches to four feet deep. He is busy most of the time at the work.—The Weekly Sun.

Barrie town council voted $25 to each of the 25 officers and men from that town who left for the war.

HANOVER WON.

Dufferins Beaten by Score of 9-2 Last Wednesday.

In the neighborhood of one hundred ardent supporters accompanied the Dufferin lacrosse team to Hanover last Wednesday to witness the first of the home and home semi-final games with the Hanover team. The game attracted a large crowd and there was no end of enthusiasm on the part of the spectators. A large contingent of Durham people was on hand. The Durhamites rooted hard for the Dufferins and it was through no fault of their supporters that the green shirts did not score a victory. Hanover won by 9-2. The score looks somewhat one-sided, but we are assured by spectators that the game was very even. The Orangeville boys handled the ball just as much as the home team, but did not seem able to do the scoring. The defence played a strong, aggressive game, but the home appeared rather light for the heavy German town defence. The Hanover Post gives the following report of the match :—

Before a large crowd yesterday afternoon Hanover intermediate lacrosse team "put it over" Orangeville on the local grounds to the tune of 9 to 2 in the first of the home and home games of the semi-finals.

And the Hanover boys deserved their victory for they played a hard consistent, daring game throughout. While a 9 to 2 score looks good on paper, the Orangeville team are anything but a cinch, and our boys will have to play for all that is in them when they go to Orangeville.

The Dufferins of Orangeville were famous 20 years ago—they won championships in those days—but until this year they have lagged behind for the honors of the gutted stick. They are back in the game this year with a big, husky, resourceful and well appointed team, and while the Hanover team was superior here yesterday, our team had to fight for every inch of the way.

Orangeville came by special train with about 200 rooters. People motored here and drove here from Durham, Walkerton, Paisley, Neustadt, Ayton, Elmwood and other points.

It was a gay, well dressed crowd and the "hard times" spectre did not show itself. The Hanover band was present. Waghorne, the well known Toronto referee, officiated. He gave the teams too much latitude in our estimation, and the Dufferins took more advantage of the chance to rough it than our team.

The game started at 4.15 o'clock. In the first quarter Hanover was to the fore at all times, and finished the quarter 4-1. Sam Wendorf scored the first in 30 seconds on a rush, while Walter Wendorf got the other three. The second quarter was a hard, gruelling battle with the honors equally divided. Sam Wendorf got a nasty cut on the head but stayed gamely in the ring. Hanover opened the scoring in 12 minutes and Orangeville got one a half minute later. Devlin "put one across" in 2 minutes. Half time score 6-2 in our favor. The game went on in the third quarter with little advantage to either team, Aaron Ries making the only tally. Both defences held in well, and both goal keepers were right on the job. Score 7-2.

In the last quarter Bill Helwig and Stevenson got 10 minutes each for embracing each other too fondly. Elmer Devlin scored in 6 minutes, and duplicated the trick 4 minutes later. Poodle Wendorf got 5 minutes for going inside the goal tender's crease, and the goal keeper who struck him was banished for the game. Zimmerman was hurt and had to retire. The game was full of incidents and excitement, and the Orangeville crowd did not take very kindly to the score. The spectators got their money's worth.

The teams lined up as follows from goal out :—

Orangeville :— Booth, Cranston, Densmore, Scott, Dodrick, Stevenson, Keith, Ewing, Camplin, Patterson.

Hanover:— Booth, Esch, W. Henning, H. Wendorf, Zimmerman, Helwig, S. Wendorf, W. Wendorf, Devlin, A. Reis.

Walter Wendorf was the only change made on the Hanover line-up from the previous games, Walter Wendorf taking the place of Dave Reis who went West. He made a good showing.

Densmore of the Dufferins was at the fence three times. While he is a big chap he doesn't look wicked but he twirls his stick too near a fellow's face to be pleasant.

Hanover will play the return game in Orangeville next week. Hanover has a good lead and our boys should come home victorious.

Women's Institute Notes.

We note with pleasure that the Women's Institute of Corbetton have finished the cement sidewalk that they undertook to build this summer. They are planning to extend this in the future.

At the August meeting of the Laurel Women's Institute the usual programme was supplemented by a Paper entitled "The Stewardship of Time," given by Mrs. (Rev.) I. Couch, of Ottawa. Mrs. Couch's Paper was very much appreciated by all.

The Women's Institutes throughout Ontario have been appealed to for assistance to raise money for a Hospital Ship for the Imperial Navy and also for pillows, flannel sheets and handkerchiefs. All the Branches in Dufferin are asked to kindly contribute to this good work. Miss E. Besley, District Secretary, Shelburne, is prepared to receive all donations and forward them to headquarters. Be prompt as you can in sending in contributions.

The Laurel Women's Institute Branch will meet at the home of Mrs. Joseph Lanktree, 5th line, Amaranth. Rev. J. R. Bell will address the meeting, his subject being "Health Hints."

Tilt—Good.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents in Blair, on August 22nd, when Louisa Ethel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron R. Good, became the bride of William Walder Tilt, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Tilt, also of Blair. The bridal party entered the drawing room to the strains of "The Norwegian Bridal Procession," by Greig, played by Miss Ruth L. Tilt, sister of the groom. The ceremony was conducted before an embankment and arch of evergreen ferns and white clematis, by Rev. C. W. Cosens, of Elmira, in the presence of 85 guests. The bride was gowned in white ivory satin, with lace and pearl trimmings. She was attended by her sister, Miss Jennie, who wore white silk crepe, with shadow lace trimmings. The groom was supported by his cousin, Mr. Stanley Ohlman, of Chicago. During the signing of the register Miss Mary Stauffer, of Waterloo, sang sweetly, "A Perfect Day." After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served in the dining-room, the decorations being pink and white. Afterwards the newly married couple left on a trip to Muskoka, the bride travelling in a navy blue suit and French hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Tilt will be at home in Blair after October 1st. The groom is a cousin of Mr. W. T. Tilt of this town, who with his wife and daughter, Miss Edna, were guests at the wedding.

Slack—Hanna.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Hanna, 2 Geoffrey street, Toronto, when their elder daughter, Mary Pearl, became the wife of Mr. Luther T. Slack, of the Imperial Bank, Sault Ste. Marie, son of the late Mr. Joseph Slack, and of Mrs. Slack, of Mono Road. To the strains of the wedding march rendered by Miss M. Kennedy, the bridal party passed through an aisle of ribbon terminating in a bower of palms, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. H. Matheson, Eglinton. The bride was charmingly gowned in champagne duchesse satin en train, seeded with pearls and rhinestones, and wore a long flowing veil and orange blossoms. She carried a handsome sheaf of lilies and wore the groom's gift, a pendant of pearls and peridots. During the signing of the register the bride's sister, Mrs. E. J. McClelland, sang "Love's Coronation." After the wedding breakfast and toasts the bride changed her gown for a travelling suit of purple plush with black velvet hat and left for a motor trip through the country, after which they leave for their home in Sault Ste. Marie.

Belgian Monarch Is Beloved by People; He Married for Love

KING ALBERT OF BELGIUM, whose determination to fight Germany rather than allow his country to be used as a base of operations against France, and who has since distinguished himself at the head of his own troops, is intensely popular with his own subjects.

He has none of the vices of his late uncle, King Leopold, and, in fact, is in almost every respect the direct opposite of the late monarch.

King Albert is the second son of the Count of Flanders, who was the younger brother of Leopold. Albert's elder brother died, and as Leopold had no son, he became the heir to the throne, as women are debarred under the Belgian laws. On the death of his father, several years ago, Albert inherited a large fortune.

The King's full name is Albert Leopold Clement Maria Meinrad. His mother was the Princess Maria of Hohenzollern, and he was born April 8, 1875. His paternal grandmother was a daughter of Louis Philippe, King of France. He is finely educated, and is thoroughly unostentatious.

KING ALBERT OF BELGIUM.

Stubbornness of purpose is the chief characteristic he inherited from his Hohenzollern mother.

He is fond of athletics, and because of this has changed a naturally delicate constitution into one much more robust.

HIS HEALTH WAS POOR.

At the time of his elder brother's tragic and mysterious death a few years ago his delicate health gave rise to universal fears that he would not live to grow to manhood. He is tall and soldierly-looking, well set up, and always had the reputation of being of a far more studious temperament than his brother, Prince Baudouin.

The latter met his death under circumstances still shrouded with mystery, in a house situated in one of the most fashionable thoroughfares of the Belgian capital, which has remained untenanted ever since, and is pointed out to strangers as the scene of a tragedy which, according to popular rumor, bore many striking analogies to that at Meyerling, which cost the Crown Prince of Austria his life.

The King has been an extensive traveler. He has visited every country in Europe, and visited the United States in 1898. A devotee of the bicycle, he has always preferred that to horseback riding.

A LOVE MATCH.

Queen Elizabeth became the wife of King Albert fourteen years ago, their wedding having been celebrated in royal state on Oct. 1, 1900. Their union was described at the time as a genuine love match, and it was said they had similar and congenial tastes. Both are highly educated and fond of literature, music, and art.

Queen Elizabeth, who was a Bavarian princess, is a strikingly handsome woman. She has a long, oval face, with fine features, and boasts of hair of a pale golden tint that surrounds her head like an aureole. She has traveled extensively with her father and mother, one of her trips extending into the interior of Siberia. Music is a passion with her, and she is an accomplished violinist. As a horsewoman she is without fear, and is said to ride as well and gracefully as her aunt, the late Empress of Austria. A few years ago she developed talent as a dramatist and wrote a play entitled "Romunda," which was produced in Brussels in March, 1908, causing a stir in the Belgian capital.

Has Bed In War Office.

A. Munro Grier, K.C., arrived in Toronto recently from England. He was in London when war was declared and he tells a story that Lord Kitchener sleeps in the war office. He said that when Kitchener received his recent appointment, the first thing he asked if there was a bed in the office. On being told that there was not, he immediately sent out for one.

He said the crowds in London behaved themselves in an admirable manner.

A MASTER STROKE.

Czar's Promise to Poland Serves Several Purposes.

It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of Russia's declaration that Poles loyal to the Slav cause would be treated with the utmost consideration and that autonomy for Poland would result. The Poles form an important part of the Czar's empire, particularly in these troublous times, owing to the fact that Russian Poland lies — the German frontier, and all the attacks of Germany on her enemy must be made on Polish territory.

The political experts of Europe have long predicted that this would be the first move of Russia in the event of war breaking out between that country and Germany or with Austria. The Poles of Russia have always enjoyed more freedom than the Poles living under the Kaiser or under the Emperor Francis Joseph. On the other hand, it has been predicted that should Germany become involved in international conflict she would shortly face an insurrection at home among the Poles.

The Poles, first annexed by Prussia in 1772, hate the Prussians with all the hatred that characterizes a people oppressed by an overlord. The annexation was apostrophized as the "greatest crime of the century" by Baron von Stein, the great Prussian patriot.

The Poles in Prussia, as afterward in Austria, were long treated with consideration. The congress of Vienna had decided that "the (Poles) nationality of the population must be respected, that their mother tongue must enjoy perfect equality with the German language, that they ought to have the right to compete for all the posts and dignities throughout the country and that, given equal abilities, they ought to be given preference for all public offices in the countries they inhabit."

To these promises the Prussian Government remained faithful for more than two generations, so that when the Polish rebellion of 1863 broke out in the Russian province the Poles of Prussia held aloof. During the war of 1870 the Polish regiments distinguished themselves against the French. They marched, of course, under the Prussian flag, but sang their own patriotic hymn, "Poland has not perished yet."

It was not until 1885 that the Prussian policy toward the Poles was changed. On March 25 of that year an order was issued that no Poles except those owning allegiance to the Prussian crown might remain in Posen after the end of the year. In 1886 the Prussian landtag placed at the disposal of a government commission $35,000,000 for buying out Polish landed proprietors and settling on their estates German "colonists." Bismarck then openly avowed his object of Germanizing these provinces.

From that time on the lines have been drawn even tighter. The Polish language was banished first in the secondary schools, then in the elementary schools. Even in religious instruction the language could not be used. In 1908 Polish could not be spoken in public meetings held in a community where the German population predominated.

IN LIGHT OF HISTORY.

Mme. de Thebes Has Justified Her Title of Prophetess.

With the sudden rush of history-making events which have marked the summer of 1914, people who are interested in such things, and many who have not been heretofore, are recalling with considerable interest the prophecies of that remarkable Parisian woman, Mme. de Thebes. The French seeress, who is one of the best known figures in Europe has many correct predictions to her credit, and likewise many failures, but the past few months have sent her stock soaring.

Mme. de Thebes predicted many gloomy things for 1913, but all she failed to do evidently was to hit upon the right year. Most of her prophecies have materialized, but a few months later than the time she gave.

The year she said would be particularly black for Germany. She was to be involved in a disastrous war in which Austria would participate. She predicted the death of Emperor Franz Joseph, and said also that he would not be succeeded by the Archduke Ferdinand but by a much younger man, presumably the Archduke Charles Francis. To-day Archduke Ferdinand is dead and Archduke Charles stands in his place.

Mme. de Thebes has undoubtedly failed with regard to King George, whom she described as "doomed."

She went on to predict that Britain would be engaged in the great war with Germany and Austria; would have the most serious crisis in her naval history, but would come out triumphant. She also prophesied the internal dissensions in Britain which preceded the war—the Home Rule crisis—and indicated that it would go on in spite of her triumph on the seas.

Mme. de Thebes predicted a great cataclysm in Russia which would bring new men to the front and new questions to the front and this seems to be in process of fulfilment. She also promised Italy a new Pope and a new King. The first part of the prediction has come to pass, but the latter remains unfulfilled. More, however, follows. Mme. de Thebes said that an attempt would be made to force her into a war with France and that she would refuse to join her partners in the Triple Alliance.

Spain and Portugal, she said, would overthrow their Governments, and Abdul Hamid would be restored to power.

This Mme. de Thebes is likely to have more readers in the years to come!

Joffre Is Strictest of Disciplinarians, But Is Very Popular

IF France had had a Gen. Joffre in 1870 the Germans would not have won. This is the unanimous opinion of those who know the masterful personality of Gen. Joffre, the Commander-in-Chief of the French army. He is, like our own Lord Kitchener, an organizer of victory. He does not believe in flashes of genius. He knows that long and careful preparation is necessary. He has been at the head of the French army for three years. Never for a single waking hour in those three years has he forgotten the purpose for which he was appointed—to prepare for the struggle in which France is engaged to-day.

He is a stout man, heavily built, who, in times of peace, lives the ordinary life of a professional Parisian with his wife and daughters. Gen. Joffre is a restful man. His white brow, under close-cropped white hair, is tranquil. His blue eyes are calm and clear. Beneath a heavy white moustache his lips are firm; they show his teeth a little when he talks. He does not talk much. He has a great capacity for silence.

"AS HARD AS NAILS."

That is Gen. Joffre at home. In the field as in his office at the Ministry of War he is another man, a man "as hard as nails." He gives orders and expects them to be carried out exactly: if they are not there is trouble. He may sympathize with the incompetent, but he cannot overlook failure. After the manoeuvres of last year he dismissed five generals. France, which had known little of this masterful Chief of the General

GENERAL JOFFRE.

Staff before, suddenly became aware that its armies were being re-organized by an exceptional man.

His career has been exceptional from the first. When war was declared in 1870 he had scarcely finished one year at the Polytechnique (which corresponds to our Kingston Royal Military Academy). At 18, therefore, he was given his commission, and as an artillery subaltern took part in the defence of Paris during the siege. He attracted attention; he was employed in the reconstructing of the Paris fortifications which followed immediately upon the war. The fortifications at Enghien were of his designing. One day Marshal MacMahon, while inspecting his work, put a hand upon his shoulder and said, "I congratulate you, Captain Joffre." Captain 22! So well had he done that he was sent to Pontarlier to assist with defences. "This is all very well," he said, "but I don't want to make fortifications all my life. I want to command troops."

LEARNED IN THE FIELD.

In Tonkin (French Indo-China) his opportunity came. He was sent into the field, and he returned victorious every time. After this he was distinction in Formosa, in Madagascar, in Dahomey, and then in Timbuctoo, whither he led the remnant of the broken column of Col. Bonnier after he had put new spirit into the men. Thus, by seizing every chance of foreign service, he learned his profession in the field. Now, in the middle of 'nineties, he returned to France and went steadily upwards, working hard all the time, until he was, in 1911, asked to take the chief command. He maintains that the military genius of the French is as strong as ever. He will not admit that the increase of luxury resulting from the greater complication of life and the growth of huge cities has weakened the dash and vigor of French troops.

During the three years that he has been in supreme command of the army the latter has had time to test his measure, with the result that he has accorded to him its unbounded confidence and believes in him as a leader who can be trusted to lead it to victory. He is liked and respected by the officers, and above all by the rank and file, the soldiers describing him as the finest of "chiens de garde" (watch dogs), calm, but always ready to bite. He in his turn has had during these three years of command the time of peace the opportunity of forming a correct estimate of the officers and men upon whom he may have to depend for the execution of his carefully matured plans against the enemy, and if they are enthusiastic about him, he is equally enthusiastic about them.

SCOTCH DOUBLES

Last Thursday's Tournament a Big Success.

Ferguson and Harrison, of Shelburne, Won Main Event—Consolation Match Not Finished.

Orangeville lawn bowlers held a very successful Scotch Doubles Tournament last Thursday. There were two competitions—Trophy and Consolation events. Twenty-seven pairs took part in the Tourney. 12 of these represented outside Clubs, the other 15 being made up of local players. The day was ideal for playing and the Tournament was thoroughly enjoyed by everybody. As a rule the games were keenly contested and close finishes were quite the order of the day. Ferguson and Harrison, of Shelburne, and Walshaw and Rutherford, of Bolton, reached the finals in the Trophy match. The Shelburne pair were down most of the way in the final, but came strongly toward the finish, winning out by a couple of points. The winners took home a pair of cut glass electric lights. The Bolton players got gold headed umbrellas, suitably engraved. Rounding and Ramsay, of Grand Valley, reached the semi-finals in the consolation. In this round they had Beswick and Leighton down six with two ends to play. The pair got away with a six end in the second last and made another point in the final, thereby winning by one shot. Reid and Jessop, of Orangeville, went into the final round on a bye. The Beswick-Reid game was not played owing to the lateness of the hour and has not been pulled off yet on account of the almost continuous wet weather. The following are the details of the day's play :—

UNDOING THE WORK OF THEIR FATHERS.

The present Emperor of Germany and his military adviser, Von Moltke, are very likely to undo the work accomplished by the Emperor's grandfather and father in conjunction with the older Von Moltke and Bismarck, forty-four years ago.

The position to-day is about the reverse of what it was in 1870. Then it was Napoleon that had been and was disturbing the peace of Europe, and it was France, who, with scarcely any warning, declared war on Prussia, thinking she would have an easy victory. Contrary to her expectations, Von Moltke had his military map completed, and his armies ready to move. Bismarck had secured the allegiance of Hanover, Bavaria, and the other German states, and the day after the declaration of war the Germans moved across the Rhine, and the battle of Wiesenburg took place. The French army proved to be poorly equipped, and inefficiently officered. The result was that the Germans pressed forward with no serious obstruction. From that moment, it was almost a triumphal march of the German army up to the victory of Sedan, when Napoleon handed his sword to King William of Prussia, and the capitulation of Paris, which ended the French empire.

Bismarck, in the meantime, was diplomatic enough to avoid touching Belgium, well knowing that Great Britain would not stand for that.

German statesmen of to-day have apparently done almost everything which Bismarck would have been shrewd enough not to do. He cultivated the friendship of Russia, and was careful to do nothing to offend Great Britain.

The neutrality of Great Britain might have been secured at present had Belgian territory not been violated. Germany having invaded Belgium, in spite of the treaty guaranteeing her neutrality—which led to the remark of the German Chancellor to the British Ambassador, "Why should you make war on us for a scrap of paper?"—Great Britain was in honor bound to defend the treaty.

When Britain notified Germany of her intention to do this, it was a palpable shock to the Kaiser and his advisers. It looks now as though the Emperor William II. and the younger Von Moltke are in the position in which Napoleon and M. Ollivier found themselves in 1870, except that the German army is proven to be well organized and ready to do battle, whereas the French army was unready and inefficient. But Germany in this case is the aggressor, and has incurred the unfriendliness of all Europe, as had Napoleon.

The French army of to-day is in much better state of efficiency than in 1870, and the debauchery, in official circles, which is said to have characterized it in 1870 is now absent. Thus the German Emperor has to fight against the hostile sentiment of all Europe; and while there may be truth in Napoleon's old adage, "Victory is generally on the side of the greatest battalions," there can be no doubt that public sentiment has a strong if imperceptible or intangible influence in a great war.—The Orange Sentinel.

Some of the Great Wars.

The war between Great Britain and France which ended in 1815 dragged along for years. It was caused by the ambitions of Napoleon, who crushed or intimidated country after country. In 1787 Bonaparte and his brother commanders were omnipotent in Italy. Austria was compelled to give up Belgium and to accede to peace on any terms. Then under the pretext of attacking England a fleet of 400 ships and an army of $36,000 picked men were equipped, but their real destination was Egypt. Napoleon continued to be victorious wherever he appeared in person, but his generals were beaten in numerous engagements, and the great defeat at Leipsic compelled the French to retreat beyond the Rhine. The Swedes brought reinforcements to swell the ranks of his enemies on the eastern frontier, while the English pressed on the west, then Paris, in the absence of the emperor, capitulated after a short resistance. Napoleon was retired to the Island of Elba, but in a few months he escaped and landed in France. Crowds followed him, the soldiers flocked around his standard, the Bourbons, whose dynasty had been restored, fled, and he took possession of their deserted palaces. It is not too much to say that the news of his landing spread terror throughout Europe, and on March 25, 1915, a treaty of alliance was signed at Vienna between Austria, Russia, Prussia and England and preparations at once made for his defeat. At first the old prestige of success attended him, but on the memorable June 18th, he met with reverse at Waterloo and was sent to the Island of St. Helena, where he died in 1821. The total fighting period was 7,168 days, loss of life, 1,900,000; cost in money, $6,250,000,000.

The Crimean war, 1854-56, was undertaken by England, France, Turkey and Sardinia, in support of the integrity of the sultan's power and to check the growing ascendancy of Russia on the Black Sea. It was a most sanguinary conflict, and although defeated at the River Alma, at Balaklava and Inkerman the Russians fought with dogged perseverance and Sebastopol held out for about a year. The duration of the war was 784 days; the British loss was 24,000 (16,000 from disease); the French loss, 63,000; Russia loss, 350,000. Money cost $1,525,000.

The American Civil War lasted from 1861 to 1865. Slavery, which in the course of time had become an exclusively southern institution, became in 1854 the central point on which differences of opinion as to the relative supremacy of the Federal and State governments were to be decided, the test question being the right of slave-holders to emigrate with their slave property to other portions of the public domain and there organize new territories and states. A Southern Confederacy was finally formed. Mr. Lincoln, chosen as president expressly on the platform of non-extension of slavery, issued a call for 75,000 militia, and a four years war was soon on. Number of days 2,456, loss of life 650,000, cost in money $2,700,000.

The Franco-German war, 1870-71, lasted 305 days, loss of life 290,000, cost in money $1,580,000,000.

The Russia-Turkish war, 1877-78, lasted 2,456 days, loss of life 180,000, cost in money $165,000,000.

The Boer war, 1899-1902, lasted 962 days, loss of life 90,898, cost in money $1,000,000,000.

Exhausted Nerves Were Fully Restored by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

When the nerve force expended in the day's work and in the act of living is not replenished by restful sleep at night you have cause to be alarmed, as physical bankruptcy stares you in the face. This letter directs you to the most satisfactory cure for sleeplessness.

Mr. Dennis Mackin, Maxton, Sask., writes:—"I have just finished using the sixth box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I must say that when I commenced using it my nerves were so bad that I could scarcely get any sleep. I would lie in bed nearly all night without sleep, and anyone who has this trouble knows the misery of sleepless nights. The Nerve Food helped me from the start, and has built up my nervous system wonderfully. I now enjoy good, sound sleep, and instead of feeling tired in the morning I am strong and healthy, and well fitted for my daily work."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

His One Useful Act

Puttering Turned Out to Be of Value

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

One day Edward Carr, who was always on the lookout for odd articles, attended an auction of furniture in the house of a man who had recently died. An antique desk, said to be 150 years old, was put up, and Carr resolved to buy it if he could secure it at a reasonable price. Among the bidders was a young lady of attractive appearance who seemed to be very desirous of buying the desk, but when the price was run up over $50 she dropped out and with evident disappointment. The desk was finally knocked down to Carr for $100.

One of the pigeonholes he used for pencils, erasers, penholders and other small articles. At times when he brought some little instrument from his workshop that he didn't care to carry back at once he would toss it into this pigeonhole. One day he put a pocket compass in there. In taking it out he noticed that the needle was deflected. There was not a bit of metal near enough to affect it sensibly, and Carr was at a loss to understand the deflection.

The young man moved the compass to the right and to the left, the needle holding the same position—toward the pigeonhole. Putting his hand into the latter, he discovered that it did not extend the full depth of the desk. But on examining the other pigeonholes in line with it he found that none of them extended farther back. He tried the magnet on them all, but without any noticeable effect except on the one in question.

Now, what Edward Carr did not know about old desks was not worth knowing. He was aware that many of them contained secret drawers. He was also aware that some of these drawers instead of being made of wood were made of metal. He believed that the needle of his compass was attracted by a metal drawer. At any rate, there was some metal substance there that influenced it. Taking up a penholder, he began to poke about on the back of the pigeonhole. After doing this for some time he struck the upper right hand corner, and the whole surface comprising the end of the compartment pressed forward against his penholder. When it had come as far as it could he took it out and found it to be a drawer made of steel. It was filled with papers yellow with age.

Carr fell to examining the contents. The first paper he opened contained a flower that had evidently been there for many years. Carr wondered what the story was connected with it and passed on to the next. It was a letter from a son to his father promising, if forgiven for past sins, to mend his ways.

On striking the next document Carr assumed that he had come upon something of importance. It was the will of one Peter Carson, executed fifty years before, making a few small bequests and leaving the rest of his estate to Emily Marston.

Here was a will that had been locked up for half a century. Doubtless the testator had died long ago and the estate had gone to the heirs at law, the real heir getting nothing. Possibly there was a later will. If so this one was of no value. Quite likely the property involved had passed into certain hands, and would it not be better that the will should be destroyed? Might it not be better that the possessors should not be disturbed?

Then suddenly the remembrance of the young woman who had bid on the desk and seemed greatly disappointed at not getting it popped up before Carr's mind's eye. Might she not be Emily Marston? He smiled as it occurred to him that Emily Marston could not be less than fifty years old. But the girl and the desk and the will all got tangled up in Carr's brain and he could not separate them.

Carr was not long in deciding on the right way to treat this case. He went to a lawyer and asked him to look up the estate of Peter Carson. It was found that Peter Carson had died forty years before without a will. The heir at law was a son, Nicholas Carson, who had gone to the bad. An effort had been made to find him at the time of his father's death, but it had been unavailing.

There being no proof of Nicholas Carson's death, the estate had remained in chancery for ten years, when the next and only heir at law, Mary Cowdry, spinster daughter of Peter Carson's sister, succeeded in obtaining from the courts a document declaring Nicholas Carson legally dead, and the property was turned over to her. The report made no mention of Emily Marston, but upon inquiry Carr learned that she was a young woman who had taken care of Carson, who was old and feeble. At the time of his death surprise was manifested that he had made no provision for her.

Of all these persons the last named was the one in which Edward Carr was most interested, though it appeared that at Peter Carson's death she was given no special importance. He learned that ten years after his decease she had married. She, too, had died, leaving one child, a daughter, who would now be about twenty years of age.

On learning this Carr was at once struck with the idea that the girl who had tried to buy the desk might be this daughter of Emily Marston and the real heir to Peter Carson's estate, which had been considerable at his death and in the forty-six years that had elapsed since had doubled. It was now in possession of Mary Cowdry, an old woman and still unmarried.

To look for the girl who had bid on the desk would be like looking for a needle in a haystack, but it was not difficult to get the name of Emily Marston's daughter, and it was found to be Emily Peck. Her address was obtained from a directory.

One afternoon Miss Peck, who was a schoolteacher, had just returned from school when a maid brought her the card of Edward G. Carr. Never having heard of Mr. Carr, she thought there must be some mistake, but went down into the parlor.

Carr saw before him the girl who had tried to buy the desk. She did not recognize him, though he recognized her at once.

"I think I have seen you before," he said.

"Indeed! Where?"

"At an auction where I bought a desk."

"Oh, you bought that desk, did you?"

"Yes. May I ask you why you wished it?"

"The desk belonged to an old gentleman, Peter Carson. My mother, as a young girl, took care of him. He told her that he had provided for her in his will, but no will was found. She expected to find it in his desk, but it was not there. The desk was bought by the person whose effects were sold at the auction I attended. I recognized it from my mother's description of it and thought I would like to buy it, since my mother told me she believed there was a secret drawer in it and that secret drawer might contain a will."

"I should be happy to assist you in examining the desk," said Carr, who had a scheme of his own for imparting the information he had for her. "I am living with my mother, and if you will come to our home we will make an investigation."

The young lady brightened up and assented joyfully. Carr kept her talking about the situation till her dinner was announced, when he left her. The next day she called at the Carrs', was received by Mrs. Carr and taken to Edward's room, where stood the desk. Carr began to tap here and there for a secret spring, but, gaining no result, took up his pocket compass. Then he showed his visitor that the needle was deflected and told her that there was metal near it. Following this up with the poking as he had done when he made the discovery, out came the drawer with the papers in it just as he had found them. Handing the drawer to the excited girl, she ran over the papers till she found the will and opened it and saw that she was the possessor of a splendid estate.

Then she fell back in a state of collapse.

Mary Cowdry was not especially sorry that an heir had been found. The estate was of no especial use to her, and she had no one to whom to leave it. She agreed, in consideration of Miss Peck's settling an annuity upon her sufficient for her support, to turn the property over without any process of law. This arrangement was carried out, and Emily Marston's daughter stepped from the position of schoolteacher to millionairess.

When the beneficiary came to ask Edward Carr what she could do for him to show her appreciation of what he had done for her he said that she had done a great deal—all she could do—already. He had been told and had believed that he would be nothing but a putterer and would never be of use to himself or any one else. He had the satisfaction of having brought a rightful heir to her estate, and that was quite enough for a man of whom nothing whatever had been expected.

Whether or not the heiress was caught by this frank modesty, whether she considered that there was but one way to pay the debt she owed, she finally discharged it by giving herself to the man who had made her rich. She takes great pleasure in humoring her husband's taste for old things, and, as for the desk in which the will was found, she has had it inlaid with gold.

WHAT GOD HAS MADE.

"The conies are but a feeble folk." Yes, but what do you know about the conies? We would almost lay a wager that you can scarcely say whether a coney is an animal or an insect. But that isn't so remarkable, for the thing, whatever it was, lived a long time ago and in the far-off land of Palestine. But what do you know about the insects and birds and the animals that live in your own day, and may be found in multitudes, perhaps, in the very country in which you live? Not very much, you say, because you are not interested. Well, but perhaps you ought to be interested. It is all very interesting, that is certain. One of the most interesting books we have read in many a day was a book about flies, published a few months ago. This is a wonderful world that God has made and it has a multitude of wonderful things in it that most of us know very little about. We can learn something about God through the study of them and think some of His great and beautiful thoughts over after Him. Why did He make the wing of a tiny insect a thing more beautiful and delicate than any fabric the genius of man ever wove? Do you know? Christian Guardian.

He and a younger child were playing some distance from the house when he attempted to crawl through a rail fence. He squeezed the head through sideways, but could not get any farther, neither could he get his head out again. The younger child toddled away and left him. Some two hours afterwards the daughter of a neighbor heard the little boy crying and went to investigate. The fence had to be taken down before the little captive could be released.—Flesherton Advance.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, SEPT. 10th, 1914.

THE UNEMPLOYED.

The movement to the cities having been brought abruptly to an end, a counter movement sets in at once to the land. The new movement, like the old, is, of course, economic, and its immediate and more remote success will depend on the farmer's ability to employ, profitably, the help which turns to him. The first obstacle in the way of immediate relief is the lack of dwellings which will take time to supply. The second is, that farm industry, owing to the protracted scarcity of help, is not ready to make profitable use of labor during the winter season. Mainly, animal industry must be revived, and that requires time and the investment of capital. Immediately, labor will, however, be used with great profit in the preparation of the land for next year's crop.

The return to the land is not, however, a matter of farm laborers only. There will, under economic pressure, be sifted all over the province, in addition, artizans and mechanics, who will be profitably employed in the renewal and repair of buildings, implements and machinery, and also men of more or less capital who will purchase and bring into cultivation land which is now idle or imperfectly cultivated. As farm population increases, and especially as farm production increases, the villages and towns will revive. This will result, however, only to the extent to which labor of all these classes finds profitable employment after it finds relief from the present distress. The cities which are at present mainly interested to be relieved of the unemployed, still entertain the stupidest notions of the country's economic necessities. While the farmer is asked to care for the unemployed, there is not a single suggestion for his relief. On the contrary, it is assumed that construction for which there is no longer any means or any use may be continued by further taxing production by the use of Dominion notes —and the public credit is to be used to maintain a wage rate of two dollars and a half per day. While such notions prevail, agriculture will not make much headway.—The Weekly Sun.

THE TOWN COUNCIL

The following accounts were passed by the Town Council at its meeting on Tuesday night :—

C. C. G. Hannah, $10.45 ; Canadian Allis-Chalmers Co., $179.49 ; Sarah King, $15 ; W. Bansley, $2.55; W. O. Thomas, $20.06 ; George King, $21.20 ; Albert Hoare, $5.10 ; Geo. Eudle, $26 ; James Grahame, $45 ; Jas. A. Matthews, 55c.

A communication from the Imperial Oil Co., Limited, asking permission to erect a gasoline storage reservoir was referred to the Fire & Water Committee for report at next meeting. The Company has some property near the C.P.R. station, upon which it erected a large storage tank for coal oil some years ago. If the desired permission is obtained from the Council, the gasoline tank will likely be built on the same property.

On motion of Councillors Henderson and Holmes Council decided to rescind a motion passed by the 1913 Council granting the Public School Board the use of the Old Council Chamber in the Town Hall for manual training purposes.

Council spent some time in committee of the whole considering tenders for the contract of putting a new roof on the reservoir building. After committee had reported, the Council decided to accept the tender of the Adamson Hardware Co., provided the Company would give a satisfactory agreement to cover the ventilator and for the removal of the old roof. The price asked by the successful tenderer was $165.

REFUSED TO SIGN

Alfred Boppell, a Young German Reservist, is now a Military Prisoner.

Acting under special instructions from Ottawa, Chief Marshall on Monday placed under arrest a young German reservist named Alfred Boppell, who has been living in Orangeville for the last eight months. Boppell refused to sign the written undertaking, which an Order in Council passed a few weeks ago requires German or Austrian subjects resident in this country to give if they wish to retain their liberty. Upon his refusal to do this, Chief Marshall reported the case to Inspector Sherwood, of Ottawa, Chief Commissioner of the Dominion Police Force, and received instructions to arrest the German. Boppell was therefore taken into custody and brought before Police Magistrate Pattullo, who remanded him to the county gaol. Tuesday morning he was turned over to the military authorities and two officers of the Royal Grenadiers escorted him to Kingston where he has been interned at Fort Henry. Boppell, who came here early last spring, has been working in the stone quarries south of the town until recently when he was laid off owing to scarcity of work. Shortly after war was declared he was called home to rejoin the colors. He reported to the German Consul at Toronto, but as he was unable to get out of the country he returned here. He had been under surveillance for some time previous to his arrest. In some quarters it is strongly suspected that he was a paid German spy. The suspicion gains color from the fact that no correspondence or papers were found in his rooms, despite the fact that he received considerable mail through the post office here.

A NEW REGIMENT

Will be Raised in Dufferin to Take Place of Old 36th.

A well-attended meeting of local militia officers and representative citizens was held in the Public Library Auditorium on Saturday afternoon to consider the question of organizing a new infantry regiment recruited in Dufferin and adjoining portions of the counties of Grey, Peel and Simcoe. The project appeared to meet with unanimous support and immediate steps are to be taken to form the Regiment. Among those present at the meeting were :—

Warden T. C. Dryden, of Dufferin, who occupied the chair ; John Best, M.P., C. R. McKeown, M.P.P., W. Fairbairn, reeve of Orangeville, J. A. Marshall, reeve of Mono, Thos. Quinn, reeve of Caledon, Lewis Menary, reeve of Grand Valley, John Reburn, reeve of Mulmur, and Hugh Falconer, reeve of Shelburne, ex-Warden Jno. A. Cornelius, County Crown Attorney J. L. Island, Revs. G. W. Tebbs, G. W. Robinson and A. E. de St. Dalmas, Lt. Col. J. A. V. Preston, Orangeville, Major G. F. Gabriel, Shelburne, Lieuts. A. Firth, C.S.C.I., W. A. Spence, H. A. Dorrance and T. J. Harrison and Messrs. W. L. Craig, Grand Valley, D. B. Brown, R. H. Neilson, J. J. White and W. G. Hyland, Orangeville.

Mr. V. A. Statia was appointed Secretary.

After the situation had been explained and discussed by Lt. Col. Preston and other speakers, a resolution was unanimously adopted to proceed with the organization of a regiment, with headquarters at Orangeville, to include, if possible, the Orangeville, Shelburne and Mono Road companies of the present 36th Regiment, and five new companies to be raised in the count or contiguous thereto, along the lines settled at the conference with the Minister of Militia at Ottawa last winter.

The Wardens and members of the County Council present promised generous support, and a strong committee, including local militia officers, was appointed to take charge of details and arrange recruiting. The name suggested for the new regiment is the Dufferin Light Infantry. Organization meetings will be held at the various company headquarters, and enrolment and active training proceeded with at once.

As the county possesses several very efficient rifle associations and has enough qualified officers within its borders and contiguous districts to take command, it is confidently expected that the Minister of Militia will give the necessary sanction, and that Dufferin county will have its own detachment in the next Canadian contingent.

From the spirit manifested by the meeting it is clear also that the dependents of those who go to the front will be abundantly provided for.

A CALL TO SERVICE

Young Men are Invited to Enlist in the Home Guard

To the Young Men of Orangeville and Surrounding Country.

The British Empire being at war with Germany, Canada is also at war and the King's service becomes the paramount concern of every Canadian.

In order that this part of the Province may do its fair share in the present emergency, it has been decided to organize a Regiment of Infantry for the County of Dufferin and adjoining territory, of which Orangeville and the surrounding country are asked to furnish two companies, (including "H" Company of the 36th). This Regiment will be a part of the Active Militia of Canada, and enlistment will be under the Militia Act, which provides for service in defence of Canada only. Members will not be required to serve overseas unless they subsequently volunteer to do so. The Militia in fact is Canada's Home Guard, and in times of national danger every man who is physically capable should be enrolled in it. The age limit is from 18 to 45 years. It is hoped to organize the Companies and commence training at once, and also to arrange a little later for a Provisional School, at which Officers and Non-Commissioned Officers may qualify for their rank.

Let me appeal to you young men, who are the hope of the nation, to prove yourselves worthy sons of the noble sires who won this country from the wilderness, held it against every foe and made it what it is, by voluntarily enlisting and preparing yourselves for its defence. Let me ask you, while this war lasts, to devote a portion of the time you have hitherto given to your farms, or your business, or to athletics, or to the pursuit of pleasure, to the now all important business of military organization and training. Let us make our new Regiment the strongest and best rural corps in the Province.

A meeting will be held in the Public Library, Orangeville, on Friday evening, September 11th, at 8 p.m., for organization and recruiting purposes, and every man who desires to make good as a Canadian in the present hour of trial is urged to attend.

PURE BLOOD MEANS HEALTH

Pure Blood Can Best be Obtained Through Dr. William's Pink Pills.

If the people would realize the importance of keeping the blood rich and pure there would be less sickness. The blood is the means through which the nourishment gained from food reaches the different parts of the body. If the blood is impure the nourishment that reaches the nerves, bone and muscle is tainted with poison and disease follows. The blood is also the medium by which the body fights off disease. If the blood is thin and watery this power of resistance to disease is weakened. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood. They increase the ability of the body to resist disease. They strengthen the nerves, increase the appetite, cure headaches, backache, and any disease caused by thin or impure blood.

If you are suffering and your blood is thin or impure there is a large probability that your condition is caused by the condition of your blood. You should study your own case. If you lack ambition, are short of breath after slight exercise, are pale or sallow, have no appetite, are not refreshed by sleep, if you have backache or headache, rheumatic pains or stomach trouble, the treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is worth investigating. You can get these Pills through any medicine dealer or direct by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SCORE 9-5.

Dufferins Defeated Hanover in Fast Game Last Wednesday.

Locals Not Able to Overcome Adverse Lead and Round Goes to Hanover.

The best lacrosse match that has taken place here this year was played on Idylwyld Park last Wednesday afternoon. The contestants were The Dufferins and the strong Hanover team. The game was the second of the home and home matches in the semi-final series for the intermediate championship of the Ontario Lacrosse Association. The first game was played in Hanover on the preceding Wednesday, when Hanover won after a strenuous contest by the one-sided score of 9-2. On Wednesday the Dufferins made a gallant attempt to pull down this big lead, but the handicap was too great and the best they could do was to win the game by 9 to 5, leaving them losers on the round by a score of 14 to 11. The locals started out at a lightning pace and in the first quarter looked like sure winners. For the first ten minutes or longer they simply played rings around the visiting team and notched 4 goals, before their opponents got going properly. Hanover settled down to hard work and secured their first tally shortly before the quarter ended. Dufferins had the edge on the visitors throughout the second and third quarters, but the home seemed unable to get inside the Hanover defence. When the field did work the ball in the inside men were so closely checked that they had little opportunity to shoot. Ewing, who is always a dangerous man, was checked very closely and did not get many chances at the flags. Each team tallied once in the second period and the same thing occurred in the third quarter, making the score 6 to 3 at three-quarters time. The green shirts electrified the crowd by their dazzling rushes in the final period. They scored twice in rapid succession and had the spectators on tiptoe with excitement. Hanover got a lucky one just when the Dufferins seemed to have a chance to pull out on the round. The green shirts captured another a little later, but the Hanover home dashed the hopes of the Orangeville team and their supporters by tallying again after a bit of clever combination work.

While fast and keen the game was remarkably clean and there was little evidence of anything except the best of feeling between the players. Every man on the local team played well and with a little more experience the Dufferins would be a hard team to defeat. The locals were by all odds the speedier team, but Hanover has a number of old and experienced players, who know how to make the best use of the ball when they get possession. Booth, in goal, and "Sox" Wendorf on the defence were perhaps the most conspicuous men on the visitors line-up. Frank Doyle refereed the game to the satisfaction of both teams. The match attracted a big crowd, quite a number motoring in from surrounding towns and villages. The players were:—

Hanover — Goal, Booth; point, Esch; coverpoint, Henning; 1st defence, H. Wendorf; 2nd defence, Zimmerman; centre, Hellwig; 2nd home, Lewis; 1st home, Devlin; outside home, Ries; inside home, Haurat.

Dufferins — Goal, Booth; point, Cranston; coverpoint, Densmore; 1st defence, Scott; 2nd defence, Dedrick; centre, Stevenson; 2nd home, Keith; 1st home, Ewing; outside home, Patterson; inside home, Camplin.

Jas. A. Halsted Dead

Prominent Mount Forester Passes Away in Toronto.

The news of the death of Mr. J. A. Halsted, which took place at the residence, 5 Admiral Road, Toronto, at 8 o'clock on Sunday morning, was received with great regret in Mount Forest, of which place he was for over a third of a century one of the most progressive and influential citizens the town ever had. He was keenly interested in anything that might conduce to the welfare and prosperity of the town. He was also well-informed on general topics, and has fine social qualities as an hospitable entertainer and agreeable conversationalist. He was also a forcible and persuasive speaker in behalf of any cause that he espoused. We take the following particulars of his career from Monday's Globe:

James Addison Halstead, former Mayor of Mount Forest and Reeve of Listowel, and one of the best known financial men in Ontario, died yesterday after a week's illness at his home, 5 Admiral Road. Seven days ago he caught a cold, from which pneumonia developed.

Mr. Halstead was born in 1841 near Whitby. Early in life he was engaged in mercantile business in Listowel. In 1877 he moved to Mount Forest, where, in partnership with Mr. J. W. Scott, of Listowel, he carried on a private banking business. This private bank was very successful under the name of J. A. Halsted & Company, and branches at Shelburne, Arthur, Wingham and Durham were opened. For thirty years Mr. Halsted continued as head of the business, and in 1904 sold to the Sovereign Bank. In 1911 he came to Toronto, and had carried on a general financial and brokerage business here since then.

Mr. Halsted was always interested in the municipal affairs of the towns in which he lived and was Reeve of Listowel while he lived there. For eight years he was Mayor of Mount Forest.

He was also interested in politics, being a strong Liberal, although he never consented to become a candidate. He was prominently connected with many financial men of western Ontario, and became well known in Winnipeg when that city was still in its infancy. He was also interested in manufacturing plants in Buffalo and New York. Mr. Halsted was a member of Trinity Methodist Church, a Mason and a member of the Ontario Club.

His wife predeceased him in 1913. Two sons, Dr. Thomas H. Halsted, of Syracuse, N.Y., and Mr. Tracy A. Halsted, of Toronto, and two daughters, Mrs. George J. Reid, of Toronto, and Mrs. D. M. Balfour, of Regina, survive.

The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon to Forest Lawn Mausoleum. There were many beautiful floral tributes, one being a wreath from the Mount Forest Methodist Church, with which the deceased had been so long connected.—Mount Forest Confederate.

Appointed Roadmaster

Mr. John Telford, who has done many years of faithful service for the C.P.R. on more than one of its road divisions, has just been given a signal promotion. He has been appointed roadmaster of the Kingston and Pembroke division and has moved with his family to Kingston where he will reside. Mr. Telford was transferred to Alliston when the C.P.R. line was built and up to the present has been foreman of the maintenance-of-way gang there.

MELANCTHON.

Several from this locality are taking in Toronto Exhibition.

The recent continued wet weather has made it difficult for those who have some late harvest to get it drawn into their barns.

The hay press of H. White & Co., of Shelburne, is busy pressing for the farmers just north of here. The prospects are that the price of hay will advance.

Mr. Henry Marlatt took a business trip to Dundalk last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barrett were the recipients of a young son.

The Misses May and Beatrice Sawden, of Toronto, who have been spending their holidays here, left the other day for Melville Cross, where they will visit friends before returning to the city.

Mr. Wm. Mills jr. has returned from Zion City, near Chicago, and is now engaged with Mr. Sam McComb.

The Melancthon grain market has been opened for the season by the Canada Grain Co., of Toronto, with Sam McComb as manager.

Another fashionable wedding is expected to come off in our midst soon. Particulars later.

IMPORTANCE OF GOOD QUEENS

A colony with a young vigorous queen is much less inclined to swarm than one having a queen that is beginning to fail.

The swarming instinct is stronger in some strains of bees than in others.

These two points have to be carefully observed in swarm prevention; the former by requeening where queens are failing, the latter by rearing queens from non-swarming stock. Some of our successful beekeepers requeen each colony every year towards the end of the honey flow, others keep a supply of young queens on hand to replace those that are found to be failing from time to time. In either case, the careful beekeeper will rear his queens from good stock that does not show an inclination to swarm. One authority, after taking ordinary precautions to prevent swarming, kills every queen that takes out a swarm and requeens from non-swarming stock.

The loss from poor queens also shows itself in winter and spring. From 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. of winter losses are caused by the death of queens which were failing and should have been replaced the fall previous. Another 10 per cent. of queens fail in spring and cause the loss of the colonies which would otherwise have wintered. Many which survive the spring spend the summer superseding and their colonies gather no crop.

DO YOU WISH TO BE POPULAR?

The girl who has an even temper and is rarely upset with trifles, and who is merry and full of fun, is sure to be popular. The happy heroine of real life is not the heroine of the novel, who takes offence with appalling readiness and who is difficult to please.

The happy heroine, for example, does not fall out easily with her men friends, nor forgive them reluctantly. She has what I think I had best call social grit and courage. She can take a trying situation cheerfully, and if you would follow in her steps, here are some rules to remember:

When your pretty frock is stepped upon by a careless young man at a party, don't accept his blushing apology with an angry stare. Make him ten times more repentant and everlasting your admirer by saying: "Of course, I forgive you. I know you are sorry, but accidents will happen; and if you will get a pin or two I think I can make it all right."

When your escort is tardy, when your seat at the concert is none of the best, and when Mr. A. and Mr. B. are dilatory in paying their duty calls, do not look either disgusted or insulted. Good temper gives you an influence that all men respect, and willingness to be amused and to make the best of everything always excites their unbounded admiration. Men are never slow to devoutly honor the girlish philosopher who does not lose her cheerfulness when a train is lost or late, who does not sulk because the rain fell on her best hat at the picnic, who is not given to fretting, frowning, worrying and complaining, and who is ever and always a womanly woman.

The woman whom men admire is not melancholy or self conscious, and she usually has the mother wit and discretion to believe that hearts are pretty much alike, whether they beat under nankeen waistcoats or chiffon blouses, and are to be conquered by very nearly the same means.—Ex.

Uses of Redwood.

California numbers redwood (Sequoia semperuirens) as one of its most valuable assets. This wood, which is found in no other part of the world, occupies a strip of country 20 to 40 miles wide and 50 miles long in the northwestern section of California, extending a short distance over the line into Oregon. The growth is so dense and the trees so large that the supply of standing timber is estimated at approximately 75,000,000,000 feet. The redwood grows to a greater height than any other American tree, averaging on the slopes 225 feet in height and 10 feet in diameter, while on the flats under better conditions, it grows to 350 feet. Most of the redwood cut are from 400 to 800 years old. The oldest tree yet found began life 1370 years ago. The redwood, when normal, has a straight, slightly tapered bole, clear for more than 100 feet and a crown of horizontal branches that may occupy one-third to one-half its total length. In a virgin redwood forest the large trees outnumber the small ones by at least 70 per cent. The average yield to the acre is about 85,000 feet.

The present production is about 550,000,000 feet annually, and allowing for the natural increase that has and will take place when the merits of this wood become widely known, there is over a century's supply in sight.

Redwood should and is now about to take the place to which it is entitled by its indisputable and varied utility. If possesses qualities which fit it for many uses. In color it shades from light cherry to dark mahogany. Its grain is unusually fine, straight and even. Its weight is light and its consistency firm but soft. It is easily worked, takes a beautiful polish and is very durable. It resists decay so well that trees which have laid 500 years in the forest have been sent to the mill and sawed into lumber. The wood is without resin; therefore it ignites slowly and offers a strong resistance to fire. The enemies of the redwood are very few and it suffers from them less than other trees. It is immune from the ravages of insects, especially white ants, because of an acid element it contains and it possesses lasting qualities scarcely equalled by any other wood.

Redwood lumber, when properly seasoned, does not change; in other words, does not shrink or swell like some woods. Its use is almost unlimited. It finds a ready market for railway construction, its value in lasting qualities as a railway tie or sleeper being undisputed. Redwood ties have been known to last longer than thirty years. Architects and builders agree that the finest results can be obtained in its native or polished surface, and owing to this fact it finds extensive use both as an interior and exterior finish. It works easily and holds paint well. It is free from pitch and does not shrink and is adaptable to all kinds of pattern work.

THE BEGINNING OF THE END.

Although fully recognizing the impossibility of forecasting where or when the present great European conflict will cease or what will be the outcome, authorities who have made a study of the economic and social conditions of the world predict, and there seems no other alternative possible, the end of autocratic government the world over, and rule by the people will replace despotism. With this will come the end of great wars, and the establishment of world-wide permanent peace. If this is to be the outcome, and we hope it is, a beginning has already been made, for so soon has the most powerful of all autocrats, the Czar of Russia, promised to grant Russian Poland political autonomy if the Poles give him their support in the struggle with Austria-Hungary and Germany. This so far is only a promise, but it is the thin end of the wedge and a promise which must eventually be fulfilled, together with scores of other measures for the emancipation of the slaves of the system of bureaucratic control. This move on the part of the ruler of all the Russians will force Germany to offer like freedom to the part of Poland which she gobbled up two centuries ago. Whether it is granted now or not it will come before the end of the war. From this time forward the people are going to have supreme command of the situation, and the rights of the people have always been sufficient cause for war; and, moreover, the people have never received the fulness of their rights without war and bloodshed resulting from stubbornly contested battles. Great Britain entered this war on the side of the people with their freedom as the goal. It is not possible to foresee all the obstacles which may yet have to be overcome before Europe has been transformed from a powder magazine ready to explode at the heated word of an absolute monarch to a quiescent, secure and satisfied continent with good government by the people for the people. It is to be hoped that the war is soon over, but it must be remembered that the greatest freedom the world has known has only to come after the fiercest of fighting. It may be so again, and it is always well to be prepared with a grim determination to calmly yet decisively see the thing through and never relinquish the firm hold on the side of the right. Few can comprehend that the people would so soon be reaping a great reward as has been offered Poland. Such action on the part of an absolute monarch is almost unthinkable. And yet it is so. Why? Because it must come before the end of the war. The people will have their rights. The wedge of freedom has started to cut. Gradually it will be driven in and in until the toughest knot of bureaucracy splits into a thousand pieces and is dismembered, yes, dissolved before such justice as democratic government brings. The end is yet a long way off, but the goal is in sight.—Farmers' Advocate.

BEATEN BY PYJAMAS.

Col. Hugh Clark and a bunch of members were in the House of Commons Restaurant talking over things in general when one remarked: "If I wore a wrist watch, I couldn't get elected in my constituency."

"It's worse than that in North Bruce," chipped in Col. Hugh. "A wrist watch is an outward and visible sign of weakness but my constituents look deeper. They get right down to skin in these matters."

"Do you know what did a lot to beat John Tolmie?" continued the Colonel. "Outside of my personal merits I mean! You'd never guess it! A report got among the North Bruce farmers that John wore the Babylonish garments. John never had a chance to deny it, because it was never charged against him on the platform. The fatal story was whispered on side lines. It did its deadly work there. Presbyterian sentiment was much aroused against John Tolmie for encouraging Oriental practices. The loose flowing nature of the vestments was dealt upon at great length and John Tolmie became known in some districts as "The Pasha." That cooked his goose for him. North Bruce might stand for John Tolmie in kilts, but never in pyjamas. My majority in that election was 82. It was the anti-pyjama vote that settled it, not anti-reciprocity."

"And what do you wear yourself, Hugh?" put in Col. Morphy, of North Perth.

"Why," said Col. Hugh, fidgetting, "I wear a night shirt, but that's not for publication in North Bruce."

Cured of Piles and Eczema

By Using Three Boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Abram Buhr, Herbert, Sask., writes:—"I want to say that I was troubled with eczema and piles and suffered greatly from the itching, burning sensations caused by these annoying ailments. I sent for a free sample of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this did me so much good that I bought three boxes more, and after using same was cured of both eczema and piles."

This is the kind of letters we receive daily from people who have been cured of these distressing skin diseases by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. No matter how skeptical you might be, you could not read these letters for many days without concluding that Dr. Chase's Ointment is undoubtedly the most prompt relief and certain cure for these ailments.

If you have doubts send for a free sample box and be convinced. It was by use of a free sample that Mr. Buhr was convinced of the merits of this treatment. For sale at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

COL. SAM HUGHES PLAYS ROLE OF HUMAN DYNAMO

Minister of Militia Is the Force Behind Canada's Unparalleled Military Activity.

He Started His Career as a Soldier in Durham County When He Was Twelve Years Old.

PICTURE a tall man in white shirt and soft collar, white serge trousers of strictest military cut, his chair tipped well back and his white shod feet resting on a desk laden down with formidable papers, and you have a fair impression of Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, prime mover of the present intense activity throughout Canada, which is bringing this country to a vivid realization of its place in the British Empire. Place across the room from him Col. Williams, his chief of staff; scatter about at strategic points three stenographers, and then imagine ceaseless incursions and excursions of messengers and telegraph boys and you have some idea of the place in the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa from which emanate these curt orders that have converted Canada into a series of military camps and have sent twenty-five thousand Canadian lads to Valcartier, Que., to await embarkation for Europe.

Sometimes the scene shifts to Valcartier, that sleepy little Quebec suburb, which Col. Hughes put on the map overnight, but always without ceasing the Minister keeps on converting Canada from a quiet industrial people into an efficient part of an Empire which is fighting for its life.

Mr. W. K. McNaught has said of him that he is the dynamo that runs all the machinery that Canada has had to put into motion so suddenly, and he has shown by the speed with which he has galvanized the apparatus into life that the Dominion militia is not the merely ornamental thing some persons have supposed.

JOLLYING THE MINISTER.

There was a time not very long ago when it was considered rather good fun to "jolly the War Minister." Members of Parliament affected to consider his post more or less a decorative one. When the Militia and Defence estimates were tabled in the House the members of the Opposition fished out military manuals and acquired a few phrases for jocular purposes. The serious-minded opponents of militia expenditures unlimbered their heavy peace artillery and criticised the cost of trips abroad, and armouries and manoeuvre grounds. It had always been a bit of a holiday for whatever party enjoyed the tempered climate of the Opposition benches.

COL. THE HON. SAM HUGHES.

There has been considerable shifting of the point of view during the past month, and it has fallen to the lot of Col. Sam Hughes to demonstrate the utility of the Department of Militia under heavy strain.

Friends and foes alike are agreed that the opportunity could not have fallen to a better man. The promptitude and energy and decision which have been put into the operations of the days since the war broke out have demonstrated that that same vigor which earned Col. Hughes the epithet of "fire eater" on the floor of the House may profitably be turned to national account in time of crisis.

WORK OF MOBILIZING.

There were ten thousand things to do. All the detail of recruiting, of equipping soldiers, of providing horses and arms, of laying out a brand new camp, of installing kitchens and food supplies, and rifle butts, of transporting artillery and wagons to the railway, of providing ramps for entraining, of securing cars for man and beast and heavy guns, of appointing officers and schooling men—all these things had to be arranged for to the minutest points, and they were feats which had never been done on so large a scale before, nor in such haste.

And for all the hubbub, Col. Hughes is the coolest and most composed person of the headquarters' staff, his apparel is immaculate and he finds time to tip his chair back and put his feet on the desk.

Perhaps the very variety of his career has a great deal to do with his composure, because he has been many things in his time—athlete, public school teacher, English master in the High Schools, journalist, Parliamentarian, soldier and Minister of the Crown, and has found time to toss off a geography for use in the schools and at least two widely-used maps of Ontario.

STARTED SOLDIERING AT 12.

He was born in Darlington, in Durham County, Ontario, sixty-two years ago, and attended the village school. At the age of twelve he manifested a love for military affairs which never deserted him, and from that time until the present day he has never been out of some branch of the militia. At the same time he exhibited an athletic prowess for which all the Hughes boys were famous in those days and for a good many years the name of Sam Hughes was associated in the minds of Ontario people, with lacrosse, cricket, baseball, rowing and field sports, until in 1872 he carried off the championship of America for the amateur mile.

But neither soldiering nor athletics seemed to offer a career for a country boy so he turned to the traditional stepping stone to fame—he became a school teacher. To a first-class certificate he added university honors in English, French, German and history and entered the High Schools, teaching successively at Belleville, Lifford, and Bowmanville, and for ten years was first English master in Toronto Collegiate Institute.

In the meantime, however, he had been active in the militia. In 1870 he broke off his studies to serve in the Fenian Raid and came home with a General Service medal. In 1873 he was gazetted lieutenant in the 45th Battalion, and five years later became captain and adjutant.

ENTERED JOURNALISM.

Then he decided that the teaching profession did not give him the outlet he required, and he turned to journalism as editor of The Warder in Lindsay. That was in 1885, and in 1888 he attained his brevet majority in the militia. In 1891 he turned to politics in the capacity of candidate and went down to defeat, but fortune favored him and when a bye-election occurred in the following year he went up to the House of Commons, where he has remained ever since. He became major in 1895 and lieutenant-colonel of his regiment two years later. He was just in time to go to the Diamond Jubilee in London in his new role and that fall he made his celebrated offer in behalf of the 45th Battalion, that they would serve anywhere in the world in the service of the British Empire.

In 1897 and 1898 he traveled in New Zealand and Australia in the interests of his doctrine of colonial assistance in Imperial wars, and evoked wide interest, which was to bear fruit before twelve months had passed. The following year saw the outbreak of the South African War, and Col. Hughes was off for the front. He had an active two years of campaigning and achieved that distinction which means so much to the soldier, he was mentioned in despatches several times for distinguished service. In 1901 his services were recorded in The London Gazette and he brought home as memento of his trip the Queen's medal with two bars.

BATTLES IN COMMONS.

In the years that followed Col. Hughes carried on manifold activities, chief among which was his office of chief military critics of the Laurier Government. There were some battles royal on the floor of the House in those days for Sir Frederick Borden and Col. Sam Hughes were mighty debaters, and the reading public enjoyed many a set-to which seemed always to wind up with a discussion of the adventures of the colonel in South Africa along with his celebrated "man Turpin."

In addition to his task of heckling the Department of Militia, Col. Hughes was active in the encouragement of marksmanship, and many things connected with the militia. Presently, in 1911, his turn came and when the Laurier Government was defeated, there was only one name mentioned for the Ministry of Defence and that was Col. Sam Hughes.

From the moment he assumed control he marked out a vigorous program. He opened with a statement regarding the defences at Halifax and put himself definitely on record as opposed to any demolition of the forts. Not only did he refuse to permit commercialism to entrench upon the military establishment, but he promised that new forts would be built.

TILT WITH "ARMY."

Then came a tilt with the permanent force in which adherents of both parties lined up alongside of the Minister. He read the riot act to those officers who had come to believe the permanent force was a standing army in Canada; and reminded them that they were a university for the militia and nothing more. It was a vigorous newspaper sensation for a week, and then the enemy fled precipitately.

His next step was for cadet camps on a large scale, and he promised that 40,000 boys would be under canvas the following summer. When exception was taken to the idea, he reminded his critics that it was better to make self-controlled, erect, decent patriotic men through military training and physical culture than to allow boys to become ruffians and gadabouts. He had his way.

Then the canteen made its exit from militia camps. There was a loud wail from many quarters, but the Minister was looking for the younger generation, and he knew what he was about. Again he had his way.

A quaint little episode which tickled Canadians occurred when a U. S. patriotic society wanted Canada to return the Bunker Hill trophy which reposes at Quebec. Col. Hughes replied courteously with the brilliant suggestion that there should be general exchange of trophies, colors and so on. The Americans could not see the joke and they stopped their importunities.

THE TRIP TO EUROPE.

In September, 1913, Col. Hughes inaugurated a new departure. He took a select body of officers to England to see the manoeuvres and they spent the most profitable few weeks of their lives watching the highly trained armies of Britain and the continental powers.

Another of his pet theories has been that the armories in the varies centres should be made attractive centres for the youth of the neighborhood, and his budget for new structures has been a point of vigorous attack in both caucus and House, but as before he has had his way.

He has his way with surprising frequency considering all obstacles, but Canadians are realizing just now that it is a good way.

The operations which have kept the country agog for the past month have been kept pretty quiet for strategic reasons, but Canadians have a pretty good idea of the amount of work which has gone to make them run smoothly. Not only superb energy has been needed—and will be needed for some months to come—but also a habit of knowing what one wants and getting it.

GERMANS IN BRUSSELS.

Kaiser's Officers Force Red Cross Workers Into Teuton Service.

A Brussels journalist, who had been granted a special passport to leave the capital, writes that German sentries, watchful-eyed and with loaded rifles, are posted at all the street corners to keep the non-combatants in order, while the public buildings are crowded with the Kaiser's troops. Soldiers are quartered on the inhabitants only in the suburbs. With a populace crying for news of the war, not a newspaper is obtainable in all Brussels. The once easily accessible city is now practically isolated, except as regards communication with Berlin. The general condition of the city as to food supplies is not causing any uneasiness, notwithstanding the presence of so large a body of ravenous troops. There is abundance of certain kinds of food, though milk, butter, eggs and vegetable are scarce.

All the bakers' shops have been shut up and all bread used in the city is baked at home without yeast.

An idea of the volume of the German invasion of Belgium may be gained by the announcement that it is computed that within five days fully 600,000 troops have passed through by way of Brussels. While the soldiers in the city itself are quiet, different conditions prevails in the outskirts. In Brussels the Germans pay for what they get—their own price in most instances, it is true—yet there is an exchange, more or less fair. In the suburbs, however, the Teuton warriors are ruthlessly plundering small houses, pillaging the wine cellars of the well-to-do bourgeoise, while the landholders look on in dismay as carousing guardsmen drink their favorite vintages and throw on the floor what they cannot immediately drink.

Indignation has been aroused by the soldiers compelling men and women wearing the insignia of the red corps to enter the German ambulance service.

General admiration has been aroused by the firmness and dignity with which the burgomaster conducted himself at the first meeting with his conqueror, the German commander. When the latter offered his hand, the burgomaster refused to shake it, saying without apparant rancor, "Gen. Von Armin, excuse me, but I cannot under the circumstances consider you or greet you as a friend."

Later, the burgomaster was notified that the period allotted within which the city must pay the war contribution would expire on Monday. He replied, "The city coffers are empty." At once he received a letter, stating menacingly that measures would be taken to collect a contribution, not of the two million first demanded, but of fifty million francs.

Cut a Road Through.

The desperate bravery of the British soldiers in the fighting against the Germans is shown by a story told at Amiens, France, by a private of the French medical corps.

A detachment of British cavalry, during a charge, galloped right through the German lines.

Suddenly they found themselves behind the German front, entirely surrounded by grinning steel in the hands of the Germans soldiers.

They were completely cut off from their companions, but were not dismayed by their predicament.

Brandishing their sabres and firing their revolvers, they plunged into the German ranks, fighting their way back to the main British forces.

Carnegie Defends Britain.

Andrew Carnegie was asked to join in the protest against the participation of Great Britain in the present conflict at the time when Britain's decision had not yet been made. He replied:—

"It is useless. We pacificists mustn't fail to expose and denounce the guilty originators of this hellish war, which was caused by the Kaiser's refusal of Great Britain's olive branch. I believe that the Kaiser did not know what he was doing, but this already is a matter of the past. The looms of the gods weave no erasures. Great Britain did her duty. She was honor bound to protect Belgium."

One of Bolton's nimrods had a peculiar experience one day last week. He was quietly fishing on a neighboring stream and caught a chub. Playing the fish on the ground behind him, he proceeded to woo the finny tribe. When he went to get his fish he found it disappearing down a snake's mouth. He gave chase, but the snake got away with the fish.

To the Editor:

Roman Catholics have recently held a convention in Niagara Falls for the purpose of discussing how best to make united warfare against the liquor traffic. That is most encouraging as in the past our Catholic brethren have not been as active in their opposition to the liquor traffic as the Protestants. They admit that themselves and are determined to be behind no longer.

The call to this convention reads in part as follows —

"The life of the liquor traffic is in the balance, and it behooves the many Catholics who are opposed to the saloon to form organizations of their own or to affiliate their efforts with the existing organizations pledged to the overthrow of the liquor traffic which is erecting its last and most formidable rampart's where Catholics are most numerous. Already the many Catholics engaged in the nefarious business which fosters what Pope Pius X. calls "the terrible scourge, the deadly evil, sowing so much shame among the faithful" constitutes a mighty hindrance to the physical, intellectual and moral progress of the American people in general and of poor immigrants in particular.

"Therefore we, the undersigned, impelled by the urgent appeal of the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore to "all Catholics engaged in the sale of alcoholic beverages to quit that dangerous business" invite all Catholics who favor the removal of the saloon to meet in Conference, August 4th, 1914, in Niagara Falls."

It should be remembered that in the Province of Quebec there are 904 municipalities under prohibition and only 286 under license. Judging the future by the past the downfall of this dreadful business is near at hand.

It is stated that the Dominion Construction Company, of Belleville, contractors for the Canadian Pacific Railway, have issued notices to their employees that a new line will be commenced within thirty days between Bethany Junction and Belleville to complete the low grain route from Port McNicoll to Montreal.

War Courage

MANY a man in Canada, willing to go a-warring across the seas, is unwilling to fight at home---against the shadowy foes of bad times or of business

This is a time in Canada when Canadian business men should fight—fight to capture new trade and to hold old trade. To stop one's advertising is to withdraw a powerful offensive and defensive force, and to expose one's business without a guard.

If the courage of manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers—the generals and captains of trade and industry—fails, the courage of the nation will ebb.

Keep up your courage

A SERIAL STORY

ANNA, The Adventuress

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

CHAPTER XXX.

Annabel is Warned.

"You!"

He crossed the floor of the dingy little sitting-room with outstretched hands.

"You cannot say that you did not expect me," he answered. "I got Sydney's telegram at ten o'clock, and caught the ten-thirty from the Gare du Nord."

"It is very nice of you," she said softly.

"Rubbish!" he answered. "I could not have stayed in Paris and waited for news. Tell me exactly what has happened. Even now I do not understand. Is this man Hill dead?"

She shook her head.

"He was alive at four o'clock this afternoon," she answered, "but the doctors give little hope of his recovery."

"What is there to be feared?" he asked her quietly.

She hesitated.

"You are my friend," she said, "if any one is. I think that I will tell you. The man Hill has persecuted me for months—ever since I have been in England. He claimed me for his wife, and showed to every one a marriage certificate. He shot at me at the 'Universal,' and the magistrates bound him over to keep the peace. I found him once in my rooms, and I believe that he had a key to my front door. Last night Mr. Brendon and I returned from the 'Universal,' and found him lying in my room: shot through the lungs. In the grate were some charred fragments of a marriage certificate. We fetched the doctor and the police. From the first I could see that neither believed my story. I am suspected of having shot the man."

"But that is ridiculous!" he exclaimed.

She laughed a little bitterly.

"I am under police surveillance," she said. "So is Mr. Brenden."

"But there is not a shadow of evidence against you," he objected. "The man alone could supply any, and if he recovers sufficiently to say anything, what he would say would exonerate you."

"Yes."

There was a moment's silence. Anna's face was half turned to him, but her expression, and the tone of her monosyllable puzzled him. He stepped quickly towards her. Her eyes seemed to be looking backwards. She distinctly shivered as he forced her to look at him. He was bewildered.

"Anna!" he exclaimed hoarsely. "Look at me. What is it? Good God!"

An unhappy little smile parted her lips. She clenched her hands together and leaned forward in her chair, gazing steadily into the fire.

"I think," she said, "that I will tell you everything. I must tell some body—and you would understand."

"I am your friend," he said slowly, "whatever you may have to tell me. You can trust me, Anna. You know that. I will be silent as the grave."

"Not long ago," she said, "you left me in anger, partly because of this exchange of identities between Annabel and myself. You said that it would bring trouble. It has."

"Yes."

"Annabel's real reason for wishing to leave Paris, the real reason she married Sir John Ferringhall, was because of a very foolish thing which she did. It was—in connection with this man Hill. He personated over there a millionaire named Meysey Hill, and it seems that he induced Annabel to go through some sort of marriage with him at the Embassy."

"Where?" Courtlaw asked quickly.

"In Paris."

Courtlaw seemed about to say something. He changed his mind however, and simply motioned to her to proceed.

"Then there was a motor accident only an hour or so after this ceremony, and Hill was reported to be killed. Annabel believed it, came to England and married Sir John. Now you understand why I have been obliged to ——"

"Annabel knew where I lived," Anna continued slowly. "She has come to my flat before. I saw her come out from the flat buildings two minutes before we entered it last night. I picked up her handkerchief on the floor."

"You mean—you think——"

"Hush! I think he was concealed in my room, and Annabel and he met there. What passed between them I cannot think—I dare not. The pistol was his own, it is true, but it was one which was taken from him when he forced his way in upon me before. Now you can understand why every minute is torture to me. It is not for myself I fear. But if he speaks—I fear what he may tell."

"You have been to her?" he asked.

"I dare not," she answered.

"I will go," he said. "She must be warned. She had better escape if she can."

Anna shook her head.

"She will take her risk," she answered. "I am sure of it. If he recovers he may not accuse her. If he dies she is safe."

He paced the room for a minute or two restlessly.

"There are some people," he said at last, "who seem fated to carry on their shoulders the burdens of other people. You, Anna, are one of them. I know in Paris you pinched and scraped that your sister might have the dresses and entertainments she desired. You fell in at once with her quixotic and damnable scheme of foisting her reputation and her follies upon your shoulders whilst she marries a rich man and commences all over a life of selfish pleasure. You on the other hand have come to London, a worker, with the responsibility of life upon your own shoulders—and in addition all the burden of her follies."

"You forget," she said, looking up at him with a faint smile, "that under the cloak of her name I am earning more money a week than I could ever have earned in a year by my own labors."

"It is an accident," he answered. "Besides, it is not so. You sing better than Annabel ever did, you have even a better style. 'Alcide' or no 'Alcide,' there is not a music-hall manager in London or Paris who would not give you an engagement on your own merits."

"Perhaps not," she answered. "And yet in a very few weeks I shall have done with it all. Do you think that I shall ever make an actress, my friend?"

"I doubt it," he answered bluntly. "You have not feeling enough."

She smiled at him.

"It is like old times," she said, "to hear these home truths. All the same, I don't admit it."

He shook his head.

"To be an actress," he said, "you require a special and peculiar temperament. I do not believe that there has ever lived a really great actress whose moral character from the ordinary point of view would bear inspection."

"Then I," she said, "have too much character."

"Too much character, and too little sentiment," he answered. "Too much sensibility and too cold a heart. Too easily roused emotions and too little passion. How could you draw the curtain aside which hides the great and holy places of life—you, who have never loved?"

"You have become French to the core," she murmured. "You would believe that life is kindled by the passions alone."

"I know," he answered, "that you who have never loved are like blindfold seekers after truth. You too will know it if the bandage is ever torn from before your eyes. You will see another world than the world of everyday material things. You too will wander in the gardens which Keat's loved, where Byron culled his violets, the garden beyond the mists."

"And are you sure," she said, half to herself, looking with sad eyes into the fire, "that I have never walked there?"

A new anxiety crept into his face. There were signs of it too in his tone as he leaned anxiously forward.

"A few months ago," he said, "I was very sure of it. To-day I cannot tell. There are new things written in your face, you have felt and suffered. You must tell me."

"My friend," she answered, "there is nothing to tell."

There was silence between them. Then a servant girl brought in a telegram. Anna tore it open and passed it to Courtlaw. It was from Brendon.

"Hill gradually recovering consciousness. Doctor says depositions to-night. Recovery impossible.—Brendon."

He looked at her gravely.

"I think," he said, "that some one ought to warn her."

"It is No. 8, Cavendish Square," she answered simply.

* * * * *

Courtlaw found himself ushered without questions into Annabel's long low drawing-room, fragrant with flowers and, somewhat to his surprise, crowded with guests. From the further end of the apartment came the low music of a violin. Servants were passing backwards and forwards with tea and chocolate. For a moment he did not recognize Annabel. Then she came a few steps to meet him.

He was bereft of words for a moment she escaped, having passed him on deftly to one of the later arrivals.

"Lady Mackinnor," she said, "I am sure that you must have heard of Mr. David Courtlaw. Permit me to make him known to you—Mr. Courtlaw—Lady Mackinnor."

With a murmured word of excuse she glided away, and Courtlaw, who had come with a mission which seemed to him to be one of life and death, was left to listen to the latest art jargon from Chelsea. He bore it as long as he could, watching all the time with fascinated eyes Annabel moving gracefully about amongst her guests, always gay, with a smile and a whisper for nearly everybody. Grudgingly he admired her. To him she had always appeared as a mere pleasure-loving parasite—something quite insignificant. He had pictured her, if indeed she had ever had the courage to do this thing, as sitting alone, convulsed with guilty fear, starting at her own shadow, a slave to constant terror. And instead he found her playing the great lady, and playing it well. She knew, or guessed his mission too, for more than once their eyes met, and she laughed mockingly at him. At last he could bear it no longer. He left his companion in the midst of a glowing eulogy of Bastien Leparge, and boldly intercepted his hostess as she moved from one group to another.

"Can you spare me a moment?" he asked. "I have a message from your sister."

"Are you in a hurry," she asked carelessly. "A lot of these people will be going presently."

"My message is urgent," he said firmly. "If you cannot listen to me it must remain undelivered."

She shrugged her shoulders and led him towards a small recess. "So you come from Anna, do you?" she remarked. "Well, what is it?"

"Montague Hill is recovering consciousness," he said. "He will probably make a statement to-night."

"That sounds very interesting," she answered coolly. "Perhaps I should better be able to understand its significance if you would explain to me who Mr. Montague Hill is."

"Your husband," he answered bluntly.

She did not wince. She laughed a little contemptuously.

"You and Anna," she said, "seem to have stumbled upon a mare's nest. If that is my sister's message, pray return to her and say that the doings and sayings of Mr. Montague Hill do not interest me in the least."

"Don't be foolish," he said sharply. "You were seen to leave the flat, and your handkerchief was found there. Very likely by this time the whole truth is known."

She smiled at him, an understanding smile, but her words defied him.

"What a beautiful mare's nest!" she exclaimed. "I can see you and Anna groaning and nodding your grave heads together. Bah! She does not know me very well, and you—not at all. Do have some tea, won't you? If you must, go then."

Courtlaw was dismissed. As he passed out he saw in the hall a quietly dressed man with keen brey eyes, talking to one of the footmen. He shivered, and looked behind as he stepped into his hansom. Had it come already?

CHAPTER XXXI.

John Ferringhall, Gentleman.

"Confess, my dear husband," Annabel said lightly, "that you are bewildered."

Sir John smiled.

"My dear Anna," he answered. "To tell you the truth, it has seemed just lately as though we were becoming in some measure estranged. You certainly have not shown much desire for my society, have you?"

"You have been wrapped up in your politics," she murmured.

He shook his head.

"There have been other times," he said a little sadly.

Her little white hand stole across the table. There was a look in her eyes which puzzled him.

"I have been very selfish," she declared. "But you must forgive me, John."

"I would forgive you a great deal more," he answered readily, "for the sake of an evening like this. You have actually given up a dinner-party to dine along with me."

"And made you give up a political meeting," she reminded him.

"Quite an unimportant one, he assured her. "I would have given up anything to see you your old self again—as you are this evening."

"I am afraid I have not been very nice," she said sadly. "Never mind. You must think of this evening, John, sometimes—as a sort of atonement."

"I hope," he answered, looking at her in some surprise, "that we shall have many more such to think about."

They were linzering over their dessert. The servants had left the room. Annabel half filled her glass with wine, and taking a little folded packet from her plate, shook the contents into it.

"I am developing ailments," she said, meeting his questioning eyes. "It is nothing of any importance, John. I have something to say to you."

"If you want to ask a favor," he remarked smiling, "you have made it almost impossible for me to refuse you anything."

"I am going to ask more than a favor," she said slowly. "I am going to ask for your forgiveness."

He was a little uneasy.

"I do not know what you mean," he said, "but if you are referring to any little coolness since our marriage never let us speak of it again. I am something of an old fogey, Anna, I'm afraid, but if you treat me like this you will teach me to forget it."

Annabel looked intently into her glass.

"John," she said, "I am afraid that I am going to make you unhappy. I am very, very sorry, but you must listen to me."

He relapsed into a stony silence. A few feet away, across the low vases of pink and white roses, sat Annabel, more beautiful to-night perhaps than ever before in her life. She wore a wonderful dress of turquoise blue, made by a great dressmaker for a function which she knew very well now that she would never attend. Her hair once more was arranged with its old simplicity. There was a new softness in her eyes, a hesitation, a timidity about her manner which was almost pathetic.

"You remember our first meeting?" she said.

"Yes," he answered hoarsely. "I remember it very well indeed. You have the look in your eyes to-night which you had that day, the look of a frightened child."

She looked into her glass.

"I was frightened then," she declared. "I am frightened now. But it is all very different. There was hope for me then. Now there is none. No, none at all."

"You talk strangely, Anna," he said. "Go on!"

"People talked to you in Paris about us," she continued, "about Anna the virtuous and Annabel the rake. You were accused of having been seen with the latter. You denied it, remembering that I had called myself Anna. You went even to our rooms and saw my sister. Anna lied to you, I lied to you. I was Annabel the rake, 'Alcide' of the music halls. My name is Annabel, not Anna. Do you understand?"

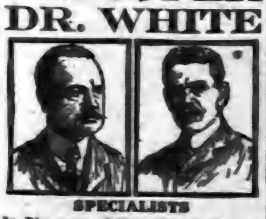
WOMAN'S BEST MEDICINE

Mrs. Kelly Advises all Women to Take "Fruit-a-Tives"



HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 26th, 1913.

"I can highly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" because they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollar's worth, but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found only pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case".

Rev. Frank Davey.

Former Mono Mills Pastor Dies After a Long Illness.

After a trying illness of over a year's duration the Rev. Frank Davey, pastor of the Cedarville and Esplin Presbyterian churches, passed away about half-past three on Saturday morning. During a portion of that period he was able to attend to his ministerial duties, but for several months past he had been laid aside completely, the pulpit duties being undertaken by brethren of the Presbytery or considerately secured by the congregation. The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Davey and family in their great trial.

Rev. Frank Davey was born in England on May 16th, 1860. Here he received his earlier education. Afterwards he came to Canada and attended McGill University and graduated from the Congregational College, Montreal. After graduation he had charge of Congregational churches in Nova Scotia, and Alton, Ont. Joining the Presbyterian church 21 years ago he has been minister at Maple Valley, Owen Sound Presbytery; Sunbury, near Kingston, Mono Mills, and Cedarville. He was a diligent pastor and a forcible expounder of the Word.

He leaves to mourn his loss his widow, three daughters, Misses Freda, Kate and Frank. A brother and sister are living in England.

The funeral took place on Monday, from Cedarville church to the Mount Forest cemetery, and was very largely attended.

The services were conducted by the Presbytery of Saugeen of which the following ministers were present: Revs. J. H. Lemon, S. Young, L. Perrin, Dr. Marsh, F. M. Smith, Wm. Cooper, R. J. Sturgeon. Rev. J. A. Black and three representatives of the congregations at Mono Mills also attended, and Rev. Mr. Ward, Methodist minister of the Conn circuit. Rev. Mr. Lemon, moderator of Presbytery, presided. Rev. Mr. Young gave an address on behalf of the Presbytery, Rev. Mr. Black conveyed the sympathy of the people of the former charge of the deceased at Mono Mills. Other members of Presbytery took part in the service. The musical part of the service was led by the choir of Cedarville church and a solo was sung by Miss Luella Buchanan. The service at the grave was conducted by the Rev. Messrs. Lemon, Young and Cooper.—Mount Forest Confederate.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble, wasted nerve cells.

W. H. Widgett's Death.

Mr. W. H. Widgett, who lived at Scott's Lake near Mono Road, for the greater part of his life, passed away on Saturday, Aug. 29th, after a long and painful illness. Deceased was formerly engaged in agricultural pursuits, but was obliged to retire some years ago owing to ill-health. He was a little over fifty years of age, and leaves a widow. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon, Aug. 31st, when service was held at his late residence conducted by Rev. J. H. More, assisted by Rev. F. Herman, after which the remains were taken to Sandhill cemetery and laid to rest. He was a member of Mono Road L.O.L., the brethren of that lodge attending in a body, their number being augmented by members from L.O.L. 293 Caledon East.

ALTON.

We are sorry to record the death of Mr. Wm. McLellan, who died at his home at Alton on August 28th, aged 77 years, also the death of Mrs. Reuben Waltenbury, who died in Lord Dufferin Hospital on Aug. 28th, aged 47 years. Both were interred in Alton cemetery on the following Monday. A large concourse of friends and people were in attendance at the funerals of the deceased.

Mrs. David McKinnon, of Portland, Maine, a former resident of Alton, is visiting at the home of Mrs. Wm. Hawkins for a few days.

The heavy storms of the past week have done considerable damage to the township roads, especially in the neighborhood of Credit Forks and Belfountain.

The harvest is completed in most parts of the township of Caledon with the exception of a few fields of peas and buckwheat. The farmers are now wanting dry weather. Many think the potatoes will be affected by the wet weather. The root crops are looking fine.

The woollen mills in Alton are not so busy as formerly.

The trustees of the Police Village of Alton have done a large amount of gravelling this season.

ROSEMONT.

Most of our farmers have their fall wheat sowed and now fall plowing is in full swing.

Many of our young people attended the anniversary services at the 5th line church on Sunday evening and in spite of the unfavorable weather the church was full to the doors.

Mr. March, of Lindsay, would be unable to be with them for their anniversary services on Sept 13th, owing to the illness of Mrs. March, but they have secured Prof. Herbert Cotton, of Wycliffe College, Toronto, who is well known in this part. Services in the morning at 11 and in the evening at 7.

Shot German Prince.

In a despatch from Amsterdam the local correspondent of the Central News says that the shot which ultimately resulted in the death of Prince Von Buelow, one of the German generals, was fired by a Belgian private named Rosseau, who has since been decorated by King Albert for his conduct in the battle of Haelen.

Rosseau was lying badly wounded among the group of dead comrades when he saw a German officer standing beside his horse and studying a map. Picking up a rifle from the side of a dead German, Rosseau fired at this officer, and wounded him. He subsequently proved to be Prince Von Buelow. Exchanging his hat for the German general's helmet, and taking the general's horse, Rosseau made his way to the Belgian lines and was placed in a hospital at Ghent.

Italians Enlisting.

One of the curious features of the Italian situation is the unobstrusive opening of a modest bureau in a small street with the motto "For the Defence of Italian Liberties" over the entrance. This bureau enlists volunteers, who will go to the French frontier to help the French with a guerilla warfare. They have had several hundred recruits since opening, and people declare they will march within ten days.

The 60,000 men called out by the latest royal command are the pick of the Italian reserve, men between 20 and 30, who have seen African service. They include some of the famous Bersaglieri, said to be the fastest walkers in the world — little wiry men, who can stand anything and shoot splendidly. Two more classes will be called out in a few days.

KIPLING'S WAR POEM.

Rudyard Kipling has contributed the following poem to The London Times:—

For all we have and are,
For all our children's fate,
Stand up and meet the war—
The Hun is at the gate.

Our world has passed away
In wanton overthrow;
There's nothing left to-day
But steel and fire and woe.

Though all we know depart,
The old commandments stand:
In courage keep your heart!
In strength lift up your hand!

Once more we hear the word
That sickened earth of old:
No law except the sword,
Unsheathed and uncontrolled.

Once more it knits mankind,
Once more the nations go
To meet and break and bind
A crazed and driven foe.

Comfort, content, delight,
The age's slow-bought gain,
They shriveled in a night—
Only ourselves remain

To face the naked days
In silent fortitude,
Through perils and dismays,
Renewed and re-renewed.

Though all we made depart,
The old commandments stand:
In patience keep your heart!
In strength lift up your hand!

No easy hopes or lies
Shall bring us to our goal—
But iron sacrifice
Of body, will and soul.

There's but one task for all,
For each one life to give;
Who stands if freedom fall?
Who dies if England live?

THE INDIAN TROOPS.

Britain's Hindu Forces May Now Be at Scene of War.

England is pouring into France from India 200,000 trained men, of which 75,000 are British troops, including some of the crack regiments of the army, and those remaining are the fighting native troops of the Indian army, fit comrades on the firing line of France's Turcos and Spahis. Some of these may have come through Canada.

According to official figures the Indian army's strength in round numbers, is as follows: Infantry, 122,000; cavalry, 25,000; artillery, 10,000; engineers, etc., 6,000; total, 163,000 men. Of this number 3,000 are English officers and non-commissioned officers; the rest are natives.

Thirty-nine regiments of cavalry, fifteen of them Lancer regiments, besides the bodyguard troops of the Governor-General and of the governors, and several independent troops, make up the mounted arm.

The main strength of the Indian army is in its infantry. Brahmans, Rajputs, Jats, Sikhs, Punjabis, Dogras, Mahratttas and Ghurkas, of all castes and of several religions—Mohammedan, Hindu, Buddhists — are all warriors who will lay down their lives in eagerness for the British Raj, and the dark-skinned regiments of the Indian army form a fighting force hard to stop.

Among the most interesting as well as the most formidable fighting outfits in the Indian army are the Ghurkas. There are ten regiments of Ghurka Rifles. These little fighters, who come from the region of Nepal and who trace their descent from the Rajputs, would rather fight than eat. In appearance the Ghurkas are deceiving. They are short, stocky little men, of somewhat the appearance of the Japanese, although a little heavier. And they wear perpetual grins on their faces. The grin does not come off when they go into a fight.

The Ghurkas were conquered by the British in 1814 after years of fighting, and have become loyal subjects of England. When the Ghurka regiments were first made part of the Indian army, they did not seem to take well to organized methods of warfare. It was not until the army authorities allowed them to make their national weapon, the kukri, part of their equipment, that they regained their fame as fighters. Their instructors never could make them use the bayonet. The kukri is a long, heavy curved knife.

"Aim For a Button!"

A London cable says: Many striking stories are told by wounded soldiers returning from France. "The blue gray uniforms of the Germans are hard to see at a distance," said a Yorkshire Light Infantryman, "and for concealing movements are more effective than our khaki. But it is surprising how quickly you learn to pick out such things as buttons, badges, armlets and even peaks of caps or spikes of helmets in the sun and tell by them of the moving men. You cannot see otherwise.

"Aim at a button a mile off, and you hit a German in the stomach is what we say and it is near enough to the truth.

"The Germans are such sticklers for rules that I have seen their artillery keep firing away at a position of ours after it has been occupied by their own men and at the hospital they find quite a number of Germans hit by their own fire."

Should Send Prisoners Here.

Lord Aylmer, former Inspector-General of Canadian forces, suggests that the Germans taken prisoners by the British army during the war should be sent to Canada and given tracts of land in sections where large areas await development, and be encouraged to settle as peaceful and productive citizens of the country.

Lord Aylmer is in charge of the mobilisation of the Kootenay company of the first Canadian contingent.

Commencing Monday, September 14th, and continuing until October 31st, The Orangeville Banner will inaugurate the greatest prize contest ever held by a weekly newspaper in this section of Ontario. In this contest prizes to the value of $1000.00 will be distributed among the people of Dufferin County and surrounding district.

The Grand Prize will be a beautiful Stanley Player Piano, valued at $750.00, to be given to the person securing the largest number of votes in the contest.

Three Solitaire Diamond Rings of rare brilliancy will be awarded to the next three contestants having the highest number of votes after the first prize award. Six Waltham Gold Watches will be given to the next six persons having the largest number of votes. Further, each contestant not winning one of these prizes, will receive as compensation for their endeavor 10 per cent. in cash of the money secured during the contest.

INFORMATION ABOUT GETTING VOTES.

Votes in the contest may be secured by taking subscriptions to the Orangeville Banner or Pearson's Magazine, by collecting past due subscriptions of The Banner and by securing renewals of subscriptions for The Banner. The votes will be allowed for all business secured according to the schedules appearing in the advertisement of the Contest in this issue.

EARLY WORK COUNTS THE MOST.

In order to encourage those who enter the contest and start to work at once The Banner has decided to divide the contest into two periods and will give more votes during the first period than the second. In fact the candidates will receive as many votes for $15 worth of subscriptions during the first period as can be secured for $20 during the second period.

The first period will close October 1st, so the time for securing the maximum votes is limited. The contest closes October 31st at 9 p.m. Take advantage of the opportunity to win a GRAND PLAYER PIANO in a few weeks and start to work to-day as soon as the contest opens.

HOW TO ENTER THE CONTEST.

If you wish to enter the race for the Grand Player Piano, send in your name at once. Any person living in the territory covered by The Banner is eligible. All have an equal chance for the splendid prizes. Use the enrolment blank which appears in this issue. It is good for 1000 votes, but only one enrolment blank will be counted for each candidate.

THE TIME TO ENTER.

The time to enter the big contest is at once, while the first period schedule is in effect. The second period regular schedule will be 20 per cent. less than the first one. This means that you will get more votes during the first period schedule than under any other.

WHAT TO DO NEXT.

As soon as your name is entered go at once among your friends and tell them you are in the race and in to WIN. Ask them to give you their subscriptions (prepaid) to The Banner and to allow you to send these subscriptions in at once. Tell them that you will be allowed no votes on less than one year's subscription, but also tell them that the longer the term of the subscription the more votes you will receive. They want The Banner anyway, and you may as well have the votes their subscriptions will give you. As soon as you have received one subscription, don't stop, but get after another, then another. Don't let your friends forget you are in the race, and before a great while you will have them working for you just the same as if they too were in the race. Any time you are in doubt as to any of the conditions governing the contest, don't hesitate to ring up the Contest Manager. Any questions will be answered cheerfully and promptly.

FURTHER CONDITIONS.

If you are not a subscriber to The Banner or Pearson's Magazine and wish to become one, you need not wait until your favorite candidate asks for your subscription. You should send in your subscription at once to the Contest Department, naming the candidate whom you wish to credit. Don't fail, however, to accompany your subscription by the amount covering it, as votes are allowed only on prepaid subscriptions. If you have no favorites among the contestants have the votes entered to your credit.

Candidates should mail all subscription payments to the Contest Manager, Orangeville Banner, to secure prompt acknowledgment. Send in your name or that of a friend at once. Address — Contest Manager, The Banner, Orangeville, Ont.

Scurrah-Dynes.

On Monday evening, August 3rd, in the Methodist Church, Miss Bertha M. Dynes, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Dynes, of Fairview Road, was quietly married to Mr. Percy B. Scurrah, a well known young business men of Victoria, B. C. The groom was supported by Mr. Edgar W. Dynes, while the bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Stella. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. M. Thompson. After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride's parents where a dainty luncheon was served. The happy couple left on Tuesday's boat for the east, where the honeymoon will be spent. They will return by way of New York, Chicago, Kansas City and Denver, and will spend a day in the Grand Canyon. After the first of September they will be at home to their friends at 19 Highland Drive, Victoria.—Penticton (B.C.) Herald.

The bride, who is a former resident of Relessey, Mono township, went to British Columbia with her parents about 13 years ago. She is a cousin of Mr. James Dynes, ex-reeve of Mono, now of Francis, Sask.

St. Luke's Garden Party

In spite of the chilliness of the atmosphere there was a large crowd and an excellent time at St. Luke's Church garden party on Friday night. The affair was held on Mr. Irad Allen's grounds, lot 16, 4th line, east, Mono. In the absence of Dr. Carson, who was unable to attend owing to a professional call, Rev. H. A. Meek, rector of the Parish, occupied the chair and discharged the duties devolving upon him in a most acceptable manner. Rev. J. W. Dudgeon, of Rosemont, was the chief speaker. Mrs. Banks, of Orangeville, delighted the audience with her excellent recitations. Everybody was greatly pleased with the playing of the Trimble family from Laurel, who furnished the principal part of the musical programme. These clever artists acquitted themselves splendidly and are sure of a warm welcome should they again visit the people of St. Luke's. Mr. Meek also contributed some keenly appreciated solos. The ladies of the church served a fine supper during the early part of the evening. The proceeds amounted to $75.

Ritchie Bros. stock of fall goods is now complete. Come and see.

Do Not Gamble with Your Eyes!

A Competent Optician has no time to travel from town to town, flitting about like a Butterfly. He has all he can do at home.

BUT

He must be a Competent Man or he will not be able to stay long in any one place. I have been in Orangeville for Seventeen years and my business is increasing every day, which in itself is the best proof of my ability. Why deal with strangers who have constantly to hunt new fields when you have a permanent Optical Store in your own town? We do not sell

$5.00 Glasses for $1.00

Nor even $2.50 for one dollar, nor yet do we charge you $5.00 or even $2.50 for Glasses worth only $1.00. But when we charge you $2.50 or $4.00 for Glasses you get what you pay for, and you can get your money back any time if goods are not worth all that you pay for them.

This is no three day sale nor yet a misleading statement. There is no occasion for a rush. Our Store is here every day awaiting your own convenience, ready to give a scientific and up-to-date Examination. We can replace any broken Lense no matter where you purchase your Glasses.

For first-class up-to-date Optical Work this is the only store in the district worthy of your consideration.

ST. HELENA FOR THE KAISER.

What will the nations do with Emperor William? We assume that he will be defeated in this war. As he is the chief culprit he must receive some personal punishment. Like Napoleon, he is a man whom it is unsafe to leave at large. There is nothing in the International Code that would warrant his execution. There is, however, an admirable precedent for dealing with him. It would be a striking precendent for dealing with him. It would be a striking act of justice to confine him on the Island of St. Helena, where Napoleon Bonaparte ended his days. It would be tantamount to a declaration to the world that this is the place where tyrants ultimately go. There would be something to strike the imagination in a sentence like this, and it is about the only place where this man could be allowed to live.

Having disposed of William II. of Germany, the Empire should be turned into a republic or a limited monarchy as democratic as Britain. Then it would be for the people to decide the question of war. Then there would be no war. The men who have been dragged from the factories, the offices and stores of Germany to give their lives in order that the ambition of the Emperor might be realized would not have gone to war if their consent had been a necessary preliminary.

One thing is certain, that at the close of this war there should be some international authority vested with power to prevent hostilities between nations, or to bring such an enormous weight upon the offending nation that quick and adequate punishment would be given to that country which provoked the war. In other words, the first step the nations of the world should take is to bring into being a tribunal which none would control, sufficiently powerful to prevent war, and so just that every and any international dispute could be settled upon an equitable basis.

George Williams, a Eugenia young man, working on the hydro-electric development works there, fell some thirty-five feet from a scaffold one day last week, alighting across his stomach over a 2 inch water pipe. He was badly bruised and injured but will recover.

Joseph Hemphill, of Dundalk, met with a painful accident a week ago Saturday. A husky Bulgarian workman, who could not understand English, was driving stakes with a sledge hammer under instructions from Mr. Hemphill. The latter had just given orders to cease hammering and had placed his hand on another stake close by when down came the hammer crushing the bones of the thumb badly.

WASAGA BEACH.

Beautiful Pleasure Resort on Georgian Bay.

Was Scene of Stirring Incidents During War of 1812.

Skirting the Georgian Bay for a few miles from Collingwood, over a winding, well-gravelled road, brings one to the Nottawasaga Beach. This from the writer's point of view is one of the most attractive sand beaches in Canada. It is of very fine sand, which, after a rain or a wash by the sea, becomes almost as hard as a smooth macadam road, about one hundred feet wide and seven miles long, making a very attractive and pleasant driveway for carriages and automobiles. As a bathing beach it is unsurpassed. The footing of fine sand is pleasant and a safe depth suitable for children is maintained for approximately 500 feet from the shore. Situated to the south of this beach is Nottawasaga River, with a strip of land averaging 1,500 feet between the two, which makes an excellent combination for boating, bathing and fishing. If the bay is rough one can boat on the river, which is never disturbed by any wind that blows. The river winds its way from Angus, on the Grand Trunk Railway, through the townships of Flos, Vespra and Sunnidale, where one can enjoy an excellent canoe and fishing trip. Passing through a rich agricultural country, and winding to almost every point of the compass, one finally reaches Oakview, a cottage settlement comprised of 35 rather pretentious cottages, a good many of which have commodious boat houses and docks fronting on the river. What strikes one at first sight is the fact that if this place were advertised many would come from the large centres to summer here. The location is ideal. The coast line is thickly studded with oak trees, the underbrush is cleared away and the river bank nicely graded. Water for domestic purposes gushes from one and one-half inch pipes driven for sixty feet into the earth and at the end of each is a cooling box of unique design, with a temperature during the summer months of July and August of 42 degrees, thus doing away with the necessity of storing ice. One of these boxes is to be seen in front of almost every cottage. At this point the bathing beach is 1100 feet from the river, and is reached by a board walk or well gravelled road, which connects the two.

Following the course of the river eastward a mile and a quarter, Pine Grove is reached. This place has a commodious hotel and a number of cottages. Conditions are about the same as at Oakview, but it is not so nicely wooded. After leaving this place the river takes a turn to the southeast, where a huge bridge of cement and steel crosses the river, on the north bank of which is the Mecca of this beautiful resort, Wasaga Beach. A number of hotels loom into view at this point, all filled with guests, and about fifty cottages dot the beach at various points, each flying the Union Jack. During July and August nearly 3000 people are to be found at this resort. The average price charged by the hotels is $12 per week. A mile further and the river enters Nottawasaga Bay, from which is to be had a most enchanting view of Collingwood, with the Blue Mountains in the background. These mountains rise to a height of 1800 feet above the sea. The distance by water from the river to Collingwood is twelve miles, and there is a regular boat service between these points. There is also adequate automobile service from Collingwood at any time of the day or night at reasonable rates.

There is an abundance of bass in the river, as well as pike and pickerel. The supplies to cottages and hotels are furnished by farmers and include fresh meat, fowl, vegetables, milk, cream, butter, eggs, etc., at reasonable prices—considerably less than the prices prevailing in towns and cities.

To the student, the historian and the lover of romance, the Nottawasaga has an interest all its own. Its Indian name is said to mean "The River of the Nodaway." Over two and a half centuries ago the warlike Iroquois plied their canoes upon its placid waters, on thier way from the south, to exterminate the tribes which dwelt in the fastnesses of the Blue Mountains, near Collingwood. Somewhere on its banks the treacherous Huron dealt the fatal blow to the Jesuit Father, Charbanel, when on his way from the Perun missions to headquarters at Fort Ste. Marie. The intrepid explorer, La Salle, with twenty men, loitered upon its waters in 1868 on his way from old Fort Frontenac, the present city of Kingston, to Machilimacinac. During the war of 1812-14 it was the scene of stirring incidents. The relief expedition from Kingston, in 1514, to help hold Machilimacinac against the Americans, left its mouth on April 24th of that year. Their fleet of batteaux was built from the timber that grew along its banks. In the same year Captain Sinclair, with three American vessels, the Niagara, the Scorpion and the Tigress, bombarded a blockhouse about two miles up the river, in the shelter of which was lying the Northwest Company's schooner, Nancy. Captain Worseley, one piece of cannon and twenty-three officers and seamen offered a brave but unsuccessful resistance. Worseley blew up the blockhouse and vessel, and with his men escaped up the river. The location of the Nancy is marked to-day by a small island formed by the sediment that has collected round the hulk, but only a small portion of the vessel is visible. The location of the old block house mat still be seen. In 1816 a fort was built further up the river, but two years later was abandoned. Traces of this old fort and the military burying ground may also still be seen.

Indians, militia, seamen, armed cruisers, forts and blockhouses all have vanished, but the shining sands are dotted with myriads on pleasure bent, the sparkling waters splash to the swimmer's stroke, the spreading branches shelter cosy cottage homes, and the tired traveller basking in blissful sunshine muses, verily, "Peace hath her victories as well as war."

Crippled With Rheumatism

And Skeptical After Trying Many Medicines—Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Cured Him.

When the kidneys fail to purify the blood the poisons left in the system cause pain and suffering, such as backache, lumbago and rheumatism. Read how this skeptic was cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. F. W. Brown, Kingsbury, Que., writes:—"I have been completely cured of backache and lame back by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I also recommended the pills to a man who was a cripple from rheumatism. He was skeptical, as he said that he had tried nearly everything on earth. Finally he consented to try them, and to his surprise was greatly benefited in the first week, and the pains left his legs until he was so supple he could walk without pain or difficulty. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have worked wonders in this place, and we think there is no medicine like them."

INCREASING GRAIN PRODUCTION.

Many farmers, when urged to try growing fall wheat, have excused themselves on the plea that it did not pay; but it is likely that for the next year or two, there will be a ready sale at good prices for every bushel of wheat grown in Canada. Every farmer should endeavor to increase his production of grain next year by putting into use every acre capable of producing it. There are hundreds of acres in Central and Eastern Canada that would successfully grow fall wheat. By preparing the land immediately, a great number of farmers could sow at least a few acres each this fall. No risk is being taken in so doing, as the extra cultivation for the fall wheat would increase the yield of a spring sown crop in the event of the wheat being winter killed. The land would need only to be disked or cultivated to prepare it for spring grain.

The grain production can also be increased by ploughing up the old unproductive meadows at once and sowing to grain in the spring. They should be ploughed shallow NOW and packed and disked and kept worked until autumn, when they should be thoroughly ploughed again, ready to be worked early next spring. The importance of ploughing the land for next spring's crop early this summer, and keeping it worked during the autumn cannot be too strongly emphasized. Those who are now practising a systematic rotation might profitably increase the grain crop area next year, and to those who are following the old meadow plan of farming, a better opportunity was never offered to change to a systematic rotation by breaking up the old sod and putting in grain. It will pay to make use of every acre possible in producing grain, as it is sure to be needed.—F.C.N.

JOHN SMART.

John Smart, one of the village's respected citizens passed away in Lord Dufferin Hospital, Orangeville, on Monday evening. He had been in poor health for about six months, and about two months ago went down to the hospital for care and attention, which he could not receive at home because of the frailty and physical disability of his aged partner who herself required the constant oversight of an attendant. Mr. Smart was a native of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, as his accent indicated, and came to Bonacord settlement, Nichol township, with his parents, when 4 years of age. Here he remained till about 30 years of age, when with his brother he took up a new farm in West Luther, near Monck. Thirty years ago he married Mrs. Adam Bruce, and came to the 7th concession, East Luther, retiring to Grand Valley about 13 years ago. He was a typical son of the land of the heather, scrupluously honest and candid in all his opinions, and careful in all his actions. He was a faithful member of Knox Church, and a Liberal in politics. The funeral took place on Wednesday to the Union Cemetery, Grand Valley, and was largely attended.—Star & Vidette.

Mr. J. A. Halstead, until recently a private banker in Mt. Forest, and well known to many of our readers, died in Toronto on Friday, Aug. 30th, at the age of 73 years. Scott, now of Listowel, conducted a private banking business under the name of Halsted & Co.

For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Making Money.

The world past and present affords ample evidence of the evils of a currency based only on the assets of the whole people. In Nicaragua, for example, in 1898, government notes were at parity with silver, that is, two hundred and twenty dollars of paper were required to buy a hundred dollars in gold. In 1912, after a free use of the printing press, fifteen hundred dollars of paper were required to buy a hundred dollars of gold. All the ability of the country was devoted to speculation in exchange, and the farmers were absolutely ruined or reduced to the simplest barter. Those Canadian municipalities which must have money to keep things going, there being no cause for pessimism, might copy the practices of the municipalities of Columbia, along the Caribean Sea, which, having the power of taxation, took to printing their own money. The result was that the cost of a breakfast rose to three hundred and fifty dollars and porters were tipped fifty and a hundred dollars. If our municipalities were to make their own money, the maintenance of wages would not present the least difficulty.—The Weekly Sun.

The Test of War.

Those who speak in defence of war are accustomed to refer to "the military virtues." But some of the virtues which are characterized as military are revealed rather than created by war. This is true, for example, of the virtue of Courage. War is a test. It does not make men brave; it shows whether they are brave or not.

Tried by war's test it is plain that warlike courage is a common virtue, possessed by many nations differing widely in character and civilization. No one doubts the bravery of British soldiers. It has been attested on too many hard fought fields. And the stories of Mons, Maubeuge and St. Quentin, which come to us in these days of desperate conflict, show that the ancient valor of the race has not departed. But the same may be said of the French and the Russians who, in the present war, have shown themselves not unworthy to fight side by side with their British allies. And what of the Belgians? Not highly esteemed heretofore as a military nation, they challenged the admiration of the world by their heroic defence of their country's independence. Can any one dispute the courage of the Germans? Certainly it will not be disputed by the French and British soldiers who have fought them step by step through northern France and have been obliged to give way slowly but steadily before their irresistible onset. Nor is warlike courage confined to the European races. The courage of the Japanese in their war with Russia has been described as almost supernatural. And it has been attested—and is not denied—that the "poor benighted heathen" of the Soudan is "a first-class fighting man." It would appear then that courage in battle is not a virtue on which the people of any nation have a right to plume themselves to the exclusion of others.

But there are different kinds of courage revealed by the test of war. There is not only the courage of the battle charge, when the blood is hot and the blast of war is blowing in the ears; there is the higher courage that is able to face repulse and still not yield, that fights on and on and often snatches victory from the very jaws of defeat. If there is anything in British valor that gives it pre-eminence it is this tenacity of spirit that knows how to endure.

The courage that war reveals is not all found upon the battlefield. The common folk who bear the inconveniences and straitened circumstances of wartime without grumbling, the business men who refuse the opportunities for selfish gain and try to promote the general good, every man and woman who tries to be cheerful and hopeful and to maintain an unshaken faith in the Divine power and goodness—these all show the courageous spirit. And those who have given their dearest to their country's service, the parents, the wives of the soldiers in the field, those whose hearts are filled with dread by night and by day and who await in sickening suspense the news of every battle, and yet who are willing that it should be so because they have heard, as they believe, the call of duty—does the test of war reveal any higher courage than theirs? —The Presbyterian.

CANON HENDERSON DEAD

The End Came in Bowmanville on Monday.

Was Rector of St. Mark's Church for 40 Years.

Rev. Canon Henderson, formerly rector of St. Mark's Church, Orangeville, died in the hospital in Bowmanville on Monday at the ripe age of 80 years. The remains were brought to his old home for interment, the body arriving here on Tuesday evening. The casket was taken to St. Mark's Church, where many former parishioners and /oldtime friends took advantage of the opportunity to look for the last time upon the features of their beloved rector. The funeral will take place to the family plot in the Forest Lawn Cemetery this (Thursday) afternoon. Service will be held in St. Mark's Church at 2 o'clock.

Rev. Alexander Henderson, M.A., was born in Chinguacousy township in the neighboring county of Peel in 1834. When he was about 11 years of age his parents, Samuel and Alice Henderson, moved to Western Ontario, settling in the neighborhood of London. His early education was received in Ingersoll and Dundas Grammar schools. He subsequently took a full course in Trinity University, obtaining his degree of Master of Arts from that seat of learning. The young minister came to Orangeville in 1861 taking charge of the Anglican Parish here on Oct. 1st of that year. His license from the Bishop of the Diocese was to "Mono and Orangeville and parts adjacent." The words "parts adjacent" proved to be indefinite in fact as well as form. Indeed in these early years Mr. Henderson's work extended over a district which reached from Rosemont on the north to Erin on the south and from Albion on the east to Maraville or even farther on the west. What highways there were had been rudely constructed and were practically impassable at certain seasons of the year. In Amaranth there were very few roads and what few there were had been built of unocvered corduroy. Under these conditions the young rector necessarily did much of his travelling on horseback, and needless to say encountered his full share of the exposure and hardships that were common to that period. Services were held in log school houses and in many instances in the humble dwellings of the early settlers. When Mr. Henderson came to Orangeville the congregation of St. Mark's worshipped in a small church, which stood on the site of the present edifice. As the congregation increased in numbers the need for a larger place of worship became pressing and in 1869 the present church was built. Largely through the efforts of Mr. Henderson, the new church, which was built by Messrs. Robert Hewitt and Joseph Foster, was entirely free of debt when it was consecrated to the purpose for which it had been erected. Some idea of the magnitude and far reaching influence of Mr. Henderson's life work may be gathered from the fact that during his parochial labors, extending over a period of forty years, he officiated at no less than 456 weddings and 829 funerals, prepared for confirmation 855 candidates, baptized 2315 persons, made 21,000 visits to the sick and well, varying from 400 up to 734 in one year. Owing to failing health Canon Henderson resigned the rectorship of St. Mark's in the autumn of 1901. About the same time the congregation showed its love for the venerable rector and its appreciation of his work by presenting him with an address and a purse containing $200 in gold. Shortly after his resignation Canon and Mrs. Henderson moved to Guelph, afterwards going to Hamilton and later to Toronto where he has lived in retirement in Poplar Plains Road for the past five years. Deceased was holidaying in the vicinity of Bowmanville when he was taken ill.

Canon Henderson was married in 1869 to the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Taylor, of Albion Twp. Mrs. Henderson died in Hamilton in 1907. The family are one son, Ernest Henderson, an architect in Vancouver, and two daughters, Miss Mabel Henderson, of the Toronto Conservatory of Music staff, and Mrs. Geo. Wood-Smith, of Minneapolis. Rev. Wm. Henderson, of Hanover, John Henderson, of Thamesford, and Samuel and Matthew Henderson, of London, are the surviving brothers. Rev. G. I. Taylor, rector of St. Bartholomew's Church, Toronto, Mr. Thomas Fisher, Crawford St., Toronto, Mr. John Steele, Dovercourt Road, Toronto, Mr. Walter Taylor, Vancouver, B.C., Mr. Frank Taylor, Toronto, and formerly Postmaster of Grand Valley, and Mr. Francis Irwin, Orangeville, are brothers-in-law.

The late Mr. Henderson was very unostentatious in his manner of living. He was of a generous nature and gave liberally of his means to public and private charities. He was keenly alive to the spiritual welfare of his people and never spared himself in the work to which he devoted his life. As a citizen he took his full share in the duties and responsibilities that fell to the lot of the men who shaped the course of events in Orangeville and the surrounding district.

THE FALL ASSIZES.

Only Two Civil Cases Entered for Trial.

So far only two civil cases have been entered for trial at the Dufferin County Fall Assizes which open in the Court House here on Tuesday next, Sept. 22nd. Chief Justice Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, K.C.M.G., will preside. Mr. W. N. Irwin has received the appointment of Crown Prosecutor, but owing to the lack of criminal business his duties will be purely formal. The civil suits, which are both jury cases, are actions for damages against the C.P.R. arising out of accidents on the Company's railway lines. The particulars of the two suits are as follows:—

Raey vs. C. P. R.—This action is brought by John Raey, a Bentinck township farmer, as administrator of the estate of his wife, Mary Raey, who was fatally injured at a crossing on the Saugeen Junction-Walkerton branch of the C.P.R. on October 28th, 1913. The plaintiff, Mrs. Raey, and their son, Fred, were driving on what is known as the Collingwood road when their vehicle was struck by an engine, upsetting and smashing the buggy and throwing the occupants out with great violence. Mrs. Reay was thrown against the engine and sustained injuries from which she afterwards died. Plaintiff alleges that the engineer did not sound the bell or blow the whistle when approaching the crossing and furthermore avers that the train could have been stopped in time to prevent the accident. He asks for $5000 damages and costs of the action. Lucas, Raney & Henry, Markdale, for plaintiff; MacMurchy & Spence for defts.

Branter vs. C.P.R.—The plaintiff, Mrs. Rachel Branter, wife of Joseph Branter, of Corbetton, declares, in her statement of claim, that she was a passenger on the C.P.R. to Toronto on November 20th, 1913. Before reaching the station platform at West Toronto the train came to a standstill. As the conductor had lifted her check and the brakeman had repeatedly called out "West Toronto Station" she left her seat for the purpose of getting off. When she reached the platform of the coach the train started, throwing her from the steps to the roadbed, dislocating and fracturing her hip joint and also inflicting other serious injuries of a permanent character. As a result of her injuries she was confined to bed for seven weeks or longer and incurred heavy expenses for medical attendance and nursing. She charges the defendant Company with negligence and is asking for $3000 damages and costs of the action. Lucas, Raney & Henry, Markdale, for piffs.; MacMurchy & Spence for defts.

Lightning Losses Paid.

At their last monthly meeting in Shelburne, the directors of the Dufferin Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company passed and paid the following claims for losses caused by lightning:—

G. Nicholson, Mono, barn and contents	$1654 00
Jas. Goodall, East Garafraxa, barn and contents	2708 00
J. J. Anderson, Mono, two steers	61 00
W. A. Ferrier, Melancthon, horse	100 00
N. S. Hewett, Melancthon, damage to barn	22 00
A. Halbert, Mono, lamb, $8.25 and damage to house	10 25
G. L. Wilson, Mulmur, three head of cattle	205 00
A. Shepherd, Amaranth, damage to house	13 00
Joseph Harper, Mulmur, damage to barn	5 00
H. Mandley, East Garafraxa, damage to barn	25 00
W. Leader, Amaranth, damage to barn	10 00
Jonah Lee, Mono, damage to barn	11 35
Total	$4824 60

Two or three small claims were left over until next meeting as proof of loss had not been submitted. The losses for the month of August have been the heaviest the Company has incurred this year. It is interesting to note that none of the buildings burned or damaged by lightning was protected by lightning rods.

—Hanover, which put the Dufferins out of the running in the intermediate O. A. L. A. series, tied with London on the next round in the championship fight. The Forest city team won in London by a score of 11 to 8 and Hanover won the game on the home grounds by 7 to 4.

Local Option in Owen Sound

To the Editor :—

An article having appeared in Toronto Saturday Night belittling local option in Owen Sound and saying that the result of local option in towns is to make the hotel accommodation abominable, the Owen Sound Sun replies in the following vigorous fashion :—

"To the average citizen of Owen Sound, who has the slightest knowledge of local conditions, the nonsensical rant which appeared on the front page of the last issue of Saturday Night, regarding local option in Owen Sound is, to say the least, ridiculous. The repetition, by Saturday Night, of the old falsity about more liquor being sold in Owen Sound under local option is not surprising when it is considered that the Wine and Spirit Journal is published under the same management as Saturday Night. Any one who repeats the old worn out tale about more drinking and poor hotel accommodation is simply laughed at in Owen Sound, whatever credence he may receive in other places that are not in touch with the conditions here. It is quite evident that either the writer of the article in Saturday Night has not been in Owen Sound recently and is simply letting his imagination run riot or else he is an accomplished infamous liar.

"Hotel accommodation in Owen Sound is better than ever it was in the history of the town. Local Option is enforced in Owen Sound and the result is a clean, law abiding town. The barroom has no place in a civilized community and it is doomed, despite the weak-kneed arguments and libellous statements of Saturday Night."

This, regarding the result of Local Option in Owen Sound, agrees with the reports of Commercial Travellers that hotel accommodation has improved more in local option districts than in places under license. Where people have had a trial of local option they have rarely ever been willing to return to license.

LAUREL.

We are pleased to see the weather so favorable to the corn crop. At present the indications are that the this crop will be the best in years.

The Laurel Branch of the Women's Institute decided at its last meeting to raise a War Fund. The appeal was promptly responded to and as a result the Society was enabled to add nearly $40 to the funds of the Red Cross Society.

Don't forget our Rural Fall Fair on Tuesday, Sept. 22nd. We anticipate a better Fair this year than before, which is saying a great deal as last year's Fair was a great success. Come along and enjoy yourself. Tea, coffee and light lunch served at noon.

The attractive school garden in connection with the Laurel school has been the subject of much flattering comment from visitors to our burg. It is one of the neatest and best kept gardens we have seen in a long time. Miss Liddy and her pupils are deserving of the highest praise for their efforts in this line. The school garden can be made a source of unending interest to the children and serves to educate them on matters that they can turn to practical benefit in after life no matter what vocation they may happen to choose.

The women of the Presbyterian Missionary Society are making arrangements to hold a Box Social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McPherson on Monday evening next. A splendid time is expected.

The Athletic and Literary Society is planning to hold a concert on Tuesday evening, Sept. 22nd.

The public meeting held in the Town Hall on Monday night for the purpose of organizing and collecting contributions for the Patriotic Fund attracted a large and representative audience, including many ladies. The speeches by Rev. D. J. Lane, Grand Valley, and Revs. J. R. Bell and J. S. Stevenson, the resident ministers, evoked splendid enthusiasm, indicative of the staunch loyalty of the people of this district. After listening to the addresses those present decided by a unanimous vote to form a township organization for the purpose of making a systematic canvass of the whole township of Amaranth for contributions to the Patriotic Fund. A central committee was appointed consisting of the following gentlemen :—Rev. J. R. Bell, Chairman, Robert Fife, Secretary, John Johnston, Treasurer, Edward Richardson, John Bryan, Herbert Hughes, Geo. Hepton, Thos. Bryan and Rev. J. S. Stevenson.

Sub-division conveners were also appointed as follows :—Farmington, John B. Walker ; Laurel, E. Richardson ; Waldemar, Reuben West ; Coleridge, W. J. Hamilton ; Maple Grove, Wm. Pacey ; Bowling Green, Wm. Jelly ; Whittington, Wm. Phillips.

These conveners will call meetings for the purpose of appointing subcommittees and making arrangements for a canvass in the different divisions. It was decided to receive contributions in money or grain. Arrangements will be made to have the latter brought to Laurel, where it will be stored and forwarded to some central point. The ladies present were particularly enthusiastic and decided that they would help by trimming over their hats for this season and contributing the money they would otherwise spend on new headgear toward the Fund. Judging from the heartiness and spirit shown on Monday night Amaranth township will make a record showing in the matter of its gift to the Patriotic Fund.

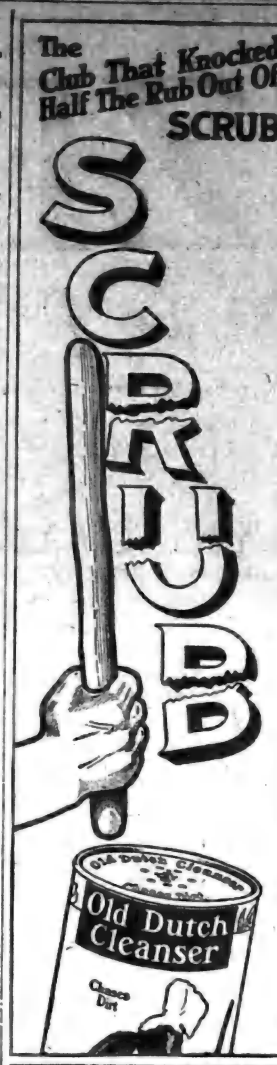
WORKMEN CAN HELP TROOPS AT FRONT

Urged to Take Personal Interest in the Manufacture of Equipment For Soldiers

One of Canada's best known public men addressed the employes of a large boot and shoe factory in Montreal at their annual gathering last week as follows:

"This Company has obtained a contract from the Government for 40,000 pairs of boots, to be used by the soldiers going to the front. I am informed by the managing director that a very low bid was put in for these goods, primarily for the purpose of keeping you men and women employed during these trying times. Now, I want to say a word to you about the boot contract. These boots are to be worn by the Canadian soldiers who go to war. A soldier's usefulness depends largely upon his ability to march. He cannot travel unless his feet are sound, and his feet can only be kept in good condition if his boots are right. The management will purchase the best material possible to fill this contract. The superintendents will use the utmost vigilance, but unless everyone of you makes it a personal matter, some of these boots may not be quite right. It is easy for a laster to leave a nail in the sole, which may lame a man who wears the boot. The men who cut the soles might get in some weak shanks, in which case the soldiers wearing those boots could not use a spade properly; and it might happen that on their being able to dig entrenchments their very lives would depend. When you are putting in the counters, remember that a bad counter means a down-trodden heel and a blistered foot. When you are nailing on the heels remember that to drive the nails one-sixteenth of an inch short might mean that the heels would come off and the wearer be handicapped in marching. You women of the stitching room remember that if the linings are not put in properly or any bunching occurs, it may result in a blister where the foot is chafed. Now, I want everyone of you to remember that these boots are to be worn by our Canadian boys, and that a bad boot may mean a lame soldier, and a lame soldier may mean a Canadian taken prisoner or shot. People are giving large sums of money to help those who go to the war. You can help by seeing that they are properly shod. The honor of the firm, and the lives of our brave men, I leave in your hands with perfect confidence."



WAR AND WHEAT

Winnipeg Quotations Much Higher Than Those of Minneapolis

The immediate effect of the declaration of war on the wheat market was, as is well known, a stiffening in prices. Roughly speaking the Winnipeg prices for wheat had averaged around 80 cents per bushel before the war, while recent quotations are in the neighborhood of $1.05 and have been higher. There have been some fluctuations due to uncertainty regarding the conditions of shipment and insurance across the Atlantic, but generally speaking there is little doubt that the war will mean much higher prices to the Western farmer than would have been the case if peace had prevailed. In so far as the increased price will compensate for a partial loss of crop, the West will gain from the war.

An outstanding and interesting fact is the great difference in favor of the Winnipeg market in the price of wheat. On August 10th the Winnipeg price was 14 cents per bushel higher than the Minneapolis price for the same kind of wheat. In fact the difference was so great that Canadian millers were forced to buy American wheat which could be laid down cheaper at Canadian mills after the freight and duty had been paid than the Canadian article. Under war conditions, which, however, everyone hopes will not prevail long, it would seem that the Canadian wheat grower would suffer by a removal of the duty. The big American wheat crop has tended to reduce the price of wheat in this continent, and apparently there was a possibility of the Canadian millers buying large quantities of wheat in the United States, some of which might have been used in the one million bag order, comprising Canadian flour, given to Great Britain. The Government has, however, protected the interest of the Canadian wheat growers by requiring the mills to use nothing but Canadian wheat in manufacturing this huge order.

The Club That Knocked Half The Rub Out Of SCRUB

THEIR DIAMOND WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Awrey Were Married 60 Years Ago.

It was just sixty years ago on the 5th of September, 1914, that Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Awrey, of Fergus, were married in due style at Ballinafad, Ont. For thirty-three years after their marriage, they lived on lot 22, con. 2, Erin township, but twenty-seven years ago last April retired from active farming to live in Fergus, and of which place they are still residents.

On Saturday, they, their children, grand-children and great grand children numbering some seventy in all, assembled at Mulberry Hall, the old homestead, to celebrate their Diamond Jubilee in such a manner as the occasion demanded. Besides the above immediate relatives, there were also present Mrs. Irwin, Mr. Awrey's only sister, the ancient bridesmaid of sixty years ago, Mr. and Mrs. R. Reed, of Hillsburg; Mr. and Mrs. N. Reed, of Hamilton; Mr. Wm. Reed, of Cargill, and Mr. Robt. Reed, of Everton. Two of the above Messrs. R. Reed, of Hillsburg, and R. Reed, of Everton, were also present at the happy event three score years ago.

Although sixty years, some long and some all too short, have since rolled by, yet the aged couple, now eighty-six and seventy-six years of age, are enjoying fair health and we trust may still withstand the battle of life for many years to come.

Besides the four sons and four daughters there are seven great grandsons, and six great granddaughters.

The following are the sons and daughters: Henry, of Acton; Wm. J., on the old homestead in Erin; Edward, of Erin, and Herbert, of [illegible]; Mrs. Matthew Loree and Mrs. Wm. Sunley, of Guelph, and Mrs. William Leslie, and Mrs. Geo. Leslie, of Eramosa.—Fergus News-Record.

Victoria rink at Guelph, a brick structure, was destroyed by fire, and Knox and Chalmers churches threatened. The loss will be $30,000, including the loss of $3000 in curling and bowling equipment.

Neuralgia of the Heart

This Letter Tells of Wonderful Change Effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mr. James G. Clark, Fosterville, York County, N.B., writes:—"I have been a great sufferer from what the doctors said was neuralgia of the heart. The pain started in the back of the neck and worked down into the region of the heart. Though I had taken a lot of medicine of one kind and another, I could not get anything to help me until I used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

"When I began this treatment I could not rest in bed, except by sitting upright, on account of the dreadful pains about the heart and the quick, loud beating. The change which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has made in my condition is wonderful. It has entirely overcome these symptoms, and is making me strong and well. If this statement will help to relieve the suffering of others, you are at liberty to use it."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a true tonic and the greatest of nerve restoratives. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Jellicoe Is Not Big, But He Is Brilliant As Naval Strategist

ADMIRAL SIR JOHN JELLICOE, who has just been appointed as commander-in-chief of the British navy, and on whom the whole British Empire is depending in this hour of trial, has been for the past year and a half second sea lord of the naval department at Whitehall. He is, barring midshipmites, the most diminutive officer of the senior service.

Yet, in spite of his brevity of stature, he won fame in his younger days as a football player, as an all-round athlete, and as a boxer. He has seen plenty of fighting. As sub-lieutenant, he was present at the bombardment of Alexandria, and afterwards took part in the battle of Tel-el-Kebir, as a member of the naval brigade.

Jellicoe was ill, suffering from Malta fever, on board the Victoria, which was rammed by the Camperdown, and sent to the bottom of the Mediterranean, carrying down with her Admiral Sir George Tyron, and more than 600 officers and men, but miraculously escaped.

SIR JOHN JELLICOE.

He is married to a very rich woman, namely, the daughter of Sir Charles Cayzer, head of the Clan line of steamers, and is regarded in the British and foreign navies as more responsible than any other officer for the marvellous progress in naval gunnery in the British fleet.

MADDEN CHIEF OF STAFF.

Admiral Jellicoe is 55 and is one of the most distinguished admirals of the service. He has wide sea experience, is a splendid administrator, and is at the same time a man of cool and determined judgment. He has chosen as his Chief of Staff Rear Admiral Charles Madden, another most distinguished officer, who happens to be his brother-in-law. Sir John Jellicoe and Rear Admiral Madden served together at the Admiralty on more than one occasion, both having, indeed, been Sea Lords, and they married daughters of Sir Charles Cayzer, Bart. Sir John Jellicoe and Rear Admiral Madden are known to be in the most complete accord on matters of strategy and tactics, and were both associated in the creation and equipment of the ships of the Home Fleets, on which the fortunes of the British Empire will depend. They were members of the famous Dreadnought Defence Committee, and were associated with Admiral of the Fleet Lord Fisher of Kilverstone in his many reforms in naval administration. No officer whom the Admiralty could have selected to go afloat at this juncture enjoys so completely the confidence of the naval service as Sir John Jellicoe. In December, 1912, he became a member of the Board of Admiralty, and then vacated the command of the Second Division of the Home Fleet, to which he was appointed over the heads of 11 vice-admirals—a fact which in itself points to the high estimation in which he is held by the naval authorities. Born on Dec. 5, 1859, he is the son of Captain J. H. Jellicoe. Educated at Rottingdean, Sir John Jellicoe entered the royal navy as a cadet on July 15, 1872, passing out of the Britannia first of his "batch" by over a hundred marks. In the examination for sub-lieutenant, which rank he attained six years later (Dec. 5, 1878), he took three "firsts," in itself a remarkable achievement.

GREAT ON GUNNERY.

Much has been said about the improvement of good shooting in the navy, and in this connection considerable praise is due to Admiral Jellicoe. Without his help—so a writer in The United Service Journal once remarked, reflecting a judgment which is known to be well founded—the good work fostered by Admiral Sir Percy Scott would have been heavily handicapped—in fact, impossible; for the then Director of Naval Ordnance proved himself a man of original thought and prompt action, and one of the most capable gunnery experts in the navy.

During the time he was in command of the Drake, he turned it into one of the best shooting ships in the navy, and while he was at the Admiralty as Director of Naval Ordnance, Capt. Jellicoe did all that was possible to ensure the guns mounted in ships in the first fighting line being fitted with the most up-to-date day and night sights, as well as to instal a fire-control set of instruments in each ship for "spotting" and controlling at long-range shooting.

IN STERLING LIVES A GIRL

Who Suffered As Many Girls Do—Tells How She Found Relief.

Sterling, Conn.—"I am a girl of 22 years and I used to faint away every month and was very weak. I was also bothered a lot with female weakness. I read your little book 'Wisdom for Women,' and I saw how others had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and decided to try it, and it has made me feel like a new girl and I am now relieved of all these troubles. I hope all young girls will get relief as I have. I never felt better in my life."—Miss BERTHA A. PELOQUIN, Box 116, Sterling, Conn.

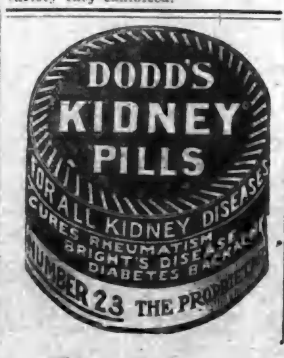
Massena, N. Y.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I highly recommend it. If anyone wants to write to me I will gladly tell her about my case. I was certainly in a bad condition as my blood was all turning to water. I had pimples on my face and a bad color, and for five years I had been troubled with suppression. The doctors called it 'Anemia and Exhaustion,' and said I was all run down, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me out all right."—Miss LAVISA MYRES, Box 74, Massena, N.Y.

Young Girls, Heed This Advice.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THE JESUITS ON TOP.

The selection of Cardinal Ciesa to be the new Pope assures a continuance of the policy of Pius X. The newly elected Pontiff has been an assistant to Cardinal Mery del' Val, who will doubtless continue to be the Secretary of State at the Vatican. This means the ascendancy of the Ultramontane faction at Rome.



The reign of Pius X. was notable for the promulgation of the most extreme doctrines, and for the persecution of modernists. In fact it may be said that the policy which has prevailed during eleven years past has been to reverse that of Leo XIII. The world may expect, therefore, an administration that will emphasise all that is narrow and intolerant in the dogmas of Romanism. The modist will be treated with greater severity was guilty of. For allied to the narrowness of Pius X, was a great fund of human sympathy which is not so outstanding a characteristic of the new Pope.

From the standpoint of progress it is perhaps a good thing for the world that a man of these extreme views should have been selected. The inevitable result will be that liberal Roman Catholics will be driven out of the Roman Communion, while those who can be disciplined into acceptance of the last syllable of the most intolerant decrees will constitute the church. Under such an administration Socialists will be fought with great earnestness, with a probable advantage to the cause of Socialism.

It seems to us that whatever tends to create a logical discussion of the doctrines of Rome, including the claim to temporal power, must react to the disadvantage of the Papacy. The policy of Leo XIII was to make the church broad enough to include men who were unable to accept the most extreme doctrines and yet desire to remain Roman Catholics. With the new Pope demanding submission to the last tittle of dogmas and decrees these more liberal Catholics cannot remain. There is a further fact to consider. That in a contest such as this the cause of progress will be served by having the conflict in the open, and by calling men to take one side or the other.

Rev. Father Burke, who seems to speak for Roman Catholics of Toronto rather than Archbishop McNeill, has given an interview in which he said that the new Pope's policy is to "bring back religion to its primitive and proper place, to rid it of all excrescences and other things that enervate it, to get back to first principles." That is to say, he will deny there has been any progress in religious thought during the past five centuries, and compel the church to revert to the Council of Trent.—Orange Sentinel.

Wireless in the Field Prevents Communication Ever Being Cut Off

WIRELESS telegraphy is the new force in modern warfare which has changed all the old problems of communication. Formerly the aim was to capture and destroy the enemy's telegraph lines or submarine cables. Nowadays the matter is not so simple, for the wireless zones cover Europe, and ships at sea may be in touch with the War Offices in their capitals.

A wireless expert, writing in The London Chronicle, gives in an illuminating way the realization of what the new telegraphy means and how it is made use of in war. He says:—

"Through the medium of the Eiffel Tower regular communication should be maintained with the wireless telegraph station at Moscow or St. Petersburg and France and Russia should therefore be able to keep in continuous communication, despite any interruption of the ordinary telegraph service. The danger of interference with the wireless service by stations of the opposing nations is practically non-existent. To commence with, each station would be too busily engaged in dealing with its own correspondence to attempt to prevent another station from working, and at best they could only hope to overhear communications.

"TAPPING IMPRACTICABLE.

"In wireless telegraph, the adjustment of one circuit to another in such a way that the 'time-periods' are the same throughout the system, so that electro-magnetic waves possessing a different time-period will produce little or no effect on the system, considerably reduces the danger of tapping messages, while the provision of secret codes and cyphers would make such fragments of messages as are overheard unintelligible to an outside party.

"An incident during the recent Balkan war illustrates the remarkable reliability of wireless telegraphy. During the siege of Adrianople, all communication between the city and Constantinople was stopped. But shut up in the beleaguered city with the imprisoned garrison was a 1½ k.w. Marconi wireless telegraph station of the portable type, and this fortunate circumstance alone enabled her to keep in touch with Constantinople, where is installed another Marconi station.

BRITISH WIRELESS IN THE FIELD.

At no time did the station fail, and during the time that the city was invested over 450,000 words were transmitted to headquarters without a hitch. This, too, in spite of the difficulties the allies attempted to create by placing one of their stations to the westward of Adrianople and another to the eastward, so that they might come as nearly as possible in a direct line between the Adrianople and Constantinople stations. As soon as the latter commenced calling up Adrianople, or vice versa, he allies hammered away at their two stations in a vigorous but vain attempt to "jam" the Turkish signals. The efforts of the Turks were entirely successful.

STOPS GUERILLA WARFARE.

"Thanks to Mr. Marconi's genius, and largely to his company's enterprise, portable wireless telegraphy is available for field use. It is more than likely that the use of this apparatus will help to curtail that particularly troublesome form of warfare—guerilla fighting.

"Portable military stations are designed to be carried in carts, automobiles, on pack-saddles, and by hand, and they are adapted for use on aeroplanes and airships, the range of communication being 12 and 350 miles or more, according to the type employed. The Marconi stations are ingeniously designed to insure absolute secrecy, the method being to change the wave-length of the transmitter at frequent intervals from one fixed wave-length to another in a fraction of a second.

"The operator can therefore change his wave-length or 'tune' after every three or four words as any of the waves to which his switch has been adjusted by sending a code letter indicating to which 'tune' he was about to change. The operator at the station with which he is communicating, and whose receiver is similarly fitted, would be able to follow him without difficulty. The wireless service of an army, properly organised with such stations as these, makes it impossible for any station not informed to read messages transmitted.

CONGREGATIONS CONDOLE

Sympathetic Messages to Widow and Family of Rev. Frank Davey.

Last week The Banner recorded the death of Rev. Frank Davey, of Cedarville, formerly pastor of Mono Mills Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Davey and family are moving to Mount Forest where they intend to reside. Prior to their removal a deputation from the Cedarville congregation waited on them at their home. Mr. Alex. Buchanan read the following address and Mr. Robert Howells made the presentation of a purse of money. Mrs. Davey replied in feeling terms thanking all for their great kindness.

Dear Mrs. Davey and Family—

We, the members and adherents of Cedarville Presbyterian Church, desire to convey to you our sincere sympathy in the very great loss which you have been called on to suffer in your recent bereavement. We wish also to assure you that we realize that we too have sustained a great loss and have been called upon to endure great grief in the same dispensation of Providence.

Our late pastor had greatly endeared himself to us all through his faithful and earnest pulpit ministrations, and in no less degree in his pastoral work. Particularly did he make his influence felt among the young, and we realize that his loss will be felt in every department of the work of the congregation. But although he is now gone from us, we feel that the memory of his devoted life will still be a power in our lives —"He being dead yet speaketh."

It is with great joy that we can through faith look to the God of all comfort in our common loss.

And now we ask you, at this time of your withdrawal from our congregation, to accept this small gift as a token of our regard and affection and with it our earnest wish and prayer, that God's blessing may rest on you all throughout the journey of life.

Signed on behalf of the congregation :—Alexander Buchanan, Robert Howells, Peter McPherson, Neil McEachern.

The same evening the following letter of condolence was presented to Mrs. Davey :

Mrs. (Rev.) Frank Davey and family:

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom, to remove from our midst one whom we all loved, one who by his kindly nature had endeared himself to all who knew him, one who always had a word of cheer for those who were downcast and sad, a message of hope for those who were anxious about the welfare of their soul, a word of warning and advice for those who were careless and indifferent about spiritual things, one who, in short, strove to do his Master's will; we hasten with sad hearts to assure you of our profound sorrow for our loss. But while our loss has been great we must acknowledge that yours is infinitely greater.

We realize that you have lost a kind and loving husband and father, and in your sad trial we extend to you our sincere sympathy.

But we thank the loving Father that neither you nor we need mourn as those who have no hope, for we know that he who has gone was putting his trust in Him who never yet betrayed His trust, and we would point you to Him at this time. And let us all try to realize that what is our loss is gain to our loved one who we know has inherited a crown of glory because as the apostle said, "He has fought the good fight." Let us then not grudge him the unspeakable joy of serving the Master he loved in a more perfect way than was possible when hampered by the mortal body.

As another has said, "It is as tho' God had been walking in his garden and had plucked one of his choicest flowers and transplanted it nearer his throne."

So we urge you to look to the loving Jesus for strength to bear your loss, and let this thought comfort you. He said "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."

Signed on behalf of the congregation. —John Wilkie, Donald McDonald.

Cedarville, Aug. 28, 1914.

Mrs. Davey very feelingly replied thanking all the people for the kindness shown them during their trouble also for the flowers placed on the coffin. They were, "The gates ajar," by the congregation; a wreath by the Christian Endeavor and the Bible Class; also outside of congregation wreaths by Mrs. Collins; and Mrs. Connor and family.—Mt. A SERIAL STORY

ANNA, The Adventuress

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

CHAPTER XXXI.—continued.

"I do not," he answered. "How could I, when your sister sings at the 'Universal' every night, and the name 'Alcide' flaunts from every placard in London?"

"The likeness between us," she said, "before I began to disfigure myself with rouge and ill-dressed hair, was remarkable. Anna failed in her painting, our money was gone, and she was forced to earn her own living. She came to London, and tried several things without any success."

"But why——"

Sir John stopped short. With a sigh of inward shame he remembered his deportment towards Anna. It was scarcely likely that she would have accepted his aid. Some one had once, in his hearing, called him a prig. He remembered it suddenly. He thought of his severe attitude towards the girl who was rightly and with contempt refusing his measured help. He looked across at Annabel, and he groaned. This was his humiliation as well as hers.

Anna of course would not accept any money from us," she continued. "She tried everything, and last of all she tried the stage. She went to a dramatic agent, and he turned out to be the one who had heard me sing in Paris. He refused to believe that Anna was not 'Alcide.' He thought she wished to conceal her identity because of the connection with you, and he offered her an engagement at once. She was never announced as 'Alcide,' but directly she walked on she simply became 'Alcide' to every one. She had a better voice than I, and the rest I suppose is only a trick. The real 'Alcide'" she would up with a faint smile across the table at him, "is here."

He sat like a man turned to stone. Some part of the stiff vigor of the man seemed to have subsided. He seemed to have shrunken in his seat. His eyes were fixed upon her face, but he opened his lips twice before he spoke.

"When you married me——"

Her little hand flashed out across the table.

"John," she said, "I can spare you that question. I had been about as foolish and selfish as a girl could be. I had done the most compromising things, and behaved in the most ridiculous way. But from the—rest—you saved me."

Sir John breathed a long deep sigh. He sat up in his chair again, the colour came back to his cheeks.

"John, don't!" she cried. "You think that this is all. You are going to be generous and forgive. It isn't all. There is worse to come. There is a tragedy to come."

"Out with it, then," he cried, almost roughly. "Don't you know, child, that this is torture for me? What in God's name more can you have to tell me?"

Her face had become almost a marble image. She spoke with a certain odd deliberation carefully chosen words which fell like drops of ice upon the man who sat listening.

"Before I met you I was deluded into receiving upon friendly terms a man named Hill, who passed himself off as Meysey Hill the railway man, but who was in reality an Englishman in poor circumstances. He was going to settle I forget how many millions upon me, and I think that I was dazzled. I went with him to what I supposed to be the British Embassy, and went through a ceremony which I understood to be to be the usual form of the marriage one used there. Afterwards we started for a motor ride to a place outside Paris for dejeuner, and I suppose the man's nerve failed him. I questioned him too closely about his possessions, and remarked upon the fact that he was a most inexpert driver, although Meysey Hill had a great reputation as a motorist. Anyhow he confessed that he was a fraud. I struck him across the face, jumped out and went back by train to Paris. He lost control of the machine, was upset and nearly killed."

"Did you say," Sir John asked, "that the man's name was Hill?"

"Yes," she answered.

"The man who was found dead in your sister's room was named Hill?"

"It is the man," she answered. "I killed him."

Sir John clutched at the table with both hands. A slow horror was dawning in his fixed eyes. This was not the sort of confession which he had been expecting. Annabel had spoken calmly enough and steadily, but his brain refused at first to accept the full meaning of her words. It seemed to him that a sort of mist had risen up between them. Everything was blurred. Only her face was clear, frail and delicate, almost flower-like, with the sad haunting eyes ever watching his. Annabel a murderess! It was not possible.

"Child!" he cried. "You do not know what you say. This is part of a dream—some evil fancy. Think! You could not have done it."

She shook her head deliberately, hopelessly.

"I think that I know very well what I am saying," she answered. "I went to Anna's rooms because I felt that I must see her. He was there concealed, waiting for her return. He recognized me at once, and behaved like a madman. He swore that I was his wife, that chance had given me to him at last. John, he was between me and the door. A strong coarse man, and there were things in his eyes which made my blood run cold with terror. He came over to me. I was helpless. Beside me on Anna's table was a pistol. I was not sure whether it was loaded. I snatched it up, pointed it blindly at him, and fired."

"Ah!" Sir John exclaimed.

"He fell over at my feet," she continued. "I saw him stagger and sink down, and the pistol was smoking in my hand. I bent over him. Anna had told me that he carried always with him this bogus marriage certificate. I undid his coat, and took it from his pocket. I burned it."

"But the marriage itself?" Sir John asked. "I do not understand."

"There was no marriage," she answered. "I was very foolish to have been deceived even for a moment. There was no marriage, and I hated, oh, how I hated the man."

"Did any one see you leave the flat?" he asked.

"I do not know. But David Courtlaw has been here. To-night they say he will be conscious. He will say who it was. So there is no escape. And listen, John."

"Well?"

"I went from Anna's flat to Nigel Ennison's rooms. I told him the truth. I asked him to take me away, and hide me. He refused. He sent me home."

Sir John's head bent lower and lower. There was nothing left now of the self-assured, prosperous man of affairs. His shoulders were bent, his face was furrowed with wrinkles. He looked no longer at his wife. Her eyes were fixed upon the tablecloth.

There was a gentle rustling of skirts. Softly she rose to her feet. He felt her warm breath upon his cheek, the perfume of her hair as she leaned over him. He did not look up, so he did not know that in her other hand she held a glass of wine.

"Dear husband," she murmured, "I am so very, very sorry. I have brought disgrace upon you, and I haven't been the right sort of wife at all. But it is all over now, and presently there will be some one else. I should like to have had you forgive me."

He did not move. He seemed to be thinking hard. She paused for a moment. Then she raised the glass nearer to her lips.

"Good-bye, John," she said simply.

Something in her tone made him look up. In a second the glass lay shattered upon the carpet. There was a stain of wine upon her dress.

"God in Heaven, Annabel!" he cried. "What were you doing?"

Her voice was a little hysterical. Her unnatural calm was giving way.

"It was poison—why not?" she answered. "Who is there to care and—John."

His arms were around her. He kissed her once on the lips with a passion of which, during all their days of married life, he had given no sign.

"You poor little girl!" he cried. "Forgive you, indeed. There isn't a husband breathing, Annabel, who wouldn't have blessed that pistol in your hands, and prayed God that the bullet might go straight. It is no crime, none at all. It is one of God's laws that a woman may defend her honour, even with the shedding of blood. While you talked I was only making our plans. It was necessary to think, and think quickly."

She was altogether hysterical now.

"But I—I went to Nigel Ennison for help. I asked him—to take me away."

She saw him flinch, but he gave no sign of it in his tone.

"Perhaps," he said, "I have been to blame. It must be my fault that you have not learnt that your husband is the man to come to—at such a time as this. Oh, I think I understand, Annabel. You were afraid of me, afraid that I should be shocked, afraid of the scandal. Bah. Little woman, you have been brave enough before. Pull yourself together now. Drink this!"

He poured out a glass of wine with a firm hand, and held it to her lips. She drank it obediently.

"Good," he said, as he watched the colour come back to her cheeks. "Now listen. You go to your room and ring for your maid. I received a telegram, as you know, during dinner. It contains news of the serious illness of a near relation at Paris. Your maid has twenty minutes to pack your dressing case for one night, and you have the same time to change into a travelling dress. In twenty minutes we meet in the hall, remember. I will tell you our plans on the way to the station."

"But you," she exclaimed, "you are not coming. There is the election——"

He laughed derisively.

"Election be hanged!" he exclaimed. "Don't be childish, Annabel. We are off for a second honeymoon. Just one thing more. We may be stopped. Don't look so frightened. You called yourself a murderess. You are nothing of the sort. What you did is called manslaughter, and at the worst there is only a slight penalty, nothing to be frightened about in the least. Remember that."

She kissed him passionately, and ran upstairs. In the hall below she could hear his firm voice giving quick commands to the servants.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Hissing of "Alcide"

There was a strange and ominous murmur of voices, a shuffling of feet in the gallery, a silence which was like the silence before a storm. Anna, who had sung the first verse of her song, looked around the house, a little surprised at the absence of the applause which had never yet failed her. She realized in a moment what had happened. Even though the individual faces of her audience were not to be singled out, she had been conscious from the first moment of her appearance that something was wrong. She hesitated, and for a moment thought of omitting her second verse altogether. The manager, however, who stood in the wings, nodded to her to proceed, and the orchestra commenced the first few bars of the music. Then the storm broke. A long shrill cat-call in the gallery seemed to be the signal. Then a roar of hisses. They came from every part, from the pit, the circle and the gallery, even from the stalls. And there arose too, a background of shouts.

"Who killed her husband?"

"Go and nurse him, missus!"

"Murderess!"

Anna looked from right to left. She was as pale as death, but she seemed to have lost the power of movement. They shouted to her from the wings to come off. She could not stir hand or foot. A paralysing horror was upon her. Her ear-drums were burning with the echoes of those hideous shouts. A crumpled-up news paper thrown from the gallery hit her upon the cheek. The stage manager came out from the wings, and taking her hand led her off. There was more shouting.

The stage manager reappeared presently, and made a speech. He regretted—more deeply than he could say—the occurrence of this evening. He fancied that when they had had time to reflect, they would regret it still more. ("No, no.") They had shown themselves grossly ignorant of facts, wickedly insult a lady who had done They had chosen to deliberately and her best to entertain them for many weeks. He could not promise that she would ever appear again in that house. ("Good job.") Well, they might say that, but he knew very well that before long they would regret it. Of his own certain knowledge he could tell them that. For his own part he could not sufficiently admire the pluck of this lady, who, notwithstanding all that she had been through, had chosen to appear this evening rather than break her engagement. He should never sufficiently be able to regret the return which they had made to her. He begged their attention for the next turn.

He had spoken impressively, and most likely Anna, had she reappeared, would have met with a fair reception. She, however, had no idea of doing anything of the sort. She dressed rapidly and left the theatre without a word to any one. The whole incident was so unexpected that neither Courtlaw nor Brendon were waiting. The man who sat behind a pigeon hole, and regulated the comings and goings, was for a moment absent. Anna stood on the step and looked up and down the street for a hansom. Suddenly she felt her wrist grasped by a strong hand. It was Ennison, who loomed up through the shadows.

"Anna! Thank God I have found you at last. But you have not finished surely. Your second turn is not over, is it?"

She laughed a little hardly. Even now she was dazed. The horror of those few minutes was still with her.

"Have you not heard?" she said. "For me there is no second turn. I have said good-bye to it all. They hissed me!"

"Beasts!" he muttered. "But was it wise to sing to-night?"

"Why not? The man was nothing to me."

"You have not seen the evening papers?"

"No. What about them?"

He called a hansom.

"They are full of the usual foolish stories. To-morrow they will all be contradicted. To-night all London believes that he was your husband."

"That is why they hissed me, then?"

"Of course. To-morrow they will know the truth."

She shivered.

"Is this hansom for me?" she said. "Thank you—and good-bye."

"I am coming with you," he said firmly.

She shook her head.

"Don't!" she begged.

"You are in trouble," he said. "No one has a better right than I to be with you."

"You have no right at all," she answered coldly.

"I have the right of the man who loves you," he declared. "Some day you will be my wife, and it would not be well for either of us to remember that in these unhappy days you and I were separated."

Anna gave her address to the driver. She leaned back in the cab with half closed eyes.

"This is all madness," she declared wearily. "Do you think it is fair of you to persecute me just now?"

"It is not persecution, Anna," he answered gently. "Only you are the woman I love, and you are in trouble. And you are something of a heroine, too. You see, my riddle is solved. I know all."

"You know all?"

"Your sister has told me."

"You have seen her—since last night?"

"Yes."

Anna shivered a little. She asked no further questions for the moment. Ennison himself, with the recollection of Annabel's visit still fresh in his mind, was for a moment constrained and ill at ease. When they reached her rooms she stepped lightly out upon the pavement.

"Now you must go," she said firmly. "I have had a trying evening and I need rest."

Mary Evelyn Pierson

It is with sorrow that we record the death of the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pierson, 3rd line, east, Mono. The sad event occurred in Lord Dufferin Hospital on Friday, Sept. 11th. The little one, who was eleven months and eighteen days of age, was taken ill about two months ago. The funeral, which was largely attended, was held to the Forest Lawn Cemetery on Sunday afternoon. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of their neighbors and friends in their sad affliction.

Signed Undertaking

Chief Marshall made a trip to Melancthon Station on Tuesday, and while there interviewed and made arrangements for the parole of a German named Joseph Gerhard. Some days ago the Chief received a letter from Commissioner Sherwood of the Dominion Police Force asking him to look after and get an Undertaking from Gerhard. The Commissioner stated that Gerhard had left Kaministiquia near Port Arthur some time ago with the intention of returning home to join the German army. Finding that he could not get out of the country he came to Melancthon S'n. where he has been living with a farmer named McFadden. The German, who is about 25 years of age and full of the fighting spirit, gives his birthplace as Friedrickswalde a Saxony, one of the kingdoms of Prussia.

Mrs. Wm. J. Stinson.

Mrs. Wm. J. Stinson, a well-known resident of Mono township, passed away quite suddenly at her home, lot 17, 5th line, east, about 6.30 o'clock on Monday morning. Mrs. Stinson had been having indifferent health for the last two years, but was usually well enough to attend to her household duties. On Sunday she attended service in the Methodist Church in company with her husband. During the service she suffered a paralytic seizure and was carried from the church in an unconscious condition. She was taken to her home in an auto belonging to Mr. Wm. Wilson, one of her neighbors. A message was sent to Orangeville for Dr. Carson, who did all that was possible to relieve the stricken woman. The end, however, came peacefully the following morning. Mrs. Stinson was 46 years of age and is survived by her husband, two sons, Lester and Ellis, and one daughter, Effie. The husband, who has been in poor health for some time, and family have the sympathy of the entire neighborhood in the grevious calamity that has cast its shadow over their home. The deceased lady was a daughter of Mr. Wm. Bower, of Mono, and a niece of Mr. John Bower, of Orangeville. Mr. J. ...wer, of Hume, Sask., is the ...ly brother and Mrs. Hamilton Mc...adden, of Markdale, and Mrs. Thos. Reburn, of Whitfield, are the surviving sisters. There was a very large attendance at the funeral, which was held to Relessey cemetery at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Rev. J. W. Dudgeon, of Rosemont, conducted the services at the house and grave.

Death of Mrs. Plewes.

The announcement on Monday morning that Mrs. Simon Plewes had passed away during the night was not unexpected, as everybody in town knew she was beyond human aid and was liable to receive the summons at any moment. She had been a great sufferer for nearly two years. In the spring of 1913 she was operated on in Toronto for internal trouble, and in exactly a year from that date she was again treated by the hospital physicians. She came home after the second term in the hospital, and lingered until shortly after twelve o'clock on Monday morning, when her spirit took its flight.

Deceased came to Creemore with her husband, the late Simon Plewes, about thirty years ago, and has been an esteemed resident ever since. She was a member of and earnest worker in the Methodist church for many years. She was the only daughter of the late David Spence, Esq., ex-reeve of Amaranth, and sister of Jas. A. Spence, the first reeve of Creemore, and John Spence, ex-reeve of Amaranth. She is survived by a son and daughter, David Edgar, manager of the Bank of Toronto, Lyndhurst, and Miss Jessie at home.—Creemore Star

WILL RUN THROUGH PEEL

Paved Highway from Toronto to Hamilton.

Government, Cities and Rural Municipalities to Share Cost of Construction.

At its meeting in Cooksville last Thursday the Council of Toronto township, the big municipality in the south of Peel County, had under consideration the question of the construction of a paved highway from Toronto to Hamilton. If the scheme is approved of the highway will be built immediately as a means of assisting to relieve the distress caused by unemployment. The cost of construction will be borne by the Government, the cities of Toronto and Hamilton and the rural municipalities through which the highway will run. A general meeting was held in the Parliament Buildings on Wednesday of last week, at which a general committee was appointed to make arrangements for meetings of the interested councils and to report back at a meeting on Tuesday of this week. The scheme as outlined by Mark Irish, M.P.P., is on the following lines:—

Toronto is to contribute $125,080; Hamilton $20,000; the Government, as a provincial subsidy, $4000 a mile, or $160,000; the townships $4000 a mile or $160,000; while the property owners will contribute $143,000 raised by a property tax of 1½ cents a foot frontage, and a graded acreage tax of 25 cents to 15 cents, and 10 cents on the three succeeding 50 acres in the rear.

In addition to this, Mr. Irish stated, there had been several donations from private sources assured. He enumerated as savings by reason of construction at the present time $25,000 in purchases at cost from the cement interests, $12,000 from the stone interests, and $102,000 in reduction in the cost of labor.

The plan of financing was to adopt temporary measures for five years. With evidence of security from the Provincial Government bearing interest at 6 per cent. private funds could be secured to construct the road and the securities would be so placed that they would not come upon the market during the interim period. At the end of this period, when financing conditions had improved, permanent financing involving the issuing of 20 year five per cent. bonds could be substituted.

The final suggestion was that the construction of the highway should be directed by a commission of five members appointed by the government.

If the municipalities endorse the project work will be commenced at once. Provincial Engineer W. A. McLean has collected and arranged all needful data and the organization of his department is prepared to proceed with the work on short notice.

MARSVILLE.

Anniversary services were conducted in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Perrin, of Moorefield, was the preacher and delivered eloquent and inspiring discourses in the morning and evening. There were large congregations on both occasions. The choir rendered special music and the entire services were much appreciated.

Mr. Morley Price, a Civil Service clerk in the Finance Department at Ottawa, spent last week with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. John Carroll, of Saulte Ste. Marie, and their daughter, Olive, spent a few days with relatives and friends in the community.

Mr. Wm. Thompson, of the town line near Orton, has moved into this village and is now residing in the house with his mother.

Mr. Hugh Warnock has sold his farm, lot 2, 13th line, to Mr. Jos. Thompson. The price paid was $4800.

Messrs. Ed. and Wilson Patterson, of Toronto, were around last week and succeeded in securing 20 army horses in the surrounding community. The animals were shipped from Hillsburg on Friday.

Mr. Jas. Byers spent last week in Toronto and Pickering, taking in the Exhibition and visiting friends and relatives.

—Spend your evenings in study at Orangeville Business College. All subjects.

MONO EAST PARISH.

Services will be held on Sunday, Sept. 20th, as follows:—

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble, wasted nerve cells.

THE VALUE OF THE NAVY.

Supremacy of the British Fleet Has Justified Itself.

Public opinion in Great Britain is beginning to realize the enormous value of the services rendered already in the war by the British Navy. The Naval and Military Record remarks on the fearful anticipations which in the few days before the war began filled all the United Kingdom that British shipping would be ruined and supplies of food and raw materials cut off. "The most careful inquiry, said the Naval and Military Record, "tended to confirm this anticipation. It was felt that we dare not—so great were the risks—be optimistic. In the months immediately preceding the outbreak of hostilities a sub-committee of the Committee of Imperial Defence considered in every detail the problem of how the people of the United Kingdom were to be fed during war time. With the most expert evidence at their command, they came to the conclusion that the peril was a real one, and that the Government ought to take precautionary measures in order to minimize it. One of the first acts of Mr. Asquith's Administration, when war was inevitable, was to announce that the Government itself would take 80 per cent. of the risk which shipping would run under the war conditions which were then developing. A war risk office was immediately opened and a rate of five per cent. quoted. Day by day followed, and though it was known that several German cruisers were still at large, no news was received of any loss. Gradually the confidence of shipowners and shippers was re-established. Private firms showed no hesitation in undertaking war risks, the premium fell from five to four guineas, and eventually it was brought down to three guineas. Even at this figure underwriters were prepared to undercut the Government office. British shipping, which was at first disorganized by the dramatic circumstances under which war occurred, has since been resuming its normal course. As a nation we may congratulate ourselves on the astounding victory which a supreme fleet won in insuring to us ample supplies of food and raw material without striking a blow. Never was so remarkable a demonstration given of the vital importance of sea power to a people who live by and on the sea. The navy opened up a pathway for British trade, and at the same time and by the same process strangled the oversea trade of Germany."

The Uhlans.

The word "Uhlan" denotes a type of cavalryman in the German army. The Uhlan is a lancer. There are 26 regiments of Uhlans in the German army. The word "Uhlan" itself is of Polish origin, and denotes a lancer. The Uhlans in the German army wear the czapka, the peculiar flat topped headdress which was worn by the Polish Uhlans, and which to this day is the distinguishing mark in the uniforms of the lancer regiments, of Great Britain and other European countries.

An Auto Accident.

A rather serious auto accident occurred on Broadway shortly before one o'clock on Thursday last. An auto driven by Geo. Hepton, of Laurel, collided with two school girls named Margaret Forbes and Beatrice Hopkins, knocking them down. One of the wheels of the car passed over the Hopkins girl, before Mr. Hepton could stop the auto. Mr. Hepton and some bystanders carried the two victims to Drs. Kyles & Rooney's office where their injuries were attended to. They were taken home about half an hour after the accident and are both getting along nicely. Fortunately no bones were broken and the girls' sufferings were chiefly due to shock and bruises. Mr. Hepton was greatly distressed over the accident, which seems to have been unavoidable. The two girls, who were crossing the street, stepped from behind a rig directly in front of the auto and so close to the car that there was no opportunity to stop before they were struck. Mr. Hepton was driving quite slowly.

Resolution of Condolence.

At a meeting of the Session of Mono Mills Presbyterian Church on August 30th, the following resolution was agreed to by a unanimous vote and the Clerk was instructed to forward a copy to Mrs. F. Davey, widow of the late Rev. F. Davey, of Cedarville:—

"That the Session, having learned with deep regret of the death of the Rev. F. Davey, a former pastor, tenders its sincerest and heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Davey and family in their loss of a devoted husband and faithful father, and an earnest pastor. We commend you to the care of our sympathetic Father and pray that Christ may sustain you in these lonely days."

Similar resolutions were also passed by the sessions of Adjala and Mono East churches.

FOR NEW REGIMENT.

Recruiting Commenced on Friday Night.

A well-attended citizens meeting was held in the Public Library Auditorium on Friday night for the purpose of taking the preliminary steps toward the organization of the Orangeville companies of the new Infantry Regiment that is being formed to take the place of the 36th. It was decided to raise two companies in Orangeville. The West Side Company, which will take the place of "H" Company of the 36th, will be recruited from the western part of the town, West Mono and portions of Amaranth and East Garafraxa townships. The provisional officers are:—Capt, H. B. McGuire, who is now in camp at Valcartier; Lieutenants, W. A. Spence and H. A. Dorrance. The East Side Company, which will be entirely new, will be recruited from the east side of the town, East Mono and Caledon township. The provisional officers are:—Captain, R. H. Neilson; Lieutenant, D. McCallum. Col. Preston presided during the meeting and enrolled those who volunteered to enlist.

The first drill was held on the Market Square on Monday night and was attended by about twenty-five members of the newly formed Companies.

Salvation Army.

Do Not Gamble with Your Eyes!

A Competent Optician has no time to travel from town to town, flitting about like a Butterfly. He has all he can do at home.

BUT

He must be a Competent Man or he will not be able to stay long in any one place. I have been in Orangeville for Seventeen years and my business is increasing every day, which in itself is the best proof of my ability. Why deal with strangers who have constantly to hunt new fields when you have a permanent Optical Store in your own town? We do not sell

$5.00 Glasses for $1.00

Nor even $2.50 for one dollar, nor yet do we charge you $5.00 or even $2.50 for Glasses worth only $1.00. But when we charge you $2.50 or $4.00 for Glasses you get what you pay for, and you can get your money back any time if goods are not worth all that you pay for them.

This is no three day sale nor yet a misleading statement. There is no occasion for a rush. Our Store is here every day awaiting your own convenience, ready to give a scientific and up-to-date Examination. We can replace any broken Lense no matter where you purchase your Glasses.

For first-class up-to-date Optical Work this is the only store in the district worthy of your consideration.

A PIONEER GONE.

Thos. Dowkes, Early Settler in Amaranth, Dies in Shelburne.

Thos. Dowkes, of Shelburne, one of the early settlers of Amaranth township, died at his home here on Saturday morning, Sept. 5th, 1914, in his 75th year. His death was rather sudden, as he was able to be around, but was not feeling very well for the past few weeks. Deceased came to Canada from Yorkshire, England, in the early fifties with his mother and stepfather, the late Joseph Allen, of Shelburne. In 1854 and 1855 Mr. Allen was engaged in contracting east of Toronto, on the Grand Trunk Railway, then building. In 1856 the family moved to Amaranth and settled on the farm now owned by Thos. Stephenson. The northern half of the township was then a dense forest and the late Robt. Carr was the nearest settler to what is now Shelburne. The only settlers in Melancthon township in or near this place were Geo. Charters, whose house stood near where Hugh Ferguson's residence is located on Owen Sound street, and James Campbell, who owned what is best known as the Simon Jelly farm north of the village, now the property of R. B. Smith. The deceased was married about 1862 and commenced working for himself on lot 31, con. 2, Amaranth, just south of Shelburne. He remained on the farm until a few years ago, when he sold out to his sons and moved into town. Deceased was a hard worker and a very progressive farmer and might have retired long before he did. He saw many changes in his lifetime here — where Shelburne stands to-day was a huge forest and the nearest settler to the east was the late Wm. Hall and Hall's Corners or the late Geo. Tinbury, who then owned the Mark Harrison farm on the 2nd line. The late Mr. Dowkes was highly esteemed in this locality. He is survived by his widow, three sons and two daughters. The sons are: John Dowkes, of Amaranth; Joseph and Thos. Dowkes, of Shelburne. The daughters are: Mrs. Chas. Manning, of Jessopville, and Miss Mary Dowkes at home. Miss Mary Ann Dowkes, of Adeline street, Shelburne, is a sister. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon to Shelburne cemetery. The services at the house and grave were conducted by the Revs. Higgins and Caldwell. — Free Press.

MR. EWING'S IMPRESSIONS.

Ex-Reeve of Mono Home from Trip to West.

Mr. Samuel Ewing, of Alliston, a former reeve of Mono township, his wife and daughter have arrived home after a three months' trip in the Canadian West. The Alliston Herald gives the following account of Mr. Ewing's impressions of the West:—

"During the time he was away Mr. Ewing saw the country pretty thoroughly from Winnipeg to Edmonton both in the southern and northern districts. Not having been in the west for several years he naturally saw very many changes, but was not overcome with a desire to locate in any of the prairie provinces. He admits, however, that there is a certain persuasiveness for a younger man and thinks that if he were lighter in years and had the necessary capital he would not be reluctant about embarking on an extensive scale and would have no misgivings about being able to make good. But the present season has been a poor one and there is not the buoyant optimism of other years to enthuse a visitor. In Manitoba, he says, the people themselves estimate that their wheat crop will average fifteen bushels to the acre, while in Saskatchewan it will not be more than twelve bushels to the acre. Alberta will not do so well as Saskatchewan although the former is not a great wheat growing province. Oats are the poorest crop through the West and while Mr. Ewing was in Saskatoon feed oats were selling there at 60 cents per bushel. There were notable exceptions wherever the land had been properly cultivated. One of the great detriments now being imposed on the entire farming section of the west is the carelessness with which the land is being tilled. Wherever proper preparation had been made there was a fair average crop and one of the best fields of barley Mr. Ewing ever saw was near Edmonton. It was growing on a field which last season had been summer fallowed. He saw large areas under crop which were not going to produce a paying yield for no other reason than that the proper plowing and harrowing had not been done. In some cases the seeder is put in the stubble field. A few years of this soon takes the vitality out of the soil. The depression in the cities is very noticeable. The newer cities are the worst and hundreds of able bodied men are walking the streets of Edmonton and Saskatoon. Winnipeg is not so bad due apparently to the more settled condition of that city. In Winnipeg Mr. Ewing noticed an absence of the wanton extravagance in building that is apparent in other cities farther west. He gathered the impression that there will be much distress throughout the west during the coming winter."

FARMERS URGED TO GROW MUCH WHEAT.

Minister of Agriculture Issues Special Appeal Because of War

Hon. James Duff, Minister of Agriculture, in view of the decreased production of foodstuffs in Europe on account of the war, has issued an appeal to the farmers of Ontario. It is in the following terms:—

"Within the next two weeks farmers of Ontario will be busy sowing fall wheat. I therefore would, through the press, urge every farmer to devote as large as acreage as possible to this crop this year, owing to the need that may exist because of the decrease in production in the countries in Europe now engaged in conflict, upon which Great Britain depends for a large portion of her supply. Ontario, of course, is not primarily a wheat Province, but I think an extra acreage might well be devoted to this crop under the present unprecedented circumstances. I recognize that the amount that can be sown this fall must be somewhat limited by the plans which have been made during the summer. At the same time, I think special plans should be made to increase the acreage of the crops to be put in in the spring as well. There will undoubtedly be need for foodstuffs along many lines, in addition to wheat, such as potatoes, beans, oats, dairy products, live stock and poultry.

"I would like to point out that during the past season there were over 3,300,000 acres of land devoted to pasture. Now that there is every prospect of a good supply of labor, I think a great deal of this land could with advantage be broken up and put into crop. Aside from the question of price, it is undoubtedly the patriotic duty of every farmer to do his best to help in relieving the mother country from any occasion to worry over the food supply, either of the men at the front or those at home. Incidentally it may also result in establishing trade connections which will be of great value long after the war is over. This can best be done by using as large an acreage as possible, and by adopting the best methods of cultivation available. The department is willing to do everything in its power to this end."

In this connection Mr. C. E. Bailey, Assistant Deputy Minister, is sending out a letter to the forty-three district representatives of the department, urging them to take up this matter at once in their respective districts. They will endeavor to place before the farmers the changed situation from the standpoint of food supplies by reason of the war. The general lines of Great Britain's supply, the channels of which will be interfered with, it is pointed out, are wheat and flour, meat, butter, cheese and poultry, and in all these lines Ontario is in a position to aid in filling any deficiency that may exist because of the decreased production in countries from which Great Britain has drawn in the past. The district representatives will endeavor to bring these facts to the attention of the farmers during the next few weeks in various ways.

When the Liver Gets Torpid

There is Nothing Like Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to Set it Right.

Mrs. C. L. Cook, 248 Tenth street, Brandon, Man., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the last four years for liver trouble, and can say that I have had great satisfaction and help from them. I find that I do not need any doctor if I use them when the liver gets torpid, and believe that they are exactly suited for my case. My husband has used them for kidney trouble with good results, and my daughter in Winnipeg has been helped a great deal by the use of these pills. We say we can't keep house without them, and have cheated the doctors here out of a good many visits. I think Dr. Chase's medicines are just the thing, and have recommended them to many people who have used them with good results."

By keeping the liver active and the bowels regular Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills prevent and cure such disorders as biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and headache. One pill a dose. 25c a box, 5 for $1.00; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

CONFLICT IS NOW IMMINENT ON THE MEDITERRANEAN

Italy and Greece Have Ancient Scores to Settle With Turkish Empire.

German Officers Hard at Work Drilling and Mobilizing the Turks.

Of secondary interest only to the great struggle now actually being waged in Europe is the curious situation which is shaping up in the Mediterranean where Turkey, Greece and Italy all stand on the verge of participating in the conflict. Any day's despatches now may bring word that one of them has plunged into war and only a few hours can elapse after such a declaration of war before the other two will be involved.

Only one thing now is certain to bring Italy into the arena and that is the opening of hostilities against the Triple Entente by Turkey. Italy was never a strong member of the Triple Alliance. Her hatred of Austria under whose domination she spent so many years of cruel slavery, is too strong ever to make a war alongside Francis Joseph's soldiers popular with the Italian people, and nothing but the iron hand of Bismarck ever drew her into the Central European alliance. That astute statesman foresaw the need of easy access to the Mediterranean as well as another frontier along which the German allies might attack France, and Italy with her dread of the menace of the Austro-Italian border, dared not refuse to enter the pact. Since the Triple Alliance was formed things have changed in Europe and in Italy. Popular upheavals have put the governance of that country more in the hands of the people than in either Germany or Austria, and popular sentiment forbade the Government going to war alongside her allies, and on the technicality that she was only bound to assist Austria and Germany if they were the victims of aggression, Italy remained neutral.

KAISER WANTS "HOLY WAR."

Within the past month events have occurred which still further modified Italy's attitude to Austria and Germany. The Kaiser has been moving heaven and earth to drag Turkey into the war against Great Britain and France, in the hope that with the aid of a Mohammedan ally he could start a "holy war," which would seriously embarrass both Britain and France with their Mohammedan subjects in India, Egypt, Algeria, and Madagascar. Every ounce of pressure has been brought to bear upon the Sublime Porte to force that highly Germanized Government into the fight against Sedvia. The sale of the cruisers Goeben and Breslau, now lying off Constantinople with their German crews, was part of the scheme, and it is known that German officers are now busy in Turkey mobilizing the troops and preparing for hostilities against the Triple Entente. Turkish diplomats insist that, the move is purely defensive, but there is no doubt the German Government looks forward to the assistance of Turkey as an offensive ally.

KING CONSTANTINE.

Nothing could so surely settle the role of Italy in the present war. Her recent war with Turkey in Tripoli and Benghazi has left a strong bias against the Ottoman Empire with the Italian people, and apart from popular sentiment Italy would from purely commercial reasons resent any warlike activity on the part of her ancient rival.

As for Greece, her action is easily predicted. She is under bond to act in concert with Servia against Turkey, and even without a treaty would lose no time in assailing the Mohammedan if he showed any disposition to attempt the recovery of his Balkan war losses.

TURKEY'S SMALL CHANCE.

The immediate outcome of such a conflict is easy enough to predict. It would mean that the fleets of Great Britain, France, Italy and Greece would be pitted against those of Turkey, Austria and Germany on the Mediterranean side, and Russia would descend swiftly on the Bosphorus from the Black Sea.

Turkey's only hope of success would lie in the eventual success of German-Austrian arms in Europe, in which case her reward would be a slice of her lost European territory and possible tit-bits in North Africa. Her payment in case of failure would be the loss of Constantinople and the Bosphorus to Russia. The odds are against her, but with Germany urging her on to a "holy war" and foes on every side Turkey has little choice. Recent despatches say that public prayer for Germany has already been ordered by the Sultan, who is the official head of Islam.

Sultan Mahomed V. has probably little stomach for war. He is essentially a man of peace, but his advisers are war lords, with German ideals. Mahomed himself has spent most of his life in imprisonment at the hands of his brother, the notorious Abdul Hamid, upon whose disposition in 1909, Mahomed was released and made Sultan. He is seventy years of age, and described as a kindly, peaceable man, but of no particular weight as a ruler or diplomat.

ITALIAN KING POPULAR.

After the rulers whose countries would be involved in such a struggle the biggest figure in European affairs is Victor Emmanuel III. of Italy, the third constituted King of that country. He is the son of the martyred King Humbert I., who was assassinated in 1900, and is immensely popular with the Italian people. Long before he ascended the throne he had won the respect and confidence of Italians and the world at large, and his kindliness and rectitude of purpose are universally acknowledged. Quite as popular as King Victor is his Queen, who was the Princess Helene of Montenegro.

The third monarch who would be involved is Constantine of Greece, a newcomer to the galaxy of crowned heads in Europe, and like Victor Emmanuel, the son of a murdered King. King Constantine ascended the throne about a year ago, when his father King George I. was murdered. King Constantine is a nephew of Queen Alexandra, and also of the Dowager Empress of Russia. He is therefore a cousin to both King George and Czar Nicholas. So far relationships and his national alliances harmonize, but his wife is a sister of the Kaiser. Such divisions of family are common enough, however, in the present war, and neither King Constantine nor Queen Sophia will hesitate to throw in their lot against Kaiser Wilhelm if conditions require it. Constantine is a brilliant soldier and covered himself with glory in the Balkan wars.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. TWO YEARS OF TORTURE FROM STOMACH TROUBLE

Cured by the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

There are two ways usually adopted in trying to cure indigestion or stomach trouble—one the wrong way by using purgatives and the other drugs which only act locally and which in the long run cause more distress by weakening the whole system. The other way and the right way is the Dr. Williams' manner of treatment—that is to nourish and build up the stomach by supplying plenty of new, rich, red blood. Give the stomach this much needed supply of new blood and distress will disappear and stay banished forever. The new blood strengthens the nerves of the stomach and gives it the necessary power to digest food. Thousands bear witness to the value of the Dr. Williams' treatment through the blood. Among them is the Rev. P. D. Nowlan, of Summerville, N. S., who says: "I certainly have great reason to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they were the means of saving my life. Till I reached the age of thirty I never knew what pain or sickness meant, but after that my stomach failed me and food of any kind caused untold distress. I became constipated and was forced to use injections daily. This went on for about two years; I grew weaker and weaker; my weight fell off from 185 to 125 pounds. I had a hacking cough and appeared to be going into a decline. All this time I was being treated by the best of doctors but without the least benefit. Night after night I could get no sleep the pain and agony were so severe. On consultation the doctors decided I was suffering from cancer of the stomach and advised an operation as a means of saving my life. This I refused to undergo and began to look forward to an early death. Just then a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had no faith in any medicine and at first refused, but my friend was so persistent that finally I gave in and purchased half a dozen boxes. By the time these were gone I felt much stronger and the distress was not so severe. I continued their use and each succeeding box wrought a marked improvement in my condition till by the time I had taken a dozen boxes every pain and ache had left me; my strength increased; my weight was back to where it was before I was ill; I had a good appetite and was completely cured. In the years that have elapsed since I used the Pills not a twinge of the trouble has returned. To me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the greatest medicine on earth and I never lose an opportunity in recommending them to other sufferers, for I feel that were it not for their use I would have been in my grave long ago."

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for Rev. Mr. Nowlan they have done for thousands of others and will do for you if ailing. They not only cure cases of stomach trouble, but rheumatism, partial paralysis, heart palpitation, St. Vitus' dance and all other troubles that have their origin in a bad condition of the blood and nerves. The Pills are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, SEPT. 24, 1914.

Fair Notes.

An ideal day and a record crowd.

There must be have been nearly 100 autos on the grounds.

Mrs. Chas. Crombie, of Mono, captured three firsts on butter.

Secretary A. E. Annis demonstrated that he was the right man for the job.

The W. C. T. U. ladies had a refreshment tent and carried on a brisk trade.

A number of Orangeville's business men showed commendable enterprise by making attractive special exhibits.

President W. M. Green, Vice-President Jos. Gillespie and the other officers spent a busy but satisfactory day.

A hand carved oak table designed and carved by Rev. G. W. Tebbs, rector of St. Mark's Church, was an object of general admiration.

Miss Jennie Atkinson captured the Society's prize for the best lady driver. Miss Gott was awarded second prize. Miss Berry captured the Pugsley, Dingman & Co. special.

Jno. E. Jackson, of Mono Mills, showed a pen of fine Hampshire Down sheep. With 11 entries he carried off 6 first and 4 second prizes. As a sheep fancier Mr. Jackson ranks with the best in the business.

Shelburne and Grand Valley sent large contingents, many making the trip by auto. The Shelburne delegation included John Best, M.P., Town Clerk Whalley, H. Christian, President of the Dufferin Central Fair, and Editor R. L. Mortimer, of The Free Press.

The accident which caused the death of Monte, Geo. Reid's trotting stallion, was the occasion of very general regret. The horse was widely known as he has faced the starter on almost every race track in this district. Since he came into Mr. Reid's hands he has started in 37 races and got a piece of the prize money in all except three. Mr. Reid attributes the accident to his horse taking fright at a piece of paper thrown into the air by the hoof or sulkey wheel of one of the other racers. This caused him to jump and his hind foot caught in one of the hobbles. It was discovered after the accident that the shoe on the right hind foot was badly twisted.

The playing of the Queen's Own Rifles Band was greatly enjoyed.

Entries were considerably ahead of last year.

An Attractive Exhibit.

One of the main centres of attraction at Orangeville Fall Fair last Friday was the splendid exhibit of the Orangeville Novelty and Furniture Works. The exhibit consisted of more than fifteen lines of handsome finished oak furniture, including eight varieties of parlor screens, sewing tables, sewing screens, mission rockers, footstools, umbrella stands, reception chairs, sewing cabinets, bedroom boxes, pedestals, plate racks and paper racks. The furniture was superbly finished and it was a great surprise to many visitors when they learned that it was manufactured right in Orangeville. The goods on exhibition were all ticketted and were as remarkable for their cheapness as their excellence. The factory, which is situated on William St., has been very busy this year up to the commencement of the war, which has interfered with the business to a certain extent for the time being. Notwithstanding this we are pleased to be able to state that the management is planning to add a number of new lines to its output and to increase the capacity of the plant so as to give steady employment to ten or twelve men. At present the industry is being conducted on a small and to some extent an experimental scale, but the foundation is being laid for a manufacturing business that promises to develop rapidly and to show remarkable expansion inside of the next two years. At the present time Mr. A. E. Annis is running the factory, but it is probable that a strong Company will be organized in the near future to take charge of the industry.

Funeral of Canon Henderson

A large concourse of citizens, old-time friends and relatives of the family attended the funeral of Canon Henderson, which was held from St. Mark's Church to the Forest Lawn Cemetery last Thursday afternoon. The casket was placed in the church chancel on Tuesday evening where the remains, which were clothed in the vestments of the canonical office, were viewed by a great many people. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. G. W. Tebbs, rector of St. Mark's, and Rev. G. B. Morley, canon of St. Alban's Cathedral, Toronto, the latter preaching an impressive sermon from the text, "Blessed are the dead, which die in the Lord." The pallbearers were Rev. Wm. Henderson, of Hanover, a brother, Rev. Geo. I. Taylor, rector of St. Bartholomew's Church, Toronto, Canon Morley, Archdeacon Irving, of Dundas, Canon Daw, rector of St. John's Church, Hamilton, and Rev. H. A. Meek, rector of Herald Angel Church. Archdeacon Irving read the service at the grave. Among the friends present at the obsequies were Miss Mabel Henderson, of Toronto, a daughter, Mrs. W. McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Mearry, and Miss Pearl Taylor, of Grand Valley, Mrs. Russell Smith, Port Colborne, Mrs. T. Fisher, Mrs. Portelous and Mr. Robt. Hewitt, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Richardson, Guelph, and Mr. T. J. Hamilton and party, Guelph.

ORANGEVILLE FALL FAIR

Annual Exhibition Was Probably the Most Successful Ever Held Here.

Fine Weather Brought Out a Record Crowd—Display Much Better Than in Former Years

Orangeville Fall Fair, which was held last Thursday and Friday, was once more favored with ideal weather. Thursday and Friday were both perfect days, although somewhat warmer than is usual at this season of the year. That the Fair is still growing in popularity was amply demonstrated by the immense crowd of people who thronged the grounds on Friday afternoon. It is doubtful if Friday's attendance has ever been surpassed in the history of the Society. It is certain at any rate that it has not been equalled in any recent year.

The Fair itself showed a big improvement over former years. Taken altogether the exhibit in the main hall was much ahead of last year. There was a larger and better showing of butter, home baking, field roots, garden vegetables, plants and cut flowers. Fruit was about on a par with last year and the same may be said of the ladies work and fine arts departments. Mr. H. F. Tuck made an attractive and much admired showing of vegetables. The display included almost everything in the vegetable line, all grown by Mr. Tuck in his own garden.

Orangeville merchants showed their customary enterprise and interest in the Fair by making a number of attractive displays. Upstairs in the large hall The McMillan Clothing Co., W. E. Rogers and Ritchie Bros., made excellent exhibits of furs, furlined coats, men's and boys' clothing, ladies' cloth coats, capes etc. Mr. F. Marshall showed several handsome sets of harness. Downstairs the Orangeville Furniture & Novelty Works had a large space in the southwest of the hall, where they made a very fine display of oak chairs, rockers, screens, window seats and other wares. The exhibit was a revelation to most of the Fair visitors and Mr. G. L. Pletzer, who was in charge, spent a busy afternoon taking orders from the sample goods on exhibition. The National Manfg. Co. and Gillespie Bros. hardware merchants, made special displays on the west side of the ground floor. J. E. Smith & Co. and The Adamson Hardware Co. had large spaces reserved in the centre of the building. William Fiddes made an exhibition of pianos in the same section.

Outdoors there was the usual keen interest in the speeding events, which were witnessed by an immense concourse of people. Seven or eight horses started in the three minute trot, which was keenly contested. The race was marred by an unfortunate accident in the second heat. Just as the horses were rounding the first turn George Reid's stallion, Monte, who had captured third place in the opening heat, stumbled and fell in a heap. Reid was thrown through the air a couple of rods, but alighted on his feet and escaped unhurt. The horse did not rise and a number of the cooler heads in the crowd which rushed to the scene had a busy time unfastening the harness and dragging horse and sulkey off the track before the other horses came around on the second lap. Expert examination revealed that the horse was dead, his neck having been broken by the force of the fall. Rance Overland, of Regina, won the 2.40 event with Lillie D. and was also first with Prince F. in the free-for-all. The following is a summary of the results :—

FREE FOR ALL TROT.

Prince F., R. Overland, Regina.
Venus Brooks, Neil McQuarrie, Orangeville.
Ehicadadon, C. Chapman, Connor.

Venus Brooks and the Chapman entry divided second and third money.

2.40 TROT.

Lillie D., R. Overland, Regina.
Very Direct, N. McQuarrie, Orangeville.
Mike Macarrow, W. Harvey, Mono Mills.

3 MINUTE TROT.

Dandy Boy, Wm. Sanderson, Caledon East.
Lady Sealskin, H. McDonald
Connor Boy, C. Chapman, Connor.

RUNNING RACE.

Sure Dream, M. J. Leighton, Mono.
Nettie, H. Reid, The Maples.
Nora, W. H. Hunter, The Maples.

Nettie and Nora divided second and third money.

There was a splendid showing of harness horses, particularly in the roadster, carriage and agricultural classes. In the single roadster class no less than 15 horses competed. 10 or 11 of the lot were very evenly matched and the judge, Mr. Marsh, had an extremely difficult task to pick the winner. The first prize was eventually awarded to John Campbell, H. McLean getting second and H. Hastings third. We have been informed that the winner carried off second prize at the Canadian National this year, while the Hastings horse landed first at the C.N.E. two years ago. The showing of sheep and hogs was better than usual and there was also a very fair exhibit of poultry.

Refreshment tents and games of skill and chance were more plentiful than usual and were liberally patronized. The splendid band of the Queen's Own Rifles provided a fine musical programme during the afternoon. Except for the accident in the 3 minute trot the day passed off without an untoward incident of any kind.

The concert given in the Opera House on Friday night attracted a capacity audience. C. R. McKeown, M.P.P., occupied the chair. The programme, which was of a high order, was furnished by the Queen's Own Band and the Orangeville Male Quartette. Both organizations acquitted themselves with credit and received unstinted applause. The work of the Male Quartette occasioned much flattering comment. This Quartette, which consists of Messrs. J. E. Jessop, T. W. Huston, Percy Harding and Fred Faulkner, has attained a high quality of proficiency and is fairly entitled to take rank with the best quartettes in the Province.

Death of Hugh McGowan.

We regret to announce the death of Mr Hugh McGowan at the home of his oldest son, Robert, one of our best known local farmers of the Gowanscroft district, on the old Wood's farm. Deceased was born near Toronto on March 18th, 1837, having thus passed the 77th year of his life. From boyhood he was brought up to farming and lived in his native place till 1890 when he moved to Minnesota. In 1863 he married Jane Connor, by whom he had six children, five of whom are alive at the present time; Robert, Sarah A Olcott, wife of Alex. Oliver, of Waldeck, Ont.; James, resident in Yorkton, Sask.; Martha May, wife of Herbert May, of Duluth; and Albert of Astley, Alta.

Mr McGowan farmed continuously in Mono from 1890 till 1909, until the death of his wife. Since then he has made his home with his children, visiting from one to the other. Last July he came to Pilot Mound not feeling very well, but jaundice and other complications supervened and on quiet life to a close Tuesday morning, September 15th. The funeral took place Tuesday in Pilot Mound cemetery at 2.30 p.m. The Sentinel extends its sympathy to the bereaved family.—Pilot Mound (Man.) Sentinel.

The late Mr McGowan was at one time a well known farmer in East Garafraxa.

Lightning Struck Barn.

During the storm on Tuesday evening lightning struck and set fire to Mr. Wm. Walwin's barn, lot 26, 5th line, west, Caledon. The building and contents, the latter including a quantity of grain, a cutter, buggy and harness, were destroyed. Mr. Walwin carried some insurance.

WAR MAPS FREE.

To follow intelligently the European War situation and keep in touch with the lightning movements of the troops a comprehensive war map of Europe giving all details is essential.

Of all the Maps issued there is but one that fills the bill, and that is the one issued specially by the celebrated map makers—G. W. Bacon & Co., London, Eng.

The Publishers of "The Family Herald & Weekly Star" of Montreal, always alive to the best interests of their subscribers, the moment the map was issued, cabled an offer for Canadian rights of the map. Their offer has been accepted, and "Family Herald" subscribers will have the best Map available.

The Banner has concluded arrangements with "The Family Herald and Weekly Star" by which our readers may also secure the map free of charge, by subscribing for The Banner and the Family Herald & Weekly Star at the regular clubbing rate of $1.75 for the two papers. The offer is one that every reader of The Banner should accept.

Newspapers are paying dearly for the war. The price of paper is going up, up, up! The cost of telegrams and cablegrams has increased from thirty to fifty per cent. Scores of newspapers have suspended publication, and hundreds of others have raised the subscription price. For the present "The Family Herald and Weekly Star," of Montreal, being in an exceptionally strong position is able for the present, at all events, to keep its rate as formerly, but an increase later on may become necessary. In the meantime, during the next thirty days, our readers are offered the greatest bargain in the newspaper world to-day. $1.75 will pay for The Banner & The Family Herald and Weekly Star for one year and also secure a War Map. If you wish to secure the map order at once.

Mr. Jas. Ferguson, manager of the Pittsburg, U.S., Packing Co., formerly of Caledon, has been on a visit to the Messrs. McDonald and other friends at Rockside.

Mites in the Henhouse.

If the henhouse can be closed up almost air-tight, you can rid it of mites by a thorough fumigation with sulphur, but if it is somewhat open, you will have to resort to other means. First clean the pens and keep them clean; burn the litter; sprinkle coal oil on the roosts, openings, and crevices; next day thoroughly whitewash with strong milk of lime. To make the whitewash adhere, add two or three handfuls of salt to a pailful of the wash. About two days later, jar the infested spots, and if mites appear creeping about on the whitewash, repeat the application of coal oil. Sprinkle coal oil about the perches, nests, etc., every fortnight in summer, and several times during the winter. Many poultrymen find that by keeping boxes of ashes in the henhouse the mites are exterminated. The hens in dusting themselves, create a dust which appears to be fatal to the mites. Ashes are hard on the plumage, and combs of the fowl, but a box of ashes will rid the house of mites. Road dust will act in the same manner.

Present War May Cure Kaiser's Heir of His Bellicose Tendencies

THE Crown Prince of Germany, the Kaiser's eldest son, has apparently come into his own, so far as fighting is concerned, although whether or not the outcome will be to his liking is a story yet unfinished. Indications are that it will not.

For years he has been a leading advocate of a warlike policy for Germany. He has identified himself entirely with the army. He has resented anything that bore the faintest resemblance to a slur upon it, enthusiastically commended utterances of a militaristic tendency, and became at times so outspokenly belligerent that his imperial father was compelled to curb his ardor. An instance of this was his "banishment" to Danzic a few years ago; and it was authoritatively reported that similar measures were contemplated after the Crown Prince's praise of Lieut.-Col. Frobenius' recently published pamphlet, "Germany's Fately Hour," in which that officer spoke of England's "stealthy plans" plans against Germany, France's thirst for revenge, and Russia's hatred of all things Teutonic.

THE GERMAN CROWN PRINCE.

RECEIVED IRON CROSS.

But now this youthful advocate of militarism finds the war which he believed imminent actually under way. And, instead of "banishment" and repression, he has received from his father, the emperor, the much-coveted Iron Cross for a brilliant victory placed to his credit against the French in Lorraine. It would certainly appear that the fire-eater has come into his own with a vengeance.

What manner of man he is becomes now a matter of general interest, and, to supply the information, a book called "Der Kronprinz," by Dr. Paul Liman, has made its opportune appearance in Germany.

Dr. Liman paints an attractive portrait of the Kaiser's heir. In spite of all his vagaries, we learn that he is popular throughout Germany, totally devoid of "side," and the keenest sort of a sportsman. Moreover, we hear of him as a diligent reader of books, especially on history, and as a warm admirer of Napoleon, despite the fact that the great Corsican humbled Germany to the dust in his campaigns. In Napoleon, says Dr. Liman, the Crown Prince sees not a "parvenu," but a genuinely great man.

BANISHED TO DANZIC.

During the Crown Prince's long stay in Danzic at the head of his regiment—a stay forced upon him as a punishment, it is said, for his obstreperousness in Berlin—he gave plenty of chance to those desirous of studying his character. This part of his career is summed up by Dr. Liman thus:

"People qualified to judge declare that Crown Prince Wilhelm kept his regiment at Danzic in excellent shape. He knew every man and every horse, concerned himself with every detail of the service, gave personal attention to everything, and saw to it that he should not be accused of being a mere figurehead."

Nor did his military duties take up all his time. Like his father, who has dabbled in the fine arts, his heir also has tried his hand at composing music and painting pictures. But, avers Dr. Liman, he is not at all conceited about his productions. When he has finished a picture he smilingly inquires of those privileged to see it whether they can guess what it represents—a snowy landscape or a negro chieftain, "still life," or a battle scene.

A HARD WORKER.

He does his duty just like any one of his comrades, from early morning until the moment when the rest of his fellow-officers are relieved. And sometimes even he stays behind a couple of hours to listen to the instructions of superior officer, cheerfully observing: "Oh, my wife will send me some sandwiches and a half bottle of wine!"

Dr. Liman writes for Germany where he is required to say things prettily and admiringly. There are less pleasant stories of the Crown Prince, and one of them has it that it was another of his boyish exuberances which plunged Europe into the present war. And rumor also says when the Kaiser returned to Berlin and found what had happened he struck the prince in his anger. History will probably have something to say on the subject later on.

A TRYING EXPERIENCE.

Owen Sound Young Lady Adrift on a Raft.

Sailing is a very pleasant pastime, but when one starts out to spend a September afternoon on the Bay, it is a good idea to take oars, a sail, or a gasoline launch, to say nothing of a few wraps, or at any rate more weighty clothing than a bathing suit. Such, at least is the advice promulgated to any friends who may be considering such an outing by Miss Katherine Wilkinson, of Owen Sound, who was adrift on the Bay on Saturday afternoon, on board a narrow raft, and with no other apparel than a bathing suit, from one o'clock until seven, when she was picked up by Mr. Stewart Haskell while on his way to Owen Sound from his fishing camp at Pyette's Point. The young lady, although badly chilled, is none the worse today for her seven hours' exposure, but both she and her friends are more than thankful that the experience was not prolonged to any greater extent. Had the young lady not been rescued before night it is probable that she would have had to stay with her craft until it washed up on the other shore, and this would probably not have occurred for some hours, when it is probable the cold would have been more intense, with more dangerous results. There was also the danger of the wind turning and carrying the raft out into the Lake, so that the affair ended as it did is a matter of thankfulness to all concerned.

Miss Wilkinson, who is a daughter of Mr. Geo. Wilkinson, Eighth St., East, and assessor of Sydenham township, is a Chicago nurse, and was spending part of her holidays with her sister, Mrs. Donald Morrison, who resides about three miles north of Leith. She had spent a number of afternoons on the shore at Coffin Harbor with her young nephews during her visit, and had assisted in building a raft, which fortunately, as it transpired, she saw that is was firmly put together. On Saturday afternoon she went to the shore alone, and while swimming about, pushed the raft with her. Suddenly finding herself out beyond her depth and not being by any means an accomplished swimmer she climbed on the raft, and attempted to pole it closer to the shore. Her attempts, however, proved futile, while the waves were also too strong for a paddle, made of a board wrenched from the raft, to be of any use, and in a very few minutes the unwilling voyager was forced to recognize that she was truly adrift. Although the bay was nearly calm there was a brisk north east wind and the raft and its passenger were soon carried out, but fortunately up the Bay instead of out into the open lake. Then the wind changed and the waves became more noticeable, and the lightly garbed sailor began to feel the cold a good deal. The only possible shield from the wind was to tear one of the wider boards from the raft, and this Miss Wilkinson did, and used it as a meagre wind-break. Two motor boats passed down the bay during the afternoon, but though she stood up and shouted as loudly as she was able, those on board did not, apparently, see her. Just about seven o'clock she saw the Str. Midland coming around Vail's Point, but as at this time she was only two miles or less from the western shore she made up her mind that those on board the boat would never notice her in the fast falling dusk and reconciled herself to wait until the waves washed her frail craft onto the shore. Just then she noticed a motor boat quite close to her, and coming straight for her, and in a very few minutes she was safely aboard Mr. Haskell's launch. Although almost unable to move or speak with the cold, she was soon revived after being wrapped in plenty of warm coats, and Mr. Haskell kindly turned aside from his course and made the six mile run back to Coffin Harbour, where the relatives of the young lady were very uneasy as to her whereabouts and were prosecuting a vigorous search for her. No bad effect has manifested itself since her long exposure, and Miss Wilkinson is to be congratulated that her impromptu and unpremeditated journey was not of a longer duration as undoubtedly if the wind had been from the south instead of north east, she would have sailed straight out into the wider Bay, and her rescue might not have been effected so speedily. She was not at any time alarmed nor much afraid of capsizing unless the waves became more boisterous than they did, and pluckily kept herself from becoming seriously affected by the cold by a vigorous massage, which, it might be remarked, became a rather tiresome occupation when it was the only one to practice for seven hours.

SUCCESSES OF HAVE BEEN

Man for Man Her Soldiers Have Proven Better Than Austrians.

SERVIANS A BIG SURPRISE

Balkan Exploits Did Much to Lift Stigma of Royal Murder.

GALLANT little Servia has proven one of the surprises of the present war as well as being the nominal cause of it. When Austria sent her peremptory note to Belgrade demanding the right to inquire into Servia's most private affairs, with the ostensible purpose of finding those responsible for the murder of the archduke, and Servia refused to consent, the man on the street prophesied rapid extinction for the Balkan kingdom. But Servia knew more of European politics than the man on the street did and she had the assurance of support from her great Slav neighbor, Russia. Then came the rapid denouement in which Germany, stricken with fear of Russian participation, endeavored to scare Russia out of the field and failed ignominiously. The almost incredible series of diplomatic blunders at Berlin, which resulted in the participation of France, then Belgium, then Britain, and the neutrality of Italy, had the effect of changing what at first seemed like sudden and thorough castigation of Servia into an overwhelming advantage for the little state.

CROWN PRINCE ALEXANDER.

NOW FIGHTING EVEN.

Distracted by more dangerous enemies Austria called off a large part of her army to aid the Germans in Alsace and the bulk of what remained was hurried into Galicia, leaving only a part to attend to her adversary in the south.

On the first assault Austria, by reason of her superiority of numbers and artillery, walked into Belgrade with very little trouble, but when the Servian and Austrian forces along the Danube and Save became more equal there was a marked change in the tenor of the despatches. The Servian troops, which had been overwhelmed by sheer numbers, began to demonstrate that man for man they were superior to their adversaries.

The record of the war since that time has been a continuous series of successes for Servia. After hard fighting she has not only retaken Belgrade but has invaded Austria and has a strong position in Semlin across the river from Belgrade. On her west frontier she has crossed into Austrian territory and is carrying on operations, with the aid of the Montenegrin forces, which may ultimately deprive Austria of the bitterly disputed province of Bosnia.

INDEPENDENT SINCE 1878.

The independence of Servia, which was formerly an autonomous province of Turkey, was established by the Treaty of Berlin in 1878. It is a limited monarchy with a constitution and a national assembly and a state council. The executive authority of the nation is vested in the King and his Ministers. The virtual monarch is the Crown Prince Alexander, who since the practical abdication of his father, King Peter, has been looked upon by the Servians as their ruler.

The Crown Prince of Servia is the second son of King Peter and became heir to the throne about four years ago, when his elder brother, George, was forced to renounce his claims. Alexander bore the brunt of much of the Macedonian fighting in the late Balkan war, together with the soldiers of the First army. He took a conspicuous part in the battles of Kumanovo and Monastir and acquitted himself with great credit. The crown prince is twenty-six years old and is a handsome young man rather above the average height, with olive complexion and dark eyes. Unlike his elder brother, he is a man of good habits and clean life. As crown prince of Servia he receives an annual allowance of $60,000 from the state.

Since the murder of King Alexander and Queen Draga in 1903 Servia has had a reputatiin for barbarity which the facts hardly warrant. Her people, who number about three millions, are a hardy, thrifty, agricultural race, among whom pauperism is almost unknown, and while education is backward there is a system of complusory free schools and marked progress is shown in this regard.

RELIGIOUS TOLERANCE.

The state church is the Greek Orthodox, but wide tolerance is shown to other religions.

Servia's behavior during the Balkan war did much to restore her prestige in Europe. It also gave a new impetus to internal progress, and if the present war goes in favor of the allies her share of Austria's southern territory will make her a considerable power in Southern Europe.

Nicola Pachitch, the Premier and Minister of War, is fresh from the Balkan struggle and is an experienced campaigner, as are her chief military officers, the veteran General Yankovitch and his brilliant junior General Putnik.

Alpinists Warned Off.

Climbing among the Central Alps is among the things forbidden by the military law under which Switzerland now lives. The Swiss mountain guides were among the first to be called to the colors.

Many amateur mountain climbers who were not aware of this restriction found themselves in the early days of the excitement attending the opening of warfare, stopped by armed sentinels in the St. Gothard region and at points near the frontier.

Life is very miserable to those who suffer with Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach and Biliousness. This letter from Captain Swan (one of the best known skippers on the Great Lakes) tells how to get quick relief from Stomach Trouble:

PORT BURWELL, ONT., May 8th, 1913.

"A man has a poor chance of living and enjoying life when he cannot eat. That was what was wrong with me. Loss of appetite and indigestion was brought on by Constipation. I have had trouble with these diseases for years. I lost a great deal of flesh and suffered constantly. For the last couple of years, I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" and have been so pleased with the results that I have recommended them on many occasions to friends and acquaintances. I am sure that "Fruit-a-tives" have helped me greatly. By following the diet rules and taking "Fruit-a-tives" according to directions, any person with Dyspepsia will get benefit".

FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER.

To remove obstinate stains from hardwood floors, rub them with a cloth wet with turpentine.

The following are some of the best fruits for jelly, given in order: Currant, crabapple, apple, quince, grape, blackberry and raspberry.

When broiled chops are to be served the camping party a long handled wire corn popper will serve as a broiler. The long handle will help you to avoid the smoke while grilling.

Never enter a sick room while you are in a perspiration, as the minute you become cool your pores begin to absorb.

When not in use in warm weather, rubber hot water bottles should be filled and tightly capped to prevent their sides adhering.

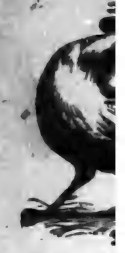
When bread or rolls rise before you are ready to make them, put the pan of dough in the refrigerator. The cold will prevent the bread from rising any more and from souring, and the cook can do her baking at her pleasure.

Put vegetables into salted boiling water and put the lid only part way over to allow gases and odors to escape.

A very little glycerine smeared around the glass stoppers of bottles will keep them from sticking for a long time.

Maxwell, Feversham and McIntyre Presbyterian congregations have extended a call to Rev. J. S. Allen, of Toronto.

Baby Eczema Becomes Chronic



Causing Great Suffering and Anxiety —Prompt Relief and Cure by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

This is one reason why every mother should know about Dr. Chase's Ointment, since it is an unfailing cure for all itching skin diseases.

Mrs. F. Clarke, Belmont, Man., writes:—"My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad, and nothing seemed to do her much good. Hearing of the remarkable cures Dr. Chase's Ointment was making, we sent for some, and after the third application the sore began to heal. I am glad to say that it is quite well now, and we give the credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment. We cannot recommend this preparation too highly."

Here is another letter, which tells of the cure of a five-weeks-old baby: Mrs. Wallace Mingon, River John Road, Colchester County, N.S., writes: "My little girl took eczema when she was five weeks old. Though we doctored her until she was nearly a year old, she got no better. I was advised to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this treatment completely cured her."

A SERIAL STORY

ANNA, The Adventuress

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

CHAPTER XXXII.—continued.

"You need help and sympathy, more, Anna," he pleaded, "and I have the right, yes I have the right to offer you both. I will not be sent away."

"It is my wish to be alone," she said wearily. "I can say no more."

She turned and fitted the latchkey into the door. He hesitated for a moment and then he followed her. She turned the gas up in her little sitting-room, and sank wearily into an easy chair. On the mantlepiece in front of her was a note addressed to her in Annabel's handwriting. She looked at it with a little shudder, but she made no motion to take it.

"Will you say what you have to say, please, and go. I am tired, and I want to be alone."

He came and stood on the hearthrug close to her.

"Anna," he said, "you make it all indescribably hard for me. Will you not remember what has passed between us? I have the right to take my place by your side."

"You have no right at all," she answered. "Further than that, I am amazed that you should dare to allude to those few moments, to that single moment of folly. If ever I could bring myself to ask you any favor, I would ask you to forget even as I have forgotten."

"Why in Heaven's name should I forget?" he cried. "I love you, Anna, and I want you for my wife. There is nothing but your pride which stands between us."

"There is a great deal more," she answered coldly. "For one thing I am going to marry David Courtlaw."

He stepped back as though he had received a blow.

"It is not possible," he exclaimed.

"Why not?"

"Because you are mine. You have told me that you cared. Oh, you cannot escape from it. Anna, my love, you cannot have forgotten so soon."

He fancied that she was yielding, but her eyes fell once more upon that fatal envelope, and her tone when she spoke was colder than ever.

"That was a moment of madness," she said. "I was lonely. I did not know what I was saying."

"I will have your reason for this," he said. "I will have your true reason."

She looked at him for a moment with fire in her eyes.

"You need a reason. Ask your own conscience. What sort of a standard of life yours may be I do not know, yet in your heart you know very well that every word that you have spoken to me has been a veiled insult, every time you have come into my presence has been an outrage. That is what stands between us, if you would know—that."

She pointed to the envelope still resting upon the mantlepiece. He recognized the handwrighting, and turned a shade paler. Her eyes noted mercilessly.

"But your sister," he said "What has she told you?"

"Everything."

He was a little bewildered.

"But," he said, "you do not blame me altogether?"

She rose to her feet.

"I am tired," she said," and I want to rest. But if you do not leave this room I must."

He took up his hat.

"Very well," he said. "You are unjust and quixotic, Anna, you have no right to treat any one as you are treating me. And yet—I love you. When you send for me I shall come back. I do not believe that you will marry David Courtlaw. I do not think that you will dare to marry anybody else."

He left the room, and she stood motionless, with flaming cheeks, listening to his retreating footsteps. When she was quite sure that he was gone she took her sister's note from the table and slowly broke the seal.

"Dearest A—

I lied to you. Nigel Ennison was my very good friend, but there is not the slighest reason for your not marrying him, if you wish to do so. My husband knows all. We leave England to-night.

Ever yours,

Annabel."

Anna moved softly to the window, and threw up the sash. Ennison had disappeared.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Montague Hill Plays the Game.

The man opened his eyes and looked curiously about him.

"Where am I?" he muttered.

Courtlaw, who was sitting by his bedside, bent over him.

"You are in a private toom of St. Felix Hospital," he said.

"Hospital? What for? What's the matter with me?"

Courtlaw's voice sank to a whisper. A nurse was at the other end of the room.

"There was an accident with a pistol in Miss Pellissier's room," he said.

The light of memory flashed in the man's face. His brows drew a little nearer together.

"Accident! She shot me," he muttered. "I had found her at last, and she shot me. Listen, you. Am I going to die?"

"I am afraid that you are in a dangerous state," Courtlaw answered gravely. "The nurse will fetch the doctor directly. I wanted to speak to you first."

"Who are you?"

"I am a friend of Miss Pellissier's," Courtlaw answered.

"Which one?"

WOMAN IN TERRIBLE STATE

Finds Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cape Wolfe, Canada.—"Last March I was a complete wreck. I had given up all hope of getting better or living any length of time, as I was such a sufferer from female troubles. But I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am in good health and have a pair of twin boys two months old and growing finely. I surprised doctors and neighbors for they all know what a wreck I was.

"Now I am healthy, happy and hearty, and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies. You may publish this letter if you like. I think if more women used your remedies they would have better health."—Mrs. J. T. COOK, Lot No. 7, Cape Wolfe, P.E.I., Canada.

Because your case is a difficult one, and doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of women—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

"The Miss Pellissier in whose rooms you were, and who sings at the 'Universal,'" Courtlaw answered. "The Miss Pellissier who was at White's with us."

The man nodded.

"I remember you now," he said. "So it seems that I was wrong. Annabel was in hiding all the time."

"Annabel Pellissier is married," Courtlaw said quietly.

"She's my wife," the man muttered.

"It is possible," Courtlaw said, "that you too were deceived. Where were you married?"

"At the English Embassy in Paris. You will find the certificate in my pocket."

"And who made the arrangements for you, and sent you there?" Courtlaw asked.

"Hainault, Celeste's friend. He did everything."

"I thought so," Courtlaw said. "You too were deceived. The place to which you went was not the English Embassy, and the whole performance was a fraud. I heard rumors of it in Paris, and the place since then has been closed."

"But Hainault—assured—me—that the marriage was binding."

"So it would have been at the English Embassy," Courtlaw answered, "but the place to which you went was not the English Embassy. It was rigged up for the occasion as it has been many a time before."

"But Hainault—was—a pal. I—I don't understand," the man faltered wearily.

"Hainault was Celeste's friend, and Celeste was Annabel's enemy," Courtlaw said., "It was a plot amongst them to humiliate her."

"Then she has never been my wife."

"Never for a second. She is the wife of another man."

Hill closed his eyes. For fully five minutes he lay quite motionless. Then he opened them again suddenly, to find Courtlaw still by his side.

"It was a bad day for me," he said, speaking slowly, and painfully. "A bad thing for me when that legacy came. I thought I'd see Paris, do the thing—like a toff. And I heard 'Alcide' sing, and that little dance she did. I was in the front row, and I fancied she smiled at me. Lord, what a state I was in! Night after night I sat there, I watched her come in, I watched her go. She dropped a flower—it's in my pocketbook now. I couldn't rest or eat or sleep. I made Hainault's acquaintance, stood him drinks, lent him money. He shook his head all the time. Annabel Pellissier was not like the others, he said. She had a few acquaintances, English gentlemen, but she lived with her sister—was a lady. But one day he came to me. It was Celeste's idea. I could be presented as Meysey Hill. We were alike. He was—a millionaire. And I passed myself off as Meysey Hill, and since—then—I haven't had a minute's peace. God help me."

Courtlaw was alarmed at the man's pallor.

"You mustn't talk any more," he said, "but I want you to listen to me just for a moment. The doctor will be here to see you in five minutes. The nurse sent for him as soon as she saw that you were conscious. It is very possible that he will ask you to tell him before witnesses how you received your wound."

The man smiled at him.

"You are their friend, then?"

"I am," Courtlaw answered.

"Which one?"

"The one whose life you have been making a burden, who has been all the time shielding her sister. I would have married her long ago, but she would not have me."

"Bring her—here," Hill muttered. "I——"

The door opened, and the doctor entered softly. Hill closed his eyes. Courtlaw stood up.

"He has asked to see someone," he whispered to the doctor. "Is there any urgency?"

The doctor bent over his patient, who seemed to have fallen asleep. Presently he turned to Courtlaw.

"I think," he said, "that I would fetch any one whom he has asked to see. His condition is not unfavorable, but there may be a relapse at any moment."

So only a few minutes after Ennison's departure, while Anna stood indeed with her sister's open letter still in her hand, Courtlaw drove up in hot haste. She opened the door to him herself.

"Will you come round to the hospital?" he asked. "Hill has asked for you, and they will take his depositions to-night."

She slipped on her cloak and stepped into the hansom with him. They drove rapidly through the empty streets.

"Will he die?" she asked.

"Impossible to say," he answered. "We have a private room at St. Felix. Everything is being done that can be."

"You are sure that he asked for me—not for Annabel?"

"Certain," Courtlaw answered.

"Has he accused any one yet?"

"Not yet," he answered. "I have scarcely left his side."

He was still conscious when they reached the hospital. On the whole his state was more favorable. The doctor and another man were by his bedside when they entered the room, and there were writing materials which had evidently been used close at hand. He recognized Anna, and at once addressed her.

"Thank you—for coming," he said. "The doctor has asked me to give them my reasons—for shooting myself. I've told them all that was necessary, but I—wanted to ask your pardon—for having made myself a nuisance to you, and for breaking into your rooms—and to thank you—the doctor says you bound up my wound—or I should have bled to death."

"I forgive you willingly," Anna said, bending over him. "It has all been a mistake, hasn't it?"

"No more talking," the doctor interposed.

"I want two words—with Miss Pellissier alone," Hill pleaded.

The doctor frowned.

"Remember," he said, "you are not by any means a dying man now, but you'll never pull through if you don't husband your strength."

"Two words only," Hill repeated.

They all left the room, Anna, leaned over so that he needed only to whisper.

"Tell your sister she was right to shoot, quite right. I meant mischief. But tell her this, too. I believed that our marriage was genuine. I believed that she was my wife, or she would have been safe from me."

"I will tell her," Anna promised.

"She has nothing to be afraid of," he continued. "I have signed a statement that I shot myself; bad trade and drink, both true—both true."

His eyes were closed. Anna left the room on tiptoe. She and Courtlaw drove homewards together.

"The doctor thinks," he said, "that he has a very fair chance. In any case, you and Annabel are safe."

"Thanks in some measure to you, dear friend," she said gratefully.

He looked at her intently.

"I hate that word," he said. "It sounds almost as though I were foredoomed. May I ask you something, Anna?"

"If you wish to," she answered. "If you think it wise."

"Wisdom and folly," he said bitterly, "are beside the mark sometimes. In Paris, when I asked you to be my wife, you refused, because you told me that you meant to find your way a little further into the heart of life alone, you feared the limitations of marriage. Ah, Anna, you are too independent for a woman with a heart."

"You too," she answered, "are the same. Marriage would be your ruin. You would be an adorable lover but a shocking husband."

"I think," he said sadly, "that you do not mean to give me the opportunity of proving you a lying prophet. In Paris you were at least heart whole."

"You do not venture to assert that I am anything else now," she exclaimed.

"I do not know. You have changed. You look like a woman who has suffered, but who has looked for a little while into the World Beautiful. No one is ever quite the same afterwards."

"It may be," she answered softly. "that you are right."

They passed Annabel's great house in Cavendish Square, and Courtlaw stopped the cab.

"There are lights in the house still," he said. "Don't you think we ought to let your sister know."

They both climbed the steps, and Courtlaw rang the bell. The door was opened after a few minutes' delay.

"Has Lady Ferringhall retired yet?" Anna asked. "I am her sister, and I have an important message for her."

"I am very sorry, madam," the man aswered, "but Sir John and her ladyship left for the Continent tonight. Her ladyship, I believe, received news of the serious illness of a relation."

Anna and Courtlaw exchanged quick glances.

"Did Sir John accompany Lady Ferringhall?" Anna asked.

"Certainly, madam," the man answered. "I packed his bag myself."

"Did they leave any address?"

"None beyond the Credit Lyonnais, madam."

Anna thanked the servant, and they re-entered the cab.

"I am very glad," she said. "After all, Sir John must be a good sort, for Annabel has told him everything. He has taken her away."

"We can wire in the morning," Courtlaw said, "or will they read it in the papers? Anna, is this to be good-bye?"

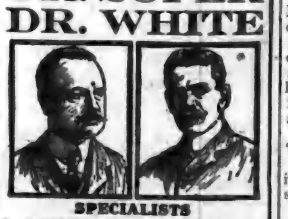
She gave him her hand, and the rare tears stood in her eyes.

"May a woman have no friends, then?" she exclaimed almost passionately. "Must I lose half the good in life because I cannot split up my heart into little pieces?"

"A woman who has a lover," he answered, "finds her friends only an embarrassment."

"That," she declared, "is the most banal thing I have ever heard you say, and I think the most brutal. Besides, I have no lover yet. I don't want to look at the world and all that is in it through one man's eyes. If I may not have my friends I will never have my lover."

He helped her to alight, and his fingers closed upon hers warmly.



"The same Anna," he remarked, smiling at her. "Well, count me always first amongst the former."

"If you mean it," she said, smiling, "you will take me out to lunch to-morrow and bring Sydney. I haven't seen him for a week."

"Prince's at one-thirty," he answered, with mock resignation. "We will celebrate the new bond."

To be continued.

MELANCTHON.

The farmers have been busy in the fields during the past few fine days, gang-plowing and otherwise preparing the land for a future crop.

Mr. Chas. Sanford's threshing machine was to have been working in the neighborhood before now, but his engine having to undergo repairs he has been delayed in coming. We understand Charlie is getting a new engine.

Mr. George Watson, of the back line, has, we are told, sold his farm to a gentleman near Rosemont. This is the old homestead where his father, the late John Watson, lived for so many years, and who was also the first Master of L.O.L. No. 909, Melancthon, during the early days when that lodge met in a log building in James Sawden's field before they had built their first Orange Hall on the hill.

It becomes our sad duty this week to report the death of another of our old and esteemed neighbors, in the person of Mr. Richard Haney, who died on Thursday night last. The late Mr. Haney had been poorly for some months but was not dangerously ill until a few days before he died. He was about 85 years of age and a native of Cornwall, England. The funeral took place on Sunday. He leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. George Shoaff, of the Gravel Road, who have the sympathy of all in their bereavement. At time of writing Mrs. Haney is also very ill and is not expected to recover.

Our citizens are looking forward to having a good time at the Shelburne Fair next Wednesday.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble, wasted nerve cells.

103 Prizes.

Mrs. W. H. Hunter & Sons' fine herd of Herefords have been awarded no less than 103 prizes at the big Fall Fairs this season. The prizes, which were won in competition with Canada's best breeders at the Canadian National, London, Ottawa, Quebec, Three Rivers and Sherbrooke Fairs, include almost 50 firsts and 16 championships. This is a record that it is difficult to equal and speaks volumes for the uniform excellence of the famous Maples herd.

See J. D. Torrie's new stock of Fall Suitings and Serges.

LAUREL SCHOOL FAIR.

Large Attendance and an Excellent Exhibit.

Laurel Rural School Fair, which is held annually under the auspices of the local Branch of the Department of Agriculture, took place on the school grounds in Laurel on Tuesday afternoon. This year's Fair was even a greater success than former fairs. There was a larger exhibit and the quality of the articles shown was also decidedly better. The attendance was somewhat larger than last year's, quite a number of the visitors coming from a distance. Orangeville and Grand Valley public school staffs attended in a body, their school boards having granted them the boon of a half-holiday for that purpose. The arrangements for the Fair were in the hands of Mr. H. A. Dorrance, B.S.A., the district representative, and his assistant, Mr. J. C. Duff, who by their energy and capability contributed materially to the success of the Fair. The judges were N. C. McKay, B.S.A., of Walkerton, district representative for Bruce, Mr. H. C. Duff, B.S.A., of Markdale, district representative for Grey, and Mrs. W. Fairbairn, of Orangeville. The Laurel School won the Orangeville Banner Shield for the best school display and Miss Ruth Nelson of Laurel, won the Bryan Shield, donated by ex-Warden Bryan. As these prizes have been won by the competitors twice in succession they become the property of the winners. Miss Etta Tindale won the Bell Shield, donated by Rev. J. R. Bell. MONO MILLS.

At a meeting of the local branch of the Farmers' Institute held in the village on Saturday night the following resolution was passed unanimously:— "Resolved that the members of the Farmers' Club, a non-sectarian organization, feeling that we have a duty to discharge as citizens of a united Empire at this crisis and knowing that a large number of people in the village and community are desirous of contributing toward the Patriotic Fund that is being made up all over Canada, take action and arrange for a canvass of the four electoral wards adjacent to Mono Mills." Messrs. W. J. Mills, Thos. McCandless, D. N. Potter and Gavin Lemon were appointed for Caledon; Messrs. Wesley Kee, Wilson Duke, Wm. Cobean, Geo. Holmes and Chas. Crombie for Mono; Messrs. Geo. Needless to say this action on the part of this Farmers' Institute meets with the approval of every public spirited and loyal member of the community. We may not all have to turn out and fight in defence of our country, but we all can contribute something towards the comfort of those who are going to fight for us and to the provision of those who are dependent upon them.

He improved Yorkshires Mr. Henry secured 1st prize in Orangeville not only on this hog but on all he showed.

We are sincerely sorry to note the sudden death in Edmonton, Alta., of Mr. John May, who spent some time this summer as the guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. T. J. Henry. Mr. May was born in London, Ont., and had been a successful business man in Winnipeg for about 33 years. He had decided to retire and had just got comfortably settled in Edmonton when the call came. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, who is a sister of Mrs. Henry, one daughter, and two sons.

While making repairs on the Mono Mills telephone line between Mono Mills and Orangeville on Monday, the 14th inst., Mr. John Vance had the misfortune to lose his jack strap. MELANCTHON.

The farmers have been busy in the fields during the past few fine days, gang-plowing and otherwise preparing the land for a future crop.

Mr. Chas. Sanford's threshing machine was to have been working in the neighborhood before now, but his engine having to undergo repairs he has been delayed in coming. We understand Charlie is getting a new engine.

Mr. George Watson, of the back line, has, we are told, sold his farm to a gentleman near Rosemont. This is the old homestead where his father, the late John Watson, lived for so many years, and who was also the first Master of L.O.L. No. 909, Melancthon, during the early days when that lodge met in a log building in James Sawden's field before they had built their first Orange Hall on the hill.

It becomes our sad duty this week to report the death of another of our old and esteemed neighbors, in the person of Mr. Richard Haney, who died on Thursday night last. The late Mr. Haney had been poorly for some months but was not dangerously ill until a few days before he died. He was about 85 years of age and a native of Cornwall, England. The funeral took place on Sunday. He leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. George Shoaff, of the Gravel Road, who have the sympathy of all in their bereavement. At time of writing Mrs. Haney is also very ill and is not expected to recover.

LAUREL SCHOOL FAIR.

Large Attendance and an Excellent Exhibit.

Laurel Rural School Fair, which is held annually under the auspices of the local Branch of the Department of Agriculture, took place on the school grounds in Laurel on Tuesday afternoon. This year's Fair was even a greater success than former fairs. There was a larger exhibit and the quality of the articles shown was also decidedly better. The attendance was somewhat larger than last year's, quite a number of the visitors coming from a distance. Orangeville and Grand Valley public school staffs attended in a body, their school boards having granted them the boon of a half-holiday for that purpose. The arrangements for the Fair were in the hands of Mr. H. A. Dorrance, B.S.A., the district representative, and his assistant, Mr. J. C. Duff, who by their energy and capability contributed materially to the success of the Fair. The judges were N. C. McKay, B.S.A., of Walkerton, district representative for Bruce, Mr. H. C. Duff, B.S.A., of Markdale, district representative for Grey, and Mrs. W. Fairbairn, of Orangeville. The Laurel School won the Orangeville Banner Shield for the best school display and Miss Ruth Nelson of Laurel, won the Bryan Shield, donated by ex-Warden Bryan. As these prizes have been won by the competitors twice in succession they become the property of the winners. Miss Etta Tindale won the Bell Shield, donated by Re[illegible]

Supplement to The Orangeville Banner, Thursday, Sept. 24, '14

Military Notes.

A meeting of the organization committee of the new Dufferin Regiment was held in the Public Library on Friday afternoon, and was well attended. Gratifying reports were received from Orangeville, Shelburne and Grand Valley, and steps were taken for the organization of Companies at Alliston, Dundalk and Honeywood.

A public meeting was held at Grand Valley on Tuesday evening of last week, for the organization of a Company. The handsome hall of the Public Library was filled with an interested audience, including a number of ladies. Reeve Lewis Menary presided and all the local clergy were present and made short addresses in support of the movement. Lt.-Col. J. A. V. Preston explained the nature of the proposed organization, and enlistment was commenced. Over 40 young men have already signed the roll, and drills are held twice a week, on Tuesday and Friday evenings, in the rink. A Rifle Association of over 50 members has also been organized.

The Shelburne Company ("G" Company, 36th Regiment) has already been recruited over strength, and drills have been commenced. Major Gabriel and Lieuts. J. E. Suence, Harrison and Dr. Davis are all taking an active interest in the work.

The Orangeville Companies are drilling at the Town Hall on Mondays and Fridays at 7.30 p.m. Steps are also being taken to recruit Sections at Alton, Mono Mills, Laurel and the Maples. Have you signed the roll yet? Recruits are invited.

Dufferin and Peel Children's Aid Society.

On Wednesday last a joint Conference of the above Societies was held in the auditorium of the Public Library at 2.30. A number of delegates were present from Milton, Brampton, Shelburne and Orangeville. Mr. Chas. Gordon, of Brampton, occupied the chair. In order to economise the expenses in the three counties they have joined together to provide the temporary Shelter needed to take care of children committed as wards of the Society until such time as suitable foster homes could be provided for them. The Conference decided that for the present it would be better to rent a Home in Brampton, the cost of maintenance to be divided proportionately between the two counties. At present there are 15 children waiting to be placed in the Shelter, and the work is being handicapped because of having no Shelter for them. Three representatives are to be elected from each county to serve as a committee upon the scheme. These are to be appointed by each local Society. Mr. J. A. Blakey, of Toronto, was present, and spoke at the Conference. He is the Acting Superintendent for the Province in the absence of Mr. J. J. Kelso. At the evening meeting Mr. Blakey gave an excellent address on the work of the Children's Aid Societies in the Province, giving very striking illustrations of the depths of child neglect to be found within our Province. This was illustrated by an address by Mr. C. W. Norton, the County Agent, who showed a large number of views of cases within the ken of the three counties of Halton, Peel and Dufferin.

The Delegates were entertained to supper at the Queen's Hotel as guests of the Dufferin Society. His Honor, Judge Fisher, presided at the evening meeting. The attendance was small. Greater interest should be taken in a work of such great importance to our citizens.

Hospital Notes

Those sewing for the Red Cross Society, who have not sent in their work, are requested to do so before Saturday, Sept. 26th. Work should be returned to Mrs. McFarlane or Mrs. Hyland. Those knitting for the soldiers should return their work to Mrs. McCallum or Miss Clark.

The day has not been definitely decided upon for "Ingathering" for the hospital, but it is thought Thanksgiving time will be chosen. The Hospital Committee would be most grateful if ladies throughout the country would volunteer for collecting. A pound of butter or a dozen of eggs set aside by each farmer from his store of plenty would greatly help us through the winter. Lord Dufferin hospital is not yet self sustaining and as a charity is most deserving.

Mrs. W. J. Stinson.

A deep gloom was cast over the community by the death of Mrs. W. J. Stinson, lot 17, 5th line, Mono. The deceased had been in poor health for the past two years, but during the past few months was able to be about her household duties. On Sunday she attended service in the Methodist Church in company with her husband and family. During the service she was seized with a paralytic stroke and never regained consciousness. Drs. Carson and Matthews, of Orangeville, were summoned to relieve the stricken woman, but their efforts were all in vain. The deceased was a member of Relessey Methodist Church from her girlhood days and was beloved and respected by all who knew her. She was a kind wife and mother. Mrs. Stinson was 46 years and 1 month of age and is survived by her husband and three children—Lester, Ellis and Effie, all at home. The deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bower, and is survived by two sisters and one brother—Mrs. Hamilton McFadden, of Markdale, Mrs. T. Reaburn, Whitfield, and Mr. J. J. Bower, Hume Sask. There was a very large funeral, over 200 vehicles following the remains to their last resting place in Relessey cemetery. Rev. J. W. Dudgeon, of Rosemont, conducted the services at the house and grave. The pallbearers were Wm. Laverty, Robt. Anderson, R. J. McCutcheon, W. J. Coleman, J. A. Aveson and Robt. McFadden. Among the beautiful floral tributes was a broken wheel from the family, a spray from Mrs. Hamilton McFadden, a spray from Mrs. R. J. Walker, a wreath from father and mother and sisters, and a pillow from brother and sisters-in-law. The bereaved relatives have the sympathy of the whole community in their great loss.

Another one we loved is gone
To sing the Heavenly song;
A few more years will not be long,
We too shall swell the throng.
Weep not for me, my Dearest Friend,
I'm only gone before;
My voice with others then will blend
To greet you on that shore.

Prof. Pember Coming.

Prof. Pember, the well-known Hair Goods expert, will be at the Queen's Hotel on Friday, Oct. 2nd, with a fine display of his goods. Parties having hair trouble of any kind are invited to consult Prof. Pember at The Queens.

A Pleasant Surprise.

The choir of the Baptist Church met at the Parsonage the other evening and presented Mr. Reggie King with a fine fountain pen and an address expressing appreciation of his valuable services in various departments of church work. Hearty good wishes follow him as he enters upon his studies at McMaster University, Toronto.

Meeting at Mono Mills.

A public meeting will be held in the English Church Hall at Mono Mills on Wednesday night, Sept. 30th, at 8 to discuss the matter of organizing a Company of the newly formed Dufferin infantry regiment. All men of the neighborhood are cordially invited to attend. Mono Mills and vicinity should make a good recruiting ground and there is no reason why a strong company should not be raised at that point.

Sending Maple Leaves.

Mr. J. M. Bennett has pressed and waxed a box of fine maple leaves, which he is sending by parcel post to the office of the High Commissioner in London, Eng. Mr. Bennett is sending the maple leaves in response to a letter which appeared in the Toronto dailies recently over the signature of Joseph Pope, Under Secretary of State. In this letter Mr. Pope intimated that gifts of maple leaves would be extremely acceptable in London just now.

W. C. T. U. Notes.

The members of the Orangeville Union had a refreshment booth on the Exhibition grounds the second day of the annual fall fair. They served tea and coffee, sandwiches and pie and also homemade candy. The proceeds amounted to a tidy sum.

We have been asked what we do with the funds of the Society. For the benefit of those who are interested we may say that we assisted in financing the local option campaigns that have been conducted in the town in recent years. We also assist in supporting two missionaries among the lumbermen of New Ontario. As this organization is undenominational it is desirable that the women of all Christian churches should become members and thus assist in the good work being done.

DIED.

KINCADE — In Orangeville on Wednesday, Sept. 23rd, 1914, James Kincade, aged 62 years and 8 months.

"BOOSTER PERIOD"

TO-DAY IN

The Banner's Voting Contest

Double Votes For the Next Nine Days.

All Subscriptions turned in between To-day and October 3rd, at 9 p.m., will earn "Double Votes." Now is the time to make the best of every spare moment. This will be the only Double Vote Offer of the Campaign. Vote standing shows room for more candidates.

Interest and enthusiasm in The Banner's Prize Voting Contest is increasing daily. Those who are in the race for one of the big prizes offered are doing splendid work and their friends are coming to their support in royal style. The votes appear to-day for the first time and you can easily see there is room for new candidates to enter and win one of the prizes.

And here is something you have all been wishing for :—DOUBLE VOTES ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR THE NEXT NINE DAYS. This is the proposition. Double votes will be given on all subscriptions turned in between to-day and Saturday, October 3rd, at nine p.m.

This gives you a splendid opportunity to boost yourself into the top position if you avail yourself of this great opportunity. This will be known as the "Booster Period" and you should "boost every minute," while it lasts, and also get your friends to boost. Boost! Boost! Boost!—this should be your motto. This simply means that every dollar subscription earns 2000 votes instead of 1000 during the time the Booster Period lasts. Multiply the present schedule by two and that will give you the number of votes subscriptions will earn for you while the "Booster Period" is in effect.

Candidates should not fail to make the very best of this splendid opportunity to boost their chances of winning one of the beautiful prizes offered. This will be the most important period of the contest and do not fail to do your best. The regular schedule will go into effect immediately after the Booster Period closes and the straight schedule will be reduced 20 per cent. and this is positively the biggest vote offer to be given during the entire Contest, so "Make hay while the sun shines." The Booster Period will close Saturday, October 3rd, at nine o'clock, p.m. All business turned in between now and that date will earn DOUBLE VOTES.

Dear Subscriber—If you have promised to help a favorite candidate, DO SO NOW. Your subscriptions will earn double votes if paid during the Booster Period. You are invited to have a voice in deciding who shall be the winners of the prizes and you should not fail to give your subscription while the Booster Period is in effect.

Candidates must report often. New subscribers will be anxious to get the paper and you should send in the names at least once a week. If you have subscriptions in hand now, turn them in this week—they will earn double votes from now on and there is really no advantage in holding back. Those contestants who have turned in subscriptions since the Contest started will receive thebenefit of the double votes on the subscriptions turned in by them. It is our wish to give all a square deal.

A Baby Show.

What with the many and varied attractions at the Dufferin Agricultural Fair, and some of them certainly ranked high, it was left for a party of gentlemen from Toronto to offer a suggestion which, while frequently spoken of, has heretofore never been acted upon here, and that is the holding of a Baby Show. The proposal was made by Mr. Thos. Jenkins, of the Antique Furniture firm of B. M. & T. Jenkins, of Yonge St., who, in company with Mr. Wm. Fountain, of "My Valet," Mr. E. Whaley, of Whaley, Royce & Co., music dealers, and Mr. Benj. Fletcher, of the Fletcher Mfg. Co., for some years president of the Dufferin Old Boys, was in attendance for the first time at our Fall Fair. It was in a discussion of the sights to be seen at the Show that the proposition was made, and it ended in an offer to give a prize of $20 for the best baby shown at the next fair of the Dufferin Agricultural Society, red-headed babies to have the preference, other things being equal. Second and third prizes will also be awarded. A contest of this kind would doubtless be a great drawing card, and great though friendly would be the rivalry resulting therefrom. While some are inclined to favor confining the entries to Dufferin County it was finally decided to leave the contest open to the world, some of the gentlemen having great faith in the capabilities of their native town to contend with the universe in the matter of raising babies. It is the attendance of such "old timers" as the above that gives additional interest to our fall fairs, and the efforts of these gentlemen to add to the entertainment will be much appreciated by all friends of the fair. Due notice will be given of the progress of this new departure, and this timely notice is given that proper preparations may be made for the coming contest. Fair and competent judges will be appointed to make decisions which will decide supremacy for one year at least.

Anniversary Services.

Anniversary services will be held in St. Andrew's Church, Camilla, on Sunday, Oct. 11th. Rev. Dr. Neil, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Toronto, will conduct the services.

Before buying see J. D. Torrie's new stock of Overcoats and Raincoats.

HOCH FOR TEDDY.

Thomas Doyle's Ode Hits Funny Spots.

While in the zenith of his power and glory, ex-President Roosevelt visited Europe and while on the Continent was treated with great respect and consideration by the Kaiser, who it seems thought that Teddy was after himself the most important man on earth. After Roosevelt's recent experience in politics, Thos. Doyle, one of America's humorous writers, got off a few witty verses at the expense of the ex-President and the German Emperor. These verses which were widely copied were as follows :—

Der Kaiser of dis Faterland
Und Rosevelt all tings command
Ve two und Gott you understand
Myself und Tet.

It used to be just Gott und Me
But Tet he came to make it tree
Und Gott don't count much lately
Just Me and Tet.

Just Me and Tet mit Power Divine
To keep der rest of dem in line
In peace und var to give der sign
Und sometimes Gott.

Myself and Tet der same as peas
Der same mit Gott if you should please
Der same in var, der same in peace
Myself und Tet.

Der Eastern Hemisphere for me
For Tet der von across der sea
For Gott der sky, ve vill agree
Myself und Tet.

A health to me, a health to Tet
Und von to Gott already yet
Von Holy Trinity you bet
Ve two und Gott.

Since Tet did leave
Und cross der sea
Tet forgot about Gott und me
No von but Tet.

But Tet got drimmed
Und don't you see
Vel dere's nobody left
Just Gott und Me.

Helping to Defraud.

Samuel Davidson, of Erin township, was tried before His Honor, Judge Hayes, at Guelph last week on a charge of having in May last received from a Toronto woman named Mrs. Roberts certain goods with the intention of assisting her to defraud creditors. The case occupied the time of the Court for nearly two days. The Judge found Davidson guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $85 forthwith. The goods were also recovered and are held by the Crown.

Do Not Gamble with Your Eyes!

A Competent Optician has no time to travel from town to town, flitting about like a Butterfly. He has all he can do at home.

BUT

He must be a Competent Man or he will not be able to stay long in any one place. I have been in Orangeville for Seventeen years and my business is increasing every day, which in itself is the best proof of my ability. Why deal with strangers who have constantly to hunt new fields when you have a permanent Optical Store in your own town? We do not sell

$5.00 Glasses for $1.00

Nor even $2.50 for one dollar, nor yet do we charge you $5.00 or even $2.50 for Glasses worth only $1.00. But when we charge you $2.50 or $4.00 for Glasses you get what you pay for, and you can get your money back any time if goods are not worth all that you pay for them.

This is no three day sale nor yet a misleading statement. There is no occasion for a rush. Our Store is here every day awaiting your own convenience, ready to give a scientific and up-to-date Examination. We can replace any broken Lense no matter where you purchase your Glasses.

For first-class up-to-date Optical Work this is the only store in the district worthy of your consideration.

This Handsome Moffat Range—First Prize for your Five Best Recipes

A CONTEST OPEN TO EVERY WOMAN IN CANADA

First Prize .	Moffat Range
Second Prize . . .	$40.00
Third Prize	$25.00
Fourth Prize	$10.00
Fifth Prize	$5.00

and Fifty Prizes of $2.00 each

First Prize—"Canada B" Steel Range

Special Exhibition Nickel Finish; with reservoir; tiled panel in high closet; full nickel glass door with thermometer; oven either 16, 18 or 20 inches.

Or, if preferred, we will give our best cast iron range with Exhibition finish, or any of our high class coal and gas combination ranges in special finish.

FOR thirty years we have interested ourselves in good cooking, for during this period we have been manufacturing the best Ranges we know how. Now we want to produce a first-class standard Cook Book for use all over Canada. What better plan could we adopt than that of asking Canadian housewives to help us by contributing their five best and well-tried Recipes?

There may be a number of good Cook Books published now, but there can never be one so good or so complete as one produced by the united efforts of good cooks all over the Dominion, because this will then be a practical one based on the practical results of each individual contributor.

To promote interest, we have decided to hold a contest, and we are awarding the above valuable prizes for the best sets of five recipes sent in to us.

ALL YOU HAVE TO DO IS TO WRITE OUT YOUR FIVE BEST RECIPES AND MAIL THEM TO US

SETS of Recipes will be judged from the standpoint of Variety, Economy of Materials, Nutritive Properties, Ease of Preparation, Tastiness, etc. Remember that the recipes most likely to win a prize, are some of your own favorites—that you have tried and know to be real good. Write only on one side of the paper and be sure to sign your name and post office address at the foot. The First Prize is a handsome Moffat Range—the best we make—as illustrated and described (or you can have the best of any other Stove we make, either Gas, Coal or Combination).

The other prizes will be awarded in the form of cash certificates for the amounts named and will be accepted at their face value by Moffat dealers at any place in Canada on the purchase of any Moffat Range.

Competition closes October 19th, and all replies must be in on or before that date.

If you wish to take advantage of the contest, and at the same time wish to buy a stove at once—buy a Moffat Range through our dealer in your town and send us your receipted bill—and when you win a prize, we will refund you the cash value of the prize you win.

Every Contestant will receive one of the Cook Books.

The Cook Book, when complete, will be one of the finest compiled, and will be worth at least $2.00. Every woman sending in five recipes will receive a FREE COPY. It will be well worth while for every woman to compete.

We have secured the services of a graduate of the Domestic Science branch of the Toronto Technical School, and two other ladies to assist her. Their decisions must be accepted as final.

(N.B.—You will greatly assist the judges by sending in your replies as early as possible. Don't wait till the closing date.)

The Millionaire's Share.

An opinion which will be agreed with by many who stop to weigh the matter carefully was recently given by Sir Hiram Maxim when he stated that the millionaires of the Empire should now spend no considerable portions of their wealth in the defence of their country. These men have been able by ability and circumstance to amass great fortunes, while others not so fortunate have toiled along making enough to live on only. These latter are now out fighting for their country and the millionaire besides equipping men for battle can do a great deal for the workingman's wife and family while the bread-winner is at the front. It has been suggested that millionaires should from their vast fortunes increase the pay of the men on active service, the money doubtless to be used in the support of those at home. This is a good time for the men with immense fortunes to use some of their great wealth as it should be used. Many have made a beginning, and are nobly filling the breach with their money. Others will do likewise, and if they come forward, as no doubt they will, there should be no lack of funds to maintain an army of sufficient size to bring the war to a speedy and satisfactory conclusion, and at the same time prevent much suffering at home. The successful financier and owner of great estates now has his opportunity to do much for the men and the country which have made him what he is. Those who are not willing to fight with swords should entrench those who are on the firing line by the bulwarks of financial aid. The man who enlists to go to the front is giving all he has for his country. He risks and gives his life. If he should chance to return he may be maimed for life. His sacrifice is far greater than that of the multi-millionaire who may give cheerfully half his holdings, and the latter should willingly help to reimburse the soldier and his family for their great sacrifice and loss.—Farmers' Advocate.

SOME BONES BROKEN.

Wm. Rayfield, son of Jos. Rayfield, of Amaranth, received a broken left wrist and a dislocated right shoulder at T. J. Simpson's on Thursday night about six o'clock. He was standing on a beam about twenty-five feet from the floor holding a rod up to the roof by means of a board. The board slipped and Will lost his balance. In falling he made a grab for a beam and which he must have hit, breaking his arm. He hit the only bare spot on the floor on his right shoulder, with the above result. Fortunately there were a number of people about at the time and they carried him over to Mr. Simpson's where a doctor attended his injuries.—Star & Vidette.

Owen Sound's public library is trying the experiment of keeping open continuously from two o'clock in the afternoon until half-past nine in the evening.

Ernest Frederick Wattam, infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wattam, Shelburne, died on Wednesday, Sept. 8th, aged one month and twenty days.

George Faulkner, one of the pioneers of Peel County, died at his home in Caledon Township last week. He was eighty-three years of age and had spent practically all his life in Peel county.

Mr. Edward Freeman, of the town of Englehart in the township of Evantural, has purchased a farm belonging to Mr. Thomas Price, being lot No. 5 in the 6th concession of Erin township.

Mr. and Mrs. James McClure, of Brampton, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Perlotta, to Mr. James Wylie McCracken, son of Mr. James McCracken, of Derry West, the marriage to take place in October.

On Friday last Dr. Sproule handed us a sheaf of raspberries from his farm in the suburbs which was loaded with fruit in all stages from the blossom to the ripe raspberries. Who says this is not the banana belt.—Markdale Standard.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reid, of Toronto, who are visiting their parents in Amaranth, had quite an experience recently. They had only left their home at 5 Osler Avenue for a few minutes when the house was broken into by three burglars and everything of value in the jewellery line was taken.

Found a Friend in Dr. Chase

His Medicines Proven Effective, and Always Kept at Hand in This Home.

Mrs. Chas. Lovell, Agassiz, B. C., writes:—"I feel it my duty to tell you what a great friend Dr. Chase's medicines have been to myself and family. I cannot praise his medicines too highly, and Dr. Chase's name is a household word in our home. Well, quite a number of years ago I sent to you for a sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment for protruding piles, and, having used the sample and found relief, I sent to a neighboring town for four boxes, and I am completely cured.

"I have also used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for constipation, and, after using them, I am completely cured of this dreadful disease. I am the mother of ten children, of whom nine are living, and when seven of my children were all very bad with whooping cough, caught in the middle of a severe winter, I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and they were all cured before the winter was over, and now we are never without Dr. Chase's medicines in our home, and I recommend them to all."

SAHARA THIRST.

"O but it's hot!" said Philip, fanning himself with his hat.

"Goodness, yes!" assented Ted.

"I wish I had some ice cream," said Roy. "My! wouldn't it taste good?"

"I wish I had some soda water to sip through a straw. I'm as thirsty as I can be," sighed Ted.

"I'd rather have some lemonade," said Philip; "some with cracked ice a-clinking against the side of the glass."

Their mother laughed. "Since you haven't any ice cream or soda water or lemonade, suppose you take a cool drink of well water."

"It hasn't any ice in it," said Philip.

"I don't like water," said Ted bluntly.

"Neither do I," chimed in Roy. "Water is too common."

"I think if you were very thirsty you wouldn't relish water," said mother. "If you were in the Desert of Sahara you would find a few drops of cold water more precious than all the ice cream, soda water and lemonade you could drink or eat."

Philip sat up in the grass. "I wonder how it would really seem to travel for days over the sand without seeing a well or spring," he said thoughtfully.

"Let's play Sahara Desert," shouted Roy, who was always inventing new games. "The backyard will be the desert, and mother and the water pitcher will be the oasis."

"I'll be a camel," said Ted. And with a scramble they were all on their feet and running out into the backyard.

Evidently the trip across the desert was a long one, for the boys did not return to the "oasis" for half an hour.

"I'm famished for a drink," cried Roy, lifting a brimming glassful. "It is awfully hot in the desert."

"How good it is!" echoed Philip, smacking his lips over his own cup.

Ted laughed. "It makes a lot of difference whether it is a 'Sahara thirst' or just the ordinary kind, doesn't it, mother?" he asked.

And mother smiled and agreed that it did.—Faye N. Merriam, in North Carolina Christian Advocate.

The Everlasting Encroachment on the Public School

The report from Regina published in last week's Sentinel stated that the Regina Public School Board had found it necessary to go to the Supreme Court, and perhaps to the Privy Council, to test the validity of the school laws of that province.

In every province of the Dominion the Roman Church is encroaching upon the rights of the Public school and the Public School supporters. The law passed by the Scott Government in Saskatchewan was coercive to the last degree. It is unworkable, except with the absolute surrender and submission of the Public School supporters. The whole effect of the Saskatchewan School Act is to put the Roman Catholic schools in a position of supremacy over the Public Schools. It is the apotheosis of sectarianism in education. Fortunately there are some men in that province who are not satisfied to see the public system of education destroyed in order to build up the schools of a religious denomination. It is a fortunate thing for the rising generation. It is to be hoped that they will be able to develop public sentiment in that Province that will be sufficient to protect the public schools.

But it is not only in Saskatchewan that we find the hierarchy at work trying to invade the territory of the Public School. In Manitoba the Government came within an ace of defeat because it passed amendments to the School Act which were intended to be used to establish Separate Schools. In Ontario, not satisfied with the system of schools, enjoying all the privileges of the Public School, and placed upon a parity with the Public School, the French wing of the Roman Church is fighting for the recognition of a third system of schools based upon the racial preferences of the people. It is difficult to say which is the more outrageous attempt at encroachment, that in Saskatchewan or that in Ontario.

In the Maritime Provinces, Roman Catholic Separate Schools and bilingual schools exist in defiance of the plain terms of the statutes. Protestant opinion has been chloroformed in that part of the country. It does not seem to be possible to arouse the people of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia to the fact that their public school system has been seriously injured, and will be destroyed in favor of the sectarian system.

Wherever one goes, throughout the length and breadth of Canada, the Roman Catholic hierarchy is found to be a disturbing element with regard to education. The remedy for Protestantism is give systematic and energetic opposition to a continuance of the encroachments and to begin an agitation for amendments to the British North America Act that will establish the Public school as the only state-aided system of primary education. Nothing short of this will prove satisfactory. Nothing short of this will create a united Canada. It is an act of patriotism to organize for such changes in Imperial legislation as may be necessary to establish in Canada what they have in the United States, one state-aided system of schools.—Orange Sentinel.

Word from the Boys.

An extract from a letter from one of the boys at Valcartier reads as follows: "The ladies work has added greatly to the comfort of the camp and to the cheerfulness of the men and we will show our thanks not only in words but in deeds. The women of Orangeville will be happy to know they have helped in ever so small a way to make the boys confortable with their socks, wristlets, caps and mufflers. The men with money could buy what they needed to keep themselves warm, but the poor Tommy, who left in August with no warm clothing and his pay needed at home, is the one who needed help."

Two bales have been sent to the Red Cross Society Headquarters, 77 King St., E., Toronto, and acknowledged by them, containing the following, viz:— 20 pairs of socks, 24 pairs of wristlets, 4 Balaclava caps, 4 sleeping caps, 2 mufflers, 16 night shirts, 15 suits pajamas, 10 towels, 27 pillow pads, 20 handkerchiefs.

The following reference to it is from the St. John (N.F.) Telegram:—"The lecture on 'Petroleum' by Rev. Mr. St. Dalmas, in St. Andrew's Hall, last night proved very interesting. Sir Robert Thorburn occupied the chair and introduced the lecturer. Mr. St. Dalmas gave a vivid and interesting exposition of the different apparatus, used in the preparing of petroleum. All were highly pleased with the lecture, and came away with a new and valuable addition to their store of knowledge. The rev. gentleman is a very attractive speaker, and won deserved enconiums by last night's effort."

MARSVILLE.

(Intended for last week)

On Wednesday evening about eight o'clock there passed away a well-known and much respected citizen of this community in the person of Mr. Enoch Price. He had enjoyed good health till a little over two years ago when he was forced to cease his labour. Since then there has been little hope of his recovery though at times he would rally and was able to get around. His long illness was borne with unusual fortitude and he was never heard to complain. He was 71 years of age and was born in the County of Wicklow, Ireland, in the year 1843. When one year old, with his parents, three brothers and two sisters, he came to Canada. From York they wended their way by wagon to Garafraxa and settled on the 12th line. In early manhood he spent a few years in Saginaw, Michigan. The next few years were spent on the farm after which he removed to the 5th line, Erin, where he successfully managed the quarries and did an extensive business. In 1863 he again moved to his farm on the 12th line and erected up-to-date buildings. Of late years he contracted for cement structures and was considered a skilled workman along that line, doing considerable work in this and adjoining counties. He was a man of strong convictions, ever desirous of doing his duty regardless of the opinion of others. In 1876 he married a Mary Lomas. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon, and was largely attended. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Lovegrove. Besides a widow he leaves to mourn his loss three sons and four daughters—Dr. W. J. Price, Orangeville; John, Delisle, Sask.; Morley, Ottawa; Mrs. W. Conklin, Gledhow, Sask.; May, teacher at Claresholm, Alberta; Florence, a teacher in Mono township, and Sadie at home. He is also survived by one brother and two sisters—William, of Brampton, Mrs. Atcheson, Oak Lake, Man., and Mrs. Morden, Manitoulin Island.

The annual meeting of the Marsville Branch Bible Society was held in the Presbyterian Church on Thursday evening and was attended by a goodly number. Rev. W. J. Mills last Friday and during the meeting made Mrs. Mills a life member as a slight recognition of her long and invaluable services as President of the Branch. Mrs. Mills acknowledged the honor in fitting terms. The distinction conferred by the Society was well deserved as Mrs. Mills has been a realous and energetic President.

The war is the chief topic of conversation here. Wherever two or three are gathered together the supplying funds to meet the wants of the needy ones left behind is discussed. In this neighborhood it has been suggested for Mono Township that next year's election should be by acclamation thereby saving a nice sum, which added to that already collected by the Women's Institute and other collections, would furnish a tidy sum without raising the expenditure. We believe one of the most deserving men in Dufferin, Mr. Jonah Allen, who has given his only son for his country should be provided with a public position.

MONO MILLS.

The canvas that is being made for the Patriotic Fund as announced last week has been very successful so far, some of the collectors having received over $50 in their divisions.

Considerable interest is being taken in the meeting which was held last night to arrange for the organization of a company of recruits for volunteer service.

James Kincade.

Mr. James Kincade, an old resident of Millbank, Ont., died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. John A. Bruce, West Broadway, Orangeville, on Wednesday, the 23rd inst. Deceased came here a few weeks ago to reside with his daughter, but having been a sufferer from cancer for over a year and a half the journey overtaxed his strength and he passed peacefully away despite all that could be done for him by loving friends. He was married in the month of April, 1876, and leaves two daughters, Mrs. John A. Bruce, of Orangeville, and Mrs. Charles Matthews, of Walkerton, Ont. The remains were transferred from Orangeville to Millbank on Friday, and the funeral took place on the same day to Millbank cemetery, Rev. Mr. Miller officiating. The pallbearers were Messrs. Alex. Jack, Walter Tanner, David Tanner, Thos. Tanner, John A. Bruce and Chas. Matthews. Among the flowers received were a pillow of white asters and fern from Mr. and Mrs. Walters, Orangeville; a pillow of dahlias from Mrs. David Tanner; a wreath from the daughters and others. The esteem in which deceased was held was attested to by the large number of friends and acquaintances who attended the last rites at the graveside.

Thomas Temple.

With the death of Mr. Thomas Temple, which took place at his home here on Sunday last, there departed from this life a gentleman who had but to live less than six years more to round out a full century in this vale of tears, this world of joy and tribulation, this sphere of usefulness to a man of parts, but a temporary home to the longest lived of all the fleeting race. Deceased was born in Scotland on August 26th, 1820, and when twenty-eight years of age came to Canada, where his days were made long in the land that he had selected in which to make a livelihood, and which proved for him all that his fondest hopes had pictured. In his long career he met with ups and downs, but invariably came out at the top, as do all who conduct themselves as did Mr. Temple in his relations with men of all sorts and conditions.

He first settled in the township of Eramosa, then removed to West Garafraxa, where he remained for twenty-four years before coming to Orangeville to spend the remainder of his long and useful life. He was caretaker of St. Andrew's Church for thirty-three years, only resigning that position three years ago last January. He was married to Margaret Wood on Aug. 5th, 1841, and she predeceased him by twenty years. He is survived by six sons and three daughters. They are Mrs. Wm. Kelly, Toronto, Mrs. Thos. Ogston, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.; Mrs. Wm. Hatcher, Orangeville; David, West Garafraxa; James, Fergus; John, Marquette, Mich.; Joseph, Orangeville, and Thomas and George, Caledon. A brother, William is still living on the homestead at Hume, Scotland.

The funeral took place to Forest Lawn cemetery yesterday and was attended by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. The pallbearers were the six sons of the deceased:—David, James, George, Thomas, John and Joseph.

Mrs. John McClelland.

Mrs. John McClelland died on Sunday, Sept. 20th, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. D. Raney, of Moosomin, Sask. Deceased formerly lived at Ballycroy, where her husband, who was a general merchant, died over twenty years ago. She is survived by three sons and one daughter, Messrs. Robt. J., John and Samuel, of Toronto, and Mrs. W. D. Raney, of Moosomin, Sask. Mrs. Joseph Suggitt, of Connor, and Mrs. Jas. Fleming, of Toronto, are sisters. The funeral took place on Thursday to St. John's cemetery, 7th line, Mono, and the services were conducted by Rev. J. A. Black. A large number of friends from Mono and Adjala were in attendance.

Thomas Webster.

At the patriarchal age of 87 years and 8 months Mr. Thomas Webster died at his home in Orangeville on Sunday evening last, after an illness lasting some eight weeks. Deceased was born in Hull, England, and came to this section aqout sixty years ago, bringing with him a young wife. He at first followed farming near the village of Alton, and left there forty-two years ago for Mono township, later leaving for Tecumseth, where Mrs. Webster died. Twenty-one years ago he took a trip to England and later married a second wife, a Miss MacInnes, of Arnott. He is survived by three sons and six daughters. In religion he was an Anglican and a Liberal in politics. He was a man of sterling character and his funeral was attended by a large number of friends and acquaintances.

FOR HOME DEFENCE.

Grand Valley Enthusiastic Over Organization of a Volunteer Company.

Over two hundred people answered the call to Carnegie Hall on Tuesday evening to hear the matter of a home guard or volunteer company explained. Reeve Menary presided and after the audience had expressed its loyalty by singing "God Save the King" he explained the reason of the meeting and called on the local clergymen. Each had a suitable message. To protect the home is the first impulse of every Britisher and home means the country just as much as anything else. Here we enjoy liberties unequalled anywhere on earth, and these will be utterly obliterated by the military policies of the country that has forced the war on Britain. While war is abhorred by most people yet few there are who regret that Great Britain went into this fight. Rather they would be ashamed if she failed not to uphold her ideals of right, regard for written pledges and support of liberties. The war also brought out the spontaneous unity of many diverse peoples comprising the Empire, showing the world that national strength is more a matter of patriotic impulses than enforced military service. From India, with its peculiar masses of people, divergent religious and social customs and whose countrymen were just a few months ago refused admittance to Canada, comes the cheerful news of princely gifts of money and thousands of men. The same from South Africa which has happily forgotten the war of 15 years ago, and from every province of the Dominion. Victory will and must come to the allied forces against the Kaiser's armies, and when peace is dictated the map of Europe will be so changed that a repetition of such war will not be possible for another century at least.

Lieut.-Col. J. A. V. Preston received a warm welcome in rising to speak on the practical side of the matter. He first explained the conditions resulting in changing the local military situation, whereby the headquarters of the 36th Regiment were moved to Toronto. The present movement to organize a regiment in Dufferin was not the result of the present war scare, but a natural sequence to the arrangements made a year ago. As previously reported it was intended to raise a local regiment of eight companies, three from the old 36th and five new ones. Of these one should be in Grand Valley where there was excellent material. The service was for three years for home defence, and no one would be asked to enlist for overseas service, which was purely voluntary. At the present time every man in Canada is liable to military service if the country were attacked, and he thought a trained man would give better service. It was the duty of every man to serve his country in some way, and none better than joining the volunteers. It gives a knowledge of organization, discipline and musketry or shooting, and Lord Kitchener says he wants men who can shoot and shoot quick. It is intended to have drill once or twice a week, the village being asked to provide a suitable place. While the government makes fair allowances for regimental expenses, it would not meet all and so the county council will be asked for a grant. The officers provide their own uniforms and equipment, but that for the privates is furnished by the Government. Ammunition for rifle practice is also given.

At the close of the Colonel's address about 35 young men signed the roll, a most satisfactory beginning.—Star & Vidette.

One Bullet In 5,000 Fatal.

An army officer is authority for saying that during a battle only one bullet out of every 5,000 fired kills an enemy.

Two armies each of 50,000 men might go into action with 100 rounds of ammunition. These armies could discharge at each other 10,000,000 bullets.

If only one shot in 1,000 took effect 5,000 men on each side would be killed or wounded. That would be a heavy casualty. But, as the army officer says, the artillery fire is more destructive than rifle fire.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN FOR OUR OWN GOODS

Galt Editor Urges Country-wide Organization to Promote Sale of "Made-in-Canada" Products

The Galt "Reporter," a few days ago, had the following timely and interesting editorial under the heading "Buy Canadian-made Goods" on the economic situation in Canada arising out of the war:

"While one of the immediate effects of the European war was the disorganization of trade in Canada, a secondary result should be of a stimulating character. Owing to the fact that the continent of Europe is the centre of hostilities, a considerable amount of manufactured goods formerly imported from Germany, France, Austria, Belgium and other countries will now have to be produced here. Reports show that every year millions of dollars worth of manufactured goods from these countries are sold in Canada. Our own mechanics and artisans can produce such articles as well as the foreign workers and if the manufacturers take advantage of the opportunity provided, the war should result in more work, instead of less, for their employes.

"But the whole responsibility of making the best of the present situation does not lie with the manufacturers. If the people will demand Canadian made goods they will be not only supplying their personal needs but creating work for their fellow-citizens. When the Empire is involved in such a tremendous crisis as the present there is something for all to do. We cannot all go to the front but those who stay at home can do a great deal towards creating conditions that will make the suffering here as light as possible.

"The patriotic citizen, when he goes to the store to fill his wants will demand in every case possible goods "Made in Canada." There should be a well-defined campaign carried on throughout the country urging Canadians to purchase goods of home manufacture. If an accelerated demand for Canadian goods is created during the war, it will doubtless be maintained after normal conditions return in Europe.

"In this way we stand to benefit permanently by insisting that what we buy must be Canadian-made."

ORILLIA AND "MADE-IN-CANADA"

Orillia Paper Advocates Keeping Money Circulating Near Home

The Orillia "Packet," one of the brightest of Ontario's weeklies, recently had the following editorial on the "Made-in-Canada" idea:

"The Orillia Furniture Company is promoting the buy-at-home idea by making use of a pay envelope which calls attention to the fact that "last year Canadians bought $618,000,000 worth of foreign goods, half of which could have been made in Canada"—or in other words $1,000,000 a day which went out of the country might have been spent at home to keep Canadian factories busy. Why should not the same principle be extended a step further to "Made-in-Orillia" articles? Our merchants and people generally grumble more or less loudly if the factories are not running full blast. But do the grumblers do what is in their power to keep our home factories busy? Take the matter of furniture for instance. We have in Orillia a factory whose goods are commanding a ready sale in all parts of the country—to such an extent that it has worked more steadily during the last eighteen months than any other furniture factory in Ontario. Yet the Furniture Company might have spent much more money in wages if all the furniture of the class sold in Orillia had been of their manufacture. How often have those who clamor for industries, or talk about making Orillia grow, enquired for, or given a preference to Orillia furniture. Similarly, why should those who want a motor car of the class manufactured by the Fisher Motor Company go out of town to buy it, when they can obtain the best value for their money by purchasing the "Made-in-Orillia" article, and factory service at their door—to say nothing of doing their share to make the motor works permanent and prosperous. On the same principle the former from any of the surrounding townships who buys Tudhope carriages, or Tudhope-Anderson wagons, implements or stoves is helping to build up the home market for his own produce, and to add to the value of his own farm. The buy-at-home principle should not be confined to dry goods and groceries."

The remarks of the Orillia "Packet" would bear repetition in almost every town and city in Canada.

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

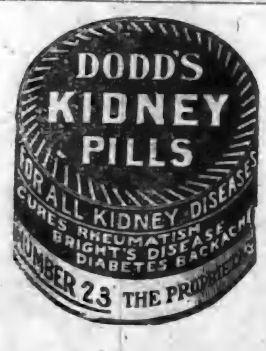
When the Work Piles Up.

We can get any amount of work done by taking it a moment at a time. It is when we try to take it several moments at a time that it gets beyond us. A business man has a pile of work in front of him on his desk, and was "stewing around" over it, and saying how tremendously busy he was, when another man said to him, "You're not busy, you are only confused." Seeing and thinking about more than one thing at a time brings the confusion that multiplies burdens and hinders the work. It is sometimes well to clear our desk of everything except the one thing upon which we must be working; then take up the next thing; and so on until the day's work is done. Concentration routs confusion. Doing one thing at a time gets an amazingly large number of things done.

Ammunition Is Made to Be Used.

The Manufacturers' News likens the American business man who cuts down his advertising expenditure these days to "the army that saves its ammunition in the face of an enemy" and puts him on a par with "troops that will not follow up an advantage when the enemy is in retreat."

The comparison is apt. This is no time to restrict business publicity. It is time to extend it. To increase your business you must let people know what you have to sell and are able to make. The only way to do it is through advertising.



The human mind tends to fall into ruts. A lot of people have been in the habit of buying foreign goods because it is more convenient at the time when they began buying them. They are in the rut of thinking that the accustomed sources of supply are the only sources. Now that the war has choked those sources they look helplessly around.

They need information. They need to be told how to get out of their ruts of habit and of thought. The political map of Europe will probably be revised as a result of the war. The industrial map of the United States and the commercial map of the world will also be revised if American manufacturers and merchants are active, aggressive, far-sighted and bold.

There is a time to save ammunition and a time to expend it. But there is no advantage in saving it when the time has come to conquer by using it. Printer's ink is business ammunition. Ammunition is made to be used.

Mr. Simon Aitchison, a former highly respected business man of Hespeler, died at his home in Calgary recently.

Mrs. Elizabeth Egan, an old resident of Adjala, died at her home at Keenansville a week ago Monday in her 77th year. Deceased was a sister of Mr. A. W. Burke, of Hamilton.

ZEPPELIN AIRCRAFT HOPE IN THE PRESENT STRUGGLE

Britain Has Organized a School of Flying to Combat Monsters of the Air.

English Expert Discusses Powers of Machines That Made Antwerp Tremble.

THE bombs that fell on Antwerp from a German Zeppelin stealing over the city during the night have awakened echoes all over the civilized world. It has been denounced by many as a crime against humanity, and it promises to become a matter of the widest international consideration. The attack was a clear violation of article 26 of the fourth Hague convention, and the Belgians have protested against this manner of warfare. Germans assert they have a perfect right to use the Zeppelins.

The Zeppelin undoubtedly has added a new terror and horror to warfare. And all cities, especially capitals of countries engaged in the warfare, may well tremble when they consider the fearful danger from this terrible engine of destruction.

In the meantime Great Britain, who was severely criticized for her delay in steps to utilize the advance in aviation, has taken ample and comprehensive steps to put into the air a formidable force of "bird men." Lieut. John C. Porte, R.N., the intrepid aviator who was preparing to cross the Atlantic in Rodman Wanamaker's airship when the war broke out, has been put at the head of a big training school at Hendon. He has for assistant Claude Grahame-White, also a famous aviator, and they are training a small army of men in the intricacies of air tactics and bomb-dropping. At the same time the Government factories are turning out biplanes at an almost incredible rate. An aeroplane is not so complicated as most machines of war, and can be manufactured in a very short time so there is no doubt that Britain will soon make up her deficiency in the air.

BRITAIN'S DIRIGIBLES.

As for dirigibles of the rigid and non-rigid type. Great Britain has a small fleet, which is being rapidly increased.

As for Porte, the nation has implicit confidence in his ability.

At the age of fourteen Porte began his naval training after his early education in English private schools. He was born in Bandon, County Cork, on Feb. 26, 1884. His father, the Rev. J. R. Porte, then rector of Bandon, is now vicar of Denmark Hill, London. Porte is not married. At twenty-one he had achieved his lieutenancy and joined the submarine service.

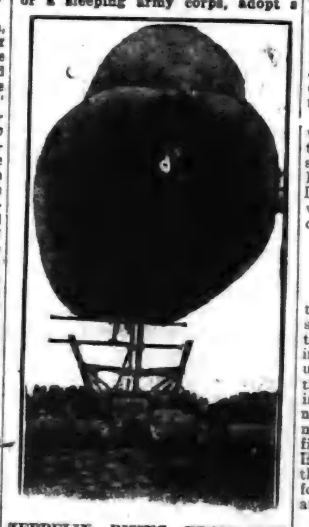
In 1910 the young lieutenant invested $1,500 in a Demoiselle monoplane, but it was too small to carry him, and all he got for his effort was experience in control as he hopped over the ground in it. The following year, however, he was able to master a big Deperdussin monoplane at Rheims with three-quarters of an hour's practice. This was his first actual flying, in 1911.

Then came his retirement with honors from the navy and his plunge into aviation as head of the British Deperdussin company. Porte personally conducted his aviation school and piloted the big "Dep" machines in the principal English races. He soon won the name of being the sanest, soberest man in the flying game.

GERMANS TRUST ZEPPELINS.

Every German has absolute faith that the great Zeppelins are going to decide the fate of the war. The Zeppelins are admittedly superior to all other dirigibles, but what they can do aside from scouting is yet to be fully demonstrated. Germany is confident that her great ships of the air will be an important factor in destroying the superior sea fleet of Great Britain, but there has been little accomplished thus far.



In the daytime the huge bulk of the Zeppelins makes them an easy target, but at night it is different, and if they can evade the searchlights of the enemy it is possible, the Germans believe, that they can do incalculable damage. Harry E. Tudor, an English aviation expert, has this to say:

"In my own opinion it will be the Zeppelin that will open up a new and terrible era in the history of night warfare, carrying destruction in a form hitherto undreamed of and beyond all realization in its terrors.

"Coincident with the advance of the building of air craft, so has advanced the construction of the aeroplane gun capable of carrying an enormous distance and highly flexible in its operation to follow the course of an aerial machine just as easily as an expert sportsman can follow the flight of a bird before the pressure of his trigger at the right moment. The shooting down of aeroplanes is but pigeon shooting in excelsis.

USELESS IN DAYLIGHT.

"This fact places the daylight use of Zeppelins of less advantage than of their utility in night work, but in the darkness of night one of these colossal realisations of the dreams of Jules Verne could, silently and unseen, sail over a fleet of warships or a sleeping army corps, adopt a

ZEPPELIN RISING FROM THE GROUND.

[illegible] in a slow movement, steering in line or circle, and result in greater havoc and losses than any other form of fighting could possibly accomplish. Add to this the fearful demoralization that would follow the assault by so fearsome and unseen an enemy and some, though faint, idea could be acquired of this revelation of the advance of civilization and science.

"To define matters even clearer, a Zeppelin could leave its base, whether inland or near a seaport, and, by the use of distance barographs could be guided precisely over a fleet or an encamped army. Powerful searchlights flashed downward, even but momentarily, and the aid of highly powered binoculars would show the bomb-droppers the best course and points for their deadly work, and a timing of the dropping of a series of bombs could but only result in an annihilation of fleets or entire armies long before anything could be done with aeroplane guns to cut short the devastation."

That is why London is lying awake of nights, fearing to hear the crashes which will tell it that the long gray air monsters have slipped across the sea and that white England holds dominion on the waters the Germans hold the mastery of the air. It is the reason, too, that the Belgian aviators have formed a "league of death," swearing to give their lives in ramming a Zeppelin and bringing it and its crew down with them to death.

Slain as He Prods Shirkers.

A young reserve officer who has returned to Paris, relating how he captured the sword of a Bavarian colonel, said:

"When charging the Bavarians I noticed that their colonel was striking his own men with his sword to prevent them from running away. He was so occupied in this that he forgot the approach of the French and was shot dead."

GLORIOUS HAIR

Girls and women of all ages want to be beautiful and attractive, but unsightly, thin and lifeless hair destroys half the beauty of a pretty face.

If your hair is losing its natural color, is falling out, dull, streaky, full of dandruff, too dry, or if the scalp itches and burns do not be alarmed, use Parisian Sage. Rub it well into the scalp. It will go right to the hair roots, nourish them, and stimulate the hair to grow long and beautiful. It removes dandruff with one application, stops itching scalp, falling hair and makes the head feel fine.

Parisian Sage supplies the hair with what is needed to make it soft, thick and gloriously radiant. It is sold in fifty cent bottles by F. S. Pickering, and at all drug counters. Look for the trade mark—"The Girl with the Auburn Hair." Accept no other.

Come Home.

There is no limit to the number of times that the Christian who has resisted God's grace may return to that grace, if he will. We are living in the age of grace; and that means unreserved and infinite mercy. Ten thousand deliberate, willful failures in the life of the Christian come no nearer to exhausting God's infinite mercy than does one such failure; infinity is not measured by numbers. If you have failed so many times that it now seems utterly hopeless for you to hope for complete restoration, Satan is lying to you.

"Today the Father calls me,
The Holy Spirit waits,
The blessed angels gather
Around the heavenly gates
No questions will be asked me,
How often I have come;
Although I oft have wandered,
It is my Father's home."

That is enough. You belong in your Father's home. Do not grieve Him still more by refusing the love that is eager to restore you this moment. He will call the past as though it had never been.

Locomotor Ataxia, Heart Trouble and Nervous Spells Yielded to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It would be easy to tell you how Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures locomotor ataxia and derangements of heart and nerves, but it may be more satisfactory to you to read this letter.

Mrs. Thos. Allan, R.F.D. 3, Sombra, Ont., writes:—"Five years ago I suffered a complete breakdown, and frequently had palpitation of the heart. Since that illness I have had dizzy spells, had no power over my limbs (locomotor ataxia) and could not walk straight. At night I would have severe nervous spells, with heart palpitation, and would shake as though I had the ague. I felt improvement after using the first box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after continuing the treatment can now walk, eat and sleep well, have no nervous spells and do not require heart medicine. I have told several of my neighbors of the splendid results obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

BELGIUM'S NATIONAL ANTHEM.

[A free translation of the famous Brabanconne, the stirring chant which seems so strangely appropriate in the light of recent events.]

Fled the years of servile shame!
Belgium, 'tis thine hour at last.
Wear again thy glorious name,
Spread thy banner on the blast.
Sovereign people in thy might,
Steadfast yet and valiant be,
On thine ancient standard write:
King, and Law, and Liberty.

Strive, nor seek discharge at length,
Hold thy courage as thy crown,
God, who keeps thee in His strength,
On thy labors smileth down.
Over all thy fruitful land
Labor's prize is full and free.
On thine arts enthroned stand,
King, and Law, and Liberty.

Foes, that were our friends of old,
Are returned to love at last,
All the free we prize as gold,
Praying that our strife be past.
Belgians and Batavians, friends,
Knit in brotherhood shall be;
With one voice the shout ascends:
King, and Law, and Liberty.

Belgium, mother, thus we vow,
Never shall our love abate.
Thou our hope, our safety thou,
Hearts and blood are consecrate.
Grave, we pray, upon thy shield
This device eternally,
Weal or woe, at home, afield,
King, and Law, and Liberty.

Russian Spies Work Well.

Referring to the recent unfavorable news from the East Prussian frontier, a German officer talking with a war correspondent, said:

"Now we know how the Russians were able to escape our movements. The espionage service which they have organized is enormous. The Russians are informed of everything that is happening in the day time by spies who light fires that produce smoke of various colors as suits their purpose. At night they signal with lights. Mirrors are also used for signalling when the sun permits.

"Once we saw a procession of Russians carrying a sacred picture, which picture proved to be painted on a mirror. The Russians always escaped when we had succeeded in getting them on dangerous ground."

A SERIAL STORY

ANNA, The Adventuress

By
E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Sir John's Necktie.

Sir John, in a quiet dark travelling suit, was sitting in a pokey little room writing letters. The room was worse than pokey, it was shabby; and the view from the window of chimney pots and slate roofs wholly uninspiring. Nevertheless, Sir John had the look of a man who was enjoying himself. He seemed years younger, and the arrangement of his tie and hair were almost rakish. He stamped his last letter as Annabel entered.

She was dressed for the street very much as her own maid was accustomed to dress, and there was a thick veil attached to her hat.

"John," she declared, "I must eat or die. Do get your hat, and we will go to the corner cafe."

Right," he answered. "I know the place you mean—very good cooking for such an out-of-way show. I'll be ready in a moment."

Sir John stamped his letters, brushed his hat, and carefully gave his moustache an upward curl before the looking-glass.

"I really do not believe," he announced with satisfaction, "that any one would recognize me. What do you think, Annabel?"

"I don't think they would," she admitted. "You seem to have cultivated quite a jaunty appearance, and you certainly look years younger. One would think that you enjoyed crawling away out of your world into hiding, with a very foolish wicked wife."

"Upon my word," he declared, "you are right. I really am enjoying it. It is like a second honeymoon. If it wasn't but for the fear that after all—but we won't think of that. I don't believe any one could have traced us here. You see, we travelled second class, and we are in the least known quarter of Paris. To-night we leave for Marseilles. On Thursday we embark for South America."

"You are a marvellous courier," she declared, as they passed into the street. "You see, I will take your arm. It looks so French to be affectionate."

"There are some French customs," he declared, "which are admirable. I presume that I may not kiss you in the street?"

"Certainly not, sir," she replied laughing. "If you attempted such a thing it would be in order that I should smack you hard with the palm of my hand upon the cheek."

"That is another French custom," he remarked, "which is not so agreeable. Here we are. Shall we sit outside and drink a petit verre of something to give us an appetite while dinner is being served?"

They entered the place, a pleasant little cafe of the sort to be met with in the outlying parts of Paris. Most of the tables were for those who smoked only and drank wine, but there were a few spread with tablecloths and laid for dinner. Sir John and Annabel seated themselves at one of them, and the proprietor himself, a small, dark visaged man, radiant with smiles, came hurrying up, followed by a waiter.

"Monsieur would dine! It was very good! And Madame, of course?" with a low bow. "The 'carte de jour' was before Monsieur. He had but to give his orders. Monsieur could rely upon his special attention, and for the cooking—well, he had his customers, who came from their homes to him year after year. And always they were satisfied. He waited the pleasure of Monsieur."

Sir John gave his order deliberately stumbling now and then over a word, and anglicizing others. When he had finished he took up the wine list and ordered a bottle of dry champagne.

"I am afraid," he said to Anna afterwards, "that it was a mistake to order the champagne sec. They will guess that I am English."

Annabel leaned back in her chair and laughed till the tears stood in her eyes.

"Did you — did you really think that they would take you for a Frenchman?" she exclaimed.

"I don't see why not," he answered. "These clothes are French, and I'm sure this floppy bow would make a Frenchman of me anyhow. Perhaps I ought to have let you order the dinner, but I think I got through it pretty well."

"You did," Anna exclaimed. "Thank Heaven, they are bringing the 'hors d'oeuvres.' John, I shall eat that whole tin of sardines. Do take them away from me after I have had four."

"After all," Sir John remarked complacently, "it is astonishing how easy it is for people with brains and a little knowledge of the world to completely hide themselves. I am absolutely certain that up to the present we have escaped all notice, and I do not believe that any casual observer would take us for English people."

A man who had been sitting with his hat tilted over his eyes at an adjacent table had risen to his feet and stood suddenly before them.

"Permit me to offer you the English paper which has just arrived, Sir John," he said, holding out a Daily Telegraph. "You may find in it a paragraph of some interest to you."

Sir John was speechless. It was Annabel who caught at the paper.

"You—appear to know my name, sir," Sir John said.

"Oh yes," the stranger remarked good-humouredly. "I know you very well by sight, Sir John. It is my business to know most people. We were fellow passengers from Charing Cross, and we have been fellow lodgers in the Rue d'Entrepot. I trust you will not accuse me of discourtesy if I express my pleasure that henceforth our ways will lie apart."

A little sobbing cry from Annabel arrested Sir John's attention. The stranger with a bow returned to his table.

"Read this, John."

"The Bucknall Mansions Mystery

"Montague Hill, the man who was found lying wounded in Bucknall Mansions late on Wednesday night in the rooms of a well-known artiste, has recovered sufficiently to make a statement to the police. It appears that he was an unsuccessful admirer of the lady in question, upon whom, it will be remembered, he committed an assault recently at the Universal Music Hall. He admits that, under the influence of drink, he broke into her rooms, and there made a determined attempt at suicide. He further gave the name and address of the firm from whom he purchased the revolver and cartridges, a member of which firm has since corroborated his statement.

"Hill's confession will finally refute a number of absurd stories which have been in circulation during the last few days. We understand that, notwithstanding the serious nature of the man's injuries, there is every possibility of his recovery."

Annabel pulled down her veil to hide the tears. Sir John filled his glass with trembling hand.

"Thank God," he exclaimed. "The fellow is not such a blackguard, after all."

Annabel's hand stole into his.

"And I have dragged you all over here for nothing," she murmured.

"For nothing, do you call it?" he declared. "I wouldn't have been without it for worlds. It has been a real honeymoon trip, Annabel, for I feel that it has given me a wife."

Annabel pulled up her veil.

"You are a dear," she exclaimed affectionately. "I do hope that I shall be able to make it up to you."

Sir John's reply was incoherent. He called a waiter.

"Garcon," he said, "will you ask the gentleman at the next table if he will do me the honour of taking a glass of wine with me."

The stranger came over to them smiling. He had been on the point of leaving the restuarant. He accepted the glass of wine, and bowed.

"I drink your very good health, Sir John and Lady Ferringhall," he said, "and I wish you a pleasant journey back to England. If I might take the liberty, Sir John," he added, with a humorous gleam in his eyes, "I should like to congratulate you upon your tie."

"Oh, damn the thing!" Sir John exclaimed, tucking the loose ends inside his coat.

* * * * * *

"I propose," Sir John said, "that we pay for our dinner—which we haven't had—tip the garcon a sovereign, and take a cab to the Ritz."

Annabel shook her head.

"Look at our clothes," she exclaimed, "and besides, the funny little proprietor has gone down himself to help it along. He would be so disappointed. I am sure it will be good, John, and I could eat anything. No, let us dine here, and then go and have our coffee on the boulevards. We can take our things up with us and stay at the Continental or the Ritz."

"Excellent," Sir John declared. "We will do Paris like tourists, and thank God here comes dinner."

Everything was good. The garcon was tipped as he had never been tipped before in his life. They drove up into Paris in an open fiacre with a soft cool wind blowing in their faces, hand in hand beneath the rug. They went first to an hotel, and then out again on to the boulevards. The natural gaiety of the place seemed to have affected them both. They laughed and talked and stared about them. She took his hand in hers.

"Dear John," she whispered. "We are to begin our married life to-night—here where I first met you. I shall only pray that I may reward you for all your goodness to me."

Sir John, frankly oblivious of the possibility of passersby, took her into his arms and kissed her. Then he stood up and trailed a 'fiacre.'

"Hotel Ritz!"

CHAPTER XXXV.

Anna's Tea Party.

"I suppose you haven't the least idea who I am," Lady Lescelles said, as she settled herself in Anna's most comfortable chair."

"I have heard of you, of course," Anna answered hesitatingly, "but—"

"You cannot imagine what I have come to see you about. Well, I am Nigel Ennison's sister!"

"Oh!" Anna said.

"Nigel is like all men," Lady Lescelles continued. "He is a sad blunderer. He has helped me out of scraped though, no end of times. He is an awfully good sort—and now he has come to me to help him if I can. Do you know that he is very much in love with you?"

Anna smiled.

"Well," she admitted. "He has said something of the sort."

"And you have sent him about his business. He tells me that you will not even see him. I don't want to bother you, of course. A woman has a perfect right to choose her own husband, but Nigel seemed to think that there was something a little mysterious about your treatment of him. You seemed, he thought, to have some grievance which you would not explain and which he thought must arise from a misunderstanding. There, that sounds frightfully involved, doesn't it, but perhaps you can make out what I mean. Don't you care for Nigel at all?"

Anna was silent for a moment or two.

Lady Lescelles, graceful, very fashionable but quietly dressed, leaned back and watched her with shrewd kindly eyes.

"I like your brother better than any other man I know," Anna said at last.

"Well, I don't think you told him as much as that, did you?" Lady Lescelles asked.

"I did not," Anna answered. "To be frank with you, Lady Lescelles, when your brother asked me the other day to be his wife I was under a false impression as regards his relations—with some other person. I know now that I was mistaken."

"That sounds more promising," Lady Lescelles declared. "May I tell Nigel to come and see you again? I am not here to do his love making for him, you know. I came to see you on my own account."

"Thank you very much," Anna said. "It is very nice of you to come, but I do not think for the present, at any rate, I could give him any other answer. I do not intend to be married, or to become engaged just at present."

"Well, why not?" Lady Lescelles asked, smiling. "I can only be a few years older than you, and I have been married four years. I can assure you, I wouldn't be single again for worlds. One gets a lot more fun married."

"Our cases are scarcely similar," Anna remarked.

"Why not?" Lady Lescelles answered. "You are one of the Hampshire Pellissiers, I know, and your family are quite as good as ours. As for money, Nigel has tons of it."

"It isn't exactly that," Anna answered, "but to tell you the truth, I cannot bear to look upon myself as a rank failure. We girls, my sister and I, were left quite alone when our father died, and I made up my mind to make some little place in the world for myself. I tried painting and couldn't get on. Then I came to London and tried almost everything—all failures. I had two offers of marriage from men I liked very much indeed, but it never occurred to me to listen to either of them. You see I am rather obstinate. At last I tried a dramatic agent, and got on the music hall stage."

"Well, you can't say you're a failure there," Lady Lescelles remarked, smiling. "I've been to hear you lots of times."

"I have been more fortunate than I deserved," Anna answered, "but I only meant to stay upon the music hall stage until I could get something better. I am rehearsing now for a new play at the 'Garrick' and I have quite made up my mind to try and make some sort of position for myself as an actress."

"Do you think it is really worth while?" Lady Lescelles asked gently. "I am sure you will marry Nigel sooner or later, and then all your work will be thrown away."

Anna shook her head.

"If I were to marry now," she said, "it would be with a sense of humiliation. I should feel that I had been obliged to find some one else to fight my battles for me."

"What else?" Lady Lescelles murmured, "are men for?"

Anna laughed.

"Afterwards," she said, "I should be perfectly content to have everything done for me. But I do think that if a girl is to feel comfortable about it they should start fairly equal. Take your case, for instance. You brought your husband a large fortune, your people were well known in society, your family interest I have heard was useful to him in his parliamentary career. So far as I am concerned, I am just now a hopeless nonentity. Your brother has everything—I have not shown myself capable even of earning my own living except in a way which could not possibly bring any credit upon anybody. And beyond this, Lady Lescelles, as you must know, recent events have set a good many people's tongues wagging, and I am quite determined to live down all this scandal before I think of marrying any one."

"I am sure," Lady Lescelles said gently, "that the last consideration need not weigh with you in the least. No one in the world is beyond the shaft of scandal—we all catch it terribly sometimes. It simply doesn't count."

"You are very kind," Anna said. "I do hope I have been able to make you understand how I feel, that you don't consider me a hopeless prig. It does sound a little horrid to talk about oneself and to have views."

"I think," Lady Lescelles said, putting down her teacup, "that I must send Nigel to plead his own cause. I may tell him, at any rate, that you will see him?"

"I shall like to see him," Anna answered. "I really owe him something of an apology."

"I will tell him," Lady Lescelles said. "And now let us leave the men alone and talk about ourselves."

* * * * * *

"I am delighted to see you all here," Anna said smiling upon them from behind the tea tray, "but I shall have to ask you to excuse me for a few minutes. My agent is here, and he has brought his contract for me to sign. I will give you all some tea, and then I must leave you for a few minutes."

The three men, who had arrived within a minute or two of one another, received her little speech in dead silence. Ennison, who had been standing with his back to the window, came suddenly a little further into the room.

J. W. HAMMOND Esq.

SCOTLAND, ONT., Aug. 25th, 1913

"Fruit-a-tives" are the only pill manufactured, to my way of thinking. They work completely, no griping whatever, and one is plenty for any ordinary person at a dose. My wife was a martyr to Constipation. We tried everything on the calendar without satisfaction, and spent large sums of money until we happened on "Fruit-a-tives". I cannot say too much in their favor.

We have used them in the family for about two years and we would not use anything else as long as we can get "Fruit-a-tives".

Their action is mild, and no distress at all. I have recommended them to many other people, and our whole family uses them".

MUST CLOSE TIGHT.

There was an audience in the council chamber on Thursday afternoon last when the Mayor presided at a police court session at which Richard Cunningham was charged with Sunday labor by keeping his barber shop open on Saturday night after twelve o'clock. The defendant had Mr. James Fraser, of Tottenham, as counsel and Mr. G. E. J. Brown was present for the prosecution. The case was not tried on its merits, the defendant admitting that there were customers in his shop after twelve o'clock, but they had entered before that hour and he was under the impression that by closing the doors at 12 he was complying with the statute. His statement was accepted and a nominal fine imposed. The statute was read in court. It says "the proprietor of a barber shop shall not open his barber shop or permit the same to be opened to the public or carry on any business or work therein between the hours of twelve o'clock on Saturday night and twelve o'clock on the following Sunday night."—Alliston Herald.

Aged Gen. Pau Was On Retired List When War Started

AMONG the French generals who at the outset won commands at the front at the hands of General Joere is old General Pau, one of the heroes of the battle of Froeschviller, where at the age of 22 and as a young lieutenant he lost his right arm. So great was the gallantry which he displayed on that occasion, and so excellent was the use which he learned to make of his left arm and hand that he was allowed to remain in the service, and rose in course of time to the very head of his profession. He is praised for the patriotic fashion in which he stood aside three years ago to make way for the appointment of his friend and comrade Joffre as Generalissimo. He was retired on the score of age last year, but has now been recalled into active service.

GENERAL PAUL PAU.

That General Joffre was well advised in his action is shown by the fact that the veteran has become by sheer brilliancy one of the outstanding figures of the war. His army and that of the British, under General French, are fighting side by side on the allies' left, and the manner in which they have driven the Germans back for a distance of over sixty miles in the battle of the Marne is one of the most magnificent exploits in the history of warfare.

"Noise Was Infernal."

Quoting from a letter received from a French officer, a Bordeaux correspondent tells how a French cavalry division held in check two German corps for twenty-four hours:

"When the Germans were advancing from the north we were ordered to hold a certain village at all costs with a few quick firing guns and cavalry. It was a heroic enterprise, but we succeeded.

"The German attack began in the morning. A terrific bombardment was maintained all day. Shells destroyed every building, and the noise was infernal. We had to scream and shout all orders. The church tower was struck by a shell at the stroke of midnight and collapsed.

"Early in the morning we retreated under a hail of shells after mowing down masses of German infantry."

A Boy Scout Wonder.

The hero of Belgium is a boy scout, Leysen, decorated by King Albert for his valor and devotion to his country.

This young man, who was born at Liege, is described by Le Figaro as of almost uncanny sharpness, with senses and perceptions as keen as a savage. He was able to find his way through the woods and pass the sentinels of the enemy with unerring accuracy.

Leysen made his way through the German lines from Antwerp for the tenth time, carrying dispatches to secret representatives of the Belgian Government in Brussels. He has discovered eleven Germans spies in Belgium and performed a variety of other services and all without impairing his boyish simplicity.

Ferocious Bayonet Attacks.

The wounded Germans in Paris declare the British have resorted almost exclusively to the steel in the recent fighting. The majority of the Germans admit they have been unable to withstand the ferocity of these attacks. Especially terrifying are reported to be the Irish and Scotch regiments. The rivalry between these two nationalities is acute, and every time that a Scotch column distinguishes itself the Irish can be depended on to attempt to eclipse it at the next opportunity.

ENGLAND'S MARCHING SONG.

It's a Long Way to Tipperary" Favorite Tune of the Army.

"It's a Long Way to Tipperary" has become the marching song of the British army, according to London dispatches. It is not widely known in this country. The words are:

Up to mighty London came an Irishman one day.
As the streets are pav'd with gold, sure every one was gay.
Singing songs of Piccadilly, Strand and Leicester square
Till Paddy got excited; then he shouted to them there:

CHORUS.

It's a long way to Tipperary; it's a long way to go;
It's a long way to Tipperary, to the sweetest girl I know.
Good-bye, Piccadilly! Farewell, Leicester square!
It's a long, long way to Tipperary, but my heart's right there.

Paddy wrote a letter to his Irish Molly O,
Saying: "Should you not receive it write and let me know.
If I make mistakes in spelling, Molly dear," said he,
"Remember, it's the pen that's bad. Don't lay the blame on me."

Molly wrote a neat reply to Irish Paddy O,
Saying, "Mike Maloney wants to marry me, and so
Leave the Strand and Piccadilly, or you'll be to blame,
For love has fairly drove me silly, hoping you're the same."

RUSS HAS HARD TASK.

Advance Through East Prussia a Gigantic Military Undertaking.

It is said that the Russian troops have been divided into four armies of 2,000,000 men each. These armies will practically be hurled one after the other through East Prussia and Galicia toward Berlin, the goal, the succeeding armies filling the gaps of the ones ahead after each general engagement. Thus Russia expects to confront German re-enforcements with fresh troops.

The Russian War Office declares that there will be no necessity for "feeding off the country," as the commissariat is in excellent condition.

Small German fortresses will be stormed. This plan of campaign has been carried out in the clashes with German and Austrian troops with great success. But the main fortifications, such as Koenigsberg, Posen and Danzig, will be isolated, the main strength of the army marching on to Berlin.

The seizure of Insterburg, thirty miles within the German frontier gives Russia a grip of the railroad lines which lead to the two most important seaports of East Prussia—Koenigsberg, at the mouth of the Pregel river, where it empties into the Frische Haff, which connects with the Baltic Sea, and Danzig, at the mouth of the Vistula, emptying into the Gulf of Danzig and also connecting with the North Sea.

Insterburg is an industrial town of 31,000 population. Besides being the centre of the web of railroads over East Prussia, it is on the main line between Berlin and St. Petersburg. It is 553 miles from St Petersburg.

Koenigsberg is seventy-two miles from Insterburg. Koenigsberg, the capital of East Prussia, with 246,000 inhabitants, is a seaport of great importance. It is defended against sea and land attack. A wall surrounds the city and connects with a system of outlying works, the principal features of which are twelve detached forts, six on the right and six on the left of the River Pregel It is the principal fortified town of East Prussia.

Danzig, which is about 100 miles from Koenigsberg and 253 miles from Berlin, has a population of 170,000 and is surrounded by strong fortifications, there being a massive wall about the city and a cordon of modern forts.

The Russian advance is into regions in which are many places famous from the days of the Napoleonic wars.

General Rennenkamp, who is leading the great Russian army into East Prussia, was a cavalry general during the Russo-Japanese war. He took a conspicuous part in the battle of Mukden and in other great conflicts.

Hatred of Britain.

Nothing could better indicate the vindictiveness of Germany against Britain than the following extracts from the official German war news by wireless received by the Marconi Company. It is dated Berlin, and runs: "It is difficult to describe the unbounded exultation of all classes when the news of the British reverse at Maubeuge reached the capital. The resentment against England is particularly strong because of her intervention in this conflict and her call upon the yellow race to assist. Indeed, so deep is the resentment that news of the surrender of the British army would be received with greater joy and satisfaction than would the news of the fall of Paris. A portion of the British troops are reported to be shut up in Maubeuge."

Child Played Amid Dead.

Here is part of the description of scenes on the battlefields on the banks of the Marne as told to a Paris correspondent by an eye-witness:

"In the blazing sunshine I saw a little boy, son of a Turko—the Turkos often bring their wives and children on or near the battlefield. He had a rifles of some wounded soldier which he was hugging in his little arms as if it were a toy. He was perfectly happy surrounded by evidences of death, destruction, suffering and blood. His father was lying wounded in a village close by. The child had strayed away."

WIGS, HOODS AND CAPS.

Shapes, Colors and Significance of Old Egyptian Headgear.

The reliefs and paintings on the walls of the tombs and temples of the Egyptians show that that race of people wore thick and elegant headdresses. Hats with brims were apparently unknown. Their headgear consisted of wigs, hoods and caps.

"The wigs were very likely made of hair or tow, for their great size could not have been made by dressing of a person's own hair; the caps were also very large and high and made of material which as to its kind can only be guessed at," says Charles E. Keater in a history and development of hats and headgear.

"The largest were cupola shaped, and their use was probably confined," he further says, "to those of royal blood. They were yellow, white and red. It is supposed that the yellow ones were made of brass and were a kind of helmet, that the white was the crown of upper Egypt and the red the crown of lower Egypt. The pschent, a combination of the white and red, was considered as the symbol of the rule over the land. Lower flat-crowned caps were worn both alone and over a hood, and sometimes with a strap under the chin to hold the headpiece in place. The huge wigs were probably worn upon the shaven heads, as it is supposed that the clean shaven head was as prevalent in Egypt as it is now in tropical Asia."

A Reason For Tears.

An amusing story about Dr. Archibald Pitcairne, the physician, Jacobite and scholar, is told by Francis Watt in "The Book of Edinburgh Anecdote."

Dr. Pitcairne was not often a churchgoer, but on one occasion he took refuge in a church from a shower of rain. The sermon was commonplace, but the preacher was emotional, and he wept copiously and, as it seemed to Pitcairne, irrelevantly. He turned to the only other occupant of the pew, a stolid countryman, and whispered, "What on earth gars the man greet (weep)?"

"You would maybe greet yourself," was the solemn answer, "if you was up there and had as little to say."

Census Reports Take Time.

Each United States census report represents a compilation of statistics for the entire country, and much time is required to make an actual canvass and to publish the results. For example, in the census of manufactures uniform reports must be secured from more than 270,000 establishments and in the census of agriculture from more than 6,000,000 farms. In collecting statistics from manufacturers, farmers, electric light and power plants, electric railways and other interests it is necessary to allow a sufficient time to fill out the schedule so as not to interfere with the conduct of private business.

Kirton-McDonald.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Gilbert McDonald, 3rd line, Albion, on Wednesday, Sept. 23rd, when her eldest daughter, Margaret Ann, was united in marriage to Mr. James Kirton, of Turnbury, Huron County. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. H. Quaeffe, of Mono Mills. The bride, who was given away by her eldest brother, George, wore a gown of cream silk marquisette trimmed with silk embroidered net and pearls. After the ceremony the newly wedded couple led the way to the dining room, which was decorated in British colors. A dainty wedding breakfast was partaken of here, Mr. and Mrs. Kirton leaving afterwards on the evening train for Toronto, the bride travelling in a suit of navy blue silk with coat of navy diagonal velour and navy blue plush hat with a pale blue plume. The Banner joins with their many friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Kirton every happiness in their new home.

Lomas-Johnston.

Mr. Oliver Lomas, of Sault Ste Marie, Ont., formerly of Waldemar, was married to Miss Sadie Johnstone, daughter of Mrs. R. Johnstone, in Toronto on Wednesday of last week. Rev. George S. Smitherman, Teeterville, brother-in-law of the groom, was the officiating clergyman. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Will Johnstone, of Grand Valley, wore white silk crepe trimmed with Brussels lace. She was unattended and only relatives were present. Miss Beatrice Rounding played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. Mrs. Lomas travelled in a suit of saxe blue brocaded cloth.

Wilson-Mitchell.

At Spruce Villa, Mono Road, the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Mitchell, the marriage of their eldest daughter, Annie Vera, to Mr. Garnet J. Wilson, of Sandhill, was solemnized in the presence of a large number of guests. Rev. J. C. Wilson, of Acton, uncle of the groom, and Rev. George Purchase performed the ceremony, which took place beneath a bower of smilax, white flowers and ribbon. The bride wore a robe of ivory marquisette and charmeuse, with pearl and lace trimmings, veil and orange blossoms. She was unattended and entered the drawing-room escorted by her father, the wedding march being played by Miss T. Pearsall, of Toronto. During the signing of the register Miss Laura Kirke sang "Because." A buffet luncheon was served after the ceremony, the newly married couple leaving on the evening train for the east, the bride travelling in a tailored suit of blue serge. They will take up their residence at Sandhill.—Peel Banner.

MacLachlan-Patterson.

On the afternoon of the 22nd a very pretty September wedding was witnessed by about seventy guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Patterson, The Grange, when their only daughter, Addie Lill, became the bride of Norman A. McLachlan. While Mendelssohn's wedding march was being rendered by Mrs. Norris, aunt of the bride, the two little little ribbon girls, Helen Bowman and Bernice Wells, dressed in white with touches of pink, carrying baskets of pink and white flowers, entered the drawing room and taking their places near the door formed an aisle with white satin ribbon, through which the groom and the bride on the arm of her father passed. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. N. Waddell, took place under a prettily decorated lattice work of smilax, heavily banked with flowers and ferns. The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of ivory duchesse satin with shadow lace and pearls, wearing a draped veil with mob cap effect and tiny bunches of lilly of the valley. She carried a large shower bouquet of white roses and lilly of the valley. At the close of the ceremony and after congratulations, during the signing of the register, Miss Allie Gibson, cousin of the bride, did herself credit in singing "Because." The bride then led the way to the dining room, where a sumptuous wedding dejeuner was served beneath festoonings of pink and white. Mrs. F. Arkell and Miss Arkell, of Orangeville, catered and were assisted in serving by three young girls, cousins of the bride, prettily dressed in white. The groom's gift to the bride was a purse of gold; to the pianiste a silk parasol; to Miss Gibson a cameo pin and to the little ribbon girls pearl rings. The other gifts were numerous and costly. Mr. and Mrs. McLachlan, amid showers of good wishes and confetti, left on the evening train for Toronto and points west. The bride's travelling suit was navy blue broadcloth with hat to match. The young couple will reside at "Rusholme Farm," Caledon, and will be at home to their friends after November 1st.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

J. W. Rinn, of Creemore, has gone to Flint, Mich., where he intends to start a poultry farm.

Mr. Harry Howson, B.A., has accepted a position in the actuarial department of the Canada Life Insurance Co., Toronto.

Duke—South.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira South on Wednesday, Sept. 16th, when their daughter, Hazel Estella, was married to Mr. George Duke. Rev. A. J. Fowlie performed the ceremony, while the bride's sister, Miss Florence South, played the wedding march. The bride was beautifully attired in ivory duchess satin, trimmed with pearls and shadow lace. The groom's gift to the bride was a Doherty piano. Numerous other presents were also in evidence. After a recherche wedding breakfast the happy couple left for a short trip to Toronto, the bride's going away suit being of navy blue with hat to match.

McKitrick—Browne.

One of Wiarton's prettiest house weddings took place on September 30th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Browne, Brown St., when their daughter, Isobel Aliene, was married to Mr. Alexander McKitrick, B. A., of Orangeville, the Rev. J. E. Thompson officiating. The bride gowned in ivory charmeuse with tunic of oriental lace and pearl trimmings, entered the drawing room as the wedding music was being rendered by Miss Dorothea E. Browne, A. L.C.M., sister of the bride. Tinted autumn vines, asters and mountain snow filled the rooms. After the wedding dinner Mr. and Mrs. McKitrick left for Toronto en route to New York, the bride travelling in a redingote suit of navy serge and smart black hat. The groom's gift to the bride was a set of mink furs and to the pianiste a rose chain.

Golden Wedding.

On Wednesday, Sept. 23rd, Valley Farm, Amaranth, was the scene of a very pleasant and rare event, when Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tansley celebrated their golden wedding. The guests, including only their children and grandchildren, sat down to a very dainty wedding dinner, after which they presented the old couple with suitable gifts of gold. Early in the evening the party dispersed, after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Tansley many more years of wedded life.

Mr. J. H. Wilson, who has been in Vancouver for the past two years, has returned home and has purchased from his father, Mr. Hugh Wilson, the homestead at Kilmanagh.

On Board H. M. S. DREADNOUGHT.

(From the "Montreal Weekly Witness.")

When the sea grows gray and silent, and the moon sinks out o' sight,
And the stars turn sick an' tremble after seven hours of fight,
God keep us dirty sailor men, from the Pole Star to the Cross,
For we need Almighty keepin', an' some high, Almighty Boss.

For when the whole deck's throbbin'
There ain't no time for prayer;
But it's "Point your Long Tom dainty
Over twenty miles of air!"

When them wounded German fellows came a-shakin' up our side
I was funny round my stomach, an' my bloomin' British pride
Trembled like a silly pennant, they was all so human like;
They had eyes an' hands an' faces just like any other tike.

But when the horizon's spittin'
And we're coughin' back at it,
Say' it's "Sweep the sea o' Germans!"
An' "I guess—that—hit!"

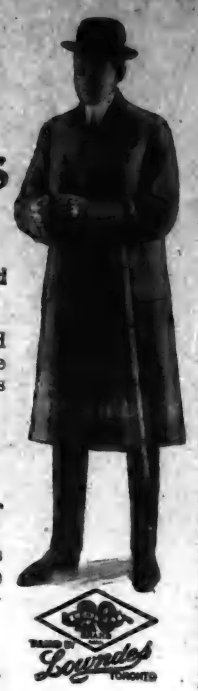
I was walkin' past a cabin where we kept our prisoners tight.
The sentry-go says, "Look her," an' I see a funny sight;
There was two of them a-lookin' at a picture in their hand,
Just as if there's German mothers in the German Fatherland.

But when we're in the fight line,
It's "Forget your thoughts and fire!"
While the look-out says beside you,
"Steady! Nose her up a little higher!"

When I stopped an' looked to seaward in a tiny breathin' spell
I see a Dreadnought stagger with her nose deep in the swell;
She was struck below the belly, an' she sunk an' gurgled down
Very casual like, an' careless; made me sweat to see her drown.

But when we're stripped for action,
Say, it's "Glory! glory!" then,
An' it's "Sweep the sea o' Germans!"
As we pick the range again.

We were lyin' close in harbor, coalin' up at Halifax,
I was messin' with the range guns, streakin' polish down their backs.
There was somethin' in the air—fell like happy English rain';
An' my mate, he says "You're bawlin'" an' I says, "I guess that's plain!"



But when we're sweatin' dirty,
An' the sea's unholy red,
Say, it's, "Mates, we'll fight for England
Till the sun hisself is dead!"

ARTHUR L. PHELPS.

Sept. 15th.

The above poem, written for the Montreal "Weekly Witness," is one of the many strong things appearing in that splendid journal, and coming so close upon the wrecks of our own ships grips us hard. The editorials of the "Witness" on the War Situation have the right ring to them, and are the product of a mind more than usually well informed, and far-sighted. Those not now getting the "Witness" may have it on trial to the end of the year by sending fifteen cents in stamps to its old time publishers, John Dougall & Son, "Witness" Block, Montreal. It costs little to try it, and people who are not getting the "Witness" do not realize what they are missing. Some do not agree with it in everything. Neither do we. But it is one of the few great worth while papers all the same—and fifteen cents gets it to the end of the year.

Do Not Gamble with Your Eyes!

A Competent Optician has no time to travel from town to town, flitting about like a Butterfly. He has all he can do at home.

BUT

He must be a Competent Man or he will not be able to stay long in any one place. I have been in Orangeville for Seventeen years and my business is increasing every day, which in itself is the best proof of my ability. Why deal with strangers who have constantly to hunt new fields when you have a permanent Optical Store in your own town? We do not sell

Nor even $2.50 for one dollar, nor yet do we charge you $5.00 or even $2.50 for Glasses worth only $1.00. But when we charge you $2.50 or $4.00 for Glasses you get what you pay for, and you can get your money back any time if goods are not worth all that you pay for them.

This is no three day sale nor yet a misleading statement. There is no occasion for a rush. Our Store is here every day awaiting your own convenience, ready to give a scientific and up-to-date Examination. We can replace any broken Lense no matter where you purchase your Glasses.

THE KIEL CANAL AND THE GREAT WAR.

The Kaiser Wilhelm Canal—generally called the Kiel Canal—runs from Kiel, on the Baltic Sea, to Brunsbuttel, on the Elbe estuary, a short distance from the sea, and cuts off the long and rather hazardous passage through the Cattegat and around the northern end of Denmark. The canal was opened in 1895, and the completion of its enlargement was formally celebrated by a visit from the Kaiser in April of this year. By its enlargement the biggest battleship in the world can pass through it.

The pride of Kiel is its magnificent harbour and two huge forts, making it a place of great strategic strength. To the German navy the canal is deemed to be of inestimable advantage, enabling a commander to throw the entire fleet from one sea to the other in a few hours, and to menace an opposing British fleet from points several hundred miles apart.

The new locks of the Kiel Canal lack the imposing height of those at Panama, but are bigger in every other respect. They are 1,082 feet long, as against Panama's 1,000 feet, and have a mean depth of 45 feet of water over the sills, as against Panama's 41 feet. The new Kiel is 400 feet wide at the surface, 150 wide at the bottom, and is provided with 11 sidings at which vessels may pass.

Kiel is the chief naval port of Germany on the Baltic, a town of the Prussian province of Schleswig-Holstein. It has been developed by the Kaiser into a great naval arsenal.

The island of Heligoland, lying off the mouths of the Elbe and the Weser, 28 miles from the mainland was, from 1907 to 1890, a British possession. In the latter year it was ceded by the government of Lord Salisbury to Germany, and since 1892 has formed part of the Prussian province of Schleswig-Holstein. As soon as the Kaiser obtained possession of the island he had it strongly fortified, the old British batteries being replaced by armoured turrets mounting great guns of heavy calibre. It has also been used by the navy for a coaling station and has great strategic value to Germany in the present crisis.

OH, ME! OH, MY! I'M I!.

(Translated from a German memorandum found in the Kaiser's personal wastepaper basket. The original has been presented to the British Museum by the finder, John Kendrick Bangs.)

Oh Me!
Oh My!!
And likewise I!!!
Sit still, my curls, while I orate
Me, I, Myself, The Throne, The State
I am the earth, the moon, the sun
All rolled in one!

Both hemispheres am I,
Oh my!
If there were three, the Three I'd be.
I am the Dipper, Night and Day,
The North and Southern Poles, the Milky Way.
I am they that walk or fly on wing,
Or swim or creep  I'm everything.

It makes me tremble like the aspen tree
To think I'm Me!
And blink like stars up in the sky
To think I'm I—
And strink in terror like a frenzied elf
To realize that I'm Myself!

Ye blithering slaves beneath my iron heel,
What know ye of the things I feel?
Didst ever awake at dead of night,
And stand in awe of thine own might?

It took six days to make the land and sea.
But centuries were passed in making Me,
The Universe? An easy task! but I—
Oh My!!

Rev. D. C. McGregor, of the Presbyterian Moral and Social Reform has accepted the call of St. Andrew's Church at London.

Samuel Wauchope, of Bolton, was holding a team, of horses by the head when the animals were startled. Mr. Wauchope was knocked down, the horses trampling on him and the rig passing over his body. It was found he had received serious injury and for a time his life was despaired of.

Should Take a Lesson.

Canadian business men, who have been so frightened by the declaration of war, should take a lesson from the mother country. The merchants of the old land, after the first shock, which unsettled them for about a week, have taken a philosophical view, and settled down to business just as though there were no war. Naturally, their trade has suffered, and will suffer to some extent because of the withdrawal of so many men from the productive trades, but Canadian merchants should not be affected to anything like the same extent as those of the old country.

The Canadian Press Association has begun a series of "optimistic news items," which it would be well for merchants and manufacturers to read and think over. Take the cotton trade, for instance. The war has cut off imports of cotton goods from Germany, and curtailed the receipts from France and Switzerland. Thus Canadian cotton mills will be called upon to furnish a larger supply than formerly. For some time previous to the outbreak of the war, the consumption of cotton in Canada had been very much under normal. Many dealers had, owing to unsatisfactory business conditions, allowed their stocks to run down, but many dealers placed orders for future needs, subject to later instruction as to delivery. Since the commencement of hostilities, most of such orders have been released for immediate shipment. The release of those orders, and the receipt of new orders from customers who had delayed because of uncertainty as to crop and business conditions, besides new orders from other dealers, which had been formerly placed abroad, have given the cotton industry in Canada a great impetus at the present time. There is also a dearth of jute in Canada. Jute is a product of India and has been manufactured heretofore in the United Kingdom. The scarcity of jute has caused manufacturers manufacturers to use heavy cotton instead, in the making of flour bags, sugar bags and oil-cloth. Thus the outlook for the cotton industry in Canada is brighter to-day than it has been for some time, and everything points to a busy winter for the Canadian cotton mills, and the steady employment of about 14,000 worvers.

The Dominion Textile Mills have also experienced a stimulation, and work on full time has been resumed in the ten mills operated by the company. This will mean the placing in circulation annually of upwards of $10,000,000.

Another industry which has been benefitted in a financial way by the outbreak of hostilities and consequent reduced production of supplies in other countries, is the manufacture of Canadian jam. Going to the fruit market in Toronto, one will find that many retailers have been deprived of their usual supplies of fruit, by the presence of buyers from the canneries, who have put up prices to a figure which the smaller retailers and street pedlars find it impossible to pay and make a profit.

The Consolidated Rubber Factories also have experienced an impetus, and the Canadian Flour Mills will be kept running at full capacity. Their employees are thus assured constant work throughout the year. This means that $4,000,000 in wages will be paid out to Canadian workmen.

During the Crimean War, the farmers of this country reaped great benefit. Everything the farmer raised was in demand at high prices. When the Boar War was on, Canadian producers and manufacturers were kept busy to their fullest capacity, and many manufacturers and merchants secured large profits.

Taking a calm view of the situation, The Sentinel fails to see why the merchants and manufacturers in this country should suffer great loss of business. Capital, of course, is very sensitive, and the hoarding of capital is the chief cause of hard times; but we can see no reason why the business of Canada should not go steadily forward. The most important thing of all, looking to the financial benefit of this country, will be the cultivation of the land—the production of more of the necessaries of life—for which there will be an increased demand, especially next season. The countries engaged in war will not be able to raise their normal quantity of cereal and other crops, and all that we can raise in Canada will without doubt be needed by the mother country. Prices are considered high now, but if the war continues for a year, or more, the people will have to pay a good deal more than at present for what they have to live on.—Orange Sentinel.

Much Pain From Kidney Disease

Doctored in Vain Until Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Were Used.

Kidney derangements are often associated with disorders of the liver and bowels, and under these conditions ordinary kidney medicines usually fail to effect cure. It is because of their unique, combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so generally successful, even in the most complicated cases.

Mr. Emanuel Bernard, farmer, St. Paul's, Kent county, N.B., writes:—"About eighteen years ago my wife was bad with kidney disease, and suffered greatly from headaches, pains in bowels and stomach, and her heart was affected. For a year she was treated by her doctor, with no apparent benefit. She then used five boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with most satisfactory results. This gave us such a good opinion of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills that we always keep them in the house to be used for all derangements of the kidneys, liver and bowels." Paris Continues Her Defence Preparations Despite Marne Victory

ALTHOUGH the events of the past few days along the River Marne have removed in great measure the pressure on Paris and many experts have declare that the French capital will never be besieged by the Kaiser, there is no let up to the activity in the metropolis. The vigorous and brilliant General Gallieni, who is in charge of the city's defences, has a host of men at work strengthening the entrenchments and all day and night the pavements ring with the sound of marching feet. Companies of men, standing army men and men from the various grades of reservists, are being equipped with all speed and hurried to their appointed places in the outworks which honeycomb the environs of the city.

While the details of the defences of Paris are surrounded with strict secrecy, yet their general character and formidable strength are well known to military experts.

They consist of three distinct circles sweeping around the city: First, the solid wall of masonry, eighteen feet high, extending for twenty-two miles around the old sections of Paris; second, the system of seventeen detached forts arranged at intervals two miles beyond the wall and making a circuit of the city thirty-four miles in extent, and, third, an outer girdle of forts seventy-five miles in circuit on the heights commanding the valley of the Seine.

MARCHING THROUGH PARIS.

AREA OF 400 SQUARE MILES.

Each of these circles of masonry and steel is a complete defence in itself, the forts being linked together with redoubt, bastion and glacis, which permit a crossfire against approach from any direction. The magnitude of the system is shown by its area, which is 400 square miles.

The wall around Paris and the seventeen detached forts two miles beyond it were built by Louis Philippe. They sustained the German siege of 1870-1, and the outer forts have since been greatly strengthened. The third line of forts, on the hills of St. Germain, Cormilles and Villiers, are of modern construction, with the latest types of batteries and heavy guns.

The inner wall about Paris surrounds the best known and most important sections of the city, including the business sections along the grand boulevards, the residence sections on the north and west of the city and the Latin quarter and other sections of the left bank of the Seine. Outside of the wall a circle of suburbs extends for many miles, including Neuilly, Argenteuil, Versailles, Vincennes and many others. The forts of the second and third line of defences are dotted among these suburbs, protecting them and the approaches to the capital. The wall contains ninety-three bastions and sixty-seven gates. Some of these have been abandoned, owing to the pressure of modern construction and trade. But recent advices received from Paris say that all the gates still existing are now closed at 8 p.m. with rigid regulations against movements from within or without.

VETERAN OF 1870.

The second line of forts includes the famous fortress of Mont Valerien, which was the centre of attack in the German siege of 1870. It is strengthened by two groups of works —Hautes Bruyeres and the Chatillon fort and batteries. South of the city is the row of forts at Ivry, Bicetre, Mont Rouge, Vanves and Issy; north and east of the city are three great forts around St. Denis and two others at Fort Aubervilliers and Fort Charenton, commanding the approaches from the great wood of Bondy.

The outer circle of forts, which are of the most modern type, have from twenty-four to sixty guns and 600 to 1,200 men each.

Mexico Too Tame.

Thirsting for fiercer fighting, Fred Knight, an adventurous young Scotsman, arrived in London, Ont., the other day, from Mexico, where he has been fighting under Villa, and left on the first train for Valcartier, where he hopes to catch a place on the first Canadian contingent.

Loss of Kiaochau Means End of German Prestige in the Orient

THE Japanese attack on the German possessions of Kiauchau, in China, is a slap back at Germany for her interference in 1895, when Japan obtained from China the Liaotung peninsula. Germany, Russia and France by the display of force and a peremptory note compelled the Mikado to retrocede the territory. Japan particularly resented German interference because at the time Germany had no possessions in China, and now that she has a possession Japan does not intend that Germany shall keep it.

Equally offensive to the Japanese was the so called "murder convention" of 1898. The Kaiser's exaction of reparation for German missionaries slain, the "manifestation of the policy of the mailed fist," the acquirement of Kiauchau bay virtually by using force, increased and hastened the Boxer troubles in China. Japan protested; Germany insisted that she must have "reparation and a coaling station." Russia intrigued; other powers announced a disapproval of German methods; Japanese opposition was ineffectual. The result was that Russia, as the price of her friendship for China, secured a lease of the Port Arthur peninsula, and England, claiming compensation, took leased territory at Waihaiwei.

FORTIFIED TSINGTAO.

Years later, although strongly fortified and stubbornly defended, Port Arthur fell into the hands of the Japanese. Great Britain, caring little apparently for Waihaiwei, simply holds the place. On the Chinese coast Hong Kong is the only British naval base. But each year that passed appreciably added to the utility and preparedness of Tsingtao, the German port and fortress on Kiauchau bay.

Established at Kiauchau, the Germans labored hard to develop the harbor. They dredged and dredged and dredged. They cleaned out the channel so that the largest ships afloat could go into port at Tsingtao. They excavated at an expense exceeding $7,000,000 an outer and an inner harbor. They erected great granite piers, so arranged that ships alongside could receive cargo direct from railway trains. The docks and railway terminals at Tsingtao are models of convenience. Millions were spent to provide special facilities for ocean commerce. Some six miles back from the sea a typical German city was built. The scale on which things were done may be shown by the fact that the casino at Tsingtao cost more than $1,500,000. Included in the improvements undertaken is the extensive reforestation of the erstwhile treeless hills. The population of Kiauchau is about 120,000 Chinese and 4,725 Europeans. The acquisition of the place gave German trade and commerce their first firm foothold in the orient.

MEANT FOR STRONGHOLD.

From an official point of view, at Kiauchau, commerce is a secondary consideration. First and foremost the intention was that Tsingtao should be the Kaiser's stronghold in the far east. From the beginning the Germans have been fortifying and building more fortifications. Utilizing every natural advantage, the Kaiser's engineers have done their utmost to provide defences for Kiauchau. No outsider knows how many big guns have been placed on the heights commanding the entrance to the bay. It is notable, though, that twelve forts have been erected for the protection of Tsingtao. The barracks built in 1905 provide quarters for 5,000 men. The steel floating dock is capable of accommodating the largest Dreadnought. In addition to the regular garrison of artillerymen and marines, some years ago the authorities at Kiauchau maintained two regiments of Chinese infantry recruited from the native population of the leased territory. Officered and trained by Germans, these Chinese make fairly good soldiers. The native reserves of the colony now number about 2,000.

Exclusive of Chinese and not counting the crews of the warships in Kiauchau bay, the Tsingtao garrison, strengthened by the German and the Austrian legation guards withdrawn from Pekin, has been 8,000 men. To this force should be added 1,000 reservists, for every ablebodied German civilian in the colony was called upon to perform military duty.

That it does not pay to monkey with the liquor selling business in Owen Sound was found out by Gus Helberg when he was fined $200 and costs for selling liquor in a local option district. It was charged that he had sold a bottle of gin to George Graves and the latter swore positively that he had bought the liquor from Helberg. This, coupled with the evidence of Inspector Beckett, led the Magistrate to find Helberg guilty of selling. The Inspector pressed for a fine of $500 but $200 and costs was the sentence.

ALL GRAIN OR SOME STOCK.

There has been a great deal written and much loud shouting during the past few weeks about Canada's opportunities and many of the writers and speakers, in fact most of them, have emphasized wheat and wheat only. Coming just at a time when there has been a great agitation for less wheat and more mixed farming with live stock this sudden change only serves to show how quickly a crisis can change the minds of the people who try to do the farmer's thinking for him. Experience has proven that live stock farming is the surest way to increase and maintain an increased production. The producer knows this and yet with all the argument being thrown at him and thrust upon him that to be loyal he must grow more wheat and increase production he is in reality sowing more wheat and some of it we are sorry to say is going in on land not well prepared and not fitted for wheat production. The result on such land cannot but be disappointing. Is this increasing production?

Financiers may be able to sow a crop of coin and reap an hundred hundred fold, but very often their agricultural training has been much neglected to warrant farmers taking their advice all the time. These men might do better as advisers for money lenders and stock investors than for farmers who depend upon their farms for their incomes. Grain farming has been proven to be soil mining, yes soil robbing, and yet our farmers are told to do more grain farming. True they may grow more grain in many sections but if they do they must feed more or the farm will be the poorer of the practice. We must not lose sight of the fact that there are other grains besides wheat which are used for food and we must not forget that there are other foods required in our Empire besides grain and all our farmers should look ahead a little. They plan to be farming after the war is over. What will be their chances if they overdo grain farming now? Who will reimburse them then? Who will feed the Empire then? Do we gain as a country in an Empire and does our Empire benefit by an increased acreage of poor crops or by a good acreage of big crops supported by live stock?—Farmers' Advocate.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, OCT. 8th, 1914.

BE SOLDIERS TRUE.

About twenty-five men turned out to the regular weekly drill of the new volunteer company at its last assembly, and while those present are taking an active and patriotic interest in the work there is room and need for as many more and as many as that again. The people of Orangeville are as much alive to the seriousness of the present war as are any of their fellow-citizens, but for some reason they have not become imbued with that spirit of visible patriotism, which is so evident in many other communities in this fair Canada of ours. Though there are few signs in the heavens hereabouts this country it at war, it is engaged in the most serious struggle that has ever engaged this world, and although events so far have been and are of a favorable turn, no man can tell what may happen at any moment. No one would for an instant think of unduly exciting public feeling, or of uttering one word that would tend to upset the quiet confidence with which we await the end, but is it not well to be prepared for the fortunes or misfortunes of war? Is it not possible that thousands of our men will yet be called upon to shoulder the gun and march to the firing line? Can anyone say with certainty that that possibility is not within reason? Then, such being the case, is it not the duty, the simple, plain duty of our able-bodied men to prepare for the worst, to prepare for days and nights, weeks and months, of life and death struggle with a powerful and a relentless enemy? We do not believe, at the present moment, that circumstances will arise that will compel us to fight for our homes in Canada, but, again, who can tell what an hour or a day may bring forth. The one answer to all this is BE PREPARED. The titanic struggle that is being fought out hour by hour in Europe is a long way from settlement yet, and its conclusion is as uncertain, though we have hopes, as everything in the future is and must be, therefore again we say —Be Prepared.

There was a time, not many years ago, when the men of Orangeville would have turned out to a man to fight for his country, his flag, his home and his liberty, and we believe that the same spirit exists, the same blood runs yet. Why then await, men? Why hold back? The seriousness of this terrible struggle has not perhaps got hold of you yet. But take a thought. Think of those who are going, of those who have gone, to face the withering fire of a ruthless foe that our liberty, our civilization, our lives may be saved. Give the matter a little serious thought, and then away and sign the roll and show your willingness to do all that lies in your power to protect the flag that for a thousand years has protected humanity.

It is the intention to raise a new regiment in Dufferin County, and while in some sections the company lists have been more than filled Orangeville still lags a little behind. This is not as it should be, and we believe that with a little, a very little, exertion more than enough men, sound and true in wind and limb, can be got within a couple of weeks to supply the demand in the county town. Turn out and drill, ye yeomen, drill!

A proposition to install a fire alarm box on the corner of Mill St. and Broadway was referred to the F. & W. Committee.

The council then adjourned to meet in special meeting immediately to consider charges laid against Chief Marshall. The members met and a letter was read from Mrs. Irwin containing the charges. No attention was paid to the letter, but the Chief was asked to hand in his resignation, which he accommodatingly did and it was at once accepted.

Council then adjourned.

FIELD DAY

Orangeville High and Public Schools.

It can be truly said that the Orangeville High and Public Schools while holding a high place in education also hold a firm love for outdoor sports. The attendance of the pupils and citizens at the annual field day sports on Friday, Oct. 2nd, goes to show the deep interest taken in the welfare of the younger generation. The morning events were pulled off at the High School grounds. These events were more for the hardened athlete and were the test of physical fitness. Some of the amateur records were dangerously near being broken by some of the High School boys. Perhaps from the spectators' point of view the afternoon events were the most interesting. The Exhibition grounds were used for these sports. Punctually at 2 p.m. the fun commenced and never ceased until the last event was over. The day being fine and warm brought out the young ladies in their light ducks and drills, which up to the time of the obstacle race, kept their snowy white appearance. James Stephens captured the Senior Championship with 28 points; Reg. Leason the Intermediate with 20 points, and Albert Rohmer the Junior with 20 points. The Junior Championship was very closely contested for by the two Rohmer boys, Albert and Ernie, one getting 20 and the other 18 points. The O. H. S. won the relay race by a good margin. Shelburne is to be congratulated in sending a relay team as they have not as many boys to pick from for a team. They have, in return, asked the High School to participate in their Field Day Meet in about two weeks. The slow bicycle race was an innovation and promises to become a regular event. The Intermediate half-mile was hotly contested. The Subscribers' 50 yd. dash astonished the spectators on account of the terrific pace Mr. J. W. Aiken set for some of the town's rev. gentlemen who took part. One of the most comical, but perhaps the most instructive to amateur carpenters, was the nail driving contest by the senior girls. It is well to say that no thumbs were smashed, but the heads of the nails suffered terribly. Eaoh contestant was provided with three nails and a hammer. At the word "go" each made for the fence into which three nails were driven—some of the nails finding their way into previously surveyed cracks—and the one returning to the starting point first was declared the winner. The senior girls' obstacle race was a sight to behold. The start was made by a trim line of girls, who, taking the cue from the leader, mounted the fences with whirlwind velocity, but the finish was not so glorious as the start, owing to the strenuous route mapped out by some of the sterner sex.

The results of the events are as follows:—

Running high jump, Sr.—Fred Golden, James Stephens, Morley Black—4 feet 7 inches.

Running high jump, Int.—Wesley Nodwell, Reg. Leason, Oscar Hayes 4 ft 5 in.

The Ontario Cabinet.

By unanimous agreement of the Conservative party Hon. W. H. Hearst has been chosen First Minister and President of Executive to succeed the late Hon. J. P. Whitney. Very few changes have been made in the Cabinet. Mr. Finlay G. Macdiarmid has been appointed Minister of Public Works in succession to Hon. Dr. Reaume. The following is the Cabinet as it stands to-day:—

First Minister and President of Executive Council, and Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, Hon. W. H. Hearst.

Attorney-General, Hon. J. J. Foy.

Minister of Education, Hon. R. A. Pyne.

Provincial Secretary, Hon. W. J. Hanna.

Minister of Agriculture, Hon. J. S. Duff.

Provincial Treasurer, Hon. I. B. Lucas.

Minister of Public Works, Finlay G. Macdiarmid.

Minister without portfolio, Hon. R. F. Preston.

Fine Bridges.

Mr. E. W. Cooper, of the Cooper Construction Company, has just completed two cement bridges on the county line between Peel and Dufferin, and it is safe to say that both bridges will stand the severest test that can be applied to work of that kind. One of the bridges has a 16-foot span and the other an 18-foot span. One of these is constructed over a soil that neighbors said a bridge could not be built on, but Mr. Cooper does not believe in the word fail, and he persevered and has completed a work that will last for a generation. Mr. Cooper is now engaged on another bridge, with an 18-foot span, on 10 sideroad and the 12th concession in East Garafraxa, and if the work is done as well on that as it has been on the other two there will be cause for congratulation. It is Mr. Cooper's intention to make his permanent home in Orangeville.

Gabriel vs. Coltman.

It is a painful duty, and with a hesitating pen The Banner man attempts to record the sad experience of a bunch of Shelburnites, led by the gallant Major Gabriel, in their dealings with a smooth and oily estate agent, or rather a dealer in dreams, which turn out to be nightmares without the shadow of a basis in fact. The persuasive gentleman in the case is one Milton D. Coltman, and the scene of his visions lies in Manitoba, adjacent to the City of Brandon. It was in the month of March, 1912, that the major first met the gay deceiver. Needless to say, the Major is always open for a legitimate "spec," and it was not long ere he was an investor in the brilliant scheme presented to him in seductive voice and with elaborate plans. Victoria Heights was described as an ideal spot for building on, an earthly Eden where a multi-millionaire or a man with a few thousands, could rest in peace, lay under his own tamarack tree and gaze in rapture on the stirring city at his feet. Street cars were to pass through the suburb, a $30,-000 house was to be erected on adjoining property and all modern conveniences were to be had on demand. With such a tempting layout Major Gabriel and some ten other fellow citizens went into the scheme with enthusiasm. Forty lots had been surveyed (?) and of these the Major accepted five for the sum of $1,000, on which he paid $333.33, his partners taking as many as they thought they could handle. But, lo and behold, it was not long before it became known that the scheme was a fizzle and action was taken to recover the amount paid and to be freed from further responsibility. Mr. A. A. Hughson was engaged, and after a few preliminary tussles the case came up before the county judge in Orangeville on Tuesday. At one time it was thought there would be a fight, but the case was too thin for defence, and no one appearing for the defendant it was thrown out and the plaintiff relieved of all further responsibility with the privilege of holding Mr. Milton D. Coltman for the money which had been paid him.

Thus ends another of the fakes which have been worked in many sections of the Province. It is said that as much as $140,000 has been taken out of Shelburne in similar schemes.

Before buying see J. D. Torrie's new stock of Overcoats and Raincoats.

—CLERKS: Increase your efficiency by studying salesmanship in the Night Class at the Business College.

—A second call has been sounded for another contingent for active service in the titanic struggle now going on in France, Belgium and Germany. The call is for 22,000 men, and those who have been anxious to fight for the flag will now have an opportunity to enlist. From latest reports it is likely that the first contingent will be sent to the firing line with but little delay, and the second contingent will be made ready just as soon as it can possibly be assembled. Now is the time to answer your country's call. Enlistments will be received in Orangeville, Shelburne and Grand Valley.

—The town of Hanover will spend $3000 on improving its streets to relieve the unemployed situation this fall. Fortunately for Orangeville there are no unemployed men within the corporation, at least not to any noticeable extent. Our factories are all running with their usual speed, not one of them having been affected adversely by the war. Business has run along with its usual steadiness, and as Christmas approached there is reason to believe that it will improve by leaps and bounds until the holiday will be welcomed for the relief it will give overworked employers and employees. This is a state of affairs for which our citizens should, and are doubtless, truly thankful.

A SQUARE DEAL TO ALL

Honest and Fair Treatment Will Be Feature of The Banner Contest---A Secret Closing.

During the last week of the contest candidates will be obliged to deposit their subscription slips and money in a secret ballot box. No one except the candidate will know how many votes he or she turns in during the last week. A box is being specially made—the only opening being a slit in the top large enough to allow the sealed envelopes to be dropped through. The ballot box will be turned over to a committee of auditors, who will cut it open and count the votes. The auditors will be representative men of this district. This is the fairest possible method for the treatment of candidates that can be devised. The Orangeville Banner is for "The Square Deal to All."

CALEDON.

President Smith and Secretary Rutledge are busy men these days preparing for Caledon's great Fall Exhibition on Thursday and Friday next and if they can only prevail on the weather man to do the right thing we will have a bigger and better fair than ever.

Mrs. Robert McLaughlin and two daughters have removed their household effects to Toronto and will take up their residence there in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Vanwyck have decided to move to Detroit, where their daughter, Ina May, has secured a very lucrative position. We wish them success in the land of the Stars and Stripes.

Mr. Ben Harrison, of Toronto, spent the week end with friends and relatives here.

Messrs. Harris and Smith, of Hillsburg, have been cutting corn and filling silos in this vicinity with their new gasoline engine and blower ensilage cutter and have done good work for Mr. Sam. Nelson, Mr. Patrick Garrity and Mr. Geo. Hillyard. The corn was a splendid crop this year.

Caledon Methodists will hold their Harvest Home services on the 18th inst and a splendid entertainment about the 20th. Further particulars later.

The first school fair in the Township of Caledon was held here on Oct. 1st, and was a pronounced success in every way. The show in the hall would have done credit to older heads while the contests outside were enjoyed by all. There was a large attendance and next year it will be run on a larger scale.

The young bachelors of Caledon held a very successful ball here on Friday night.

Suckling—Meyers.

A quiet wedding took place at a quarter past four o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 6th, in the St. James' square Presbyterian Church, Toronto, when the marriage was solemnized by the pastor, the Rev. Andrew Robertson, of Miss Marian Elizabeth Meyers, youngest daughter of the late Elgin Meyers, K.C., of Orangeville, to Mr. William Austin Suckling, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Suckling. The bride, who was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. Cecil Irvine, wore a travelling suit of navy blue, a black hat with Paddy green crown, black fox furs, the gifts of the groom, and corsage bouquet of mauve orchids. The bride was unattended. Mr. Charles Boomer, was best man. After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Suckling drove to the station and left to spend their honeymoon in New York, Boston and Philadelphia. On their return they will reside at 25 Farnham Ave., Toronto.

POWELL—GALLAUGHER

At high noon on Thursday, Sept. 24th, Fairview Farm, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Gallaugher, was the scene of a happy event when their second daughter, Olive Frances, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Rupert Powell, of Parry Sound. The ceremony took place on the lawn under a beautiful arch of evergreens and flowers, and was performed by Rev. G. E. Coulter, of Mansfield, Ont. The bride, who was given away by her father, was gowned in white satin with chiffon drapery and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lily of the valley. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Eleanor Webster, cousin of the bride. The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful silver mesh bag. After the ceremony the bridal party led the way to the dining room where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served. Later in the day the happy couple left by automobile for Alliston, where they took the train for Toronto, Niagara and other points, the bride travelling in a wine colored suit with picture hat of black and white. Mr. and Mrs. Powell will reside in Parry Sound and will be at home to their friends after November 1st, 1914.

Aitchison—Patmore.

At the home of Mr. E. R. Patmore, in Elora, on Wednesday, September 23rd, 1914, a very pretty wedding took place, the principals being Mr. John A. Aitchison, of Orangeville, and Miss Louise E. Patmore, daughter of Mr. Patmore, mentioned above. The officiating minister was the Rev. J. Austin Jackson, of Elora Methodist Church. The bride and groom were unattended, the ceremony being witnessed by relatives and a few intimate friends. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a dress of ivory crepe de chene, and carried a bouquet of roses and lily of the valley. After the ceremony the signing of the register and the congratulations, the company adjourned to the dining room, where a dainty lunch was partaken of. The house was a bower of beauty, with garlands of clematis and bowls of asters in profusion. The numerous and costly presents received by the bride from a wide circle of friends testified to the popularity of the young couple. Mr. and Mrs. Aitchison left on the 5 o'clock train on a wedding trip, the bride wearing a redingote suit of navy blue. On their return they will spend a few days in and around Elora before leaving for their future home in Orangeville. The Express joins in the general chorus of good wishes.—Elora Express.

Mr. Aitchison is a member of the well-known hardware firm of Adamson & Co., who have been conducting a prosperous business here for many years. The Banner unites with their many friends in wishing the happy couple a long, prosperous and happy life.

The choir furnished special music at all services which was much appreciated. At the evening service Mrs. Lane, of Grand Valley, delighted the congregation with a sweetly rendered solo. The ladies of the congregation are to be congratulated for the noble way in which they have undertaken the task of redecorating the church. DOCTORS DID NOT HELP HER

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Bradley's Health—Her Own Statement.

Winnipeg, Canada. — "Eleven years ago I went to the Victoria Hospital, Montreal, suffering with a growth. The doctors said it was a tumor and could not be removed as it would cause instant death. They found that my organs were affected, and said I could not live more than six months in the condition I was in.

"After I came home I saw your advertisement in the paper, and commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it constantly for two years, and still take it at times, and both my husband and myself claim that it was the means of saving my life. I highly recommend it to suffering women."—Mrs. ORILLA BRADLEY, 284 Johnson Ave., Winnipeg, Manitoba, Can.

Why will women take chances or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

MANY WITH SINEWS CUT.

Toronto Man Corroborates Stories of German Brutality.

Private T. M. Galbraith of the Royal Engineers, late of Toronto and now an instructor of infantry at Point Paul Battery, Yorkshire, writes to his brother on Ravensden avenue, Toronto, as follows:

"Have just arrived here from Chatham. From where we are stationed we are able to see the North Sea squadron. At night we can see the bright searchlights flashing across the sky and sea.

"There are a lot of our lads lying wounded in Chatham hospitals. Some of them are in pretty bad shape, the brutal Germans having cut the sinews of their wrists; so it is possible they will be good for nothing in future. We have many German prisoners in Chatham, and we are using them good."

A British soldier has written home as follows:

"The Germans expected to envelop the British and French armies on the anniversary of Sedan. From several sources it is made clear that the men who swept forward to attack the British line had been made aware of their mission. They were told that if they would smash the British force, England would ask for peace and desert her ally.

"A soldier told me that he found himself mixed up with a French regiment on the right. He wanted to fall in with his French comrades but the officers in charge smilingly shook his head.

"They will spot you in your khaki and put you out in no time," he said in English.

"Make your way to the left—you'll find your fellows on that hill."

THE TRAGEDY OF RHEIMS.

Cardinal Lucon Brokenhearted at Ruin of Cathedral.

The magnificent cathedral of Rheims, which had successfully withstood the storms of centuries and which was a national monument of universal fame, is now merely an empty shell of charred and blackened walls, while its transcendant beauty may henceforth remain only as a memory. It is not known to what extent its stone walls have been weakened or whether it can be later restored in any degree, but it can never be made what it was before, that is certain. Its destruction resulted from a bombardment by the German army, which its commanding officers declared was unavoidable, since the place was directly in the line of fire. The French, on the other hand, insist that it was an act of wanton vandalism and wholly without reasonable excuse. The question may never be satisfactorily settled, but the fact that the bombardment was resumed deliberately on Thursday and Friday, Sept. 24th and 25th, indicates that the French are right.

CARDINAL LUCON.

The fire started Sunday afternoon, when shell after shell of the 500 hurled into the city by German batteries crashed into the old masonry that had safely passed through countless storms in the past. Some scaffolding erected to facilitate repairs to the east end of the ancient cathedral was first to catch fire and from this the flames spread to the old oak timbers of the roof and the beautifully carved woodwork of the vast interior.

The man of all living persons who will regret the vandalism most is Cardinal Lucon, Archbishop of Rheims, who was hurrying home from Rome when the outrage occurred. His grief was extreme and he called down the vengeance of Heaven upon the vandals.

"War Novelties" Sell Well.

The manufacture of "war novelties" that are being sold at a Regent street, London, shop, is keeping several factories busy. Silk flags of all nations, except those of Germany and Austria, are particularly popular, being used as dinner table and general interior house decorations.

The profit made on each article sold is given to the Red Cross Society. The flags cost from 25 cents to $2.50 each. In a $2.50 flag the profit is 60 cents. A pincushion with a patriotic emblem, sold for 25 cents, gives four cents to the fund, and a more elaborate pincushion, sold at 32 cents, gives 8 cents.

Precautions In Berlin.

Every French and English name has disappeared in Berlin, according to cables, the Westminster hotel becoming the Station hotel and the Piccadilly cafe the Vaterland. Clocks in jewelers' windows, formerly registering the hour in each capital of the world, now have paper paste over the names of London, Paris, St. Petersburg and Brussels.

MUST SHAM DEATH.

Wounded Are Shot By Germans If They Call For Help.

A representative of The Matin, of Paris, has seen and spoken with a wounded French officer who is now in Paris. He is a young Breton, a lieutenant of the Dragoons, who received his wound—or, rather, his wounds, one of which was dealt by a German lieutenant while he was lying half-unconscious on the field of battle—in a skirmish on the banks of the Meuse. He said that his captain ordered him to reconnoitre with several of his men in the neighborhood of Longuyon. When he reached Longuyon he halted and visited the hospital, where a dozen French wounded were lying.

One of them said to him, "Let me give you a piece of advice. If you are hit, sham dead, otherwise they will finish you off." "I thought," says the lieutenant, "that these words were the hallucination of a dying man, and paid no attention to them. I was very wrong. Shortly afterwards the Mayor of Longuyon told me that German chasseurs had been seen near Beuville. I called my men, and we started. We saw no Germans in the village, but on the other side of it we came across two chasseurs, who galloped off when they saw us. We pursued them, and 400 hundred yards further on we came upon their main body.

"I told my four dragoons to rally at a farm 500 yards behind, and, in spite of the difference of numbers between us and the enemy's force, I ordered a charge. We were received by a volley, but not one of us was hit. At a hundred yards distance from the enemy, my horse fell dead, bringing me down with him. I must must have been hit at the same moment, for I felt a sharp pain in my shoulder. My orderly fell at my side. Then I fainted.

"A little time after, having recovered consciousness, I called feebly for help. A German soldier came up, and seeing that I was an officer, called his commander, whom I afterwards learned to be von Schaffenburg, of the Chasseurs of Prague. He came up behind me, took my pistol, and fired, point blank, a shot at me, that hit me in the stomach. I fainted again. What happened afterwards I learned from my orderly, whom I had thought to be dead, but who had merely shammed death. The German officer, it appears, kept my revolver, stole my field glasses, and searched my pockets, taking from them the sum of 200 francs in gold.

"It was then 11 o'clock. I lay there unconscious under the burning sun till half-past twelve. Then I felt somebody tapping my head, and heard a familiar voice saying, 'Mon Lieutenant, are you dead?' It was my orderly, whom the Germans had left alone, thinking he was dead; but not before they had taken from his pockets the few francs he possessed. I asked him to go to the village and fetch a vehicle, which he did. In it I was taken to Longuyon, where I received first aid. To-day I am almost convalescent and I hope in a few weeks to be able to return to the front."

PARISIANS ARE QUIET.

A Stereotyped Note Is All They Hear of Their Loved Ones.

One looking for excitement in the Paris streets these days will not find it, says a correspondent writing from that city. Quiet women are seen going about, a few foreign men, but seldom a Frenchman of middle years. Most of the shops are closed, and the cafes and restaurants which are open, shut early.

The butcher, the barber, all our usual public servants, are off to the front. It is useless to inquire if news is received by those left behind. The ones who have gone have just stepped out into a gulf by which they have been swallowed up by the enormous "zone of operations." Their families may write to them in special envelopes addressed to the War Office. But that is all the address there is on those envelopes. The ones at home will never know where the soldiers are fighting unless they come home again, so secretly and silently is this war of wars being waged.

If they never appear, the family will receive a simple card from the War Office: "_____ related to you, has fallen on the field of honor. That is all.

Nearly all the large hotels are closed. And if one enters the Hotel Majestic, which is open, no porter runs forward to relieve the traveler of his burden. He must carry his own bag. The porters are at Nancy, or perhaps at Verdun, shouldering a rifle.

Making a marked contrast to conditions in Berlin, there are still many Germans here. They go about quietly, and are not molested. The French sense of honor is high. They do not wish to take advantage of these luckless individuals. There have been only a few incidents where mobs became excited and insulted them.

A German Officer's Diary.

A Rouen correspondent has obtained possession of the diary of a German officer, who surrendered to a party of stragglers, and quotes the following from it:

"Aug. 5.—Our losses to-day before Liege have been frightful. Never mind; it is all allowed for. Besides, the fallen are only Polish beginners, the spilling of whose blood will spread the war lust at home—a necessary factor.

"Aug. 11.—And now for the English. To-night William the Greater has given us beautiful advice: 'You think each day of your emperor. Do not forget God.' His Majesty should remember that thinking of him we think of God, for is he not the Almighty's representative in this glorious fight for the right?

"Aug. 14.—Every night now a chapter of the war of 1870 is read to us. What a great notion! But is it necessary?"

Rheumatic Misery

Can Only Be Cured Through the Blood—Liniments of No Use.

In no disease does the blood become thin so rapidly as in rheumatism. Not only does it become thin but it is loaded with impurities—rheumatic poisons. Without the proper treatment these poisons increase, the inflamed joints swell and the patient becomes a cripple. There are a number of methods of treating rheumatism, most of them aiming to keep down the rheumatic poisons until nature can build up the blood sufficiently to overcome them. But unfavorable conditions of cold or dampness may give the disease the advantage and a relapse or renewed attack follows.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People build up the blood and enable it to cast out the rheumatic poisons with the natural secretions of the body. Thousands have tried this treatment with the most beneficial results. That every sufferer who does not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is neglecting the most helpful means of recovery is shown by the following statement. Mrs. Emeline Smith, St. Jerome, Que., says: "I was attacked with what the doctor said was inflammatory rheumatism. The joints of my hands, feet and limbs were badly swollen, and I suffered the most excruciating pain. Notwithstanding medical treatment the trouble became so bad that I could not go about. My appetite began to fail me and I was growing physically weak. A neighbor who had been benefitted by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advised me to try them and I decided to do so. In the course of a few weeks I noted some improvement, and my appetite began to return. Then the swelling in my joints began to disappear, and it was not long until I was perfectly cured and I have had no return of the trouble."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Skin Trouble on the Scalp

Skin Dried and Cracked and Hair Fell Out—Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Eczema is annoying and distressing at any time, but doubly so when it gets into the scalp and causes the hair to fall out. Here is a grateful letter from a lady who was cured by using Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. Hector Currie, Tobermory, Ont., writes:—"I was cured of a disagreeable skin disease of the scalp by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. The trouble started with itching and pain in the scalp, the skin would get dry and crack, and at times would bleed, and the hair would fall out. I tried three doctors without benefit and suffered for three years. Reading in the almanac about Dr. Chase's Ointment, I began its use, and am now completely cured. The hair has grown again, and I am as well as I ever was. You are at liberty to use this letter, for I am glad to recommend so excellent a treatment."

Dr. Chase's Ointment has no rival as a cure for itching skin disease.

MILK IN THE COCOANUT BETTER GET AFTER IT

Great Opportunity For "Made-in-Canada" Products—European Products Are Now Shut Out

While the nations of Europe are at war, the people of Canada have a duty to their own land as well as to the Mother Country. While regretting the issue forced on the Mother Country and giving contingents to England's aid, let us also give all the help we can to ourselves. Canada's own big problem is that of a country which has imported much—and suddenly finds those importations cut off.

You will get at the milk in the cocoanut at once by glancing at the following lists:

List No. 1

Some of the things we have been importing from Germany, Austria, etc., to the value of $38,000,000 per annum:

Analine dyes, baskets, books, boots, buttons, brooms, brushes, canned goods, chemicals, chinaware, clocks, clothing, collars and cuffs, cotton goods, combs, curtains, colors and dye stuffs, cutlery, dolls, drugs, earthenware, embroideries, electric apparatus, feathers, furs, fringe and tassels, gloves and mitts, glass and glassware, guns, hats, hosiery, hops, jewelry, knitted goods, leather goods, lace, labels, locomotive tires, machinery, millinery, mineral waters, musical instruments, optical instruments, paints and colors, papers, pencils, perfumes, pianos, pharmaceutical preparations, piano parts, piano key ivories, pipes, purses, ribbons, rubber goods, seeds, shoes, laces, silk knitted and other goods, silverware, soaps, spirits stockings and socks, time recorders, tobacco, toilet articles, tools, toys, underwear, woodenware, woollen goods, watches.

List No. 2

Some of the things mentioned in List No. 1 that we now make in Canada in competition with the manufacturers of Continental Europe:

Baskets, boots, books, buttons, brooms, brushes, canned goods, carpets, chemicals, collars and cuffs cotton goods, clothing, combs, colors and dye stuffs, cutlery, dolls, drugs earthenware, electric apparatus feathers, furs, glass and glassware, gloves and mitts, guns, hats, hosiery, jewelry, knitted goods, lamps leather goods, labels, machinery, millinery, mineral waters, musical instruments optical instruments, paints and colors, paper, perfumes, pipes, pharmaceutical preparations, pianos, piano parts, purses, ribbons, rubber goods, seeds, silverware, silk knitted goods, soaps spirits, stockings and socks, time recorders, toilet articles, tools, under wear, woodenware, woollen goods.

A Great Advantage

The Canadian manufacturers of the articles in List No. 2 have now an advantage greater than any tariff wall. The competition of Continental Europe has been withdrawn and will remain withdrawn until the war is over at least. Let the Canadian manufacturers make the most of the situation. And let the people of Canada rally round our manufacturers and help them make the most of it, for we need them and the things they make as never before.

The immediate result of the European war, in Canada, was a check to business.

The second result will be to stimulate business—if we keep our heads, and go after business.

We believe every Canadian will follow this timely advice.

RAYS OF SUNSHINE THROUGH THE CLOUDS

Some Improvement Already Noticeable in Canadian Industries—Better Times Ahead

The sudden breaking out of war caused many to "run to cover." Like the chicken on whom the rose leaf fell, some of us became a prey to fear and were ready to declare "the sky is falling."

Now the vision is clearing, our alarm has fled, we have recovered our poise and our courage. We are seeing, also, our opportunity. Swiftly and almost overwhelmingly has come to us the perception of the fact that the competition of Continental Europe has been taken away. We are faced with a condition and an opportunity both tending to our advantage as a country of industry, agriculture and trade. Good times are ahead, if Canada and Canadians see and prize the present opportunity for enlarging their industries and trading. We must be careful. We must have courage.

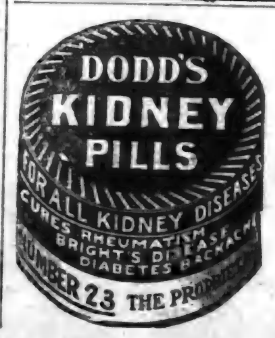
THE DAY.

The author of this magnificent poem is Mr. Henry Chappell, a railway porter at Bath, England. Mr. Chappell, is known to his comrades as the "Bath Railway Poet." A poem such as this lifts him to the rank of a national poet.

You boasted the Day, and you toasted the Day
And now the Day has come,
Blasphemer, braggart and coward all,
Little you reck of the numbling ball,
The blasting shell, or the "white arm's" fall
As they speed poor humans home.

You spied for the Day, you lied for the Day,
And woke the Day's red spleen.
Monster, who asked God's aid Divine,
Then strewed His seas with the ghastly mine;
Not all the waters of the Rhine
Can wash thy foul hands clean.

You dreamed for the Day, you schemed for the Day;
Watch how the Day will go.
Slayer of age and youth and prime
(Defenceless slain for never a crime).
Thou art steeped in blood as a hog in slime,
False friend and cowardly foe.



You have sworn for the Day, you have prayed for the Day,
Your's is the harvest red.
Can you hear the groans and the awful cries?
Can you see the heap of slain that lies,
And sightless turned to the flame-split skies
The glassy eyes of the dead?

You have wronged for the Day, you have longed for the Day
That lit the awful flame.
'Tis nothing to you that hill and plain
Yield sheaves of dead men amid the grain;
That widows mourn for their loved ones slain.
And mothers curse thy name.

But after the Day there's a price to pay,
For the sleepers under the sod,
And He you have mocked for many a day—
Listen and hear what He has to say:
"VENGEANCE IS MINE, I WILL REPAY"
What can you say to God?

ENGLAND'S LAST HOPE.

British Boy Scouts Doing Real Soldiers' Work.

The Boy Scout is now proving the worth of his training in England. Chief Scout General Sir Robt. Baden-Powell, the organizer of the Boy Scout movement, recently issued the order that puts the Boy Scouts of England on a war basis.

Britain's army is not a large one. Before the war it included less than 200,000 men. These soldiers were scattered over the islands, doing guard duty and occupying themselves in the maintenance of order in the various parts of the country. These troops have been sent for the most part across the channel. The work they did on the islands has been neglected. Moreover, their departure left no trained body of men for the additional work of guarding bridges, covering telegraph and telephone lines, acting as guides, waving the signals, carrying despatches, collecting information as to supplies, picking up and forwarding messages dropped by air craft, assisting patrol guards and distributing martial notices to inhabitants. But the Boy Scouts, by their training, were fitted to do all these things, as well as the soldiers themselves, if not better. This contingency had already been foreseen by Baden-Powell and his associates; accordingly, as soon as the situation became pressing, the order, probably prepared months in advance, was issued, and the Boy Scouts from an organization of pickers became an active part of the military service of the Government.

The response to Chief Baden-Powell's appeal for the Boy Scouts to "come and do something for your country" was instantaneous. As fast as properly equipped troops came to the fore, they were assigned to the various lines of work mentioned above as close to their own homes as was practicable. No complaint has been received to date against any Boy Scout, nor has any indication been given that they are incapable of performing the multifarious duties assigned to them.

HE COACHED TURKEY.

But Von Der Goltz Is Still a Big Fellow In Germany.

Germany's military governor of Belgium—for a little while—is Field Marshal General von der Goltz.

He was the organizer of the worst beaten army in modern history. Khr Kilisse and Lule Burgas were assumed abroad to have buried Goltz Pasha's reputation.

But a different opinion prevails at the German General Staff. Von der Goltz is in his regular capacity Inspector General of the Second Army Inspection.

Field Marshal von der Goltz's reputation as an organizer rests in his own country on his work as General of the First Army Corps—the Russian border legions—at Konigsberg which he commanded between 1906 and 1907. The assignment to the command of the corps of his native East Prussia was particularly agreeable to him and to the material with which he had to work. When open tions began, however, he was put in charge of the Belgian section of the campaign and is one of the men who will have to answer for the atrocities committed here by German officers and soldiers.

At Konigsberg Goltz had full play for his tactical genius. He devoted his energies to developing the strategic training of the First Corps, which will be called upon to bear the brunt of the early fighting with Russia. He inculcated relentlessly in officers and troops the doctrine that soldiering is all work and no play, and himself served as a tireless example of the theory. His critiques of manoeuvres were extraordinarily instructive. New points of view were constantly being revealed by him. All officers who served in Goltz's corps was looked upon as having studied the art of war at the fountain head.

Goltz is 70 years old, and has been writing, fighting, and working for more than 50 years of the time.

Servia's Army.

If Servia drew on all her reserves the utmost force she could put into the field would be 360,000 men, about one-seventh of Austria's war strength and her first line numbers only 175,000 men.

A SERIAL STORY

ANNA, The Adventuress

* * *

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

CHAPTER XXXV.—continued

"Miss Pellissier," he said, "I came here this afternoon hoping particularly to see you for a few moments before you signed that contract."

She shook her head.

"We may just as well have our talk afterwards," she said, "and I need not keep poor Mr. Earles waiting."

Courtlaw suddenly interposed.

"May I be allowed to say," he declared, "that I came here with the same intention."

"And I also," Brendon echoed.

Anna was suddenly very quiet.

She was perhaps as near tears as ever before in her life.

"If I had three hands," she said, with a faint smile, "I would give one to each of you. I know that you all have very good advice to give me. But I am afraid I am a shockingly obstinate and a very ungrateful person. No, don't let me call myself that. I am grateful, indeed I am. But on this matter my mind is quite made up."

Ennison hesitated for a moment.

"Miss Pellissier," he said, "these gentlemen are your friends, and therefore they are my firends. If I am to have no other opportunity I will speak before them. I came here to beg you not to sign that contract. I came to beg you instead to do me that honour of becoming my wife."

"And I," Courtlaw said, "although I have asked before in vain, have to come to ask you once more the same thing."

"And I," Brendon said, humbly, "although I am afraid there is no chance for me, my errand was the same."

Anna looked at them for a moment with a pitiful attempt at a smile. Then her head disappeared suddenly in her hands, and her shoulders shook violently.

"Please forgive me—for one moment," she sobbed. "I—I shall be all right directly."

Brendon rushed to the piano and strummed out a tune.

The others hurried to the window. And Anna was conscious of a few moments of exquisite emotion. After all, life had still its pulsations. The joy of being loved thrilled her as nothing before had ever done, a curious abstract joy which had nothing in it at that moment of regret or even pity.

She called them back very soon.

The signs of tears had all gone, but some subtle change seemed to have stolen into her face. She spoke readily enough, but there was a new timidity in her manner.

"My friends," she said, "my dear friends, I am going to make the same answer to all of you—and this is perhaps you will say no answer at all. At present I cannot marry. I will not become bound even to any one. It would be very hard perhaps to make you understand just how I feel about it. I won't try. Only I feel that you want to make life too easy for me, and I am determined to fight my own battles a little longer. If any of you—or all of you feel the same in six months' time from to-day, will you come, if you care to, and see me then?"

There was a brief silence. Ennison spoke at last.

"You will sign the contract?"

"I shall sign the contract. I think that I am very fortunate to have it to sign."

"Do you mean," Courtlaw asked, "that from now to the end of the six months you do not wish to see us—any of us?"

Her eyes were a little dim again.

"I do mean that," she declared. "I want to have no distractions. My work will be all sufficient. I have an aunt who is coming to live with me, and I do not intend to receive any visitors at all. It will be a little lonely sometimes," she said, looking around at them, "and I shall miss you all, but it is the fairest for myself—and I think for you. Do not avoid me if we meet by accident, but I trust to you all not to let the accident happen if you can help it."

Brendon rose and came towards her with outstretched hand.

"Good-bye, Miss Pellissier, and success to you," he said. "May you have as much good fortune as you deserve, but not enough to make you forget us."

Courtlaw rose too.

"You are of the genius obstinate," he said. "I do not know whether to wish you success or not. I will wish you success or failure, whichever is the better for you."

"And I," Ennison said, holding her fingers tightly, and forcing her to look into his eyes, "I will tell you what I have wished for you when we meet six months from to-day.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Six Months After.

Up the moss-grown path, where the rose bushes run wild, almost met, came Anna in a spotless white gown, with the flush of her early morning walk in her cheeks, and something of the brightness of it in her eyes. In one hand she carried a long-stalked red rose, dripping with dew, in the other the post bag.

She reached a tiny yellow fronted cottage covered with flowering creepers, and entered the front room by the wide open window. Breakfast was laid for one, a dish of fruit and a shining coffee equipage. By the side of her plate was a small key. With trembling fingers she opened the post bag. There was one letter. One only.

She opened and read it at once. It was dated from the House of Commons on the previous day.

"My Dear Miss Pellissier:—

"To-morrow the six months will be up. For days I have been undecided as to whether I would come to you or no. I would like you to believe that the decision I have arrived at—to stay away—is wholly and entirely to save you pain. It should be the happiest day of your life, and I would not detract from its happiness by letting you remember for a moment that there are others to whom your inevitable decision must bring some pain.

"For I know that you love Ennison. You tried bravely to hide your preference, to look ar us with the eyes, to speak to us in the same tone. It was not your fault you failed. If by any chance I have made a mistake a word will bring me to you. But I know very well that that word will never be spoken.

"Your success has been my joy, our joy as well as yours. You have made for yourself a unique place upon the stage. We have so many actresses who aspire to great things in drama, not one who can interpret as you have interpreted it, the delicate finesse, the finer lights and shades of true comedy. Ennison will make a thousand enemies if he takes you from the stage. Yet I think that he will do it.

"For my own part I have come fully now into my inheritance. I am bound to admit that I greatly enjoy my altered life. Every minute I spend here is an education to me. Before long I hope to have definite work. Some of my schemes are already in hand. People shrug their shoulders and call me a crazy socialist. Yet I fancy that we who have been poor ourselves must be the best judges of the needs of the people.

"You will write to me, I am sure—and from the date of your letter I trust most earnestly that I may come back to my old place as "Your devoted friend,

Walter Brendon."

She set the letter down, and drew from her her pocket another with a foreign post mark which had come the day before. This one too she read.

"Hassell's Camp,
"Near Colorado.

"On or about the day you receive this letter, Anna, the six months will be up. Do you expect me, I wonder. I think not. At any rate, here I am, and here I shall be, twenty thousand feet above all your poison-reeking cities, up where God's wind comes fresh from heaven, very near indeed to the untrodden snows. Sometimes I tremble, Anna, to think how near I came to passing through life without a single glimpse, a moment's revelation of this greatest and most awful of mysteries, the mystery of primeaval nature. It is a true saying that in the mountains there is peace. One's sense of proportion, battered out of all shape in the daily life of cities, reasserts itself. I love you still, Anna, but life holds other things that the love of man for woman. Some day I shall come back, and I will show you on canvas the things which have come to me up here amongst the eternal silence.

"Many nights I have thought of you, Anna. Your face has flitted out of my watch fire, and then I have been a haunted man. But with the morning, the glorious unstained morning the passion of living would stir even the blood of a clod. It comes over the mountains, Anna, pink darkening into orange red, everywhere a wonderful cloud sea, scintillating with colour. It is enough to make a man throw away canvas and brushes into the bottomless precipices, enough to make one weep with despair at his utter and absolute impotence. Nature is God, Anna, and the greatest artist of us all a pigmy. When I think of those ateliers of ours, the art jargon, the decadents with their flamboyant talk I long for a two-edged sword and a minute of Divinity. To perdition with them all.

"I shall come back, if at all, a new man. I have a new cult to teach, a new enthusiasm. I feel years younger, a man again. My first visit will be to you. I must tell you about God's land, this marvellous virgin country, with its silent forests and dazzling peaks. I make no apology for not being with you now. You love Ennison. Believe me, the bitterness of it has almost departed, crushed out of me together with some of the weariness and sorrow I brought with me here by the nameless glory of these lonely months. Yet I shall think of you to-day. I pray, Anna, that you may find happiness.

"Your friend,
"David Courtlaw."

"P.S.—I do not congratulate you on your success. I was certain of it. I am glad or sorry according as it has brought you happiness."

Anna's eyes were a little dim as she poured out her coffee, and the laugh she attempted was not altogether a success.

"This is all very well," she said, "but two out of three are rank deserters—and if the papers tell the truth the third is as bad. I believe I am doomed to be an old maid."

She finished her breakfast and strolled out across the garden with the letters still in her hand. Beyond was a field sloping steeply upwards, and at the top a small pine plantation. She climbed slowly towards it, keeping close to the hedge side, fragrant with wild roses, and holding her skirts high above the dew laden grass. Arrived in the plantation she sat down with her back against a tree trunk.

Already the warm sun was drawing from the pines their delicious odour. Below her stretched a valley of rich meadowland of yellow cornfields, and beyond moorland hillside glorious with purple heather and golden gorse. She tried to compose her thoughts, to think of the last six months, to steep herself in the calm beauty of the surroundings. And she found herself able to do nothing of the sort. A new restlessness seemed to have stolen in upon her. She started at the falling of a leaf, at the lumbering of a cow through the hedge. Her heart was beating with quite unaccustomed vigor, her hands were hot, she was conscious of a warmth in her blood which the summer sunshine was scarcely responsible for. She struggled against it quite uselessly. She knew very well that a new thing was stirring her. The period of repression was over. It is foolish, she murmured to herself, foolish. He will not come. He cannot.

And then all her restlessness was turned to joy. She sprang to her feet and stood listening with parted lips and eager eyes. So he found her when he came round the corner of the spinney.

"Anna," he cried eagerly.

She held out her arms to him and smiled.

* * * * *

"And where," he asked, "are my rivals?"

"Deserters," she answered, laughing. "It is you alone, Nigel, who has saved me from being an old maid. Here are their letters."

He took them from her and read them. When he came to a certain sentence in Brendon's letter he stopped short and looked up at her.

"So Brendon and I," he said, "have been troubled with the same fears. I too, Anna, have watched and read of your success with—I must confess it—some misgiving."

"Please tell me why?" she asked.

"Do you need me to tell you? You have tasted the luxury of power. You have made your public, you are already a personage. And I want you for myself—for my wife."

She took his hand and smiled upon him.

"Don't you understand, Nigel," she said softly, "that it was precisely for this I have worked so hard? It is just the aim I have had in view all the time. I wanted to have something to give up. I did not care—no woman really cares—to play the beggar maid to your King Cophetua."

"Then you will really give it all up!" he exclaimed.

She laughed.

"When we go indoors I will show you the offers I have refused," she answered. "They have all been trying to turn my head. I think that nearly every manager in London has made me an offer. My reply to all of them has been the same. My engagement at the 'Garrick' terminates Saturday week, and then I am free."

"You will make me horribly conceited," he answered. "I think that I shall be the most unpopular man in London. You are not playing to-night, are you?"

"Not to-night," she answered. "I am giving my understudy a chance. I am going up to dine with my sister."

AFRAID SHE WAS DYING

Suffered Terribly Until She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

ST. JEAN DE MATHA, JAN. 27th, 1914.

"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". I suffered so much that I would not dare eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of "Fruit-a-tives". I did not wish to try them for I had little confidence in them but, seeing my husband's anxiety, I decided to do so and at once I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was cured. While sick, I lost several pounds, but after taking "Fruit-a-tives", I quickly regained what I had lost. Now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am completely cured, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives".

CAUSE OF INSANITY.

Sixty Per Cent. of Inmates are there Because of Alcohol.

To the Editor:—

A Commission on Lunacy in California recently reported that sixty per cent. of those in the Asylums are there because of alcohol—that is five thousand maniacs made so by drink.

Dr. Dawson, Medical Superintendent of the Sonoma State Home for feebleminded, last month told the Alameda County Social Workers Club that there are over 9000 feeble minded folk in California and said that alcohol is the greatest known cause of feeblemindedness.

When addressing the National Medical Association at Indianapolis a few weeks ago Dr. Alderman, a New York Specialist in nervous and mental diseases said, "Alcohol creates more insanity than all other causes combined."

The most serious point is that alcoholic drinks often start insanity in an otherwise healthy family, and that it becomes hereditary, running down through several generations.

We must all be mad if we do not grapple with this dreadful evil.

Testimony of Great Men.

In all the fields of human effort no fact is more certain than this that there is never room for the drinker at the top. Let us take the testimony of some great men. Andrew Carnegie says: "I am not a temperance lecturer but I know and I tell you that you are more likely to fail in your career from acquiring the drink habit than from all the other temptations that will assail you."

Emperor William requires a chauffeur for his automobile. It is the land of beer and personal liberty. A man of unblemished reputation applies, who seems to be the ideal man, but the royal agent asks him "Do you drink alcoholic liquors?" The man confesses to an occasional glass of beer and the agent shakes his head. The man says "I was never drunk in my life." The agent answers "Yes, but many men are a little drunk when they think they are quite sober—the vision just a little blurred, the hearing a little dulled, the attention a little slowed, the judgment a little confused."

Luther Burbank requires an assistant in the making of new fruits and flowers. Here comes a young man, a doctor of philosophy, earnest, skilful, trained. But he smells of beer, send him away. This work is for the finest and malted brains are never the finest.

A short time ago the Catholic Order of Foresters with a quarter of a million membership, voted to exclude all liquor dealers on the ground that they are extra hazardous lives. That makes the sixty-fifth benefit fraternity to take such action.

Sir Frederick Treves, the foremost physician in England, was with the British Army on the march to the relief of Ladysmith. It was a forced march. Terrible consequences hung upon the issue. Only a remnant of the army arrived and of these only a part were able to fight. Sir Frederick reported that the determining element in this trial of endurance was grog. The drinkers fell out or were dead beat. The abstainers arrived and were fit. The liquor traffic is against the safety of the soldier.

When Dr. Lorenz was entertained at a banquet in New York he turned down the wine glasses and said "I am a surgeon. I put my hands upon the lives of men, women and children. I must keep my nerves at their best or be untrue to those that trust me."

H. Arnott, M.B., M.C.P.S.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Indians Now in France Are Among Britain's Finest Fighting Men

THE news that the Indian Expeditionary Force of 70,000 men has arrived in Europe to fight side by side with the gallant army in France has aroused general enthusiasm.

That the military assistance of these brave troops is a powerful factor is indicated by the fact that Britain herself have practically 76,000 of her own soldiers in India. The native army consists of 2,751 officers and 161,085 other ranks. There are also 35,700 reservists.

In addition, many of the rulers of the native states, who number nearly 700 in all, maintain private armies, which they have with one accord placed at the disposal of the King. These vary in strength, but in most cases consist of some of the finest cavalry in the world.

Born of a race of horsemen, these native cavalrymen practically live their lives in the saddle. Of unexampled bravery and recklessness and superb riders, they are, in addition, magnificently mounted and trained.

INDIAN CAVALRY.

The relations of the native princes to British authority differ very widely. Some are practically independent sovereigns, except that they are not permitted to make war upon one another or to form alliances with foreign states.

THE CONTROLLED STATES.

Others, however, are under tolerably strict control. As a rule, they govern their states under the advice of an English Resident appointed by the Governor-General. Of immense wealth and influence among their peoples, these native princes have now shown a splendid spirit of loyalty to their Emperor-King.

The total number of native states is between 690 and 700, ranging from Hyderabad, with an area of over 82,000 square miles and a population of over 13,000,000, to small states consisting of only a few villages.

The Gurkhas, who are strongly represented in the Expeditionary Force, were once described by the Crown Prince of Germany as the finest soldiers possessed by Great Britain. Of small stature and somewhat resembling the Japanese in appearance, they displayed great bravery and fidelity in the Afghan and Sikh wars, and lent valuable aid to the British in the suppression of the Mutiny. Ten regiments of Gurkhas form a most valuable element in our native Indian army.

The Sikhs are also splendid fighting men, and showed their loyalty during the critical period of the Mutiny. A northerly race, they are strongly religious, and have a supreme contempt for death in battle.

Sure of the "Pep."

A laborer in one of our plantations a few days ago went up to one of the overseers and in a serious manner; which evidently showed that he was really seeking enlightenment, said in his local vernacular, which we cannot attempt to reproduce: "Massa, is it true that before the war the Kaiser sent a bag of rice to King George and told him, 'King George, I got as many soldiers as they is rice in the bag,' and that King George sent the Kaiser a bottle of nigger peppers and tell him: 'I only got as many soldiers as is in this pepper bottle, but you just bite one and then you'll see if your soldiers like these?'"—Barbados Standard.

Children Wanted to Fight.

A Bourges correspondent says: "Among the spectators acclaiming the French artillery passing through here were four lads, the eldest about thirteen. Several marches later the boys were found in a circle of the troops partaking of the mess.

"They swore to follow until they come in contact with the enemy and to lay down their lives for their country. A collection was immediately raised among the soldiers. The boys were terribly depressed at being compelled to return home afoot, charged with vagabondage under the military law. The magistrate, with tears in his eyes, acquitted them."

French Adopt War-Cry.

"Are we down-hearted? No!" has become one of the war-cries of Tommy Atkins in France, and it has such a wholly British sound in the French ear that it has been translated and enthusiastically adopted by the soldiers of the Republic. The French rendering is "Est-ce que nous avons le coeur brise? Non!" It is said that the French soldier's full-lunged "Non!" is quite as effective as Tommy's tremendous "No!"

More Hotel Accommodation.

The demand for hotel accommodation in Orangeville runs much higher than that in most towns on the line between the lakes, and that demand is being met by the re-opening of the Grand Central, which for years stood high in the estimation of travellers and others in need of accommodation. The hotel, which is now open, is under the managership of Miss Winnifred Bennett, who is a young lady of long experience and thorough training in the matter of supplying the travelling public with all the comforts and conveniences of a home-like resort for transient travellers and others. The house has been fitted up with the most modern furniture and has all the conveniences to be found in a first-class hostelry. The public at large should remember that the Grand Central is now open and has a genuine welcome for all who find a need for temporary or permanent accommodation. The cuisine is super-excellent and the charges very moderate for the services rendered.

—Full reports of the rural school fall fairs, held at Mono Centre on Saturday, Oct. 3rd, and Marsville on Tuesday, Oct. 6th, will appear in the next issue of The Banner, they having been received too late for appearance in this issue.

Dry Goods Change.

Ritchie Bros. have sold out their long established and prosperous fancy dry goods and grocery business to T. S. Parkinson & Co., late of Montreal. The passing of Ritchie Bros. will be very much regretted by many people in Orangeville and the surrounding district, to whom the firm has been known as a responsible and square dealing business concern for many years. It is to be hoped that this will not be a final separation of Ritchie Bros.' business relations with a community by whom they are so highly esteemed. T. S. Parkinson & Co. come to Orangeville with a very high reputation as business men of long experience, and no doubt they will continue in business in the same substantial and liberal way by which it has so long thrived and prospered. The new firm will commence business by holding a gigantic opening sale on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at which they will offer a splendid lot of seasonable goods at less than wholesale prices and in some cases less than manufacturers rates. Mr. Parkinson and family will reside in Orangeville, he having leased the old Ketchum homestead, corner of 1st Ave. and 2nd St.

Business Men on Business.

The contractors' Supply Company, which runs the lime and stone-crushing plant at Melville, brought up some fifty contractors and other business men from Toronto on Tuesday to see for themselves what an excellent plant they have for the supply of many of their needs in the building line. The party, occupying about a dozen automobiles, came into town about noon and temporarily located at The Queen's, where The Banner called and interviewed several of the party, among whom were Mr. Robt. Hewitt (and his son) an old-time contractor of Orangeville. They each and all expressed themselves as delighted with the trip and prophesied for the Supply Company a successful and expanding business, their plant being situated in an excellent locality for raw material and the goods turned out so far being of splendid quality. Wars and rumors of war do not interfere with the work of substantial business men, who are on the alert for golden opportunities.

NEARLY A MILLION.

THOUSANDS OF VOTES CAST DURING THE BOOSTER PERIOD IN THE BANNER'S CONTEST.

Great work being done by all Contestants. Candidates and public alike enjoy the friendly rivalry and everybody is boosting. Many subscribers call daily to cast their votes for favorites. Double votes will be continued up to Thursday, Oct. 15th.

Everybody is talking about The Banner's Voting Contest, and everybody is boosting for their favorite.

Enthusiasm is increasing daily and the contestants are getting the votes in right royal style. Nearly a million votes have been turned in during the present week and this total will greatly increase when the last double vote period ends next week.

The candidates have been busy and they have met with splendid support at the hands of every one, but there are still thousands of votes waiting to be garnered in. System, coupled with the applied science of Get Busy, will always bring results and this is the manner in which most of the contestants are handling the situation. HUSTLE, HUSTLE, HUSTLE, seems to be the motto of the candidates and those who keep up the pace will be the fortunate winners.

More Double Votes.

A number of the candidates who started in the contest during the last week have asked that the Booster Period be extended another week. This has been agreed to and all contestants will receive double votes on all subscriptions turned into the contest office up to Thursday, October 15th at NINE o'clock. The candidates living outside of Orangeville will, of course, have the usual privilege of mailing their subscriptions any time on Thursday next, so long as the letter bears the postmark of the 15th, and the subscriptions will receive double votes even though they are not received at the contest office until Friday.

Vote for Your Favorite.

Mr. Subscriber:—You are invited to have a voice in deciding who shall be the winners of The Banner's Voting Contest. You do not need to wait for your favorite to call on you for your subscriptions. You will do them a great favor by calling at the contest office and paying your subscription in favor of your candidate. DO IT NOW. If you pay it before Thursday night at nine o'clock you will get double votes for your favorite. During the present week several people have called to cast their votes for their favorites and the candidates have certainly appreciated this help. Pay your subscription today—it will do you good and will help someone.

Lecture on Petroleum.

The lecture by Rev. A. E. de St. Dalmas on "Petroleum and Its Products," delivered in the Baptist Church on Friday evening last, attracted a somewhat small but very greatly interested audience, and the information they received on the production of the crude oil and the various articles produced therefrom will well repay the short time passed in listening to the instructive address by the rev. gentleman, who, with samples of many of the products, and also specimens of the tools used, the derricks, the boiler for refining and, in fact, almost everything to be found in a live oil field, certainly threw light on a lighting subject—coal oil, which, by the way, he said, was very frequently sold as American oil, it being much superior in lighting and lasting qualities to the imported article. The work of sinking the wells was explained in detail, the speaker having samples of the "jigger" used, also augers, sinking bars, etc., which made the operation easily understood. The crude oil is conducted to the refiners, from which are taken in regular order gasoline, naptha and benzine, and from the petroleum tar is taken gas oil, fuel oil, parafine distillate, parafin wax and over one hundred other articles of daily use in commercial life, such as mineral seal oil, neutral oil, soap oil, vaseline and so one to an almost unlimited extent. Ninety per cent. of the machine oil of the present day comes from petroleum, so that it can readily be seen why the people of Calgary have gone "batty" over the alleged discovery of petroleum in their immediate vicinity. On the whole the lecture was distinctly attractive and fully warranted Chairman G. W. Tebbs suggestion that it be delivered before the pupils of the High and Public Schools. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker at the conclusion of the address.

Organization of Brass Band.

Improve the Street.

The Road & Bridge Committee may or may not have exceeded its appropriation, but in any event it should take a look at Water St. and decide upon the best way to improve that thoroughfare. The street runs along the race which formerly supplied the foundry with water, but which latterly has become completely dried up and partly filled in. The bed of the race should be filled up completely and a broad, level roadway made along the lower half of the street to Wellington St. This could be done by having all earth taken from cellars thrown into the bed and would cost comparatively little, but the work should be done well cost or no cost.

Shoulder Dislocated.

A young man in the employ of Mr. Fred. Cooney, of Laurel, met with quite a serious accident while engaged at a threshing in his employer's barn. He fell through a hole in the floor of the mow to the floor beneath, landing on his shoulder and dislocating it. Dr. Kyles was sent for and on reaching the injured man found that the accident was of rather a peculiar nature, and though little difficulty was found in replacing the joint, great care will have to be exercised in keeping it in place. The young man's face was slightly cut and he was in a somewhat dazed condition, but he is making fair progress toward recovery, though he will be out of work for some little time.

Opening Meeting of A.Y.P.A.

The opening meeting of St. Mark's Young People's Association was held on Monday evening last. It took the form of an "At Home" to the congregation and their friends. The schoolroom was crowded to the doors. Mr. G. C. Webster, the new president, took the chair. St. Mark's orchestra was present and played several selections, and Miss Bessie Lewis sang the now famous British Army marching song "It's a Long Way to Tipperary." The main part of the programme consisted of a a lecture on the "Great War of 1914" by the rector, Rev. G. W. Tebbs. He dealt with the causes leading up to the war and of the ambitions of the nations involved crossing each other. He also described the various strengths of the armies and navies; the new things of the present war, details of the commissariat, transportation and medical work, etc., and illustrated his lecture with 125 magnificent views. The young people of St. Mark's are to be congratulated on the splendid start off they had on Monday. Their programme is an unusually strong one this year.

Collectors will call at a number of places, but if you are not called upon your contribution will be more than acceptable and fully appreciated. A large and imposing addition has just been added to the Hospital in the erection of a very fine and handsome verandah. When completed this will furnish outdoor sleeping accommodation for a number of the patients. Further enlargement is becoming more and more necessary as at present all available beds are occupied.

The regular monthly meeting of Lord Dufferin Chapter D. O. E. will be held at the home of Mrs. F. W. Lewis on Friday afternoon, Oct. 9th at 3.30. The executive will meet half an hour earlier. A large attendance is requested.

Twenty-five Years Experience

I have over twenty-five years experience in buying and selling Jewelry and Spectacleware and am a competent judge of quality in these goods. My reputation in this district as a dealer in these lines is above reproach.

There are Gold Filled goods made that will wear from ten years to a lifetime. There are Gold Filled goods made that will only wear a few months. The reliable optician can only afford to sell the first kind. But the Travelling Optician will sell the one he can make the most money out of, and it would be poor indeed if it would not last for a few days. You can test your eyes in a barn, as some people do it, or in any make-shift corner—a peddlar will do it in your kitchen.

Proper Examinations

Can only be made in properly fitted rooms with proper light and first-class instruments, such as we have for the purpose.

There Is No Bait In Our Advertisements

Nothing but hard, honest facts. The only inducement we can give you to deal with us is our ability to give you satisfaction. You get goods of known quality and our personal guarantee. They are worth what you pay for them.

We Are Not Here To-day and Away To-morrow

We are here every day and we want you to come back to us at any time if you are not fully satisfied.

A MAN OF MEDALS.

Late Gen. Grierson Was Popularly Known as Jimmy.

Gen. Sir James Grierson, who died suddenly in France just at the beginning of the war, was the most be-medalled officer in the British army for his service, and one of the stoutest and jolliest. During the grand manoeuvres of 1908 a military artist sought and obtained permission to sketch him, and Major-Gen. Sir Harry Rawlinson, standing near by, also started sketching in competition.

When the two sketches were compared Sir Harry had to acknowledge himself beaten. "But then," he pleaded, "I was on the wrong side of you and so lacked the inspiration of your triple row of medal ribbons. Besides, you get broader every day, and my note-book cannot take you all in at once."

"Then you must do me some day in sections," laughed the general. "But don't think my growing bulk is a source of trouble to me. I have more room to hang my medals on!"

By the troops Gen. Sir James Grierson was known as "Jimmy." As a linguist he had few equals in the army; he had qualified as interpreter in French, German, Russian, and Spanish, and had a useful knowledge of other languages and dialects.

It was Gen. Grierson who showed his adaptability in the manoeuvres round Cambridge two years ago, when aeroplanes were first used extensively for scouting.

His division was so successfully concealed in woods and hedge bottoms, with guns and wagons covered with sheets or straw, that the airmen failed to discover its whereabouts.

RECRUITING IN BRITAIN.

London Leading the Way In the Empire's Cause.

Britons are rallying, and rallying splendidly. In fact, recruiting is on the up grade, and at every station there are daily to be seen rows of young men willing to serve their country in her fight for all that civilization means.

Village is vieing with village, town with town, and district with district, for the honor of sending most men to the colors in proportion to population.

If London can be taken as a criticism of the country generally—and messages from the provinces indicate that it can—the week should yield many thousands of recruits beyond any previous week. On Monday all records were beaten to the extent of 900 men.

Gratifying success has attended the meetings organized by the Parliamentary Recruiting Committee. Each of these meetings is addressed by speakers representing the Liberal, the Unionist, and the Parliamentary Labor parties, and at each a number of recruits, varying with the size of the meeting, has been secured.

North, south, east and west, the meetings are being held, and some of our most eloquent speakers are explaining to the people what the war really means, that if Germany wins England ceases to exist as a nation, and that her downfall means the domination of Europe by German barbarians.

The whole country is being systematically covered, and a great accession to the ranks of the army is certain to follow.

AT LONDON CENTRAL RECRUITING OFFICE.

Order of the White Feather.

How the women of England are urging the men to fight for the Union Jack is indicated in expedients adopted in several towns recently to shame able-bodied men who have so far not answered the call. At Deal a group of pretty girls distributed white feathers to a crowd of young men, who accepted them jokingly as "favors" and wore them in their buttonholes.

They were greatly discomfited a little later when the town crier announced throughout the city that the men had been "decorated with the order of the White Feather for shirking their duty and failing to respond to the call for defenders of the Union Jack."

Boy Scouts' Work.

Among the duties which the Boy Scouts are prepared to carry out are the establishment of communications as despatch riders, signallers, and wireless operators, guarding bridges, culverts, and telegraph lines against damage by individual spies.

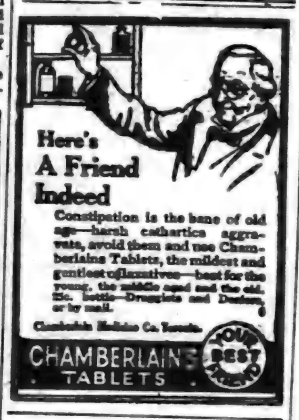
Every Tenth Person Called.

Ten per cent. of the population of Thetford are serving either as Territorials or Reserves in the defence of their country. This is believed to be a record for any town in England.

Renewed Vigor in Old Age

This Letter Brings a Message of Cheer to the Aged—Results of Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

New, rich blood is what is most needed in the declining years to keep up energy and vitality. That Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a wonderful help in maintaining good health and prolonging life is attested by the writer of this letter.



Mr. Stephen J. Leard, North Tryon, P.E.I., writes :—"At seventy-five years of age my heart gave out and became very irregular and weak in action and would palpitate. My nerves also became weak, and I could do nothing but lie in bed in a languishing condition, losing strength and weight. In that condition I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and am cured. Had I not obtained this treatment I would now be in the box with the roof over my nose. At eighty-one I have an energy which means go, and I am writing this letter so that old people like myself may prolong their health and strength by using this great medicine." 50c a box, 6 for $2.50. For sale by all dealers.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Whiskey took its toll during the recent Mt. Forest Fair and as a result of paying excessive toll for whiskey in several cases the payers subsequently discovered they thereby qualified as grist for police court and no less than seven of them had also to pay toll into the town treasury for drunk and disorderly conduct, five of them $1 and costs, or between $5 and $6 each, the others $10 or about $15 each.

A cowardly attempt to wreck the passenger train from Brantford to Guelph at 10 p.m. was made the other night. Some miscreant placed three telegraph poles across the track. The engineer did not see the obstruction and struck it at full speed. Fortunately the shock broke two of the poles and threw the other to one side, and the train stopped suddenly, throwing the passengers from their seats.

CURTAILING AGRICULTURAL EXPENDITURE.

Those interested in Ontario's agriculture will be rather surprised to know that the expert judges usually sent out by the Department of Agriculture to do the judging at the smaller fairs throughout the province will be cut off this year. The Department has also decided to hold no Farmers' Institute meetings this winter outside of a few which may be specially arranged for, and at time of writing several other omissions from the general course of encouragement to agriculture are being considered. It seems rather strange after all that is being said regarding the increase in production which Ontario and Canadian farms should show during the next few years that so many of the means of helping the farmer, to effect this increase are being cut off. Of course, the money stringency is blamed for all the trouble, and this is traced to the war, but it seems to us that everything possible should be done to encourage the farmer to push his business as he has never done before. With the talk in the air that there are to be no Institute meetings, no expert judges, and some go so far as to predict that there will be no Winter Fairs, the farmers of this country are becoming imbued with the same spirit of fear and pessimism that has already gripped a good many of the manufacturing industries. Surely the money is available somewhere to carry on most of this work, none of which is extremely costly.

There is a danger of curtailing expenses at the expense of production and the country at large. It might be well if those in charge would weigh carefully the outcome of the procedure before finally deciding to make further reductions in the work intended to increase the output of Ontario farms. Let not the war be so far reaching as to cut into our very vitals, viz., our food supplies.—Farmers' Advocate.

There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE BANNER, OCT. 15th, 1914.

DUFFERIN'S DUTY.

Many, very many of the townships and counties of Ontario are donating quantities of produce to the Empire for use during the continuance of the War, and while we in Dufferin are as loyal as any under the British flag there has yet been but little attempt made in this county to add our small portion to the generous donations being forwarded to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Montreal, by whom it will be forwarded to the Old Land. Oats, beans, [illegible] apples, cheese and [illegible] articles [illegible] butter are the [illegible] that are needed, and there is no doubt whatever but that the farmers of Dufferin are ready to supply the goods just as soon as they are approached by properly authorized parties. Shipments should be made before the end of October, and it but remains for some responsible citizen to set to work and get the ball rolling. Who will be the first to take hold of the matter? God alone knows how this war will end or when it will end, but everyone knows that there is great and crying need for everything in the shape of food that can be collected to supply the wants of those in and near the scene of strife. Every pound of produce sent will be used with the greatest care, not a fraction of it will be lost, and as this is the best way in which help can be given no time should be lost in starting men out to collect a few carloads of produce and have it shipped to Montreal. Do not delay longer. Let Dufferin County be heard from at once.

New Hymn Book and Ritual

A new hymn book has been prepared for the Methodist Church. More than 7,000 hymns were examined, and a list of 575 hymns and 499 tunes is the result of the deliberations of the committee. The new book contains one-third fewer hymns and one-third more tunes than the old book, and it was prepared in collaboration with a special committee of the Presbyterian Church, so that several hymns used by the Presbyterians are embodied in the book in question. While some of the hymns selected are new and still under copyright, a good proportion are old favorites. The old tunes are preserved in the new book. The incorporation of a ritual in the Methodist hymn book was an innovation decided upon at the quadrennial General Conference. The ritual is question will consist of the Lord's Prayer, the Apostles' Creed, the Ten Commandments, the questions and answers of the reception service, the general confession and the service of the Lord's Supper.

Church Re-Opening.

The reopening of the Methodist Church on Sunday last drew large and appreciative audiences both at the morning and evening services, the sermons on each occasion being delivered by a former well-beloved pastor, Rev. C. E. McIntyre, of Toronto.

The body of the church had been redecorated to such an extent that it almost presented the appearance of a new building, while the entrances had been vastly improved by the erection of new stairways on both sides of the main doorway to the basement. The decorating was done by the firm of Fuller, Allen & Holmes, who have displayed their usual ability in the work done. The new lighting system and the Japanese cork matting for the aisles, provided by the Ladies' Aid, have all assisted to make the church neat and attractive. During the last year the church has been improved to the extent of about $1600.00. With such striking improvements in the building there will doubtless come a startling improvement in the audiences, though, of course, this latter does not necessarily follow, nor, in fact, is it an absolute necessity. The altar was banked with a profusion of flowers and the general scene was very suggestive of Thanksgiving.

The sermons delivered were of a very high order, were exceptionally appropriate and were delivered with an earnestness that left its impress upon audiences that filled the church to its capacity, the subject in the morning being "Our Faith," that in the evening "God's Love."

The regular pastor, Rev. G. W. Robinson, asked for a Thanksgiving offering of $700, that being the cost of the improvements. The returns came pretty near filling the demand, or rather the request, as the amount taken up at morning and evening services came to $651.85—less than $50 of the entire outlay. Some of our moneyed men will doubtless even this up just as soon as their attention is called to the matter.

—Public School Books of all kinds on sale at The Banner Book Store.

—By an exchange of property Mr. Geo. McIntyre has disposed of his residence on York street to Mr. A. R. Wheeler, of Toronto, who, with his family, will move to town this week. It has been wrongfully reported that Mr. McIntyre was about to leave Orangeville, but the fact is he will remain here and continue his business as usual. This will be welcome news to our townspeople, as he is an energetic business man and a live citizen who would be greatly missed were he to locate elsewhere.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

Successful Meeting of Dufferin Teachers — Address on Teaching of Music, History and Agriculture.

The thirty-fourth annual meeting of the Dufferin Teachers' Institute was brought to a close Friday night, and was the most successful in the history of the institute, there being one hundred and ten teachers in attendance out of a possible one hundred and twenty-two in the county.

Mr. A. T. Cringan, Mus. Bac., of the Toronto Normal School, represented the Education Department, and gave two addresses on the tonic sol-fa system in the elementary schools. The rest of the programme was supplied largely by local talent, and provoked a good deal of discussion.

A model lesson in phonics by Miss Elsley, [illegible] Model School, was particularly well prepared, as were also the reports of the delegates to the Guelph Central Teachers' Conference. Several teachers gave their experiences with school gardens and with rural school fairs, general satisfaction always being expressed with both.

The address of the President, Mr. E. H. Glenn, of Grand Valley, on the teaching of history led to the institute placing itself on record as favoring the return of history as a subject for the entrance examination.

At the evening meeting, to which the Trustees' Association of the county was invited, Rev. J. R. Bell, of Laurel, spoke on the more extended teaching of agriculture in the public schools, and Mr. N. W. Campbell, B.A., Public School Inspector, of South Grey, devoted his time to considering the inward qualifications of the true teacher.

The proceeds of the evening meeting were devoted to the Canadian Patriotic Fund. Much of the success of the convention was due to Mr. A. Firth, Principal of the Orangeville Public School, the Secretary.

For Country School Boys.

The boys of the Second Book, the Third Book and the Fourth Book of the various country schools around Orangeville, also all big boys and young fellows who have left school, also all fathers who earnestly desire that their boys shall be properly and beautifully instructed in how to take care of their bodies, are urgently invited to attend two lectures No. 3 and No. 4 of the series of Personal Purity and Sex Hygiene to be given in the Orangeville Public School on Friday, Oct. 16th, at 10.30 a.m. sharp and 2.30 p.m. sharp. Let no boy be deprived of this golden opportunity of learning lessons, wonderful and terribly needed, about the splendor and sacredness of his body. It is of eternal importance. These lectures will be delivered by Mr. Arthur A. Beall, M.A., of the Department of Education, Toronto. Mr. Beall is a specialist of thirteen years' standing on this subject and an expert in addressing boys. All such boys will, of course, bring their lunch and be at school before half past ten.

Burglary.

An audicious, but successful, raid was made upon the gents' furnishing establishment of Messrs. Hughes & Norris, on Broadway on Wednesday night of last week. The enterprising housebreakers went about their work in a cool and orthodox manner, having taken out a large pane of glass from a rear window and laid it aside without undue breakage. He, or they, entered the building and took from the cash register what little change it contained and then selected a dozen or so nice, shiny neckties, but took, so far as known, nothing of greater value. This is somewhat surprising, as Messrs. Hughes & Norris are noted for the high-class gents' ware they carry in stock. It may possibly be that the needy ones had been reading the firm's live ads. in The Banner and becoming possessed with an irresistible desire for some of the fine ware were compelled to have some of it. Be that as it may they got away with the goods, and nothing has been heard of them since. Of course, any sort of an expert burglar could easily avoid the single nightwatchman, but if the venture is tried a second time there may be a different story to tell.

HIGH IN AUSTRIAN NAVY.

Gen. Von Hotzendorff Is Organizer of Nation's Forces.

Gen. Conrad von Hotzendorff, as chief of the general staff of the Austrian army, is a very prominent figure in the great war in Europe [illegible] whether or not he is responsible, and any measure for the disaster [illegible] have fallen upon his [illegible] chief, the Archduke [illegible] commander-in-chief, remains to be seen. Frederick, remains to be seen. A wonderful organizer, a [illegible]. A wonderful organizer, a strategist [illegible] soldier of the Field Marshal von [illegible] Moltke and Kitchener type, [illegible] that everything in connection with the Austrian army shall work with clocklike precision and that nothing shall be left to chance, it is to him that has been confided by Emperor Francis Joseph the task of preparing for the present conflict. Indeed he spent several weeks in April last very quietly at a small resort near Carlsbad with Gen. Julius von Moltke, the present chief of the general staff of the German army, elaborating plans for the present joint action of the German and Austrian armies against Russia and France.

GEN. VON HOTZENDORFF.

Short and fair, he stands particularly high in the confidence of the sovereign, who has the very highest opinion of his ability. Indeed, on the several occasions when he resigned his position as chief of the general staff in consequence of his differences with the late Archduke Francis Ferdinand, with whom he was continually at variance, the old Emperor insisted upon his remaining at his post, would not hear of his going and upheld him against his nephew.

SPIES IN BRITAIN.

Government Dealt Skilfully With Great German System.

It is officially stated that steps are being taken to deal with the serious question of German espionage. It was clearly ascertained five or six years ago that the Germans were making great efforts to establish a system of espionage in Great Britain. In order to trace and thwart these efforts a special intelligence department was established by the War Office, and has acted in close co-operation with the Metropolitan police department. They were able, in the period of 1911 to 1914, to discover the ramifications of the German secret service in England. Despite the enemy's enormous efforts and lavish expenditure to this end, little valuable information reached them. All the agents known to be engaged in this traffic have been marked and are kept under strict observation.

On Aug. 24 twenty known spies were arrested under the instructions of the Home Secretary. In addition two hundred suspects have been under surveillance, and the majority of these were interned soon after the war began.

It is believed that this action succeeded in breaking up the spy organization established before the war and which apparently has not been re-established. A rigorous search was made of the houses and clubs of Germans and Austrians, but no effective store of arms, bombs or other instruments of destruction was found. All the Germans and Austrians deemed likely to be dangerous have been placed under arrest. Nine thousand Germans and Austrians of military age are now prisoners of war.

Wrists Slashed.

How Germans cut the wrists of British wounded to prevent them from using their sword arms again is told in a letter from George Frame, a Montreal boxer, who served as a driver in the Army Service Corps in Belgium, to Elmer W. Ferguson, sporting editor of The Montreal Herald-Telegraph. Writing from London, Mr. Frame says:

"The Germans are very brutal to our wounded soldiers. Hundreds of wounded British lying on the fields have had their wrists terribly slashed, so that they will not be able to fight any more.

"I saw a nurse of the Red Cross attending a German soldier on the field at Mons near where I was lying wounded. She attended to his injuries and was just walking away when he rolled over on his side, pulled his rifle from beneath him, and, taking deliberate aim, shot the nurse to death. That is the kind of enemy which the British are fighting."

He's Neutral Anyway.

Prize Essay.

The following is the essay on the European War which received the special prize at the Caledon Fall Fair and which was won by Master Fred Scarland, of Caledon :—

Once again Europe is made the scene of a fierce and bloody war, the worst, and probably the most far-reaching in its results, that history has ever known. The assassination of the Austrian Crown Prince by a Servian was used as an excuse by Austria for her demands on Servia. These demands were so unreasonable that war between these two countries was unavoidable. Russia, fearing the growth of Austria's power in the event of the occupation of Servia, began to mobilize her troops. As Germany is an ally of Austria it was against her will that the Russians should mobilize, so Germany declared war on Russia. Feelings between France and Germany have been bitter since the war of 1870, and as France was an ally of Russia the French declared war on Germany. England, France and Russia are united in the Triple Entente. England sent Germany an ultimatum, and in reply Germany declared war on England. Germany, Austria, and Italy are united in the Triple Alliance, but Italy, being weak, and on friendly terms with England, decided to remain neutral. The other smaller states that are not neutral are lining up against Germany. When France declared war on Germany the German army began to march across Belgium in order to invade France, and the Belgians arose against them. On their march across Belgium the Germans violated the laws of war by killing and torturing non-combatants. Upon reaching France the Germans drove the allied British and French forces back. The German army continued to advance till it had reached Paris, but for some unknown reason that city was not attacked. The allies were then reinforced, and they drove the Germans back till they were almost on the border of Germany. Meanwhile the Russians were fighting fiercely against the Austrians, and they have now rendered the Austrian army almost useless. The Russian army is fighting back the Austrians and Germans in trying to get to Berlin. At an early stage of the war England scored a great success by bottling up the German fleet in the North Sea, thus crippling the fighting power of the navy, add cutting off German trade. This war is not so much to decide the extent of the power of certain kings as it is to decide whether the world will be ruled by freedom or Prussian militarism.

To-day they are just as effective, just as reliable as ever, and nothing better has yet been devised to

RURAL SCHOOL FALL FAIR

Prize List, October 1st, 1914.

The first annual Rural School Fair of the Township of Caledon was held in the fair grounds, Charleston, on Thursday of last week, under the direction of the Peel County Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, J. A. Carroll, District Representative, F. C. Paterson, Assistant, James Brown, Assistant. The attendance was very good and the success of the fair was all that could be desired by its many friends and supporters. The display of oats, barley, corn, poultry, etc., was a surprise to many, and the collection of weeds, insects, leaves, flowers and vegetables was exceptionally interesting. BRIGHT, HEALTHY, ATTRACTIVE GIRLS

This Condition Can Only Be Maintained Through Rich, Red Blood.

It makes all the difference in the world to a girl whether she develops into a bright, healthy attractive woman or sinks into a sickly, unhappy, suffering semi-invalid.

The girl whose blood is poor and scanty—who is anaemic as the doctor terms it—starts life under too great a handicap. She is weaker and more frail than her companions who have rich, red blood. She is more easily fatigued in body and mind, and work of any kind exhausts her. In time her health breaks down. She becomes pale, looks worn out, is languid, irritable and nervous. Her heart palpitates violently at the least exertion, and she falls behind other girls in looks, health and a capacity for enjoying life. Abundant rich, red blood is the only thing that can restore good health to the many thousands of such girls. This rich, red blood can only be obtained through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have given thousands of weak, white-faced, bloodless girls, robust, vigorous health and high spirits. Here is a case of proof. Miss Olive Gauvreau, St. Jerome, Que., says: "I have reason to be more than grateful to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for they restored me to health after more than one doctor and many medicines had failed. I suffered as so many girls do from anaemia. I was all run down, tortured with headaches, could not stand any exertion, and had no appetite, though of course I had to force myself to eat. I was in this condition for nearly two years, and although doctoring continually, seemed to be steadily growing worse, and I was very much discouraged and despondent. Finally a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I discontinued all other medicines and did so. In the course of a few weeks there was no room to doubt that I had at last found the right medicine. My appetite returned, the headaches began to come less frequently, and color was returning to my face. The continued use of the Pills for a little longer fully restored my health, and I have since been as healthy and active as anyone could wish. I cannot too strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to other weak and ailing girls."

You can get these Pills through your medicine dealer or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Goderich is one of the few Ontario towns which reports plenty of work for all hands at the present time. Sewers and sidewalks are being pushed through, organs and knitting factories are running full time, engine works are busy, while the flour mill and elevators are running full blast.

AMAZING DOCTRINES.

Viscount Bryce Reviews German Ideals Expressed By Bernhardi.

Viscount Bryce has written an article for The London Daily Chronicle, which says in part:

"The present war has had some unexpected consequences. It has called the attention of the world outside of Germany to some amazing doctrines. These doctrines may be found set forth in the book of Gen. von Bernhardi, 'Germany and the Next War.'

"I have certainly no prejudice in the matter, for I have been one of those who for many years labored to promote good relations between the German and English peoples. It was neither commercial rivalry nor jealousy of German power that brought Britain into the field.

"I return to the doctrine set forth by Von Bernhardi: 'War is in itself a good thing. The inevitableness, the idealism, the blessing of war, must be repeatedly emphasized.' 'War is the power.' 'Efforts directed toward the abolition of war are not only foolish but absolutely immoral and must be stigmatised as unworthy of the human race.' 'Any action in favor of collective humanity outside the limits of the state and nationality is impossible.'

"These are startling propositions. The most startling among them are—denial that there are any duties owed by a state to humanity, except that of imposing its own superior civilization upon as large a part of humanity as possible; and denial of the duty of observing treaties, which are only so much paper.

"Is there no such thing as a common humanity? Are there no duties owed to it? Is there none of that 'decent respect to the opinions of mankind,' which the framers of the Declaration of Independence recognised?

"Gen. von Bernhardi invokes history as the ultimate court of appeal. He appeals to Caesar. To Caesar let him go. History declares that no nation, however great, is entitled to try to impose its type of civilization on others. No race, not even the Teutonic or Anglo-Saxon, is entitled to claim the leadership of humanity. Each people has in its time contributed something that was distinctively its own, and the world is far richer thereby than if any race, however gifted, has established ascendancy.

"It is only vulgar minds that mistake bigness for greatness, for greatness is of the soul, not of the body.

"The faith of treaties is the only solid foundation on which a temple of peace can be built up."

HEARTS NOT IN WAR.

Austria's Subject States Really Opposed to Conflict With Russia.

A distinguished Bohemian scholar now residing in Wales, in a recent interview, writes a special correspondent, desires me to say that we in this country have no conception of what military oppression has meant for the smaller States of Europe.

"Under the iron rule of Germany and Austria," he said, "we have long lived in terror of a European war. Prince Ferdinand fanned the war spirit, but while we Bohemians deeply regretted his assassination, there came the hope of peace. The Bohemian race of eight millions are cultured, peace-loving, and brave. We have been utterly opposed to this iniquitous war, and large numbers of our best men have been shot down because they refused to fight. Our regiments were commandeered.

"They would have given as good an account of themselves in a just war as any army in Europe, but their heart is not in it. This accounts for the overwhelming defeat of the Austrian forces by Russia. I have an intimate acquaintance with the university professors and leaders of thought in Germany, but I could not have believed the German soldiers were capable of such barbarities. We are tremendously taxed and coerced under Germanic militarism, and our voice is silenced. Our plea is for freedom, liberty, and our independence. This is what we pray in God's name the Allied Powers will secure for us at the end of the war."

British Columbians Lost.

Among those lost by the sinking of H. M. S. Aboukir, was Lieut-Commander Thomas E. Harrison, the elder surviving son of Commander M. J. and Mrs. Harrison, of Crawford Bay, British Columbia. In the official report of the Admiralty of the loss of the Hogue, Commander Reginald Norton pays a tribute to the gallantry of the young British Columbia Lieut.-Commander Phillips Woolley, who was lost. The commander says: "Woolley, after hoisting out the launch, asked me if he should try to hoist out another boat and he endeavored to do so. The last I saw of him was on the after bridge doing well."

Woman Fought In Battle.

Among the wounded arriving at Noisy-le-Sec, France, a town in the department of the Seine and near the Ourcq Canal, was a young laundress in a soldier's uniform. She had followed a company of zouaves and had fought alongside of them in the trenches. Her identity was not discovered till she was wounded. Before sending her to the rear the commanding officer complimented her on her bravery.

When fighting was general about Brussels, women of the Belgian capital motored out to watch battles in the cool of the afternoon as unconcernedly as though going to the races.

Colors In Battle.

As far as is known, all the forces in the field except our own still carry their regimental colors into action. The practice of the British army of leaving the colors behind on taking the field dates from the Battle of Isandhlwana in 1879, when Lieutenants Melville and Coghill lost their lives in endeavoring to save the colors of the 24th Regiment.

Gallieni, Master of Eiffel Tower, France's Greatest War Machine

OF the work of Gen. Joseph Gallieni in fortifying Paris much was written at the time when the siege of the French metropolis seemed imminent. Since that time less has been heard of the Commandant at Paris, but he is still an active figure in the operations.

As Military Governor of the capital he is master of one of France's most remarkable war machines—the Eiffel Tower, which is the great centre for the transmission of military orders and intelligence. From the powerful wireless apparatus at the summit of the tower carefully coded messages pour forth in unceasing stream, intelligence and instructions which are caught up by the field machines. Orders are relayed by it from one end of the long defence line of the allies to the other and replies passed back again.

The world was reminded a few days ago of the existence of the great station when it sent out its first war bulletin since the struggle began.

It was erected at first by a company as an attraction for the Paris Exposition of 1889—long before the era of wireless—and if its war value appealed to the Government at all it was merely as a conning tower for from the top it is possible on a clear day to see 40 miles.

IDEA WAS SCOFFED AT.

When it became known that it was proposed to erect a tower 985 feet high at the time of the Paris Exposition of 1889 the project was greeted with scoffs and jeers. But it is graceful, a thing of beauty and has proven a profitable investment. The height of its second great stage is 863 feet, and from it Paris and the surrounding country appear as from a balloon or aeroplane.

Gen. Joseph Gallieni, to whom was intrusted the defence of Paris, is considered one of the ablest military men in France. As military governor of Paris he was given extraordinary powers, which in effect rendered him independent of interference by either the Minister of War or Gen. Joffre, commander-in-chief of the French armies in the field.

THE EIFFEL TOWER.

Although a native of France, Gen. Gallieni is of Italian parentage. He was born in 1849 and is a veteran of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. Most of his military knowledge, however, has been gained in the French colonies in Africa and China, where he spent thirty-six years of his life. His principal task probably was the conquest and pacification of the island of Madagascar, a work which converted a formerly barbarous kingdom into a rich and well ordered colony. During his ten years' administration he built a network of railroads and highways across Madagascar and developed its immense agricultural and mineral resources.

Uhlans.

The Uhlans, or, as it is generally spelt now, Ulans, are a distinctive corps. The name is by no means distinctly German. A body of Uhlans was formed for the French army by Marshal Saxe. They were introduced into the Prussian service in 1740, and forty years later the Austrians also had a corps of Uhlans—light cavalry armed with lance. The modern Uhlan may be classed with the heavy cavalry, for their ride at over 280 pounds.

Mrs. Baker So Weak—Could Not Do Her Work—Found Relief In Novel Way.

Adrian, Mich.—"I suffered terribly with female weakness and backache and got so weak that I could hardly do my work. When I washed my dishes I had to sit down and when I would sweep the floor I would get so weak that I would have to get a drink every few minutes, and before I did my dusting I would have to lie down. I got so poorly that my folks thought I was going into consumption. One day I found a piece of paper blowing around the yard and I picked it up and read it. It said 'Saved from the Grave,' and told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my husband and he said, 'Why don't you try it?' So I did, and after I had taken two bottles I felt better and I said to my husband, 'I don't need any more,' and he said 'You had better take it a little longer anyway.' So I took it for three months and got well and strong."—Mrs. ALONZO E. BAKER, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

In these words is hidden the tragedy of many a woman, housekeeper or wage earner who supports herself and is often helping to support a family, on meagre wages. Whether in house, office, factory, shop, store or kitchen, woman should remember that there is one tried and true remedy for the ills to which all women are prone, and that is Lydia E. RETAIL MERCHANTS AND "MADE-IN-CANADA" POLICY

Patriotism and Self-Interest Prompts Sale of Home Made Articles—Reduce Unemployment and Charity

Practical action by the Quebec branch of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada was taken at a meeting held in Montreal immediately after the outbreak of the war. The following letter from the Quebec Secretary of the Association, Mr. J. A. Beaudry, offers good advice to the retailer and his customer alike. Every Canadian housewife should bear in mind this timely statement when she goes into the corner store to make her next purchase:

For years past, millions of dollars worth of goods have been imported into Canada from the countries involved in the war. These importations have now practically stopped, and may not be resumed for a very considerable period. The consequence is that the price of all imported goods has very materially increased, and will continue to increase in proportion to the excess of the demand upon the supply, and we shall not be surprised to see the supply completely exhausted within a very short time. This fact is creating some concern in the minds of the public, who seem to believe that the merchant is responsible for such an increase.

We think it would be advisable for you to point out to your customers that in their purchases they should give preference to goods made in Canada, which would avoid paying such high prices, and would help to keep the Canadian factories busy, thereby giving employment to Canadians who, at this particular time, are so much in need of earning as much as possible.

To encourage home industries is a good policy at all times, but should be acted upon at this trying period for self-preservation, and we strongly suggest that you co-operate with your customers in this matter, thereby doing your share in educating the public to this end, and by so doing, greatly oblige.

Yours truly,
The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, Inc.
J. A. Beaudry,
Secretary for the Province of Quebec

Every dollar the Canadian householder spends for Canadian goods will lessen the demands from the unemployed for relief during the next few months.

"MADE-IN-WINNIPEG"

Simple Maxims Which Every Western Community Can Adopt For its Use

During the "Made-in-Winnipeg" week, organized by the enterprising Industrial Commissioner of the Western metropolis in May last, many "slogans" were used with good results by the keen business men of Winnipeg, whose co-operation made the exhibition such a huge success.

The following are a few mottoes which can be adopted with slight change for use in every Western community:

It isn't always the sky-scraper that makes the city. A factory with a big pay-roll will do twice as much.

Become impressed with the real, true downright duty you owe your city in patronizing home industry. After all is said and done, the full dinner-pail is the prosperity sign of a live city.

Winnipeg believes self-preservation to be the first law of nature, and therefore welcomes the "Made in Winnipeg" Week, advocating home industries, the first law of a city's solid development.

Winnipeg believes that no city can continue growth upon sound foundation without industry. It is the city of manufacturing that forges ahead.

Winnipeg knows that the way to build up a local industry is to buy of its wares. It is a duty citizens owe to the community. Buy the product of home labor, home capital and home industry.

Winnipeg realizes that there are eighteen thousand people employed in manufacturing goods right here in the city, and that if we can double the number and have the money that these people earn spent right here, it goes to help the prosperity of all.

Winnipeg knows that the purchase of every $1,000 of goods, "Made in Winnipeg" instead of purchasing outside, means the addition of one person to the city instead of supporting him elsewhere.

"Anything that is produced in Canada from Canadian materials, by the application of Canadian brain and labor, will always have first call with me. And it's only good business on my part that it should."

Indigestion and Headaches

Arising From Constipation, Cured and Regular Habits Established by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

In the western Provinces, where as many thousands live far from doctors and drug stores, very many rely on Dr. Chase's medicines to cure disease and maintain health and strength. This letter gives some idea of what perfect control Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills exert over the most common ills of life.

Mrs. H. K. Hewer, farmer's wife, Eastburg, Alta., writes:—"For about ten years I suffered from constipation, indigestion, headache and languid feelings. Treatment from two or three doctors afforded only temporary relief, so I turned to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and with most satisfactory results. Headaches have disappeared, regular habits established and general health very much better. Both my husband and I can speak highly of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, as we have both been greatly benefited by them." LIGHTNING RODS.

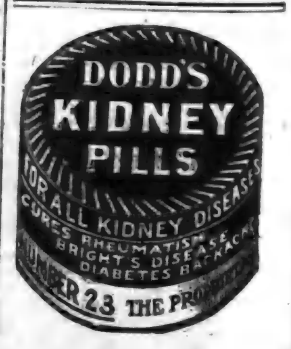
Farmers are Warned Against Buying Inferior Makes.

Dear Sir:

I wish to warn the farmers of Ontario against inferior lightning rods. In our investigations we have found that an iron centred rod, that is, one composed of a strip of copper twisted around an iron or steel centre, whether the centre is a strip or wire or both, is a very short lived rod. In many cases the iron is nearly all rusted away in from five to ten years, leaving only the copper, which is too light either to wear well, or to carry off a flash of lightning without melting. The copper sheath of these rods weighs less than half what the standard copper rods weigh. Any farmer who puts these iron centred rods on his buildings is actually getting less present value for his money than if using an all-copper rod, to say nothing of the lack of durability. A plain galvanized iron cable is more durable than the iron centred rod.

In bulletin 220 on Lightning Rods, page 26, appears a photograph of a piece of iron centred rod taken from the peak of a building after eight years of use. The iron strip and wires were in several pieces, and more than half rusted away.



It is to the credit of all lightning rod companies in Ontario, except two, that they are following the teaching of Bulletin 220, and do not supply iron-centred rods. Several months ago I personally informed one of the two companies that its iron-centred rod was not fit to put on a building, and the other, even before Bulletin 220 was published, was notified what its teachings would be regarding the iron centred rod, and they were advised not to stock up with that kind of rod. Yet these companies are using other portions of the bulletin to induce farmers to buy these inferior rods which it condemns.

Under these circumstances I think it only fair to the farmers of the province to put them in possession of the facts. And it is not unfair to the companies for they were notified publicly through the bulletin and privately by letter, thus giving them ample time to provide a good rod. Indeed it has been a matter of surprise to me to learn through recent correspondence and personal reports that these rods were still being sold.

These companies can just as well supply good rods, as specified and described in the bulletin.

Perhaps it may not be amiss before concluding to say that our investigations have shown that properly installed rods will prevent $999 of loss out of every $1000 that would occur if the same buildings were not rodded.

Yours,
Wm. H. DAY,

A SERIAL STORY

ANNA, The Adventuress

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

CHAPTER XXXVI.—continued.

"Annabel is a prophetess," he declared. "I too am asked."

"It is a conspiracy," she exclaimed. "Come, we must go home and have some luncheon. My little maid-servant will think that I am lost."

They clambered down the hill together. The air was sweet with the perfume of flowers, and the melody of murmuring insects, the blue sky was cloudless, the heat of the sun was tempered by the heather-scented west wind. Ennison paused by the little gate.

"I think," he said, "that you have found the real home of the lotos-eaters. Here one might live the life of golden days."

She shook her head gently.

"Neither you nor I, Nigel, are made of such stuff," she answered. "These are the playgrounds of life. The great heart of the world beats only where men and women are gathered together. You have your work before you, and I——"

He kissed her on the lips.

"I believe," he said, "that you mean me to be Prime Minister."

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Sir John Proposes a Toast.

Sir John raised his glass.

"Mr. Ennison," he said, with a touch of his former pomposity, "permit me to supplement my more formal congratulations of a few minutes ago by drinking your very good health. Anna," he added, turning towards her, "it is hard to know what you wish, for you seem to have everything. You have health, success, and—Ennison. I thinv that instead I must ask you to drink with me to our mutual forgiveness. May I be a better brother-in-law in the future than I have been in the past."

"The balance of fault is on my side," Anna said softly. "We will drink forgetfulness to all those things which are to be forgotten."

"It may interest you to know," Sir John remarked, setting down his glass, "that the wine came from the cellars of a very rising firm of wine merchants, Messrs. Montague Hill & Co."

"He has quite recovered then?" Anna asked.

"Absolutely," Sir John answered. "The man seems to have come to his senses in more ways than one. He is engaged to be married to a little girl out Hampstead way, and seems perfectly contented. I met them together in Regent Street this afternoon and had the honour of an introduction."

"And what were you doing in Regent Street, sir?" Annabel demanded.

Sir John thrust his hand into his pocket.

Sir John thrust his hand into his pocket.

"Buying these little mementos of a very delightful day," he answered, producing two Morocco cases, one of which he passed to Anna, and one to Annabel. "Come, Ennison, the carriage is waiting, and the Division might come off in a quarter of an hour now. We must not forget that we are servants of the people."

They left the room amidst a little duologue of delight. Sir John knew how to make handsome presents, and had sufficiently good taste not to attempt to choose them himself. Annabel linked her arm through her husband's, and insisted upon seeing him off herself. She lit his cigarette, pulled his tie straight and rearranged the orchid in his buttonhole. When the two men entered the House of Commons a few minutes later an acquaintance, who stopped to speak to Ennison, looked after his companion with an amused smile.

"Never knew a man improve so much by marrying a young wife as Sir John," he remarked. "He's getting positively jaunty."

Ennison went on his way laughtin.

* * * * *

Back in Cavendish Square the two girls were sitting over the fire in Annabel's own room. They were sitting very close together, and there were traces of tears in Annabel's eyes.

"I think, Anna," she said softly, "that I am cured for ever of expecting romance only from romantic people. I shall never forget—telling John. It seemed to me fair to tell him, yet so very hopeless."

Anna nodded.

"I too think, dear," she answered, "that it was wonderful."

"I always thought of him," Annabel continued, "as hide-bound in conventionality, and you know how engrossed he was with this electioneering. Yet when I had told him, it was just as though such a place as parliament did not exist. He never seemed to think of it, or the election for a moment. I expected to find him gloomy and depressed on the journey. He was nothing of the sort. He was simply deliciously excited all the time. And, Anna, when he began to try and dress like a Frenchman I didn't know whether to laugh or cry. He wore a ready-made suit of French clothes and a big floppy tie, and I'm sure he practised walking on his toes all the time. I never loved any one so much Anna, in all my life as I loved him then. Everything seemed altogether different. It has done so ever since.

Anna smiled.

Anna smiled.

"People are always so different from what we expect," she remarked. "You meet an ordinary sort of person who seems fairly obvious, and after a time you begin to find yourself bored with him just because you feel sure that you know all about him, and exactly what he would do under certain conditions. And then the conditions come, and you your eyes and feel very small. The timid person becomes a hero, the stolid perton discloses a marvellous vein of sentiment, the virtuous person shocks us, and the rake becomes a puritan. Look at our friend Mr. Montague Hill, a vulgar passionate man, half crazed with his own folly. Yet he was not afraid to die with a falsehood upon his lips. It was a fine impulse which made him write and sign that paper. Yet you might have watched the man all your life, and seen nothing to make you believe him capable of it."

Anna sprang up and listened. A delightful smile had parted her lips.

"Baby is awake," she exclaimed. "Let us go and see him."

* * * * * * *

Anna came first from the nursery, and waiting for her sister drew aside for a moment the curtains which hung before the window. It came to her with a momentary flash of recollection that at the three great crises of her inward life she had found herself like this, looking out into the night. Was it some secret desire for the sympathy of these millions of her fellow-creatures, these speeling and toiling and pleasure hunting sons and daughters of the world, or was it perhaps because the strain of life and her own emotions had suddenly become so tense that the walls of builded houses had stilled her? So much had happened since the fiat of David Courtlaw and her own passionate desire for real and intimate contact with life and its natural forces had made of her something of an adventuress. Yet she was conscious now of a certain delightful sense of rest. She had notched her experiences deep, she felt herself no longer a dilettante in emotions. She had passed lightly through the maelstrom of life, she knew now what was meant by storm and the swirl and the tempest of living. And before her——

The light in the great clock tower went suddenly out. A faint flush stained her cheeks, her eyes grew wonderfully soft. Nigel then was on his way home.

THE END.

NEW METHODS.

"How will you have your eggs cooked?" asked the waiter.

"Make any difference in the cost of 'em?" inquired the cautious customer with the brimless hat and the ragged beard.

"No."

"Then cook them on the top of a slice of ham," said the customer, greatly relieved.—Tit-Bits.

ALL ONE NOW.

Despite all the mutterings of the past over England's treatment of Ireland, we are all one again now that the test has come. The passing of the Home Rule bill will intensify the devotion of Irishmen to the cause—that is if such a thing was possible, for despite everything that has happened, the habitual distrust of Ireland's loyalty and that sort of thing, the sons of Ireland have ever been most valiant in war. It is the same to-day. Irishmen are at the front, the same courageous, jovial, light-hearted men as of old. A letter written from somewhere in France by Pte. McGlade to his mother in Caunty Monaghan, breathes the same fervent spirit, and is worth republishing for that reason. Here is a portion of it:

"Some of our finest lads are now sleeping their last sleep in Belgium; but, mother dear, you can take your son's word for it that for every son of Ireland who will never come back there are at least three Germans who will never be heard of again.

" . . . When we got here we sang "Paddies Evermore," and then we were off to chapel to pray for the souls of the lads that are gone. You will probably hear all sorts of strange stories at home, but you may be sure that we are in good heart and only eager to get at the Germans again.

"Some of them don't understand why Irishmen should fight so hard for England, but that just shows how little they know about us."

Isn't it fine, the grand old spirit! The root of it all is one of love for a common heritage. We may, Irishmen, Scotchmen and Englishmen, grumble and growl, kick over the traces at this and that, vow civil war and threaten to break up the whole concern, but when it comes down to the fine thing we stop short of wrecking, and putting our arms about one another, sally forth to uphold the Empire and a common cause that is yet to find the zenith of its splendor.

The past three months in Orillia police court have been a record breaker, says the Times. During the quarter there have been more cases than in any three months' period during the nine years of Chief Reid's connection with the police force. Only a very few liquor cases have been heard.

R. Ruston purchased a farm from a Mr. Williamson near Church Hill some weeks ago. He moved on to the place and on his first visit to the cistern to draw water was horrified to find the dead body of a 14-year old boy in the water. The body was identified as that of Wallace Mont, an English boy who had worked for Mr. Mabee until about two weeks before the time his body was found, but who had disappeared. It is thought that the boy suicided, as the water was only three feet deep.

Mrs. Francis Irwin.

Mrs. Francis Irwin, one of the oldest residents of Orangeville, and wife of the town treasurer, died at her home here on Friday morning, Oct. 9th, at the age of 80 years. Deceased had been ill for some little time, but her death was a sad shock to her immediate friends throughout this district. She was the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Taylor, pioneers of the township of Albion, and was married there in November, 1859, coming to Orangeville shortly afterwards when the town was a mere hamlet. Mr. and Mrs. Irwin celebrated their golden wedding Nov. 2nd, 1909. The late Canon Henderson, who was buried here four weeks ago, was a brother-in-law. Besides her husband, Mrs. Irwin is survived by her son, W. N., barrister, a daughter, Miss Jennie, at home, two grandchildren, Hilda and Carter Irwin, three brothers, Rev. G. I. and Frank Taylor, of Toronto, Walter, of Vancouver, and four sisters, Mrs. John Steele, Mrs. Thos. Fisher and Miss Taylor, Toronto, and Mrs. R. B. Shore, of Winnipeg.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon to Forest Lawn Cemetery and was attended by a large number of friends and acquaintances, the officiating minister being Rev. G. W. Tebbs, of St. Mark's Church, who delivered a very effective sermon from the 4th verse of the 23rd psalm. Many flowers were sent in by sorrowing friends, among them being a wreath by the town council, flowers from the family, Easter lilies by Mr. A. A. and Miss Susie Hughson, roses from Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Booth, a wreath of asters from Miss Fisher and Miss Maqel Henderson, nieces, and a spray from Miss Mills.

The pallbearers were Sheriff Endacott, Col. Preston, Mayor Campbell and Messrs. A. A. Hughson, W. M. Green and Dr. T. H. Henry.

Miss Anna Tait.

Sad indeed are the circumstances in connection with the demise of Miss Anna Tait, daughter of the late James and Agnes Tait, who departed this life in Lord Dufferin Hospital, Orangeville, on October 6th, aged 25 years and 10 months. Miss Tait had been sick in Detroit for about six weeks with diptheria when she was called home to her father's funeral. The strain and anxiety on a weakened constitution was too much and broncho-pneumonia developed, and notwithstanding the best medical attention and careful nursing she passed peacefully away on the above date. Anna Tait was born in East Luther on December 8th, 1888, and is survived by one brother and four sisters. She was a professional nurse, a graduate of the 1912 class of the Hurley Hospital, Flint, Michigan, and held the position of Superintendent of The Ideal Hospital of Detroit, where she was held in high esteem by her professional and social associates. Her ability as a nurse was considered exceptional, it being a noticeable fact by her associates in her profession that Miss Tait was never found wanting and allowed nothing to come between her and her duty and very best efforts for her patients. Her cheerful and optimistic disposition eminently fitted her for her chosen profession and her patients all loved her gentle touch and sweet smile. Much sympathy is felt and expressed for her brother and sisters in their affliction, especially for her twin sister, Agnes, also a professional nurse in the Children's Free Hospital in Detroit, who has always been Anna's inseparable companion.

The funeral was held from her late home in Luther on Thursday, October 8th.

James Tait.

James Tait, who died in East Luther on Sept. 20th, aged 81 years 7 months and 16 days, had the distinction of being the oldest living settler in the township, having owned and lived for 48 years on the farm on whirh he died. Born in New York State in February, 1833, he came four years later with his parents to Ontario and lived in the townships of King, Howick and Peel. In 1864 he married Miss Agnes Smith, of Alma, and moved to their new home in Luther, and they began life's struggles together in the solid bush, where they cheerfully lived through the difficulties of the times to see the wilderness turned into a beautiful country and their farm into a lovely home. The union of Mr. and Mrs. Tait was blessed by fourteen children, 8 of whom died in early infancy and childhood. Those who survive are William, on the homestead, Mrs. B. Ariss, of Courval, Sask.; Mrs. Silas Chatters, Orangeville; Mr. Frank Haskins, Flint, Mich.; and twin daughters, Misses Agnes and Anna, professional nurses, of Detroit, Mich. Mr. Tait was left alone four years ago by the death of his faithful and highly esteemed wife, and since then he has lived with his son William. Mr. Tait was an expert axeman and spent much of the time in his younger days in the lumber woods of Michigan, Minnesota, and many parts of Ontario and Quebec, having hewn ship timber and rafted it from Toronto to Quebec City. He was an entertaining conversationalist and possessing a very retentive memory could tell many interesting and edifying stories of life among the lumbermen and of incidents relative to pioneer life in Ontario. He was not a strong party politician, but usually voted Liberal, but was a lifelong supporter of the Presbyterian church. The host of witnesses who attended the funeral to Union Cemetery, Grand Valley, bore silent testimony to the esteem in which he was held; to the respect for a man who was never known to say anything unkind of any one. Such a man, we have reason to believe, was James Tait. He will be sadly missed in the old home.

Mrs Newton Myers.

In failing health for some three years but only confined to her bed for one week, Ellen Smith, beloved wife of Newton Myers, of lot 29, con. 8, Amaranth, died on Saturday, Oct, 10, 1914. Deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Smith, of Campania, was born on Feb. 5, 1854, and was married on August 23, 1876. She was a member of the United Brethren Church at Maple Grove, and was an earnest Christian and an affectionate wife and mother. She is survived by her husband and three sons and one daughter. They are Albert N., Craiglands, Sask.; Wellington S., Pinkham, Sask.; Ernest G., Maple Grove, and Sadie E., at home. Her father, who is 93 years of age, still survives, and she leaves two brothers and two sisters. They are Robt. S. Smith, Campania; Richard H. Smith, Nelson, B.C.; Mrs. Wm. Keys, Corbetton, and Mrs. D. Cameron, Durham. The funeral took place to Shelburne cemetery, Rev. J. T. Caldwell conducting the services.

The pallbearers were Jas. Connor, Wm. Pacey, Nelson Teeter, Wm. Lomas, Chas. Cooke and Alex. McVannel.

Jeffers, the Druggist, has the agency for cut flowers, wedding bouquets, wreaths, funeral sprays, etc., from Dale's, Brampton.

The Rexall Stores of Canada
CONTRIBUTE TO
The Canadian Patriotic Fund

THE Rexall Stores of Canada, 400 of the leading Drug Stores in Canada have unanimously agreed to contribute to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, FIVE PER CENT. of their total purchases of all Rexall Toilet Goods, Rexall Remedies and other merchandise manufactured or sold by the United Drug Company, Limited, Toronto, from October 15th, to December 31st, 1914.

This action of the Rexall Drug Stores of Canada has been undertaken co-operatively, because as a co-operative organization, they realize how much more can be done unitedly than individually, and it has been taken for two reasons—to fulfil a humane duty in raising a fund for the relief work of the Canadian Patriotic Organization, and a patriotic duty in an endeavor to keep a large staff of Canadian employees busy.

The 400 Rexall Stores of Canada make an appeal to your sympathy and support in their doubly worthy cause for increasing the funds of the Canadian Patriotic Organization and for the support of Canadian workmen because:—

The fund that would be raised on the basis of last year's business can be tremendously increased if every man and woman in Canada will help a little by the simple process of purchasing Rexall Goods at the Rexall Stores.

No need to give space in this announcement to emphasize the high quality of Rexall Toilet and Medicinal goods. Sufficient to say that 7,000 of the leading Drug Stores in Canada, Great Britain, and the United States place their personal and collective reputations behind them; that the public in these countries endorse them to the extent of several million dollars worth of purchases a year.

Better goods are not made, and you take no risk in buying, for every Rexall Store will return you your money if any Rexall Product is not entirely satisfactory and do it, too, without the slightest objection.

There's a full list of Rexall products waiting for you at the Rexall Store in your town.

Ask for it—kindly pass the word along to your friends. It is the collective purchases of all that will make this Rexall Store Fund for the Canadian Patriotic Organization work a big one.

The Fund will be collected from each Rexall Store in Canada by the United Drug Company, Limited, Toronto, and will be paid by them direct to the officers of the Canadian Patriotic Organization, and the amount so collected will be published in this paper when paid over.

Rexall Goods are made in Canada and you can procure them in your town only from —For years the gospel of tradition at home has been preached by The Banner, but it seems there is a special call for further preaching at the present time. Orangeville needs the money; don't send it away. Buy what you need right here at home. Keep what coin there is circulating on the inside of our own town walls. In the winter that lies before us every man who has any thing is going to be called upon to share it with those who have not, and in this process the merchants, as is right, with them, will have to bear their brunt. They have been loyal and patriotic in everything that pertains to the town's interest and the interests of the people. Now the people can do no less than be patriotic to the merchants. Home trading is good economics any time, now it is doubly good.

Hospital Notes

A very enjoyable meeting of the I. O. E. was held last Friday at the home of Mrs. F. W. Lewis. After the business had been disposed of Mrs. Tebbs gave a very interesting talk about the origin and work of The Coombe's Home for Boys and Girls, Hespeler, Ont. A solo by Mrs. Lewis, "It's a long way to Tipperary," was greatly appreciated. After a noon tea served by the hostess brought to a close a very delightful meeting.

Our treasurer, Mr. Dahl, returned Saturday from an extended trip to the Western provinces.

We regret to announce that one of our members, Mrs. F. J. Marshall is at present a patient in the Hospital, suffering from a dislocated collar-bone.

The ladies of the Chapter wish to remind the public that this is Hospital gathering Week at the Hospital and that all contributions of fruit, vegetables, butter, eggs, etc., will assist very materially in the carrying on of the hospital work.

The ladies appointed to visit the hospital for the ensuing month are Miss A. Clark and Miss G. Irvine.

The following donations are gratefully acknowledged:—Mrs. Howard Camilla, pr. chickens; Mrs. Thomas Alton, pr. chickens; Mrs. McPherson, baking; Mrs. McLean, vegetables; Miss Crosier, fruit and pickles; Mrs. Patterson, fruit and pickles; Mrs. Curry, fruit and pickles St. Mark's Church, vegetables; Mrs. Firth, fruit and pickles; Miss Jennie Irwin, vegetables; Miss Irwin, basket of apples; T. M. Rowan, 4 doz. cabbage; R. Rowan, bag of apples; Mrs. W. J. Cruikshanks, eggs and snow apples; Mrs. Robinson, pickles; Mrs. Irvine, cake.

Thanksgiving Supper.

On Monday evening the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church gave their annual Thanksgiving supper, after which a splendid programme was rendered. Addresses were delivered by Revs. Morris, Tebbs, St. Dalmas and the pastor. Miss Hulse gave a selection on the violin, Misses Wright, Hogg, Ewing, King and Mrs. Bowles supplied piano duets and vocol solos were given by Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Boswell, Mr. Legate, of Owen Sound, and Dr. Price. Miss Verlie Smith recited. At intervals during the evening a Victor Victrola, under the management of Mr. Geo. Nicholson, who kindly loaned it for the occasion, rendered many selections. Great credit is due those taking part in making a thoroughly creditable and profitable evening. W. R. Liddy, B.A., occupied the chair.

HARVEST THANKSGIVING SERVICES AT ST. MARK'S.

The annual Thanksgiving services at St. Mark's Church were held on Sunday last. There were very large congregations present at all the services. The special preacher was the Rev. A. H. Barnes, of St. Peter's Church, Carlton St., Toronto. He delivered two excellent sermons both morning and evening. There were celebrations of the Holy Communion at eight, eleven and seven. The church was beautifully decorated in the chancel, and around all the windows with emblems of the harvest—fruit, grain, vegetables and flowers. The Harvest Thanksgiving offertory was over fifty dollars more than last year, amounting throughout the day to about $250. The choir rendered special music at both services.

MISS MABEL SANDERSON LEADS in The Banner's Great Voting Contest With 180,000 Votes.

Splendid Work Being Done by Many Contestants—Mrs. Harcus, Miss Simpson, Mr. McFadden and Miss Nelson Have Big Totals—Special Prize For Best Work This Week—Now Is The Time To Vote For Your Favorite—Well-Known Business Man Gives Contestants a Special Prize For Work Done During the Next Few Days.

THE ORANGEVILLE BANNER,
Orangeville, Ont.,

Gentlemen,—

Like all other business men in Orangeville, I have become interested in your big Voting Contest, and I wish to offer a prize for your candidates to compete for.

HERE IS THE PROPOSITION:

To the Candidate who turns in the most money on subscriptions between Thursday, Oct. 15th, and Wednesday, Oct. 21st, I will give a beautiful wrist watch.

I am doing this because I am interested in your campaign for more circulation. The greater your circulation the more value will I receive from my advertisements. I wish to take advantage of this occasion to congratulate you on the splendid undertaking and to extend my best wishes for the successful termination of the enterprise.

Awaiting the pleasure of congratulating the winner of the wrist watch, also, I am, yours very truly,

RUSSELL MORROW.

You all know the old adage "Where there's a will there's a way." This is the by-word of many of the candidates in The Banner's Voting Contest, and every one who will continue to bear this adage in mind cannot help but be successful.

After this contest is over there will be the usual number of "I told you so's." It is always so easy to foretell the result of any election after it is all over, and explain how "so-and-so" was defeated. See to it that you have nothing of this kind to reproach yourself with at the finish. Put forth every endeavor and tell your friends how much the winning of the Capital Prize will mean to you, and don't be bashful, your friends will support you if you only go and see them.

A number of subscriptions are being overlooked each day because the candidates show a timidity in approaching some men because of their business circles. At least your request will be met with courtesy, and in a great many cases the person you approach will gladly help you. Don't be discouraged because some one appears to have a big lead. What some one else does you can do. The subscriptions are to be had and you can get them. See all the people you can and you will be surprised how rapidly you can get the orders.

CONTEST GINGER PILLS.

Take some of this ginger and inject it into your campaign—

No odds how popular you are, when you stop, your votes stop.

Trying to fool someone that you have a great many votes may mean a great deal to holders of government bonds, but it will not win the contest.

If you have a real friend who is not doing anything for you remind him or her that now is the time for them to prove their friendship.

Talk contest.

Going over the same territory several times pays.

Be popular, but be busy, and your friends will take a deep interest in your final efforts and help you.

Risk nothing to luck and remember that chance will not bring you a large vote.

Give those you solicit to understand that there is not a color of charity in this whole effort. It's business from the ground up; strictly business, too.

If you haven't found any long time subscriptions, keep looking. There are a few in your neck o' woods; there may be many.

Every time a candidate gets a friend to subscribe for the Orangeville Banner, a real helpful favor has been conferred on the one who subscribes.

Try and get used to the high speed.

Address and Presentation

Mr. Donald McPherson, son of Mr. Dougal McPherson, who is leaving town to take up studies in Toronto, was the recipient of a very handsome umbrella by the choir of St. Andrew's Church on Saturday evening. The young people of the church also presented him with an elegant club bag and the following address as a slight reminder of the esteem in which he is held by all the members of St. Andrew's, of which church he has been an active and valued member for some years. The presentation took place in the Public Library.

Mr. Donald McPherson.

Dear Friend:—

It was with very deep regret that we learned that you were about to leave our community for a time to take up your studies in Toronto, and it occurred to us that we ought not to let the occasion pass without some sort of recognition being taken of it. You have lived in this town all your life, you have gone to school and have grown to manhood in our midst, and you have always given a good account of yourself as a young man and as a student. While at High School you always took an active part in the school life, apart from the daily studies; and did a great deal to keep up the interest in the Literary Society and the work of the Cadets.

Then in church life and work you have always been interested and active, and in this department we shall miss you perhaps as much, if not more, than in any other. For years you have been a regular attendant in the choir and one of its leading members. In the Sabbath School too you have been active as secretary, and latterly as teacher of the young men's class. And your life amongst your fellows has always been exemplary and consistent with your profession and your teaching. In a very real sense therefore your withdrawal from our midst will be a great loss to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, but we trust that your departure from us will but give you an opportunity to continue your work and employ your talents in some other church and community.

We shall miss you too in the Public Library where for a number of years you have been such a valuable assistant to your father. For here, as well, you have always shown yourself considerate and obliging towards those who came for books or to consult you about them from time to time.

We have gathered here to-night—a few of your friends—as representatives of St. Andrew's congregation and its different departments, to pay our respects to you and to show, in a small way, our appreciation of what you have been to us, and how deeply we regret your departure. As a memento of our friendly relations and a token of our esteem we would ask you to accept this Club Bag. And in presenting it to you we do so with the hope that your separation from us is to be only a temporary one, and that after completing your studies you may return to live amongst us once more, and to take up again those activities which must now be interrupted for a time.

And let us at the same time wish you the success in your work which your diligence so richly deserves.

Signed on behalf of the Young Men's Bible Class of the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

MET DEATH AT CALEDON.

Mrs. Eliza Jane Gordon, of West Toronto, Killed by Train.

The pleasure of the day at Caledon Fall Fair was sadly marred by the instantaneous death of Mrs. Eliza Jane Gordon, of 90 Laws St., West Toronto, who was killed by being run over by the down train at the station when about to take passage home on Friday evening.

Mrs. Gordon had been spending the day with friends at Caledon fair with her child and sister-in-law, Mrs. S. H. Carson. They went to the station in the evening to return to the city. The small station platform was crowded with people ready to take the train. A baggage truck obstructed the view of the train and in some unexplained manner Mrs. Gordon was struck and knocked between the cars and run over. The train had to be backed up before the body could be removed. One arm and one foot were completely severed and before medical assistance could arrive the unfortunate women died. Dr. J. T. Thomas was at once called, but nothing could be done when he arrived.

Mrs. Gordon's husband, who was a railroad man, was killed some years ago in an accident. A few years before that her father, also a railroad man, was killed. Her brother, Conductor Campbell, is employed on the Owen Sound line.

Dr. A. F. Reynar, of Palgrave, coroner, came over the same evening and opened an inquest. After viewing the body the inquest was adjourned until Saturday next.

Mr. Clark, of Alton, prepared the body for burial and sent it to Toronto on Saturday morning. The funeral took place from her late residence to Prospect Cemetery on Monday afternoon.

ST. MARKS, A.Y.P.A.

Next Monday, the Rector will give the first of a series of addresses at the first Devotional Meeting, on the Psalms. The title of the first address will be "The Psalms in early Church History." All young people heartily invited.

The Inglewood branch of the Women's Institute has raised the sum of $104 in aid of the patriotic fund.

Twenty-five Years Experience

I have over twenty-five years experience in buying and selling Jewelry and Spectacleware and am a competent judge of quality in these goods. My reputation in this district as a dealer in these lines is above reproach.

There are Gold Filled goods made that will wear from ten years to a lifetime. There are Gold Filled goods made that will only wear a few months. The reliable optician can only afford to sell the first kind. But the Travelling Optician will sell the one he can make the most money out of, and it would be poor indeed if it would not last for a few days. You can test your eyes in a barn, as some people do it, or in any make-shift corner—a peddlar will do it in your kitchen.

Proper Examinations

Can only be made in properly fitted rooms with proper light and first-class instruments, such as we have for the purpose.

There Is No Bait In Our Advertisements

Nothing but hard, honest facts. The only inducement we can give you to deal with us is our ability to give you satisfaction. You get goods of known quality and our personal guarantee. They are worth what you pay for them.

We Are Not Here To-day and Away To-morrow

We are here every day and we want you to come back to us at any time if you are not fully satisfied.

MARSVILLE

RURAL SCHOOL FALL FAIR

Despite heavy clouds and threatening rain all roads led to Marsville on Tuesday, Oct. 6th, for the First Annual Rural School Fall Fair for the Marsville District. From early morning the children could be seen taking their numerous exhibits to the large tent erected on the school grounds and, by the time the judges commenced their work, they were called in to face some three hundred and seventy-five entries of exceptional exhibits in the various classes. Some of the classes were particularly well filled and competition in all classes was very keen.

This Fair was carried on under the management of the local Department of Agriculture and the programme followed was similar to that of the other Fairs, the material being distributed in the spring and grown and cared for at the homes of the pupils.

The features of this Fair were the excellent quality of the potato exhibits and the extent and quality of the cooking shown by the girls, the entry list in cakes and pies reaching nearly thirty in each case.

The judging was done in the various classes by Mesdames Dorrance and Fairbairn for the girls' work, and by Messrs. Duff and McKay in the other classes. THE HOMELAND'S CALL

By Ronald McCaskill

Maclean's Magazine, October, 1914.

Hearken, ye whelps of the Lion !
Stir ye, awake from your dream ;
Hark to the world-flung challenge,
List to the eagle's scream.
Thrown in the teeth of the nations
Terrible ; menacing ; grim :
Hear ye the words of defiance,
Hurled to the Empire's rim ?
Stand from the path of my southern mate.
Stand aside lest ye be too late
And I tear thee limb from limb.

Hearken, ye whelps of the Lion,
Hear ye his arrogant cry ?
"Where is there one to dare me,
One who'll do battle and die ?
Fear I the bear that was conquered,
Cowed by the small yellow man ?
Heed I the squeaks of an upstart
I ground in the dust of Sedan ?
Who talks to me of the Lion's sway ?
A lion's cubs may be eagle's prey!
And mercy is none of my plan."

Hearken, ye whelps of the Lion,
What says thy mother's roar ?
"Who is this Teuton boaster
To prate so loud of war ?
Long have I stood his insults,
Long have I leashed my might
But never brooked dishonored peace.
The time has come to fight!
Rise then ye whelps of the Lion's breed,
Thy mother's call is the Empire's need
And battle for the right!

"Send me the men from the Southern Cross
Eager to do their part ;
Send me my sons from the frozen north.
Men of the mighty heart.
Give me the men from the sun-baked veldt.
Bred to the rifle's crack ;
Send me alike both rich and poor ;
No fear that men I'll lack ;
Making one cause with my sons at home
Warring on land or on salt sea foam
To fight for the Union Jack."

HAVE PRETTY HAIR

Thick, Soft, Fluffy, and no Dandruff—Use Parisian Sage

If your hair is losing its natural color, coming out and splitting, or lacks that enviable softness, gloss and beauty, do not despair—pretty hair is largely a matter of care. If it is too thin make it grow. If it is harsh and brittle soften it up—lubricate it. If you have dandruff it is because the scalp is too dry and flakes off. Freshen up the scalp with Parisian Sage — all dandruff disappears, falling hair and itching head case, your hair is doubly beautiful.

Parisian Sage, sold by F. S. Pickering and at all drug counters, is just what you need—a large bottle costs but 50 cents. It surely makes the hair lustrous and seem twice as abundant. You cannot be disappointed in Parisian Sage.

OKUMA AT THE HELM GUIDES AGAIN NEW WAR LEADERS

Japan's Fighters of a Decade Ago Are Gone, But Veteran Remains.

He Is the Statesman Who Put the Country in Foreground of the Nations.

NEWS from the Far East would go to show that Kiao-chau is scarcely the impregnable foothold in China which German soldiers and strategists have boasted it to be. Indeed, like many another much-praised part of Germany's machine for the conquest of the world, it has done rather badly under the severe test put upon it by the Japanese naval and military forces.

Japan's war—if we may describe as war a mere expeditionary operation of the sort—has called into prominence one great figure of the Russo-Japanese conflict. Of the older group Okuma alone figures in the public prints. Togo, Nogi and Oyama have disappeared from the scene, and in their places have come Admirals Dewa and Kaminura, both veterans, but scarcely known in the West. They fought in the great struggle of a decade ago and if a serious disaster were to occur to the British North Sea fleet the probability is that Japan would widen the scope of her operations and they would be heard from in Western waters.

COUNT OKUMA.

OKUMA TO THE FORE.

Although Japan's operations are on a smaller scale than before there is still serious work being done in Tokio, and among the statesmen now occupied with the responsibilities of was there is none busier than Count Okuma, nor is there one whose personal history is more romantic or whose ability more remarkable than the Prime Minister of Japan.

Okuma, now 77 years of age, was born of a ruling caste, trained to war for 700 years to participate in the aristocratic privilege of defending the country. He was brought up to enjoy the immunities of feudalism. His family was steeped in the ideas of national seclusion, by war if necessary, in blind hatred of all foreigners, and fanatical condemnation of their religion. Okuma threw overboard the aristocratic principles of his childhood training, his benefits of class, his instinctive distrust of the alien—everything but patriotism. As soon as he was old enough to be admitted into the Government he accepted a minor office. He had a sacred mission to perform, and took his training for it. He was inspired by the homely Japanese proverb: "The timid rat will find courage to bite the cat before submitting to death." His sacred mission was to rescue Japan from the death sentence of the foreigner.

RESENTED IMPOSITIONS.

He saw the effect upon his country of the enterprising and insolent Westerner, locating his legations in the ancient temples if he took the fancy, scoffing at the venerable religion as "heathenism," ignoring the ceremonious etiquette which was the symbol of centuries of ideals, and preparing to appropriate whatever wealth the country possessed—to milk it dry. He saw the fire of native resentment break into flame with attacks upon the foreigner for which the people had to pay exorbitantly—$3,000,000 tribute to England, France, America, and Holland in 1864; $500,000 in addition for the life of one British trader.

That Japan was saved to herself, that the powers her Emperor unwittingly signed away to the foreigner were regained through a revision of the rights and privileges enumerated above the signature on those first scraps of paper, that the people of Japan have learned to defend the sovereignty they so nearly lost, and change their position among the nations from one of condescending toleration to one of admiration and commanding respect is due to a small band of high-minded patriots of whom Okuma takes a pre-eminent place.

OUSTED FEUDALISM.

He helped to eliminate feudalism; he used his rare gifts of eloquence to persuade the aristocracy to give up its privilege of alone defending their land, to admit the commoner and the peasant into the army. Of giant physique and strong, athletic build, quite unlike the typical Japanese, his stern face little resembling the mobile countenance characteristic of his countrymen, Okuma is outwardly typical of the things different from the past for which he stands in modern Japan. His character, however, could not be more deeply Japanese because it is absolutely and thoroughly Japanese at the core—so much so that there is no room for anything else.

Okuma became Prime Minister only last May. It is but a short time past, but the war clouds were not then visible to the eyes of ordinary folk. His first act, however, was to demand an increase in the army and navy. His acceptance of office at this time would be in itself an indication of circumstances necessitating his leadership — in other words, war.

Droll Tommy Atkins.

"Ah! It is the cool drollery of your men that is just splendid," said a French officers who had been on the right of the British position and had been part of the force driven in upon the British right flank. "Just splendid," he kept repeating. "There is nothing in the world like it.

"Three of your soldiers argued about the merits of Gunboat Smith—then they stop and fire steadily, laughingly. When the 'Cease fire' sounds, then they begin again on Gunboat Smith.

"I said to one, 'We shall beat the Germans nearer Paris and finally rout them.' 'Why not do it here,' he said to me, 'and save us and them walking all that distance?' "

A French officer summed it up thus: "We French are personal in this fight. You British are scientific."

Emperor's Prize Cattle Taken.

A despatch to The Star, from Petrogrod, says that among the remarkable war trophies arriving at Smolensk is the entire stock of Emperor William's famous pedigree cattle and stud horses captured by the Russians from the Emperor's estate at Rominten in East Prussia. They were taken to Moscow and presented to the Russian agricultural institute for distribution to agricultural breeding associations.

Wounds Not Gruesome.

The entrance-wound caused by the modern bullet is not a gruesome spectacle. It is small, and its appearance has been compared to that produced by the bite of a certain parasitic insect. Often there is but little external bleeding, but this is not to be taken as a danger signal, as might be popularly supposed.

Communication Cut Off.

On the Advice of His Doctor

He Used Dr. Chase's Ointment for Protruding Piles With Splendid Results.

Too often a doctor can only think of an operation when asked for a treatment for piles. Some are sufficiently broad-minded to use the most effective treatment available, which is undoubtedly Dr. Chase's Ointment, as was proven in the case referred to in this letter.

Mr. Simon E. Jones, Railway street, Inverness, N.S., writes :—"I have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable for protruding piles. For three years I suffered from piles, and was advised by a local physician to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. I had tried many treatments in vain, and therefore know which is the best. I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment, and you are at liberty to use this statement."

The record of cures of every form of piles which stands behind Dr. Chase's Ointment is the strongest guarantee you can have that it will promptly relieve and cure this ailment, even in the most aggravated form. 60c a box all dealers.

The preliminary consisted of a simple gospel service including an exhortation by a stranger. S. F. M. O'FLYNN.

S. F. M. O'Flynn, for the past 28 years a resident of Shelburne, and for the past 51 years a resident of Dufferin county, died at his residence, First Ave., Shelburne, on Monday, Oct. 12th, about 8 o'clock, at the age of 64 years. The late Mr. O'Flynn was born near Madoc, in the county of Hastings, on Sept. 11th, 1850, and at the early age of 13 years came to Horningss Mills to reside with his brother-in-law, the Rev. Mr. Hewitt, at the time pastor of the Methodist church at that place. Shortly afterwards he entered the milling business as an apprentice with Geo. Shepherd on the present site of the Huxtable mill. Later Mr. Shepherd erected a mill at Primrose taking Mr. O'Flynn into partnership. In later years, owing to ill-health, Mr. O'Flynn was obliged to quit the milling business and moved to Shelburne 28 years ago, where he commenced a general grain and seed business. At that time he also erected a beautiful home just east of the village, where he resided until a few years ago. Since his arrival in Shelburne Mr. O'Flynn has worked up an extensive grain and seed business, and he continued to be active in his accustomed pursuits till last May, since when he has been confined to his home. For some years Mr. O'Flynn sat in the village council and gave valuable assistance in procuring the building of the splendid system of waterworks, which was installed some years ago. He was a thoroughly energetic business man, of excellent habits, fine moral character, and of a cheerful spirit, the latter remaining with him to the last, and he retained his clearness of intellect up to a couple of hours before his death. Mr. O'Flynn had been a widower for some years, his wife having predeceased him on January 12th, 1895. He leaves to mourn a family of two sons and four daughters, who were all present at the time of his death. The sons are Thos. J. O'Flynn, of Shelburne, who has been in partnership with his father for some years, and Dr. John O'Flynn, of St. Catharines. The daughters are Mrs. (Dr.) E. C. Campbell, of Saskatoon, Sask.; Mrs. (Dr.) J. A. Smith, of Shelburne; Mrs. (Dr.) John Barber, of Winnipeg, Man., and Miss Edith O'Flynn, of Shelburne. Besides the family he also leaves three brothers and two sisters.—Shelburne Free Press.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

From a careful observation at three different points, widely separated in Wellington County, The Guelph Mercury can say that farmers are not talking hard times. We hear so much of it in the city that it's a mighty relief to get out in the country, and between puffs, hear a substantial and successful lot of agriculturists talk about crop conditions in a most optimistic way.

During the violent thunderstorm that passed over that part of Egremont on Thursday afternoon lightning struck the barn of Mr. Wm. Lamont, near Robb, setting fire to it, and destroying it with most of the contents, which included the separator of Mr. Snell's threshing outfit. About half an hour would have finished the threshing which was in progress.—Mt. Forest Con.

Four prisoners got away from the Central Prison on Wednesday of last week. Mulhall pretended that he had been ordered to fix a broken pane of glass in the northeast tower and on the pretense the guard let him pass. When his back was turned Mulhall hit him over the head with a piece of gas pipe, laying him out. Then he and his three companions ran across the yard, dropped over an 18-foot wall to the railway tracks and, it is presumed, boarded a freight, for they were not seen again.

Mr. Andrew McKeown returned from the West on Tuesday where he has spent the past few months. While in some parts of the West the crop was good, there are large districts where it was almost a complete failure while those having a half crop consider themselves fortunate. In the towns and cities, business conditions are very flat. The excessive real estate boom of a year or so ago, Mr. McKeown believes, was injurious to the West and East alike and a large amount of money has been invested in Western town and city lots which is lost money.—Arthur Enterprise.

On Saturday, 10th inst., Inspector Robinson laid charges against R. West, of Grand Valley, and Constable J. Vallery, of Belwood, for being intoxicated in local option centres. West admitted having taken a little too much booze in Arthur and paid $20 and costs. Vallery fought the case, but was found guilty and paid a similar sum. For refusing to tell where he got the liquor he was committed to jail for 60 days or for so long as he refuses to tell what he knows. The Star thinks it is too bad that the money paid over must go to the province. The local constable would not act in the matter.

BABY CRIED CONSTANTLY

Mrs. Simon Aumont, Mushka, Ont., says: "My baby was ill and cried continually till I began giving her Baby's Own Tablets. They worked a marvellous change in her and she became happy; gained in weight and all signs of sickness left her. The tablets are the very best medicine I know of for little ones." Baby's Own Tablets cure all the minor ills of little ones such as colic, colds, constipation and indigestion, etc. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A STRONG INDICTMENT.

To the Editor—

A Convention of American Catholics held in Niagara Falls on August 5th recommended in part as follows:-

That liquor advertisements be not mailable and that it be a misdemeanor to ship intoxicants into prohibition territory;

That liquor dealers and others interested in places where liquor is made or sold be disqualified from serving on juries;

That abstinence from alcoholic drinks be one of the qualifications for civil service and other political offices;

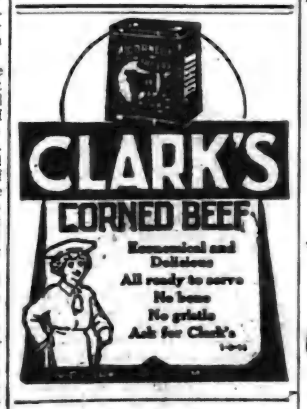
That no public money be used for intoxicants outside of hospitals;

That persons of either sex convicted of drunkenness be disfranchised for five years.

That temperance teaching be more ample in private and public schools;

That we do all in our power to remind working men, that alcohol frustrates the best counsels of labor unions for social and industrial betterment, is the main cause of our two million tramps, two millions of children doing men's work in factories, five millions of dependents on charity, six millions of illiterates, eight millions of women working away from home and fifty thousand innocent girls annually going into lives of shame and under the alluring bait of personal liberty is the working man's worst enemy.

A. Arnott, M.B., Mc.P.S.



The late Joseph Smeltzer, whose death occurred in Arthur on Wednesday evening last, was born in Dundas in March of the year 1839, being the third son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Smeltzer. When twelve years of age, with his parents he came to West Garafraxa where he resided continuously, with the exception of four years spent in West Luther, until July of this year, when he purchased a residence on Frederick street and moved into Arthur.

"Fire's Out"

THEN comes the matter of insurance. You get out your policy and note the company in which you are insured. Certain questions should not arise to worry you at such a time.

You should not be worried by the question of whether you are insured in a company that dickers and delays over settlement.

You should not be worried over the question of whether the company can pay the claim.

You should not be worried by the question of whether you have had enough protection to cover your loss.

To be insured in the Hartford Fire Insurance Company eliminates the first two of these worries. By consultation with a "Hartford" agent before taking out your policy, he will tell you the proper proportion of insurance to carry, and that eliminates the third worry.

The evident thing to do before the fire, in order to eliminate worry, is to be insured in the right kind of company.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, OCT. 22nd, 1914

The voting on the hydro-radial by-laws last Monday will serve to revive public interest in Sir Adam Beck's project for the construction of a network of electric railways. The result of the voting shows that the people have been favorably impressed with the arguments in favor of the hydro-radials. The adverse vote in Newmarket is attributed to the fact that the municipality is already admirably served by steam and electric railways. The unfavorable vote in Uxbridge does not admit of the same easy explanation, but it was doubtless due to certain local factors which inspired general opposition to the project. Hydro-radials will undoubtedly prove of immense benefit to the farmers of Ontario. Their construction will be an expensive matter and the question of most moment just now is whether or not this can be satisfactorily financed without proving unduly burdensome to the taxpayers. The plan that has been worked out is to provide for the expense of building the roads by issuing municipal debentures guaranteed by the Provincial Government and probably by the Federal Parliament as well. The earnings of the roads are expected to provide for repayment of the debentures as they mature.

Shame on the Carping Critic

The carping critic, for a few weeks stunned into silence by the suddenness and horror of the war, has once more raised his disagreeable voice, and his croaking disturbs what would otherwise be universal harmony.

Some of our Canadian papers, few, we are glad to say, have seen fit to publish bitter attacks on the Minister of Militia for his manner of administration in connection with the mobilization, thus weakening his hands at the very time we should all unite to strengthen them.

No man is perfect—we do not think the Minister would himself claim infallibility—and in common with all mankind "miserable sinners," he has done some things which he ought not to have done, and left undone some things that he ought to have done.

What we wish to emphasize is that his performance has been a truly wonderful one, that he has worked as it would take two ordinary men to work, that he has sacrificed himself to produce results, and that he is entitled to the thanks of Canada.

Few men are better known in this country than Colonel the Honourable Sam Hughes, or "Sam Hughes," as he is popularly called. His characteristics are an open book, and kid gloves do not figure largely in his wardrobe.

With a colossal task before him, and with a frankness which is impossible for such a man to veil, he has at times "spoken out in meeting" so plainly as to give offence to those upon whom his strictures have fallen—hence a part of the criticism he has provoked, while a further part comes from those who have failed to get contracts for supplies, or rank for themselves or their friends, to which the Minister did not think them entitled.

This man was called upon at a moment's notice to get together an army division fully equipped for war, and that in a country where there exists no standing army, and where service supplies in quantity were an impossibility, owing to the prevailing attitude of our people towards military expenditure. With a whirlwind activity he has thrown himself into the work, and completed it in record time and with marked satisfaction to the vast majority.

It is easy indeed to find fault, but it is not easy to accomplish what he has brought to pass, so we say "shame on the carping critic" and "more power" to the Minister's elbow.—The Canadian Military Gazette.

The Farm Lands Problem.

The Sun assures the Montreal Witness that it believes in the possibility of settling our far spreading, unoccupied farm lands with prosperous communities of agriculturists. Its belief rests wholly in the conviction that presently politics and the public intelligence will give this problem just attention. If it were convinced that the present conditions would prevail, it would confess a lack of belief in the success not only of Canadian agriculture but also of the success of all industries which depend upon agriculture. There are of course, fortunate localities and special farm industries which thrive in most of the Provinces. But the logic of the farm depopulation of the older Provinces and of the unsatisfactory results in the West is unanswerable. Apart from the war, it is plain that Canada cannot go much farther exporting three hundred and farther exporting three hundred and fifty millions. That disparity in itself must drive us at once to make effort to settle our far spreading farm lands with prosperous communities of agriculturists.

Something will, no doubt, be accomplished without any effort of legislation by the collapse of construction which will turn labor to the land. But if labor is to be kept on the land and not to be lost by emigration, legislation must assure profitable employment. The difficulties in the way though great are not insurmountable. The industrial population, the railway interests and the restrictionists will not be all against tariff reduction and wider markets, when they see, as they will presently, no other way out.—The Weekly Sun.

STRONGLY ENDORSED

Eleven Out of 13 Municipalities Approve of Hydro-Radial Railway Project.

But Adverse Votes in Newmarket and Uxbridge May Interfere with Success of Scheme.

By an overwhelming majority eleven municipalities out of the thirteen voting on the project carried the by-laws submitted on Monday authorizing their respective Councils to enter into contracts with the Hydro-Electric Commission for the construction of the proposed Hydro-Electric Municipal Railway from Toronto to Newmarket and Port Perry. Newmarket and Uxbridge Township were the only two corporations which did not see fit to support the scheme, and although a defeat in the former place was not unexpected, the knocking of the scheme in Uxbridge came as a complete surprise. It is notable that less than a hundred votes resulted in the killing of the by-law in these two municipalities.

The victory won at the polls was described by the supporters of the Hydro Radial movement Monday as a signal one, and one which again shows the confidence of the people in Sir Adam Beck and his cheap power policy. The vote polled was very large and is an indication of the great interest taken in Sir Adam Beck's first public-owned electric radial. The advocates of the line did not relax their efforts for a minute, and right up till the time of closing they were busy urging voters to the polls.

The personal and active interest taken by Sir Adam had, no doubt, a great deal to do with the heavy vote recorded. During the last week of the campaign the "Power Minister" was especially busy, and attended over a half-dozen of the meetings. The clear and concise manner in which he presented the scheme to the electorate converted many who attended his demonstrations in a half-hearted frame of mind, leaving them when he had finished convinced of the great benefit to be derived from the Hydro plan of transportation.

The defeat of the scheme in Uxbridge Township may, it is felt, have great effect in delaying the whole project, as it is included in the main line from Toronto to the terminus at Port Perry. The blocking of the new proposition by the ratepayers of Newmarket alone would not have delayed the general scheme to any extent, and may now result in the exclusion of the Vandorf-Ballantrae-Newmarket branch line. The fact that Newmarket is already well served by both a steam and an electric line is the reason advanced by the supporters of the project for the by-law's defeat there.

The by-laws submitted in the interested municipalities Monday call for the issuance of approximately $4,346,938 in debentures to be deposited with the commission. It is notable that Markham Township, which has the largest amount to raise, gave the largest majority in favor of the scheme, with 468 votes for and 64 against. Reach Township came next with a majority of 400. The smallest majorities were recorded at Markham Village and Whitby Town, each with 122 votes over all.

The voting was as follows :—

The Art of Making War.

It is perfectly obvious to the most superficial observer of men that the tendency of modern life is to make men soft. Our people avoid fatigue and travel in comfort and luxury. Danger is avoided because it is dangerous. Thousands of young men in Great Britain and Canada spend time and money on professional sportsmen ; but refuse to take part in any sport or games themselves. How is this condition to help us in the present struggle for supremacy ? How are we to make our pampered and spoiled youths into men ?

"The art of making war is the chief national concern to-day. It is a poor type of man who spends his time at a baseball game when he should be at the butts learning how to shoot. It is the "sissy boy" that cannot take drill and excuses himself for not getting the training he needs to help him to defend his country. The art of making war is the chief concern of the Empire today. If Canada is to furnish her quota somebody has to get out and hustle for recruits. If we are to do our part as every other section of the Empire is doing, it means that we have a large amount of ground to cover and some lost time to make up. If this country is to put 60,000 or more men, trained and equipped and paid by our own government, into the field, we ought to keep going."—Brynton Payne in Canadian Military Gazette.

TOWN CONSTABLE

Mr. James Ewing Given Appointment on Monday Night.

All Quiet at the Regular Meeting of the Town Council

A large audience assembled in the Council Chamber on Monday night in the expectation of an interesting time when the Town Council took up the matter of appointing a successor to ex-Chief of Police Marshall. The gallery was badly disappointed if it was looking for verbal pyrotechnics, for there was scarcely a ruffle of excitement over the appointment. James Ewing, who filled the position of Chief a couple of years ago until he tired of the multifarious duties that appertain to the position, got the job in a walk over. There were seven applications for the vacant position. When Councillor McGuire, who was in the chair in Committee of the Whole, called for nominations Mayor Campbell promptly proposed Ewing. Councillor Holmes nominated George Price, a newcomer in town, whose leading recommendation was fifteen months experience on the Brockville police force. There were no further nominations and when Ewing's name was submitted by the Chairman a show of hands gave him a clear majority of the members. The new Chief, who commenced duty promptly on Tuesday morning, will get a salary of $45 a month and a uniform. Ewing has proved himself a capable officer and should fill the position in a satisfactory manner. The applicants were George Price, James Ewing and Emberson Colister, Orangeville ; Irad Allen, Glencross ; D. J. Cantelon, Robert Wilson, Toronto ; E. S. Childs, Ballycroy.

The Clerk was authorized to issue orders for the following bills :— I. Sargeant, $10.80 ; Armstrong & Robinson, $48.55 ; Jos. Ogston, $7.60 ; The Sun, $40 ; W. O. Thomas, $20.23 ; Geo. King, $23.60 ; A. A. Hughson, $25.

The Clerk was instructed to write Caledon Township Council and request that body to pay one half of the following accounts :—I. Sargeant, $10.80 ; Armstrong & Robinson, $36.80 ; John Hammond, $2.30.

F. H. Doherty's complaint regarding over-assessment and Mrs. Ann McIntyre's application for reduction of taxes were referred to the Court of Revision for report. An application from the Daughters of the Empire to have the local improvement tax struck off the Orangeville Hospital property was also referred to the Court of Revision.

A motion was passed directing the payment of an account of $7.93 in favor of The Bell Telephone Co. The item will be charged to the F. & W. account.

A. A. Smith, secretary of the Dufferin Lacrosse Club, made application for rebate of the taxes on Idylwyld Park. The application was turned over to the Court of Revision.

The Dods Knitting Co. made application for the payment of the balance of the loan of $30,000 voted by the town. The matter was referred to the Industrial Committee for consideration.

The Fire & Water Committee was instructed to have a fire alarm box installed at the southeast corner of Broadway and Mill St.

The by-law to appoint a town constable was introduced and passed through its various stages.

On motion of Coun. Johnston the matter of renaming certain streets of the town was referred to the Streets Committee for report.

"Fruit-a-tives" Healed His Kidneys and Cured Him

HIGH GRAIN PRICES

Regina, Oct. 17th—Good grain prices and the excellent prospects for still higher prices has had its effect on Western Canada. Building operations are even now progressing in some of the cities, including Regina. The large warehouse for Campbell, Wilson and Strathdee is now occupied ; the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company's large building is being rushed through to completion; the civic works including sidewalk laying, new power house and 5,000,000 gallon reservoir, are being proceeded with. In addition to these works several new structures are now proposed including a temple for the three I.O.O.F. lodges, a church building for the Wesley Methodist congregation and a labor temple for the Trades Unions. The Wesley Methodist congregation has purchased a site at the corner of John street and Fifteenth Ave., and will erect a church at a cost of $30,000, and will be situated on Osler street. Ira Stork.

Mr. Ira Stork, of the firm of Stork Bros., general merchants in Mono Mills, died in Toronto General Hospital on Monday after a lingering illness. Deceased was 34 years of age and leaves a widow and family. The funeral took place from his late residence at 7 a.m. this morning, the remains being conveyed to Caledon East and taken thence by train to Acton for interment.

Mrs. Isabella Wilson.

The death of Isabella Wilson, wife of Mr. A. C. Wilson, occurred at their home, Townline St., on Sunday last. Mrs. Wilson, whose death was caused by nervous and stomach trouble, had been quite poorly for the last six months. For some weeks prior to her death she had been sinking rapidly. Deceased lady was a daughter of Mr. Joseph Anderson. She was married to Mr. Wilson 20 years ago. They have been living in Orangeville for nine years or longer. Mrs. Wilson was a most estimable woman and had made many warm friends in town since coming here. She was of a quiet, retiring disposition, religiously inclined and was a faithful and devoted wife and companion. She was deeply attached to her husband to whom her death has brought the sorrow and shadow of an irreparable loss. It is unnecessary to add that heartfelt sympathy is felt for Mr. Wilson in his bereavement. Besides her husband, Mrs. Wilson is survived by her father and six brothers and sisters. The latter are Mr. Ben. Anderson, Mono. Mr. R. J. Anderson, Everett, Mr. Samuel Anderson, Toronto, Mrs. Wesley Bell, Tecumseth, and Misses Mary and Lizzie Anderson, Orangeville. The funeral, which was attended by a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives, was held to the Forest Lawn Cemetery on Tuesday afternoon, Rev. G. W. Ira Stork.

Mr. Ira Stork, of the firm of Stork Bros., general merchants in Mono Mills, died in Toronto General Hospital on Monday after a lingering illness. Deceased was 44 years of age and leaves a widow and family. The funeral took place from his late residence at 7 a.m. this morning, the remains being conveyed to Caledon East and taken thence by train to Acton for interment.

Mrs. Isabella Wilson.

The death of Isabella Wilson, wife of Mr. A. C. Wilson, occurred at their home, Townline St., on Sunday last. Mrs. Wilson, whose death was caused by nervous and stomach trouble, had been quite poorly for the last six months. For some weeks prior to her death she had been sinking rapidly. Deceased lady was a daughter of Mr. Joseph Anderson. She was married to Mr. Wilson 20 years ago. They have been living in Orangeville for nine years or longer. Mrs. Wilson was a most estimable woman and had made many warm friends in town since coming here. She was of a quiet, retiring disposition, religiously inclined and was a faithful and devoted wife and companion. She was deeply attached to her husband to whom her death has brought the sorrow and shadow of an irreparable loss. It is unnecessary to add that heartfelt sympathy is felt for Mr Wilson in his bereavement. Besides her husband, Mrs. Wilson is survived by her father and six brothers and sisters. The latter are Mr. Ben. Anderson, Mono, Mr. R. J. Anderson, Everett, Mr. Samuel Anderson, Toronto Mrs Wesley Bell, Tecumseth, and Misses Mary and Lizzie Anderson, Orangeville. The funeral, which was attended by a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives, was held to the Forest Lawn Cemetery on Tuesday afternoon. Rev. G. W. Robinson conducted services at the house and grave. The pallbearers were the three brothers, Mr. Wesley Bell, brother-in-law, James Wilson and Joseph Holmes.

RUSSELL PORTRAYED

Some Facts About the Self-Styled Brooklyn Pastor and His Teachings.

A Leaflet Which Caused Sensational Libel Suit and Some Spicy Revelations.

In view of the interest that "Pastor" Russell and his religious teachings have been attracting in this vicinity of late, readers of The Banner will be glad of an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the contents of a Leaflet entitled "Some Facts About the Self-Styled 'Pastor' Charles T. Russell." The Leaflet was written and published by Rev. J. J. Ross, Pastor of James St. Baptist Church, Hamilton. Its publication by Rev. Mr Ross led to a charge of criminal, defamatory libel by "Pastor" Russell, who objected to the serious reflections upon his personal character. The libel case and the sensational evidence brought out at the trial will be discussed at length in a later issue. This week we reproduce in full the text of Mr. Ross's Leaflet, published June, 1912, reading as follows :—

In this leaflet I am to tell you something about the so-called "Pastor" C. T. Russell, the founder and chief executive of "Millennial Dawnism." Though the name of Russell is quite familiar, very little is known of the man himself. Nothing is known of his parentage nor of his early boyhood. We first hear of him selling shirts in Alleghany, Pa., having inherited this business from his father. He lectured on religious subjects from time to time in various halls and churches, becoming known, as the crank preacher. He got a considerable following of the common people, and sold out the five men's furnishing stores which he owned, thenceforth devoting all his time to teaching and preaching his peculiar religious doctrines and giving out that he himself "was some great one." He never attended the higher schools of learning, knows comparatively nothing of philosophy, systematic or historical theology, and is totally ignorant of the dead languages, and yet he is successful in making his disciples believe that the most difficult passages in the Old Testament and the book of Revelation are as simple as a sunbeam to him. "Pastor" Russell was never ordained and has no church affiliation. He would not be given a place in the pulpit of any evangelical church on the American continent or any other country where he and his religious views are known. By thousands he is believed to be a religious fakir of the worst type, who goes about like the Magus of Samaria enriching himself at the expense of the ignorant. Years ago he gave himself the title of "Pastor" and from this many have inferred that he was a properly approved minister of the gospel. In 1879, he married Miss Marie F. Ackley, who divorced him a few years ago on the ground of cruelty and of having wrong relations with other women. In court, she proved improprieties between her husband and one Rose Ball. Mrs. Russell is now living at Avalon, Pa.

"Pastor" Russell was in Toronto a few weeks ago and announced himself as the head and "president" of the so-called "International Bible Students' Association," with headoffice in London, England. When he first began his propaganda his headquarters were in Alleghany, Pa. In course of time, he was successful in building up an elaborate publishing establishment in Pittsburg, which he called "Zion's Watch Tower." In a worldly way things went well with him for a time. Then he gave the name "Millennial Dawn" to his publications. The stories of the divorce proceedings got into circulation about him and his business suffered. Wishing to frustrate the verdict of the court in giving his wife alimony, he changed the names of his publications to "Studies in the Scriptures," and transferred the head office to Brooklyn, N.Y., where it is at the present time. Since taking this new location the institution is known as "The Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society," "The London and Brooklyn Tabernacles," "The People's Pulpit," and now the "International Bible Students' Association." It comes out that these names separately and together are appellations bestowed by Russell upon himself, and his followers. By the name "International Bible Students' Association," the public is deceived into thinking that the institution is international in extent, that the governments of the world are behind it, and that it is made up of accredited representatives of all the denominations and theological colleges, when in fact the name stands only for the followers of one man, and not a scholar at that. That appellation is, therefore, a misnomer. Its purpose and use is to deceive the public. The opinion of that organization (if it be an organization) is the opinion of one man.

At the present time the "Brooklyn Eagle" has its talons in Russell, and shows him to be a most undesirable citizen. Many other papers both secular and sacred, on both sides of the line, are compelling him to stand forth in the limelight in his true colors. By "The Brooklyn Eagle," he stands charged with defrauding his wife of her dower interest, with having his name sensationally connected with those of other women, with giving himself out as an interdenominationalist, when, in fact, he is connected with none, but opposed to all, with publishing himself as giving addresses to great crowds in important places, where he has not spoken a word at all, with seeking to dupe certain ministers into supporting daring transactions, with being connected with lead, asphalt and turpentine companies, with selling or causing to be sold "Miracle Wheat," at $60 a bushel, with influencing the sick and dying to make wills in his favor, with engineering the sale of property worth $35,000 for $50 for the purpose of defrauding another. These are sins no man would care to have charged against him, and yet they are publicly accredited to this "Pastor" Russell, the "President" of the so-called "International Bible Students' Association," that world-wide society that spoke the other day with such authority on the subject of eschatology, stating that there was no hell for the sinful. Does it not look as if the wish were parent to the thought in his case? These and other charges have been made against this false teacher and shepherd, and remain unanswered. He is an eccentric individual and advertises on the bill-boards in a most grotesque fashion. Judging from his advertisements of himself, many do not think him normal, and so are persuaded that he is self-deceived.

Russell has published a set of books, bound in six volumes, including about two thousand pages, which he now calls "Studies in the Scriptures." The title is misleading and is intended to deceive the Christian public. The teaching of these books subverts the faith of Christians of all evangelical denominations and substitutes for the truth as it is in Christ the destructive doctrines of one man, who is neither a scholar nor a theologian. The whole system of Russellism is anti-rational, anti-scientific, anti-Biblical, anti-Christian and a deplorable perversion of the Gospel of God's dear Son.

There is nothing in the English speaking world to compare with the system presented in the books for error. The great heretical leaders of the early centuries were not more daring, more blasphemous or more destructive than is the author of these books. They contradict almost every fundamental of evangelical Christian faith by a bold denial of the proper deity, incarnation, resurrection, ascension and high priestly intercession of Jesus Christ. Russell also denies the Second Advent of Christ in the Biblical sense of that event, the personality, work and deity of the Holy Spirit, the Trinity and the atonement made, through the death and risen life of Christ. He teaches that the Second Advent of Christ took place in 1874, that those who sleep in Christ experienced their resurrection in 1878, and that the present order of things will terminate in October, 1914. He also makes bold to affirm, the Bible to the contrary, that "eternal life" is mere existence, being exclusively a quantity, not a quality of life; that it is not a present possession on faith, but a future inheritance conditioned upon good conduct and character here. Moreover, Russell teaches and affirms in these books that there is not conscious future punishment for sin, and, though inconsistent, after death some time, somewhere, there will be a second chance and another offer of salvation.

Thus we see from a careful and unprejudiced analysis of the teachings of the "Millennial Dawn" Books, issued by the self-styled "Pastor" Russell, that the system of error which he represents is a combination of Unitarianism, Universalism, Restorationism, Second Probationism, Swedenborgianism and Annihilationism.

Every reader is warned against this false teacher and his teaching as dangerous in the extreme. It is safer to stand by the Lord Jesus than by any human teacher. It is safer to take our system of truth from the Bible than from the Watch Tower. It is safer to take the creeds of Christendom than the vagaries of one man. See Matt. 7-15; 1 John 4-1.

CITY STOCK YARDS

Are Proving a Successful Undertaking in Regina.

The stockyards recently started at Regina, under city control, are meeting with success, large shipments of stock having been handled as well as some small ones. These stockyards afford farmers with live stock to sell, an excellent opportunity of marketing it, inasmuch as competitive buying is assured. As railway lines radiate in all directions from Regina, the city is in an excellent location, as far as railway facilities are concerned. The short haul to the Regina stockyards from any point in Saskatchewan is also an argument in favor of the farmer shipping his live stock there, inasmuch as the shrinkage is less and the stock is in better condition for selling.

TWIN CONVENTIONS

Rapid Growth of Sunday School Work in Ontario

There has been a rapid growth in the Sunday School work of Ontario during the last few years. The number of Sunday Schools has increased from 5091 to 5256. This is not the greatest evidence of growth. It lies in the increased enrolment in the schools due to the prestige and popularity of the Adult Organized Class Movement, the Cradle Roll, and the Home Department.

The enrolment in the 5256 schools is 615,541. A careful classification of the Counties and Cities will be made again this year at London and Kingston (Oct. 27-30 and Nov. 4-6) at the Twin Conventions of the Ontario Sunday School Association. The territory is graded and classified by standards under the headings "Organized below Standard," "Organized above Standard," "Banner," besides "dead" territory.

These Conventions celebrate the 49th Annual gathering of the Provincial Association. Next year the Golden Jubilee gathering will meet in Toronto in the last week of October.

Macpherson—Thomson.

Mr. Angus Willson Macpherson, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Macpherson, of Orangeville, was married to Miss Charlotte Elizabeth Thomson, daughter of Mr. Hugh Thomson, of Moose Jaw, Sask., last week. The marriage took place in Moose Jaw on Wednesday, Oct. 14th. The newly wedded couple will be at home after November 1st at Suite 11, Crescent Apartments in Regina. The Banner joins Mr. Macpherson's many Orangeville friends in tendering its hearty congratulations.

Green—Gillis.

One of the prettiest of recent house weddings was that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Gillis, 315 Brunswick avenue, Toronto, on Saturday, when their eldest daughter, Irene Henderson, became the bride of Lester Marshall Green, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Green, of Orangeville, Rev. W. L. H. Rowand, the bride's former minister, officiating. The bride wore clinging ivory charmeuse, the bodice trimmed with Chantilly lace. Her court train of silver brocade was lined with chiffon, and a veil of rose-point lace fell from her head. The bridesmaid, Miss Doris Gillis, was in pink charmeuse, with accordion-pleated chiffon tunic of lace, with rosebud trimming, and she wore a white-winged hat of lace and rosebuds. The bride's mother wore midnight blue charmeuse draped with black tulle and jet, and the groom's mother was in a handsome gown of black charmeuse. Mr. and Mrs. Green have gone to New York and Atlantic City, the bride wearing green broadcloth with box pleated skirt, and a long coat with a blouse of silver brocade mounted on green chiffon. Her hat was of black velvet. They will take up housekeeping in the Wolverton Apartments, Oriole garden. Among the seventy-five guests at the wedding several came from Detroit, Orangeville and other outside places.

Secord—Alley.

A Toronto wedding which created much interest was that of Mary Gladys Alley and Herbert Ferris Secord, son of Mr. H. S. Secord. The marriage was solemnized in St. Thomas Church on Saturday, Rev. C. Ensor Sharp being the officiating priest, and Mr. Tattersall played the wedding music. The young bride, given away by her father, Mr. J. A. M. Alley, wore a gown of white chiffon, sewn with pearls, and a long train of brocaded charmeuse, her veil of unhemmed net falling simply from its crown of orange blossoms. The bridesmaids, Miss Doris Buckland and Miss Florence Smith, were dressed alike in lily-green ninon, with overskirts and sleeves of lace. Mr. Bruce Langmuir was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Auber Secord, Mr. Herbert Ferguson, Mr. Charles McMichael and Mr. George Kerwin. A reception was held at the Spadina avenue home of the bride's aunt, Miss Alley, who wore a gown of amethyst cloth and velvet hat to match. Mrs. J. A. M. Alley was in black velvet and white brocaded chiffon, with sable, and wore a black and white velvet hat. Mr. and Mrs. Secord have gone to the Catskills, the bride wearing taupe broadcloth with velvet hat to match. They will live on Spadina avenue on their return.

MELANCTHON.

The season's threshing is now a thing of the past and the yield, especially the supply of straw, is abundant. The grain is in most cases a good sample, and the farmers have good reason to be satisfied. When the farmers are prosperous the business man has a chance to make a living.

We failed, last week, to report the death in our village of Mrs. Richard Haney which took place on Thanksgiving Day. The deceased had lived here for many years and was highly respected. She came originally from Plymouth, Eng.

Mr. Jenner, of Toronto, was up here last week looking for a farm to buy. We understand he has a good impression of Melancthon.

Our general merchant, Charlie O'Neill, reports business as being brisk at the corner store. Charlie is putting in a new fall delivery of general merchandise.

Mr. Roy Sawden, traveller for a Toronto wholesale house, visited friends here last week.

Mrs. German, of Toronto, visited friends in Melancthon.

Our sports are preparing for the shooting season.

It is rumored that a big bear was seen prowling around the north of the village the other night.

We observe that beechnuts are a heavy crop this year.

Those who have raised their potatoes say they are a very good sample.

MARSVILLE.

The Rev. Dr. Armstrong, of Alton, a former pastor of the Presbyterian Church here, occupied the pulpit on Sunday afternoon. His many friends were again pleased to greet him and listen to his inspiring words.

On Wednesday afternoon of last week the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edwards, of this village, was the scene of unusual festivities. The occasion was the marriage of their eldest daughter, Miss Annie Laura, to Mr. William Howlett. Promptly at 4.30 to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss L. Edwards, of East Luther, the bride and groom took their places underneath a bell hung from an evergreen arch, nicely constructed and decorated with flowers, where the nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. R. S. Scott. The bride was given away by her father and was prettily attired in a gown of cream crepe, trimmed with lace and satin ribbon. She wore the customary bridal veil crowned with orange blossoms and carried a beautiful bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern. The bride's little sister, Sadie Myrtle, made an attractive flower girl. The travelling dress was blue serge with hat to match. After the ceremony and the usual congratulations the guests repaired to the Orange Hall, which was neatly decorated for the occasion. Here a dainty wedding dinner was served in excellent style. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold bracelet and to the flower girl a locket and chain. The other presents were numerous and costly. The happy couple will reside on the Amaranth and East Garafraxa townline. Their many friends extend their best wishes.

Had Arm Lacerated

On Wednesday last while cutting buskwheat, Mr. Howlett sr. had the misfortune to have his arm badly lacerated by the binder. He had got down off the binder seat and went up alongside of it to hit the horses with the ends of the lines—not having any whip—and in reaching over the machine his arm was caught in the wheel which drives the knotter. After calling for help some time he was finally heard by his daughter, who came to his assistance but being unable to release him she got the help of a neighbor, who was plowing in a near-by field, and who speedily reversed the machinery and released the injured member. Dr. Gibson was called and reports that fortunately no bones were broken but it will be some time before Mr. Howlett will again have the use of his "good right arm."—Hillsburg Beaver.

Had Nervous Dyspepsia

With Frequent Sick Headaches and Much Pain After Eating — Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Cured.

This letter is from a lady who gained 14 pounds by using the great food cure. It did wonders for her in improving her general health. She is enthusiastic in its praise, and refers to her neighbors as witnesses of the splendid results obtained.

Mrs. Susan Dobson, Spring Hill Mines, N. S., writes:—"It is with pleasure that I write to you in praise of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was troubled with dyspepsia, and could not eat without suffering much pain; also had sick headaches frequently, and my nerves were in bad condition. About ten years ago I took a thorough treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, using altogether 21 boxes, and since then can eat anything, have been freed from headaches, and my health has been greatly improved in every way. I gained 14 pounds in weight, and feel sure I owe everything to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You may use this letter, and my neighbors can tell you of my condition before using this treatment."

SERIOUS STATEMENTS.

Liquor Increases Susceptibility to Nervous and Mental Diseases.

To the Editor—

At a national convention of men, whose business it is to deal with the insane and with nervous and mental diseases in Chicago, the following resolutions were passed.

"Whereas in the opinion of the alienists and neurologists of the United States, in convention assembled, it has been definitely established that alcohol when taken into the system acts as a definite poison to the brain and other tissues; and

"Whereas the effects of this poison are directly or indirectly responsible for a large proportion of the insane, epileptic, feebleminded, moral and physical degeneracy, and

"Whereas the laws of many States make alcohol freely available for drinking purposes and therefore cater to the physical, mental and moral degradation of the people; and

"Whereas many hospitals for the insane and other public institutions are now compelled to admit and care for a multitude of inebriates; and

"Whereas many states have already established separate colonies for the treatment and re-education of such inebriates with great benefit to the individuals and to the commonwealth, therefore be it

"Resolved that we unqualifiedly condemn the use of alcoholic beverages and recommend that the various state Legislatures take steps to eliminate such use; and be it further

"Resolved, that we recommend the general establishment by all states and territories of special colonies or hospitals for the care of inebriates; and

"Resolved, that organized medicine should initiate and carry on a systematic and persistent propaganda for the education of the public regarding the deleterious effects of alcohol and the securing of adequate legislation."

Mr. Editor, when we consider that the above resolutions were passed unanimously by a large body of specialists of large experience, is it not time that every one who has the welfare of our country at heart should do his part in educating the public on this question? We must remember that these men are doing what they can to destroy their own business.

Gen. Smith-Dorrien Is Now Engaged in His Eighth Campaign

GENERAL Sir Horace L. Smith-Dorrien, is the first great hero of the war. General Sir John French in his official report to the War Office, gave the whole credit of saving the entire left wing of the British army in France from annihilation at the hands of the Germans, to Smith-Dorrien, who by the way, was in command of the Canadians in the South African War. General French declares him to be a "commander of rare and unusual coolness, intrepidity, and determination."

Sir Horace has covered pretty well the whole ground open—until the other day—to an English soldier. That means Egypt (many times), South Africa (twice), India, and a host of "penny fights at Aldershott."

GEN. SMITH-DORRIEN.

His first fighting was in the South African war that ended with disaster at Majuba. He was at the battle of Islandula—itself a tragedy, but by no means an inglorious one, though still something of a mystery.

At Islandula, as at Ginniss, he had seen the most serious fighting that could possibly have come his way. Ginniss was the most thorough piece of business put through by our Egyptian army before Kitchener took it in hand, and Sir Horace put the finishing touches to the engagement when he and his mounted troops pursued the retiring enemy. A few years later, and he joined the Chitral Relief Force; and in 1898 Khartoum came to complete, on a larger scale, his military education in that part of the world. Fourteen years ago he was given the command of the 19th Brigade in South Africa. He kept the lines of communication south of Pretoria, and his brigade harried the Boers continuously. He came through with promotion, and with Lord Kitchener for a backer. Even Botha, most chary in his admirations for English generals found an opportunity of complimenting the most pressing of his adversaries.

Sir Horace was half-inclined to think of South Africa as the last of his battle-grounds. At the close of the war he went to India, in place of Lord Kitchener, for three years; after India came Aldershot, and with Aldershot his A.D.C.-ship to the King in 1910. His marriage twelve years ago marked the close of his seventh campaign, and though he had not set his mind on an eighth, he was not unprepared. At Aldershot, as it happened, he had brought manouevres into line with continental realism. Dispensing with tents, he bivouacked his men in the open as in war time. Lord Kitchener had planned that the Scottish and Light Divisions of his new army should go through the same course. Sir Horace and his chief had arranged things together at the War Office when the news of General Sir J. M. Grierson's death came over the wires. It took Lord Kitchener exactly three minutes to appoint a successor.

The son of a soldier (a late captain in the 3rd Light Dragoons and 16th Lancers), Sir Horace was born fifty-six years ago; two elder brothers entered the navy, and one the church. He is a man who loves his work. But above all he loves the men who wear the British uniform. That is the great secret of his success. He knows his men. He has studied their welfare and requirements, and above all he trusts them. That is why he is called "Tommy Atkins' pal." When he undertook the Aldershot command in 1907 he decided to trust the soldier's sense of honor rather than the system of picketing to keep order in the streets.

Watchful Waiting.

Refugees arriving from Ostend by way of Folkestone told of one of their number, a corpulent Frenchman, who, as soon as the boat left the wharf at Ostend, took off his coat, vest and boots and, putting on a life preserver, sat on the edge of the deck, continuing the whole trip in this costume. Asked what he meant by such behavior, he replied is just one eloquent word, "Mines!"

Will Follow Husband.

Mrs. Hamilton Gault will follow her husband, the Montreal millionaire, who equipped the Princess Patricia Light Infantry, to the front. Mr. Gault is a major with the regiment, while Mrs. Gault is joining the British Red Cross corps.

BARBARITY OF THE GERMANS HORRIFIES ALL CIVILIZATION

Outrages Committed by the Kaiser's Legions Are Almost Incredible.

Belgian Commissioners Can Prove Atrocities Up to the Hilt.

"THE only means of preventing surprise attacks from the civil population has been to interfere with unrelenting severity and to create examples which, by their 'frightfulness,' would be a warning to the whole country."

In these official words the German authorities seek to excuse the frightful acts of savagery committed by their soldiery upon defenceless women and children. The murdering of the wounded, the slaughtering of innocent non-combatants, the ravishing of young women and children before their parents' eyes—these and a thousand other unnamable atrocities have been committed by the German soldiers under the direct sanction of the Kaiser, who, in the same breath, thanks God for the support He is giving him.

It is impossible to express in mere words the horror and disgust which we feel that a nation which boasts of its "culture" should be guilty of such outrages against the law of nations and against humanity.

LYING CAMPAIGN BEGAN.

The first result of the revelations was a storm of denial from the German officials, who declared that the charges were the work of their enemies who were trying to hurt their cause in the eyes of the neutral nations—the United States, Italy, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Spain.

When question of the authenticity of the allegations was thus raised and the ever busy Count Von Bernstorff, German Ambassador to the United States, had issued pious and solemn denials to the people of America, the Belgian Government took prompt action. It appointed a commission of prominent Belgians, headed by Henri Carton de Wiart, Minister of Justice of Belgium, to cross the Atlantic and present the indisputable proofs at Washington. During the tour of the Belgian commissioners the keenest interest was aroused among the citizens of the neighboring republic and expressions of horror were widespread. Nothing since the beginning of the war has dealt so crushing a blow to the propaganda of Bernstorff, Ridder and Co., who are trying so hard by means of the Staats Zeitung and other publications to arouse pro-German sentiment.

The mission of the party was especially with the United States, but during the trip they paid a visit to Canada and made an official call on the Dominion Government. They also visited in Montreal and Toronto and returned by way of the British trans-Atlantic protected route. After a visit to London they have returned to Ostend, where they now are.

Only a fragment of their report has been made public thus far. It is the most overwhelming indictment of a so-called civilized nation in modern times, and every item in the charges is supported by documentary and photographic proof.

SOME OF THE COUNTS.

The following are some of the worst cases:—

Some soldiers billeted upon a grey-haired old woman, who had done her best for them, were leaving, and they pretended to be grateful to her. One held out his hand, and as the old woman stretched out her hand another deliberately hacked off the hand to the wrist.

The throat of an old woman of 70 was cut and a governess hanged upon a tree, stark naked and disembowelled.

A young girl of seventeen violated by an officer before her mother's eyes.

Belgian miners buried alive in mines through the shafts being deliberately blocked up while they were still working.

Two little boys of four or five years of age placed against a wall and shot dead, "because the evil must be killed in the germ."

A grey-headed old man killed by a piece of brickwork deliberately thrown on his head from a window above.

A married woman forced to strip herself naked and parade for nearly an hour before the troops.

An old man sabred in the arm, hanged head downwards, and burned alive.

A little girl of ten years old savagely sabred because she made a remark about the Germans being bullies.

SCREENED BEHIND WOMEN.

Women and children manacled at the head of troops going into action, in order that they might form a living shield against the bullets of the defenders, and in the hope that the latter would cease firing for fear of killing their own folk.

Three young girls and their mother attacked in their beds at night, mutilated, and defaced.

All the male inhabitants of a village divided into three groups. Those in one group were bound and eleven of them placed in a ditch, where they were afterwards found dead, their skulls fractured by the butts of German rifles.

A Belgian officer, who after an engagement was found so severely wounded that he was lying flat on his back, was murdered by the invaders firing their revolvers into his mouth.

A wounded officer propped up against a tree and shot, and his corpse hacked with swords.

Male non-combatants shot before the eyes of their wives and children, and the latter ravished.

Wounded slaughtered and Red Cross wagons and hospitals fired upon.

CITIES DESTROYED.

Appended are some of the principal crimes against the arts and monuments of civilization perpetrated by the Kaiser's Huns:

Notre Dame Cathedral, Rheims, bombarded and destroyed.

Louvain (Aug. 26): Sacked and destroyed. Cathedral of St. Pierre and University buildings in ruins; upper town, full of modern structures, in ashes.

Termonde (Sept. 4): Sacked and burnt to the ground by special machinery spraying kerosene. Churches wrecked and market square in ruins.

Malines: Town bombarded; tower of St. Romband, cathedral, and museum destroyed.

Senlis (Sept. 11): Cathedral damaged by a shell; houses and railway station demolished.

Dinant: Sacked and reduced to ruins; ancient churches burned down.

Tirlemont: Destroyed by fire; only charred walls of houses and public buildings left.

Aerschot: Sacked and burnt down.

Tamines: Church burnt out and town in ruins; only the railway station spared.

Guise (capital of the Aisne): Shelled three times, and entirely devastated.

St. Quentin: Shelled and partly destroyed.

Ham: Severely damaged by shells.

Soissons: Cathedral and Church of St. Jean des Vignes severely damaged.

A HEROIC MAYOR.

No story of the German treatment of Belgium would be complete without reference to the behavior of the Kaiser's officials towards the city of Brussels and its heroic burgomaster, Adolphe Max.

M. Max is now in prison at Namur after a vigorous resistance to the methods of the invaders and oppressors of his city. The first action of the German officers upon arriving in the Belgian capital was to demand a war tax of $50,000,000 to be paid forthwith. In the existing financial situation the exaction could not be met. Burgomaster Max said so and was warned that the city would be punished if it refused the levy. He offered German bonds which Marshal von der Goltz rejected as being worthless to him. In order to save the city M. Max made an effort to get the money, and failed. Then an order was issued deposing him as being unworthy of being mayor, and he was cast into prison.

It is not too much to say that in due time a terrible vengeance will be exacted by civilization, represented by the allied armies, for this bloodlust of the Germans, who have perpetrated worse excesses than ever did the Huns under Attila.

THE BRITISH WOMAN'S TEMPERANCE ASSOCIATION.

It is cheering to note the progress made the world over in woman's temperance work. A brief report of the English and Welsh National Convention, held May 18-22, sent to Tidings by Miss Agnes Slack, Hon. Secretary World's W. C. T. U., sheds a flood of light on the ongoings and upgoings of this work in Great Britain and Wales.

The British Association has a membership of 163,517, including 10,388 "Y's," an increase of 2,751 over the previous year. In four years it has made a gain of 26,244 members, and 374 unions. These are great gains, betokening a widening knowledge of the aims of W. C. T. U. work and a consequent growing co-operation.

This is, no doubt, owing in a large degree to the *spread of scientific temperance truths. Such great Britishers as Sir Thomas Barlow, President of the Royal College of Physicians, Physician Extraordinary to the King; Sir Victor Horsley, F. R.S., F.R.C.S., M.B.; Sir Frederick Treves, F.R.C.S., and hosts of others who are equally qualified to speak with authority are doing much for the cause of temperance by proclaiming that not only is alcohol a non-essential in the modern pharmacopoeia but that investigation and experiment are giving the lie to its hoary claims to the extent of proving it to be a positive hindrance in the treatment of disease, and in some cases to be the provoking cause—a cause of disease, and not a cure-all, a poison, and not a food. In England, as elsewhere, the physician, the scientist, the moral reformer have formed an offensive and defensive league against the serried ranks of King Rum.

THE TERRORS OF INDIGESTION

Disappear When the Blood is Made Rich, Red and Pure.

The mistaken idea that that laxatives or drastic purgatives provide a short cut to the cure of indigestion is largely responsible for the prevalence of dyspepsia and other stomach disorders. Indigestion calls for more than a makeshift. Your stomach needs tone, it cannot absorb nourishment from the food you eat. To give new strength to your stomach so that it may perform the work of digestion without pain or distress, you must enrich the blood. This is the tonic method for strengthening weak stomachs. In cases of this kind Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best medicine known. Every dose makes new, rich blood, which not only strengthens the stomach but builds up every part of the body as well. Here is an illustration of what this medicine can do: Mrs. I. N. Brown, Dowville, N. B., says: "For three years I was a sufferer from chronic indigestion. I was hungry all the time, yet could take very little food, and what I did take was followed by great distress and nausea. My sleep at night was broken, and I often had profuse night sweats. The suffocating feeling which often followed eating would cause my heart to palpitate violently. At times my hands and face would become the color of clay and I would be completely prostrated. I was under the care of a good doctor who finally told me the trouble was incurable and that the most I could hope for was temporary relief. I was in these straits when a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so, and used the pills steadily for two months when I was again a well woman, and have since had no return of the trouble."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How Ottawa Women Are Combining to Ensure Employment For Canadians—A Good Plan

"At a time when the Empire is straining every nerve against the common enemy it is essential that each and every section of the community should stand together. Canada is sending her soldiers to the help of Great Britain, but it must be remembered that scarcely less effective help can be rendered by keeping trade and industries prosperous throughout the Dominion. No one is able to say how the strain of war may affect us. Already there is a prospect of unemployment on a considerable scale during the coming winter.

"There are many ways in which the evil of unemployment may be fought, but one way is to keep up the demand for Canadian products in order that Canadian industries may continue in operation. Articles that are being produced in Canada are also being imported annually to the value of $104,639,879. By purchasing only commodities produced in Canada we should largely increase the output of our industries and provide employment for large numbers of workmen. To attain this desirable end it is hoped that, in so far as possible, housewives and others will buy products 'made in Canada.'"

Household League

This was the resolution passed at a meeting of several leading Canadian women in Ottawa on Saturday. They met to discuss ways and means whereby the women of Canada could effectively lend their assistance in tiding Canada over the probable stress and trial of the coming winter. Amongst the ladies present were Mrs. T. W. Crothers, wife of the Minister of Labor, Mrs. W. T. Herridge, wife of the moderator of the Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Adam Shortt, Mrs. Dr. Lyman, Mrs. R. H. Coats, and Mrs. J. A. Wilson, national convener of Household Economics. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Household League of Ottawa.

Official figures relating to the importation of goods produced in Canada were laid before the meeting, and it was found that in certain products $80,337,083 worth of the $104,639,879 imported came from the United States alone. For instance Canada, which is a wheat country herself, imports $268,617 worth of wheat flour from the United States. If Canadian women would see that they purchased Canadian flour only this in itself would be a great help.

Soap is another household commodity which is manufactured in Canada, yet we import $1,227,997 worth a year. 917 men are employed in this industry in Canada, but if our women would purchase only Canadian soap there would be employment for very many more.

It is the same with baking powder. We import $179,180 worth, the amount from the United States being $177,617.

Figures Given

Canada imports blue for washing clothes to the extent of $50,421, biscuits $275,260, buckwheat meal or flour $9,260, corsets $560,054, baskets $126,970, buttons $851,822, candles $98,665, carpet sweepers $16,102, clothes-wringers $86,483, combs $238,516, cotton goods which includes embroideries, clothing, socks, and stockings $27,345,112, canned fruit $823,397, gloves $2,786,788, hair work $218,104, jellies and jams $815,617, Indian corn meal $176,779, lard $1,356,292, milk $22,301, oatmeal and rolled oats $3,526, pickles $465,866, rye flour $19,577, silks $8,877,576, sauces $341,213, paints $1,768,356, sugar candy and confectionery $1,849,867, starch $109,148, woollen goods which includes shirts, stockings and knitted goods as well as tweeds $30,782,371, stoves $1,058,367, hats and caps $793,746, furs $1,373,121, fancy goods $5,010,020, dried apples $16,833, furniture $3,187,780, cocoa $1,046,131, blacking $126,228, brooms, whisks, etc., $697,210; boots and shoes $520,709, aerated waters $34,702.

In the production of these articles of household use there are 1,631 establishments throughout Canada and there are 82,630 employes. It would stimulate industry and it would mean employment for more if Canadian men and women would insist upon receiving Canadian goods when they are making purchases.

The shutting off of imports from Continental Europe into Canada, due to the war, gives many home industries an unexampled opportunity for immense and immediate development.

Canada will prosper at the expense of Continental Europe. This is not a time in Canada for reining on the part of the business man. We must be careful, even frugal, but we must also be bold.

WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa. — "When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully run-down state of health, had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed. As it was I could hardly strength enough times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning and had a steady headache.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until I made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. Frank Clark, 3146 N. Tulip St., Richmond, Pa.

Dr. Chase is No Stranger

In This Home—Receipt Book and Medicines Kept at Hand All the Time.

There is no better safeguard against disease and suffering than a good cathartic medicine In the great majority of homes Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are constantly kept at hand, because they quickly awaken the action of liver, kidneys and bowels, and cure the most common ills of life.

Mrs. Thos. Smith, Jamestown, Ont., writes:—"Dr. Chase is no stranger in our home, for we have two of his Receipt Books in the house. My father and my husband's father each had one, and I have been familiar with it ever since I can remember. It was only natural that we should use the Kidney-Liver Pills, and we found them so satisfactory in regulating the digestive system and curing the common ills of life that we always keep them on hand. Many a time these pills have saved me much suffering and prevented serious disease. We also keep the Ointment in the house all the time."

SHE WAS DOING HER BEST.

She was a mother, hard-working, unpretentious, her hair streaked with white. She boarded a Dundas car (Toronto), and immediately busied herself with knitting. By some jostling in the crowded car her ball of yarn fell and rolled along the floor of the car.

Some of the thoughtless snickered at her temporary embarrassment. One man, however, picked up the tangled skein and handed it to the busy knitter.

"Thank you, sir," she said. And then, possibly to explain her unique industry, she added: "I am too poor and have too many kiddies to give money, and I can't afford to give my services, so I'm trying to use my time to knit a few wristlets for those dear boys who are going to fight our battles at the front."

There were no more snickers from the thoughtless. Men raised their hats to the worker. Women and girls sought to give her room in the crowded car. And she worked on till she alighted near the West Toronto station.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Annual Convention at Horning's Mills.

The Annual Epworth League Convention of the Orangeville District was held in the Methodist Church, Hornings Mills on Wednesday, Oct. 7th, 1914. There were two sessions, afternoon and evening. The afternoon session opened at 2 o'clock, devotional exercises being conducted by Rev. J. S. Stevenson, of Laurel.. Rev. A. T. Toye, pastor of the church, in a neat speech, welcomed the Convention to Hornings Mills.

Mr. W. E. Braden, president of the District, was called to take charge, and in the short time at his disposal, reviewed the work of the district during the first year. There are 20 Leagues in the district, with a membership of between 400 and 500. Much of the success is due to the untiring efforts of the president. He asked that there might be more liberality in contributions during this year and pointed out the necessity of more spirituality both in the individual members as well as in the Leagues.

Miss Irene Flint, of the Fred Victor Mission, Toronto, spoke on Junior Work. She said that there should be a Junior League wherever possible throughout the district for the Senior League is fed from the Junior. The boys and girls of today are the men and women of tomorrow. The Junior League is a training school for the children and as they grow to manhood and womanhood, being members of the League, they enter the fuller service of the church, trained for the office they may be called upon to bear and then they become efficient workers.

Mr. W. T. Wilson, Tullamore, spoke on "Social Purity." Two texts were quoted—Matt. 5:8, "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God," and I Tim. 4:12 "Let no man despise thy youth, but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity.)' These are the gateways into God's Garden in which we find growing the fruit of the Spirit—love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness and temperance. The Christian's first duty is to keep the heart and life of the young pure. Honor God in personal purity, then the Kingdom of God will be within us and as Christian young people we should strive to have the Kingdom of God enthroned in the hearts of the boys and girls.

Miss B. Hamilton, of Laurel conducted a Literary and Social Conference, during which many helpful ideas for programmes for the use of the Literary and Social department were suggested. The officer in charge should be a devoted Christian, a good organizer and one who has a wide outlook. Young people who are indifferent to League work can often be won through the Literary and Social Department. In closing this Conference Miss Hamilton quoted the following lines: "Pray not for tasks equal to your strength, but pray for strength equal to your tasks."

Mr. H. O. Tresidder, president, Toronto Conference Epworth League, had charge of the Christian Endeavor Conference. He reviewed the constitution, pointing out the "aim" of the Christian Endeavor department and urged that the Leaguers be true to that aim, which is the winning of souls for Christ. The pledge should be the standard membership. Helpful suggestions were given for each sub-committee in connection with this department. Five points were brought out which will, if prayfully put into practice, make the Epworth League powerful 1. Christ enthroned in the life. 2. Consecrated energy. 3. Concerted effort. 4. Cheerful enthusiasm. 5. Sure of constant endeavor.

The report of the Business Committee was announced and the following are the officers elected for 1904-15:—

Hon. President, Rev. G. W. Robinson, Orangeville.

President, Mr. W. E. Braden, Mimico
1st Vice-Pres., Miss B. M. Lathwell, Orangeville.
2nd Vice-Pres., Miss E. Tupling, Honeywood.
3rd Vice-Pres., Miss B. Johnston, Shelburne.
4th Vice-Pres., Mr. L. Hamilton, Laurel.
5th Vice-Pres., Mrs. (Rev.) J. H. More, Caledon East.
District Representative to Toronto Conference, Miss J. Clark, Orangeville.
Sec.-Treas., Miss M. Bell, Orangeville.

At the close of the afternoon session the delegates and friends were invited to a dainty luncheon, served by the ladies in the basement of the church.

The evening session opened at 7.45 o'clock with a song service, after which Mr. Tresidder, in a very brief address, introduced the new officers to the Convention. An address on the "Object of League Work" was given by Mr. Tresidder. He again turned the attention of the Leaguers to the Constitution. No church is stronger for good than the power in its members. God is all-powerful and if there has been failure in the past in our League work it is because of lack of consecration. The Christian character of the members has made the League the power it is in the Methodist Church to-day. In the Epworth League is found the expression of practical Christian life. The League of every church is entitled to the hearty support of every young person in the church. God will bless the society of young people who will be true to the object of the League.

Rev. James Taylor, missionary-evangelist from South America, gave an inspiring and instructive address on his work among the peoples of South America. He has travelled very extensively from coast to coast and has seen life in all its phases in Latin America. He based his remarks on Num. 13:30, "Let us go up at once and possess it for we are well able to overcome it." Our ability determines our responsibility. The Israelites were able to possess the land of the Amalekites, but did not because of their lack of faith in their ability. The church that is not measuring up to what she is responsible for is under condemnation and her prayers cannot be answered. God loves the heathen as much as he loves us. We know God and know His voice. The heathen has never heard of God so cannot know His voice.

Mr. Taylor's remarks were interspersed with many touching incidents and experiences, which brought the subject right home to his hearers in a very practical way. He said, if a church wants a revival, place it in some foreign field and see it rebound in the home church. The church of to-day needs the baptism of the Holy Ghost and a ready response to the voice of God.

Rev. J. S. Stevenson, of Laurel, closed the Convention with an impressive consecration service in which nearly everyone in the church joined.

PARISIAN BEGGARS.

Clever Rogues Who Study the Weak Points of Their Victims.

An accomplished mendicant, like a clever salesman, studies his customers, discovers their weak points if he can and trades upon them. In this relation it is of interest to note the skillful methods whereby a certain class of Parisian beggars play upon the superstitions of their victims.

There is a common saying in France that giving alms brings good fortune, a saying that has not been overlooked by the Parisian beggar. If one visits the Sorbonne on the days of examination for the bachelor's degree he will see an interesting sight. The collegians approach, each with his dictionary under his arm, on his way to make the famous Latin version, on the success of which all his future depends. A crowd of beggars surround them.

"A sou, monsieur; a morsel of bread," the beggar will say to a collegian. "It will bring you happiness."

The candidate hurries on. "You will be blackballed, monsieur," the beggar continues.

This sinister prediction always takes effect. The collegian pulls out his purse, and the beggar turns away, chuckling.

A similar scene may be witnessed at the Hotel de Ville on the days of examination for certificate of ability for teaching. When there are no examinations in progress there may be races, and to them go the beggars, for gamesters and sporting men are notoriously superstitious.—Washington Star.

"Don't Forget the Clocks."

"Don't forget to bring back the clocks," is the request of the crowds in Paris and the provinces to all troops leaving for the front. Firmly convinced that the French soldiers are to march on Berlin, all are admonished not to forget the timepieces.

The demand of the French for German clocks grows out of the war of 1870. During the Franco-Prussian conflict the Germans entering France took a fancy to the French bronze clocks and when the war was over scarcely a single clock could be found in the country.

TO OUR YOUNG MEN.

The following admirable and patriotic article is copied from the Wingham Times, and has a local application:—

The place that Canada holds to-day among the nations of the world has largely been determined by the strength and spirit of her young men. Our Canadian boys have ever filled their places in the arts of peace, and the power and resourcefulness developed in our bracing climate has placed many of them as leaders in the world and we are proud of them. Should the time ever come when our young men are found weak and lagging, lacking in enthusiasm, vision and strong endeavor, we may look for a country whose prosperity and fair name are soon to be things of the past. To our young men we look at all times for leaders in our noble professions and mighty industries. Aye and should the time ever come when danger threatens this fair land of ours we will look to the young men to defend our homes with their strength. We hope and pray that such a time may never come, but the present struggle in Europe has shown us that it may even yet be required of us to shoulder the rifle to guard our British freedom. Young men, can you afford to remain unprepared? You may be needed. Our armoury is ready, capable officers are in command and instruction will be gladly given. Arrangements have been made for regular drill, and rifle practice both indoors and out so that no one need complain of his not having a chance. Preparation may be had here, amid congenial and pleasant surroundings in all but actual field practice. In return our country only asks that you be willing to bind yourself for a period of three years to go to her defence in case of need. Service for any purpose other than Canadian defence is entirely voluntary even after enlistment. Will you do your part? We do not wish to encourage the military spirit but preparedness may be the price of our freedom and a voluntary service prevents that military oppression which is so conspicuous in some European countries to-day.

Mr. C. R. McKeown, M.P.P., Col. J. A. V. Preston, Mr. John Best, M. P., and Rev. Mr. Carpenter, of Horning's Mills, will address a meeting of patriots at Honeywood on Friday evening, at which it is hoped liberal contributions will be made to the patriotic fund.

An American Farmer Tells of His Trials with City Mail Orders'

The following statement from an American farmer, taken from the columns of an influential Farm Journal, shows very conclusively the folly of sending money to the city mail order houses instead of dealing with merchants in the home town. It reads :—

Editor, Farm Journal :—We farmers need awakening to the fact that we have unmistakably reached the period where we must think and plan. I am one of the slow old-fashioned farmers that had to be shown, and I am now giving my experience that others may profit, for knowledge at the school of experience is more expensive now than ten years ago.

Twenty-nine years ago I began my farm career. I had an old team and fifty dollars. Our furniture was mostly home-made — chairs, cupboards and lounge made from dry-goods boxes, neatly covered with tencent cretonne by my girl wife. We rented eighty acres. Being a boy of good habits I got all needed machinery and groceries of our home merchants on credit, until fall crops were sold. The first year was a wet season and I didn't make enough to pay creditors. I went to each on date of promise and explained conditions, paying as much to each as possible, and they all carried the balance over another year. They continued to accommodate me until I was able to buy a forty acre piece of my own.

As soon as I owned these few acres the mail order houses began sending me catalogues, and gradually I began sending my loose change to them, letting my accounts stand in my home town, where I had gotten my accommodation when I needed it.

We then had one of the thriftiest little villages in the state—good line of business in all branches, merchants who were willing to help an honest fellow over a bad year, and a town full of people who came twice a week to trade and visit. Our little country town supported a library, high school, band, ball team, and we had big celebrations every year. A farm near a live town soon doubles in value. I sold my forty acres at a big advance and bought eighty, gradually adding to it until I had two hundred acres of the best land. I then felt no need of asking favors, and found it easy to patronize mail order ads that came almost weekly to our door. I regret to say that I was the first in the country to make a neighborhood bill and send it to a mail order house. Though we got bit every once in a while, we got in the habit of sending away for stuff.

Gradually our merchants lessened their stock of goods—for lack of patronage. Finally we began to realize when we needed a bolt quickly for machinery, or clothing for sickness or death, we had to wait and send away for it, which wasn't so pleasant. One by one our merchants moved to places where they were appreciated, and men of less energy moved in. Gradually our town has gone down ; our business houses are "tacky" in appearance, a number are empty, our schools, churches and walks are going down, we have no band, no library nor ball team. There is no business done in the town, and therefore no taxes to keep things up. Hotel is closed, for lack of travel. Go down to the depot when the freight pulls in and you see the sequel in mail order packages.

Nine years ago my farm was worth one hundred and ninety-five dollars an acre ; to-day I'd have a hard matter to sell it at one hundred and sixty-five dollars an acre. It is "too far from a live town"—so every farmer has said that wants to buy. He buys a place near schools and churches, where his children can have advantages. I have awakened to the fact that in helping to pull the town down, it has cost me $5,600 in nine years. Like the majority of farmers, I didn't figure far enough ahead.

This sort of business means the doing away with country towns. What will it mean to farmers to have only a few cities at a distance of five hundred to a thousand miles ?

What are we going to do with our children who are demanding even better advantages than we had ?

Those cities we help to build return no favors ; they take our money but offer no credit in time of need. If we want high schools, etc., we must raise the money and build near our farm homes, or send our boys and girls to the cities at great expense, amidst temptations of which the farm has no equal. Neither am I the only awakening farmer. These mail order agents that come to our homes every week are becoming a nuisance and making it unsafe to leave women and children alone on the farm. With farm cordiality we take these strangers into our homes, often as one of our family, and we are sometimes paid in having them entice our girls to the city.

These are some facts that need consideration, and I have decided that the safest proposition all around, is for the country people to look after their own interests, and build up their own country towns that bring value to their farms. Let those who want to patronize the city mail order houses go there to live, getting their living where they give their patronage. The remainder of my life will be given to building up the home town that I helped to pull down. Brother farmers, you can take my advice or get your knowledge the way I got mine.

Veteran Strategists Assisted Beatty to Plan Brilliant Raid

THE story of Rear Admiral Beatty's raid upon the German warships lying under the shelter of Heligoland will live in the annals of British sea exploits along with the feats of Drake, Grenville and Blake, and the press of the Empire has buzzed with eulogies of the young admiral who executed the attack.

It is not to be supposed, however, that Rear Admiral Beatty operated off his own bat. Behind the raid lay the best brains the navy possesses and at least two of the members of the Council of War, which laid out the plan, are among Britain's shrewdest and most experienced old commanders — Rear Admiral Christian and Rear Admiral Moore. They have served and fought in many corners of the world, and upon such as they will rest the maintenance of the Empire's command of the ocean routes.

REAR ADMIRAL CHRISTIAN.

SERVED IN NIGER CAMPAIGN.

Rear Admiral Arthur Henry Christian, M.V.O., has a long record of active service to his credit, most of his fighting having taken place on the East and West coasts of Africa. He commanded part of the Naval Brigade against King Koko on the Niger in 1895; he was in the brigade which captured M'Weli, the stronghold of the Arab chief, Mburuk, and he took part in the Somaliland Campaign. Earlier in his career he was flag captain on the Highflyer, the ship which sank the German raider, Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, a few weeks ago. He has also been in comamnd of the Royal Naval College at Osborne, and now commands the Second Cruiser Squadron, his flagship being H. M. S. Shannon.

SAW SERVICE IN EGYPT.

Rear Admiral Archibald Gordon Henry Wilson Moore, C.V.O., C.B., was born in 1862. He served in the Egyptian campaign of 1882 as sub-lieutenant in the Monarch, and 10 years later was severely injured by a gun mishap in the Camperdown. After a long period afloat he became, in 1907, Naval Assistant to the First Sea Lord, vacating this appointment to assume the duties of Chief of Staff, Home Fleets, in December, 1908. He was appointed an aide-de-camp to the King in October, 1909. He was serving as Director of Naval Ordnance when he was promoted to rear admiral in March, 1911. In June the following year he became Third Sea Lord, and vacated this post on the outbreak of war to join the fleet.

Tied Flags to Horses Tails.

Those Prussian troopers who rode through Brussels with Belgian flags tied to their horses' tails forgot Bismarck's caution that broken windows have to be paid for. The French Government has already been moved, in honest indignation at the tale of German barbarities, to cut down the hitherto very generous rations allowed to German officers, who are prisoners in France.

The sympathy of the whole civilised world is being alienated from Germany by the official reports of the barbarous conduct of the German armies.

Japan's Entry into War Opens Several Important Problems

JAPAN'S invasion of the protectorate of Kiao-chau and the disarmament or withdrawal of German war vessels from Chinese and Japanese waters, expands the great European struggle and brings another important factor into the situation.

Japan has never forgiven Germany for her intervention following Japan's war with China, in 1894, when the Mikado was forced to surrender Port Arthur, which was captured from the Chinese after a memorable contest. A few years later Germany seized Kiao-chau bay, nominally to guarantee reparation for the murder by the Chinese of two German missionaries in a neighboring province. She then leased the bay and a stretch of territory consisting of 117 square miles, in which by the terms of her agreement with China she exercised territorial sovereignty.

Germany at once began the work of fortifying the harbor for use as a naval base in the far east. In this work she expended many millions of dollars and Kiao-chau has become the centre of Germany's far eastern trade.

Meantime Japan fought war with Russia and came into the possession of Port Arthur. Germany's position at Kiao-chau in a commanding position at the entrance to the China seas was never condoned by Japan, and now she avails herself of the opportunity of ousting the Germans and of reserving to herself the right to restore the territory to China if she so pleases. There can only be one result now that Germany has refused compliance with the Japanese ultimatum—Germany will be forced out by the Japanese.

If this brush between Japan and Germany does not proceed farther the United States may well congratulate itself. But it is just possible that Japan may follow up the seizure or surrender to her, whichever it may be, of Kiao-chau colony, and gobble up Germany's other possessions in the Pacific. Germany has three groups of islands in the Pacific. She shares the Samoas with the United States and has considerable holdings in the Caroline and Pelew islands, the latter two groups being on a line between Hawaii and the Philippines. There is not the slightest doubt that Japan can take all these islands from Germany if she chooses. The only question is whether she cares. All these islands are of considerable commercial value and would be rich prizes in the hands of Japan, which is seeking an outlet for her surplus population.

Trice Shot, Dug Refuge.

A remarkable story of a soldier caught in a trap amid a rain of bullets, who dug his way to safety with his bayonet, was told in a hospital at Petrograd.

"A body of Russian troops was lured into the open through the flying of a white flag," the soldier said, "when the bullets began to rain upon us. There was no cover in sight, and I began to dig a hole with my bayonet. Either it would be my grave or my protection from the rifle fire. One bullet hit me, but I continued to dig. A second bullet hit me.

"The hole was half finished when a third bullet struck me in the leg. Finally I finished the hole and tumbled into it just as a fourth shot hit my other leg. I became unconscious and remmber nothing more until I woke up here."

German War Autos Marvels.

Stories were printed recently about the Germans having armored motor-cars armed with machine guns, which tore through the lines of the French and Belgians and mowed down all before them.

Another story of the use of new war inventions is told by Arno Dosch, a correspondent of World's Work, who arrived in London from Brussels. He says the Germans are using auto trucks which are marvels. Equipped with scythes, they mow right through wire fences and hedges if the roads and fields do not suit the drivers.

The Most Powerful Squadron.

Vice-Admiral Sir George Warrender has the distinction of commanding Britain's most powerful battle squadron—the Second, for its eight ships are all armed with 13.5 inch guns.

Liable To Be Disarmed.

Warships taking refuge in a neutral port are liable to be disarmed after twenty-four hours.

Let the Band Play.

A meeting of those interested in the organization of a brass band was held in the Public Library building on Tuesday evening and much interest was shown in the scheme. It was decided to call for volunteers, and Saturday is the day set for those who wish to join to report. Anyone having an instrument will be welcomed, and those who are not so provided will be asked to put up $2 as a guarantee that they will stay with the organization. Mr. Russell Morrow was selected as leader, and Mr. Fred. Faulkner as secretary. These gentlemen are well qualified for their respective positions and, with any fair encouragement, will certainly turn out a band that will be a credit to the town. Orangeville stood well in this line at one time, over thirty years ago it having a band which took second place in a prize contest at the Toronto Exhibition, and there is no reason why it should not have a better organization to-day. Mayor Campbell is taking a leading part in helping the boys to get established, and believes with the rest of us, that "music hath, etc.," and that a good band would be highly appreciated and would have a good moral affect upon the average citizen.

THEY ARE NOW ON THE HOME STRETCH FOR THE $1000,00 IN PRIZES.

Survey of the Field Shows Many Real Capital Prize Contenders, and one may win with the Last Minute Votes—How to Secure the Largest Number of Votes.

On every $15 club turned in to The Banner Office you will receive 10,000 extra votes. Think a minute. Look over the combination schedule. A $15 Club will give you 90,000 votes. It is the key to your success. Make the most of it.

Mabel Sanderson holds Premier Position. Mrs. Harcus is a close second. J. A. McFadden is third. Miss Simpson, Miss Hillock and Miss Nelson are following closely in the order named.

Only nine working days left and the Contest which has held the undivided attention of both the Public and Candidates will pass into history. Only nine days more and the nine people will each be in possession of a splendid prize. Only nine days more and some candidate will carry off the chief honors of this Great Subscription Campaign. Will you carry off the chief honors of this Great Subscription Campaign. Will you have the honor, the pleasure, and the asset? The issue still rests with yourself.

There are times when you can say "I will try," but NOW you should say "I must" and "you will."

Only nine more days and the suspense will be over—but during these days enough work may be done to change the positions of the leaders and make it different from what it would be if the end were to-night.

THE OUTLOOK.

Perhaps there are some who can predict with a degree of accuracy who will be the winner of the GRAND PRIZE, but the race is so close that the Contest Manager cannot even venture to guess at the name of the winner of the Grand Prize or any of the other Prizes.

It will be one of the closest contest finishes ever known in Ontario.

Those who win will not have a very big margin, while the losers will be close enough to the successful ones to take away the sting of defeat.

All the candidates, doubtless, have friends who are confident that the issue is not in doubt. There are many rumors afloat and developments are coming thick and fast. This much is certain, however—the candidates who expect to participate in the distribution of the Prizes will have to do some hard work between NOW and the CLOSING HOUR, if their ambitions are to be realized. Long ago the timid candidates ceased their struggles and those who remain in the race mean business.

Candidates should work on the COMBINATION SCHEDULE. Get LONG TERM SUBSCRIPTIONS. Study the vote schedule over, and the difference in the number of votes you receive, Two Three Year combination subscriptions will give you 90,000 votes. What would several of them give you? Think it over!

CONTEST JUDGES APPOINTED AND WILL COUNT VOTES ON OCTOBER 31st.

The following gentlemen have kindly consented to act as Judges and count the votes in The Banner's voting contest.:

W. C. Hyland, Manager of the Bank of Hamilton.
W. R. Liddy, Public School Inspector for Dufferin County,
Rev. J. Burkholder, B.A., of Caledon.

GRAND PRIZE—The Player Piano is now on exhibition in the window of The Banner office.

Personal Mention

Rev. W. M. Morris is spending a few days in the city this week.

Miss Kathleen Green, of Toronto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Green.

Mrs. W. J. Malley, of Deseronto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Moody.

Miss Sprae Lathwell is spending a month with her sister, Mrs. T. J. Beggs, of Heron Bay.

Mr. Nelson McDougall, of Toronto, is visiting relatives at Alton and Melville Cross for a week.

Mr. W. J. Irwin, of Toronto, is visiting his sister, Mrs. J. J. White, and relatives near Hockley.

Mrs. W. H. McCormick returned to the city Monday evening after spending a week with friends in town.

Mr. C. G. Anderson, of Toronto, was the guest of his father, Mr. Chas. Anderson, Zina St., over Sunday.

Miss Ruth McGuire arrived home on Saturday night after a three weeks' visit with relatives in Tilsonburg.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hoare, The Maples, spent the week-end with the former's sister, Mes. C. O. Douglass, of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Besley, of Toronto, spent Thanksgiving with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Pattullo, Little York St.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Neibel, of Orillia, spent part of last and this week with Mrs. Neibel's sisters, Mrs. McGarvin and Mrs. Wilcox, John St.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. McKitrick arrived home on Wednesday night of last week and have taken up their residence in their home on West Broadway.

Mrs. James Brown, of Marsville, announces the engagement of her daughter, Belle, to Mr. Wm. A. Raeburn. The marriage will take place late in October.

Mr. T. J. Pattullo and little daughter, Marjory, have returned home after a pleasant visit with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. Pattullo, Little York St.

Midnight Robbery.

Mr. Jacob, or Isaac, Goldstein, an industrious and highly respected citizen, who lives on Margaret St., was robbed on Saturday night last of no less a sum than $50, and up to date—and with the assistance of the entire police force—nothing has developed that will lead to the detection of the cold hearted villian who entered the dwelling house about 2 o'clock a.m. and took not only the cash, but also the pants in which Mr. Goldstein had deposited his hoard. A brother, who lives near the station, says that his place was visited the same night, but that the prowler was frightened off by the turning on of the electric lights and made his escape without his identity being discovered. Things are becoming pretty bad when a man cannot keep a few dollars in his house without running a risk of having it taken by an unknown intruder, to say nothing of the value of the trousers. The new Chief of Police has his work cut out for him, and he could make a record by running down this housebreaker—the second who has succeeded in town within two weeks.

Erin Fair.

The wet, disagreeable weather interfered greatly with the attendance at Erin Fall Fair last Friday. Rain fell continuously most of the day and in consequence of this the crowd was decidedly slim. There was an excellent exhibit in the main hall, but the showing of horses, cattle, sheep and other live stock was away below the mark. A special train was run from Orangeville leaving here shortly after one o'clock. About 100 Orangeville people attended the Fair.

Horses Wanted.

Remounts, 1000 to 1100 lbs. and gun horses from 1200 to 1300 lbs. All horses must be sound and in good condition, from 5 to 9 years old and not over 16 hands high. First inspection on Friday afternoon at Laurel. Bring along your horses.

—Another 9 days will see the close of The Banner's big Voting Contest. So far the Contest has been a keen one and a big avalanche of votes is due next week.

—Subscribers who want to assist one of the Candidates in The Banner's Voting Contest should do so at once. Votes are what count. A few subscriptions paid in next week might turn the scales.

—Rev. A. E. de St. Dalmas has returned from Toronto, where he was in attendance at the Baptist Convention and will give echoes of this wonderful meeting from his pulpit on Sunday morning and evening.

—Town Engineer King has been busy altering the heating system in the fire hall. The stoves used for this purpose have been replaced by steam pipes installed on what is known as the single pipe return system.

—The handsome Player Piano, which is the principal prize in The Banner's Voting Contest, reached town last week and was placed on exhibition in The Banner Office window on Saturday afternoon. The instrument is a fine one and its attractive appearance has caused the contestants to redouble their efforts to win the coveted prize. Subscribers are invited to have a look at the Piano when in town.

Military Notes.

A meeting was held at Dundalk on the 14th inst. for the organization of a Company of the Dufferin Light Infantry. The Reeve of the village, Mr. John Sinclair, presided and leading citizens bespoke the success of the movement. Lt.-Col. Preston explained the proposed organization, after which recruiting was commenced and a number of young men signed the roll. Mr. J. B. McWilliam is in charge and reports 43 men enrolled to date. The Dundalk Company will be one of the best in the Regiment. Lieut. J. E. Spence, of Whittington, is Drill Instructor.

Shelburne Company ("G" Company, 36th Regt.) is already 25 per cent. over strength and is as husky and fine-looking a bunch of soldiers as can be found anywhere. Drills are held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, with Major G. F. Gabriel as Instructor, and are well attended.

Grand Valley also boasts a Company about 25 per cent. over strength and drills twice a week. Reeve Menary is in charge and Sergt. R. E. Courtney, of Waldemar, is Drill Instructor. Dr. M. W. Berwick has consented to undertake the medical and stretcher bearer work of the Regiment.

A meeting was held at Alton on Thursday evening last week, to recruit a section of the East Orangeville Company, and 15 men signed the roll; after which the first drill was held. Mr. Andrew Dods is in charge of the section.

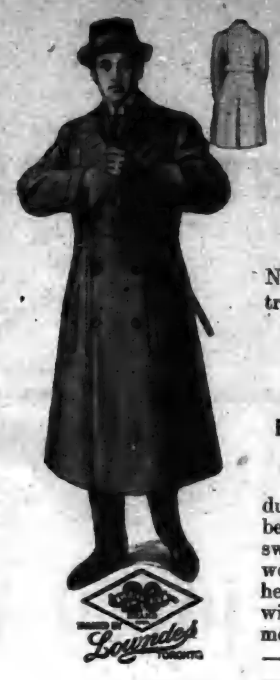
A section of the same Company has also been recruited at Mono Mills and weekly drills are being arranged for. The Company is now over strength and Mr. R. H. Neilson, the officer in charge, is justly proud of the fact.

Lieut. W. A. Spence, of old "H" Company, Orangeville, has commenced the organization of a section at Laurel, whose young men will not be behind the rest of the country in responding to the call to arms.

Mr. R. E. Mortimer, B.S.A., Morton Lodge, has taken charge of the Honeywood Company and is meeting with gratifying success. A patriotic concert will be held there to-morrow evening, at which C. R. McKeown, K.C., M.P.P., and Lt.-Col. Preston are expected to be present.

Next drill at Orangeville will be held to-morrow (Friday) evening. Those who attend are taking a keen interest in the work, but the number is not as large as it ought to be. Can it be possible there is a young man in this community who is too much of a "sissy boy" to respond when his country needs him, or who prefers the pool room or the picture show to the training which will do much to make him a man and a gentleman? If so, he is not wanted; but every fellow who would be a man and a useful citizen is invited to take an interest in these parades.

Volunteer for Service Abroad



The following local men have volunteered for service in the Second Canadian Contingent :— Color Sergeant W. G. Snooks, Corp. E. W. Fitt, Ptes. A. Tucker, A. Armstrong, F. Huston, C. Parsons, D. Donnelley, R. Stinson, J. Jenkins, F. Brooks, W. Flatt, E. Noble, C. Neat, M. Barber, S. Arnott and Hunter Nelson.

Brampton Driving Club.

Owing to the wet weather the Brampton Driving Club has postponed its Fall Meet until Saturday next, Oct. 24th. Purses of $450 will be offered. Come with the crowd and see a good day's racing. Reduced rates on railways.

Women's Institute.

Orangeville Women's Institute will hold its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. J. Moody, Church St., on Tuesday, Oct. 27th, at 3 o'clock. Subject, "Good Manners in the Home," by Mrs. T. G. Legate. Talk on Meat by Mrs. Moody. Music by the Misses Wright, Lathwell and Howard.

Shot Wild Geese.

Ivan Fleming and Thos. Greenis, two Broadway young men, succeeded in bringing down some wild geese on the small lake in the Credit Valley flats on Saturday morning. A flock of geese had settled on the lake and the two hunters succeeded in killing two outright. They wounded a third, which flew off south and was afterwards shot by Chas. Read. They were almost certain that they had shot a fourth, but a careful search about the shores of the lake failed to reveal any trace of the wounded bird. On Sunday, however, while walking on the Centre Road Mr. Fleming came upon a wounded wild goose, which he managed to capture and which he thinks was undoubtedly the one which was shot and escaped on Saturday.

Appeals for Charity.

We are informed that several strangers have visited town recently and have canvassed citizens for assistance for various charitable causes. In more than one instance the people appealed to for help had little knowledge of the cause laid before them and consequently were not in a position to determine whether it was deserving or not. There are always plenty of avenues through which charitably disposed persons may aid deserving individual enterprises or institutions and it is usually a safe plan to leave all others severely alone. Some are doubtless genuine and worthy of support, but others are the veriest frauds and are worked by brazen imposters who play upon the sympathies of the people they visit. In cases where there is any reason for doubt, it is wise either to allow the visitor to leave empty-handed or else demand credentials. If the latter are not forthcoming or are unsatisfactory if produced, it would be just as well to bring the matter to the attention of the Mayor or Chief of Police. Investigation will do no harm if the appeal is made for a deserving cause. If it is not deserving the sooner the authorities rid the town of the mendicants the better it will be.

Hospital Notes

The following donations are gratefully acknowledged:—Mrs. Gray, 2 doz. eggs, Mrs. Thos. Holmes, chickens, Mrs. G. Holmes, 2 doz. eggs and apples, Mrs. G. Woods, chickens, Mrs. McEwen, eggs and cabbage, Mrs. H. Babe, 7 lbs butter, W. J. Dodds, 3 doz. eggs, Mrs. W. Duke, 2 doz. eggs, Mrs. Mock, 3½ doz. eggs, Miss McLean, vegetables, Mrs. Fairbairn, ½ doz. cabbage and pickles.

Twenty-five Years Experience

I have over twenty-five years experience in buying and selling Jewelry and Spectacleware and am a competent judge of quality in these goods. My reputation in this district as a dealer in these lines is above reproach.

There are Gold Filled goods made that will wear from ten years to a lifetime. There are Gold Filled goods made that will only wear a few months. The reliable optician can only afford to sell the first kind. But the Travelling Optician will sell the one he can make the most money out of, and it would be poor indeed if it would not last for a few days. You can test your eyes in a barn, as some people do it, or in any make-shift corner—a peddlar will do it in your kitchen.

Proper Examinations

Can only be made in properly fitted rooms with proper light and first-class instruments, such as we have for the purpose.

There Is No Bait In Our Advertisements

Nothing but hard, honest facts. The only inducement we can give you to deal with us is our ability to give you satisfaction. You get goods of known quality and our personal guarantee. They are worth what you pay for them.

We Are Not Here To-day and Away To-morrow

We are here every day and we want you to come back to us at any time if you are not fully satisfied.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

"Fire's Out."

THEN comes the matter of insurance. You get out your policy and note the company in which you are insured. Certain questions should not arise to worry you at such a time.

You should not be worried by the question of whether you are insured in a company that dickers and delays over settlement.

You should not be worried over the question of whether the company can pay the claim.

You should not be worried by the question of whether you have had enough protection to cover your loss.

To be insured in the Hartford Fire Insurance Company eliminates the first two of these worries. By consultation with a "Hartford" agent before taking out your policy, he will tell you the proper proportion of insurance to carry, and that eliminates the third worry.

The evident thing to do before the fire, in order to eliminate worry, is to be insured in the right kind of company.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, OCT. 29th, 1914.

The good citizen will lend a helping hand to every enterprise calculated to promote the interests of the community. He will have a word of encouragement for every man who manifests public spirit by accepting and discharging public responsibilities. It is not always the man who has money who makes the most useful citizen. There are men who have very little money who do a great deal of good by their breezy optimism and kindly words of good cheer. For the man who does not feel like pushing things himself it is usually a very good rule to give others who have push and public spirit a chance by keeping off the backs of men who are willing to work for the progress, prosperity and good government of the whole community.

Alberta is not likely to prove any paradise for land or real estate speculators. The most recent development in the province's system of taxation is the taxing of unoccupied and undeveloped lands controlled by speculators and investors. The bill providing for this tax, Attorney General Cross pronounces the principal piece of legislation enacted at the recent session of the Alberta legislature. The object of the tax is to force speculators or investors to either sell or improve the property they control. There are thousands of acres of lands in Alberta and the other western provinces, which speculators have held for years without making any attempt at the slighest improvement. Promoters of the new legislation hope that the tax it provides for will assist to remove these evils and stimulate the general development of the agricultural resources of the province. The tax is equal to $10 per quarter section or about 6¼ cents an acre.

With the defection of Generals De Wet and Beyers, the rebellion in South Africa assumes a much more serious aspect. The revolting Generals are strong men, who have a large personal following and considerable influence among the Boers. They have chosen a favorable opportunity to declare themselves and their action will undoubtedly cause the rebellion to gather considerable headway. On the other hand the lines will now be clearly and definitely drawn. The Government will be under the necessity of taking immediate steps to crush the rebellion. Its duty is clear and it has declared that it will deal with the rebels with a firm hand and take all necessary steps to restore order and maintain government. The great majority of the people in the Union are loyal to the core including large numbers of the Boers and if we mistake not the rebellion will be speedily crushed now, that the Government is fully alive to the seriousness of the situation and the necessity for taking stern and effective measures.

In a lengthy article in the Orange Sentinel, Robert Sellar, whose book "The Tragedy of Quebec" created a furore at the time of its publication, gives figures, which furnish convincing proof of the overwhelming strength of the Roman Catholic Church in the rural parts of Quebec. In certain counties natives may be found who never saw a Protestant; counties which are solidly Catholic with the exception of two or three families. For instance the census of 1911 showed that in the County of Bellechasse, which has 21,141 inhabitants, there were only 3 Protestants. Kamouraska has only 12 Protestants to 20,876 Catholics, Nicolet 24 Protestants to 30,029 Catholics and Wright 68 Protestants to 40,263 Catholics. This almost solid French Catholic population is completely under the control of the hierarchy. It has been reared in an atmosphere that is ecclesiastical rather than national. Rome through her priesthood dominates every concern of daily life. Every interest and every prejudice is carefully fostered so long as it will assist the Church's plans. The great danger from Quebec, Mr. Sellar holds, arises not from the fact that the Province is French but because it is Papal. It is a Papal Quebec that the Roman hierarchy has skilfully shaped into an instrument which it is using in its efforts to control the whole of Canada.

The 36th Is Ready.

Examination of the full quota of 100 men for the Second Canadian Contingent was completed by the 36th Peel Regiment on Saturday. Seventy-five men are quartered at Ravina Rink, where they are in training under Col. Windeyer and Capt. A. J. McCausland, Adjutant. The 36th received its orders on Friday morning and had 270 volunteers on parade Saturday night. The officers from the regiment will be selected later.

—The High School Board has shown its patriotic spirit by granting the local companies of the new Dufferin Light Infantry Regiment the free use of the H. S. gymnasium for drill purposes. As the old Council Chamber in the Opera House is too small for drilling, the privilege of using the gymnasium will be a real boon to the members of the two companies, who will now be able to continue drill uninterruptedly during the winter months. The first gymnasium drill will be held next Monday night.

C. P. R. Conductors Fined Heavily for Breach of Secret Commissions Act.

After a lengthy consultation with their counsel the C.P.R. conductors accused of breach of the secret commissions act determined on Thursday last to plead guilty on this count, which is punishable by a fine. $2100 in fines was imposed by Judge Coatsworth after the decision was announced in the Court of General Sessions. Fines of $200 with the alternative of three months in jail were imposed on each of the guilty men. The conductors, who pleaded guilty, were Joseph J. Walker, William H. Wilson, Alexander McNeilly, Lewis Greenberg, Fred. Hartley, Henry Croker, Richard Goggins, William Goodfellow, William Carson and Joseph Edgar. The Judge allowed the men thirty days in which to pay the fines.

A Pertinent Query.

The following question was answered as indicated in the legal column of Saturday's Mail & Empire :—

M. C., Mansfield.—(1) Is there any way of punishing a boy who comes to my farm every evening and tries to talk to a girl while she is attending to her evening work? His father has been spoken to, but the boy denies the charge to his father.

Ans.—Don't punish the boy. It is only natural that he should come to see your girl—there is nothing wrong about that. Of course, you should give your girl good advice, and when you have done that you have done your duty.

W.C.T.U. Social.

The Orangeville Union held the first parlor social of the season at the home of Mrs. Wm. Still, Mill St., on Wednesday evening, Oct. 21st. There was a large number present. All enjoyed the excellent programme consisting of vocal and instrumental solos and duets as well as various other items of interest. A pleasing feature of the programme was an inspiring and instructive address by Mrs. (Rev.) A. E. de St. Dalmas on the life and work of the late Frances E. Willard. After the conclusion of the programme refreshments were served and all went home feeling that they had enjoyed a very profitable evening. The thanks of the Union are due to the young ladies, who contributed so pleasingly to the musical part of the programme.

The W. C. T. U. had charge of the programme at the Epworth League meeting on Monday night.

Military Notes.

The first drill at Dundalk was held on Thursday evening last. There was a good attendance, and the new Company got off to a fine start. The Company now has a strength of 4 officers and 44 men, with a promise of many more. Well done Dundalk.

The patriotic meeting at Honeywood last Friday evening was quite successful. Mr. G. A. East made a capital chairman, and addresses were delivered by John Reburn, Reeve of Mulmur, Rev. Mr. Carpenter, John Best, M.P., Lt.-Col. J. A. V. Preston, C. R. McKeown, M.P.P. and Rev. Mr. Hunter. The musical portion of the programme was given by Miss Wallace and Messrs. Jessop and Harding, of Orangeville, and was greatly appreciated. Subscriptions amounted to $124, with more to come.

The Honeywood Company is making satisfactory progress. The first drill was held on Monday evening, with Major Gabriel as Instructor.

Captain A. R. Murphy, Rosemont, late 36th Regiment, is busy recruiting a Company at Alliston. A section is also being recruited at Lisle by Sergt. Bert Collins, and it is hoped to organize another at or near Mono Centre.

The kindness and public spirit of the Orangeville High School Board in granting the use of their fine gymnasium for instructional purposes are gratefully acknowledged. When the war is over perhaps Orangeville will get that $20,000 Armoury we have heard of.

Next drill at Orangeville will be in the High School Gymnasium, on Monday evening next, at 8 p.m. A full attendance is requested. Any young men who have not yet signed the roll are invited to attend and do so.

THE SUNNY SOUTH.

J. C. Rockwell's Famous Company Billed for Opera House on Saturday Evening.

An attraction, classified as a colored musical comedy, is billed to appear in the Opera House, Orangeville, Saturday evening, Oct. 31st., when the organization known as the J. C. Rockwell "Sunny South" company will be seen. This style of merriment is one the wise acres in the amusement field have been consigning to oblivion for several years. It is true that a good many similar attractions have passed into discard, but, when one is presented that boasts of a blending of pretty faces, charming musical numbers, rich costumes and backed by a strong company of comedians and a performance that has more original and funny incidents than any similar attraction, it is pretty sure to succeed. The "Sunny South" company has been on the road for many years and it was a winner from the drop of the hat, never having a losing season. Not one moments thought is required of the audience from the time the curtain rises until it falls at the end of the third hilarious act. There is something doing from beginning to end, the audience finding that something exceedingly funny. The situations are quite obvious, the jokes are the kind that require no mental effort. It is highly seasoned with bright lines and catchy and ludicrous situations which are diversified with marches, medleys, charming musical numbers and several novelty dances. There is not a line without some brightness. The vaudeville portion of the entertainment includes the following well known artists—J. W. Turner, who is conceded to be the most artistic roller skater in America; Moss and Harrison, one of the cleverest and most versatile colored teams in the business; H. S. Wooten, Otis and Francis Benson, Hanky Williams, and there are several others in the twenty-five people who make up the company.

The solo concert band, which accompanies the organization, will be seen in the "Koontown" parade, a decided novelty, taking place at noon. The company also carry an excellent orchestra of seven soloists. They will render the latest and most popular music of the day.

Prices are 35 and 50 cents. Seats on sale at The Banner Office.

The Chief's Guest.

Dick Sanderson blew into town on Tuesday after a somewhat lengthy absence. Soon after his advent he set out to renew old acquaintanceships and while thus engaged imbibed too freely of the cup that cheers and also inebriates. Dick was having a fine time when he met Chief Ewing, who joined in the general welcome and showed real hospitality by insisting that the home comer accompany him to his guest chamber in the Opera House building for the night. It was through different spectacles that the ex-Orangevillian looked out upon the familiar streets and scenes in the cold, gray dawn of the morning after.

A $50 Theft.

Led to Arrest of William Campbell, an Orangeville Youth.

Saturday night, Oct. 17th, Ikey Goldstein, a local junk dealer, had a pair of trousers stolen from his bedroom. The loss of the trousers was bad enough, but what bothered the Hebrew still worse was the disappearance of a $50 wad that he was carrying in one of the pockets. He lost no time notifying Chief Marshall of his loss. Suspicion attached itself to William Campbell, a young man living in the vicinity. The suspicion was strengthened by the discovery of the missing trousers in a manure pile in the stableyard on Campbell's premises. The pantaloons had evidently been thrown on the pile and then carefully covered. Campbell was arrested last Thursday and taken before P. M. Pattullo who remanded him until Tuesday. The case was subsequently enlarged until next Tuesday. Meantime Campbell is lodged in the county gaol, as the Police Magistrate has not seen fit to grant him bail.

THE LIBEL CASE.

Review of the Legal Proceedings Taken by "Pastor" Russell Against Rev. J. J. Ross.

Defence Experienced Great Difficulty Getting Prosecutor to Enter Witness Box.

Last week The Banner reproduced a leaflet entitled "Some Facts About the Self-Styled 'Pastor,' Charles T. Russell." The leaflet, as states in last issue, was published by Rev. J. J. Ross, pastor of James St. Baptist Church, Hamilton, and its publication led to a sensational libel suit in which 'Pastor' Russell figured as prosecutor and Rev. Mr. Ross as defendant. After numerous delays the case was finally brought before a Grand Jury in Hamilton on March 1st, 1913. The only evidence offered was from 'Pastor' Russell himself under cross-examination. After considering this evidence the jury found that there was absolutely no ground for libel and returned the indictment marked "no bill." It is noteworthy that the case against Mr. Ross was thrown out by the jury on the evidence furnished by 'Pastor' Russell himself. Rev. Mr. Ross, the defendant, tells the story of The Libel Case in the following manner:—

"Because of the publication and circulation of the leaflet entitled "Some Facts about the Self-Styled 'Pastor,' Charles T. Russell," of Millennial Dawn Fame, of Brooklyn, N.Y., purporting to reflect seriously upon his character, on Dec. 2nd, 1912, Mr. Russell issued a summons against me charging me with criminal, defamatory libel. On Dec. 9th, the case came up for hearing before Magistrate George H. Jelfs, Esq., in the police court of Hamilton, Ont., and a committal for trial was made, without permission being given to the defense to cross-examine Mr. Russell, the Magistrate claiming that he had not the power to try the case. Mr. Russell was compelled to give a cash security of five hundred dollars to appear in Hamilton at the next sitting of the High Court of Ontario and to push the case to a finish. I was not asked for a bond or even for my signature to appear and defend the case, which was very unusual. This decision of the Magistrate was appealed to Chief Justice Meredith of Toronto and was ruled out by him as irregular and illegal. This necessitated the case being begun over again, whereupon Mr. Russell came to Hamilton again secretly, issued a second summons and left the city immediately for parts unknown.

The case came up a second time before Magistrate George H. Jelfs in the Police Court of Hamilton, Ont., on Feb. 7th, 1913, but Mr. Russell did not put in an appearance. We were informed that Mr. Russell was not in Canada and that he could not be forced into the country, that for an unknown period he would be out of the United States and that the case could go on without his presence. Through my Attorney, George Lynch Staunton, K. C., an application was made for an enlargement of the case for the purpose, if at all possible, of securing the presence in Hamilton of Mr. Russell for direct and cross-examination. Now the fight was on. It is worthy to note that Mr. Russell, though present in Court and hearing all the damaging evidence against him in his case against the Brooklyn Eagle for damages amounting to one hundred thousand dollars, did not enter the witness box in his own defense. The defense was anxious for him to be put in the witness box, but the prosecution did not allow him to appear. It was announced and expected that he would appear to explain and refute the charges, brought against him, but all were disappointed. In speaking of "Pastor" Russell's character Ex-Judge Oeland stated the following to the jury. "What the character of the plaintiff is, you can infer from the fact that he did not take the witness stand and let you look into his eyes as he told of his past life. He did not give you and me a chance to question him as to how he became a preacher of religious doctrines, why he left Pittsburg, why he came here and what he intends to do when he leaves here." My Attorney wrote his Secretary, requesting that Mr. Russell come to Hamilton and submit to cross-examination in the witness box. A reply was received to the effect that Mr. Russell had left the United States and it was not known when he would return. If this were true why did he leave the United States when his presence was required for the case here in Hamilton? About this time I was informed by Mr. S. F. Washington, K.C., Counsel for the prosecution, that if I would render Mr. Russell a mild apology, he would drop legal proceedings immediately. I informed Mr. Washington that knowing the facts as I did about that man and his teaching, a heavy fine or a term in jail would be preferable. The defense was now granted an order to force the prosecutor in the witness box, should he put foot on Canadian soil. Our problem was now to get Mr. Russell into Canada. I wrote him a personal letter urging him to come to Hamilton on the next date fixed for a hearing of the case and offered to pay his expenses. The following is the letter, dated Hamilton, Ont., February 18, 1913:

"Mr. C. T. Russell,
Brooklyn, N.Y.

Dear Mr. Russell:—

"You have entered legal action against me for defamatory libel because I published and caused to be circulated a leaflet entitled, 'Some facts about the self-styled Pastor Charles T. Russell.' I am sincerely desirous that you should push this action to a finish. If I set you forth in a false light, I wish to know it and to take the consequences, and if I told you the truth I wish the Canadian public to know it. When I published that leaflet I believed the facts stated to be absolute truth. Had I any doubt about the truthfulness of them, I certainly would not have signed my name to the leaflet. I still believe those facts to be true and I am confirmed in my faith by the verdict given by the jury in Brooklyn the other day. There was no malice in my writing that leaflet and therefore no attempt at revenge. You never did me any personal harm. I never heard or saw you until you appeared in the police court here a few weeks ago. The leaflet was published purely for the public good, and as a warning to weak Christians."

"The case, as you doubtless know, came up for hearing again in the Hamilton police court on the 7th inst. That hearing was postponed for three weeks and will come up again, I expect on the 28th inst. This postponement was granted that the defense might, if at all possible, secure your presence here in Hamilton on that date, the defense having obtained the right of putting the complainant into the witness-box for cross-examination, should he present himself on Canadian soil. I write this personal letter under registered seal, earnestly requesting you to come to Hamilton for the next hearing of our case on Feb. 28th. If is be impossible for you to appear here on that date, will you please fix a date and inform me or my attorney accordingly, and we will endeavor to have a postponement made to meet you. I urge you to come. For your own sake, the sake of your friends and followers and also for the sake of the public in general you ought to appear. The defense requires your presence here. In all fairness to all concerned you surely are under obligation to come. Should you come I will be pleased to pay your return fare from and to Brooklyn, N.Y.

"Earnestly awaiting your reply, I am,

Sincerely yours,
J. J. ROSS."

This letter was ignored by him until he was compelled later to notice it. This made it necessary to take an additional step in which an order was granted in the County Court for the appointment of a commission to go across the border to Brooklyn, N. Y., and to compel Mr. Russell to undergo cross-examination there. As soon as he was advised of this—thinking doubtless that it would be to his advantage and presuming that the Hamilton people did not know as much about him, his teachings and methods as the Brooklyn people did, he wrote the Crown Attorney that he would come to Hamilton and submit to cross examination. He came. He was put into the witness box by the defense. He was on the stand for nearly five hours, and at the conclusion of the examination, there being no other course the Magistrate again ordered a committal for trial. The cunning "Brooklyn Pastor" seems not to have enjoyed this experience in a Canadian Court and his cross-examination by a Hamilton lawyer, and he seems also to have resolved that this experience should not be repeated. At all events, when he found himself safely back in Brooklyn and had a little time to recover himself, he wrote me a lengthy letter urging me to apologize and he would drop legal proceedings at once. His exact words are "If you will apologize the error of your course, assuring me that you regret it and that you will do what you can to correct the misimpressions thus put forth, I will accept the apology and discontinue legal action against you forthwith." Seemingly he thought I did not know my grounds and that he had struck terror to my heart. But "The Devil is an ass." This is apparently his common method. Because Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh, editor of "The Christian's Armoury," 70 Kings Cross Road, London, W. C., England, published an exposure of Mr. Russell, he was successful in extorting an apology, under extreme pressure and threats, the shortness of time (which was only four days for the defense to prepare the case), the distance to bring witnesses and the cost of litigation, compelling Mr. Bradlaugh to publish in three successive issues of his paper a correction, withdrawal and apology. Within two days, however, the lawyer for the defense was in the possession of facts which should have made the retraction null and void. Since that time Mr. Bradlaugh has published a full explanation giving some of these facts, there by practically withdrawing his apology to Mr. Russell and he still continues the exposure of him. By willful misrepresentations and threats of legal procedure, he has also compelled the editor of an American church paper called "The Megaphone" to apologize and retract. I received his request for an apology on March 21st, 1913, and on the self-same date without it being necessary for one moment's consideration, I sent the following very brief reply. "On my return to the city to-day I found your letter of the 19th inst. awaiting me. I have carefully noted its contents and in reply I wish to say that I have no apology to offer and no promise to make as to the future and I calmly await the decision of the Canadian Court of law."

The High Court opened on March 1st, 1913, and the case came before the Grand Jury for consideration. The only evidence that was in was obtained from "Pastor" Russell himself under cross-examination. After comparing the charges made in the leaflet with the evidence thus obtained, the jury found absolutely no ground for libel and handed down the verdict "no bill." Thus the case was thrown out of court by the evidence furnished by "Pastor" Russell himself.

The defense was exceedingly sorry that the case did not reach the petit jury, that the facts we had on hand might be made known to the public. During the pending of the trial considerable excavating work was done and the so-called "Pastor" Russell's life and character were dug out as was also his Christ dishonoring and blasphemous teaching. Our witnesses were all present for the trial, but were not called, it being unnecessary. Among them was Mrs. M. F. Russell, the woman he promised before God and certain witnesses to honor, love, protect and cherish until death did them part. Mrs. Russell is a modest, intelligent, charming devoted Christian woman. One can see at a glance that she possesses a vastly superior intellect and personality to that of Mr. Russell. According to the law of the State of Pennsylvania, a few years ago, she divorced her husband, obtaining alimony, which he did not pay, but his friends made payment to save him; he fought the case for five years, appealing it twice. On the third trial not only did he lose, but the alimony was increased and all the costs levied upon him. All who know Mrs. Russell, speak in the highest terms of her.

This, in brief, is the outline of the libel case brought against me, and I declare that the facts herein stated are truth.

CONSOLIDATED SCHOOLS.

Well-organized, Graded Schools Needed in Country Districts.

Existing Type of Rural School has Served Its Day.

Consolidated Schools are strongly advocated in the appended report of the delegate for Dufferin to Guelph Rural Teachers Conference. Our readers will find the report interesting and suggestive even if they are unable to see eye to eye with the Dufferin delegate on this subject:—

The old type of rural schools with a single teacher for all grades, with meagre equipment and with a crowded programme, cannot measure up to the present day requirements. The little one-room, one-teacher rural school with its small attendance has served its day. It belongs to the past, not to the present.

What we need are well organized, graded schools, under the leadership of men especially fitted for the work and an assessed valuation adequate for its support.

The need for consolidation is imperative. Many parents are not satisfied with the limited opportunities now afforded in rural schools and are determined to provide a higher education for their children. To do this, they must either send them from home or move to the city and this is neither profitable nor desirable. The result is that the majority never return to farm life.

What is specially needed is a system of schools that educates country people as successfully as city schools educate city people—a system that trains for life without breaking up the home or taking the child away from the influence of the favorable conditions under which he was born. Consolidated schools furnish at once the plan for accomplishing this. Country schools capable of doing it, cannot be established within walking distance of each other. Transportation must be provided.

The prevailing method has been by means of vans, which are driven by paid drivers. These call at the homes of the various children and take all to school properly protected and returned to their homes, being saved the discomfort of walking twice daily, in many cases two or three miles, often through stormy weather and over bad roads.

The introduction of the system is sure to come. The chief concern is the kind of school which will meet the requirements. It must breathe the atmosphere of the country and instil a love for country things in the terms of the life in which the country child understands.

The teacher of Hudson Consolidated School in Northern Ontario gives the following advantages:—1. There are larger and better equipped buildings with less cost. 2. Pupils were absent only owing to good causes. 3. There was punctuality on the part of the pupils. 4. It was a social centre. 5. It was the best public building in the community. 6. There was medical and dental inspection. 7. It arouses ambition through competition.

The lack of competition in small rural schools in one of the greatest drawbacks to interest and work among both pupils and teachers. The increased attendance of pupils coming from the different parts of a large district would do much to improve the social conditions and to reduce the loneliness which is one of the most serious drawbacks to contentment and happiness on the farm.

One of the greatest problems of today is, "What is to be done with the average boy between the age of 14 and 17, when he usually leaves the public schools?" He becomes tired of school and his ambition must be aroused as this period of his life determines partly his future happiness. He looks towards a material world. A course of instruction must be provided that will satisfy him and this may be done by consolidated schools.

These consolidated schools through their graded classification and qualified staffs of teachers will be enabled to carry the ordinary academic work quite beyond what is now done in rural schools. They will also be equipped to teach properly such special subjects as agriculture, manual training, and household science, which can be taught only very imperfectly in rural schools.

There are three Consolidated Schools in Ontario—at Hudson, Tamworth and Guelph.

Mr. J. J. Tilley, ex-inspector of Public Schools, says in his report:—"The rural school section should no longer be allowed to serve as an altar upon which to sacrifice the progress of our children. If the country desires the best finished product, it must furnish the necessary means to ensure it."

The other evening the members of Waldemar Methodist Church met at the home of Mr. H. E. Evans and presented Mrs. Evans with a handsome couch. For a long time Mrs. Evans has acted as organist of the church.

Increase the Production

May be 50 per cent. Increase in Saskatchewan Wheat Acreage Next Year.

Regina, Oct. 24th, 1914.—"Increase the production" is the advice that has been sent throughout Saskatchewan by its most prominent business men. The farmers are rising to the opportunity and the acreage which is being prepared for seeding to wheat is much greater than that of last year. Honorable George Langley, minister of Municipal Affairs of the Saskatchewan Government, when in Regina a few days ago, stated that "judging by the present indications there will be an increase of 50 per cent. in the acreage of Saskatchewan land ready for seeding to wheat in the spring of 1915." The Minister went on to say that conditions were excellent for fall cultivation as there had been abundant rainfall.

Practically every organization in Saskatchewan aims to provide land for men who are willing to go on the farm and who are now out of work.

Good Sleep Good Health

Exhausted Nerves Were Fully Restored by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

When the nerve force expended in the day's work and in the act of living is not replenished by restful sleep at night you have cause to be alarmed, as physical bankruptcy stares you in the face. This letter directs you to the most satisfactory cure for sleeplessness.

Mr. Dennis Mackin, Maxton, Sask., writes:—"I have just finished using the sixth box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I must say that when I commenced using it my nerves were so bad that I could scarcely get any sleep. I would lie in bed nearly all night without sleep, and anyone who has this trouble knows the misery of sleepless nights. The Nerve Food helped me from the start, and has built up my nervous system wonderfully. I now enjoy good, sound sleep, and instead of feeling tired in the morning I am strong and healthy, and well fitted for my daily work."

SONG OF THE SOLDIERS.

(By Thomas Hardy.)

What of the faith and fire within us,
Men who march away,
Ere the barncocks say
Night is growing gray,
To hazards whence no tears can win us?
What of the faith and fire within us,
Men who march away?

Is it a purblind prank, O! think you?
Friend with the musing eye,
Who watch us stepping by
With doubts and dolorous sigh?
Can much pondering so hoodwink you;
Is it a purblind prank, O! think you?
Friend with the musing eye.

Nay, we see well what we are doing,
Though some may not see—
Dalliers as they may be
England's need are we,
Her distress would set us rueing;
Nay, we see well what we're doing.
Though some may not see.

In our heart of hearts believing
Victory crowns the just,
And that braggarts must
Surely bite the dust.
March we to the field ungrieving,
In our heart of hearts believing
Victory crowns the just.

Hence the faith and fire within us,
Men who march away,
Ere the barncocks say
Night is growing gray,
To hazards whence no tears can win us,
Hence the faith and fire within us,
Men who marched away.

ENDED PRINCE'S BANQUET.

Kaiser's Heir Was Feasting When Battle Began.

The story of a triumphal feast presided over by the German Crown Prince, which was broken up by French artillery, came from the front recently. The German Crown Prince had just taken up his headquarters in the famous old Chateau de Mondemont and was giving a dinner to his staff of the German occupation of Rheims when French guns began sending shells into the historic edifice. Leaving fowls uneaten and wine undrunk, the German officers sprang to their posts and a battle was soon raging. That marked the climax of German success in France; the German centre, as well as the balance of the invading army, began to retreat immediately.

The Chateau de Mondemont, perched on the northeast edge of the Sezanne plateau, commanding a view of the magnificent champagne plains, was an idea point for general staff headquarters, consequently it was occupied for that purpose. On the night of Sept. 6, a gorgeous dinner was given for the Crown Prince and his staff in the chateau, to celebrate their victorious advance and the occupation of Rheims. The white-panelled dining-room of the magnificent chateau was hung with costly tapestry, electric lights blazed upon gold and silver wine cups and the great array of food. Toast after toast was drunk, and the officers grew mellow under the influence of the fine old wines and brandy, taken from the cobwebby cellars of the chateau.

Suddenly the dull roar of artillery broke up the silence of the night. A moment later there was a crash as a shell tore through the walls of the chateau, exploding with frightful violence in a pantry adjoining the dining-room. The guests were covered with a shower of plaster and splinters as they sat spellbound at the table.

"To your saddles, men," shouted the prince. Suiting his action to his words he leaped to his feet, overturning his chair. He ran from the house and was soon upon his horse giving orders. The battle thus began, lasted throughout the night, all day on Sept. 7 and all of the 8th.

Bad Geography Again.

Ross Tuttle, of Tweed, Ont., who was a student in Germany and recently escaped from the theatre of war, underwent some interesting experiences before arriving safely under the Union Jack. When the war broke out he was living at the Gothingen, military centre for that district. Mr. Tuttle is a son of Dr. Tuttle, of Tweed. On Friday, Aug. 4, word was received of Great Britain's declaration of war and before morning most of the British subjects had been arrested and put in jail. Those arrested consisted of Canadians, South Africans and Hindus. However, Mr. Tuttle missed. In a few days notice appears in the papers saying that all foreigners including Americans must report to the police in order to secure special passes which would ensure their safety while in Germany. According Mr. Tuttle went to the police and told them he was a student from Tweed, Canada, America. In due time Mr. Tuttle received a pass stating that he was from Tweed, America. Later when Americans were allowed to leave the city he received a pass to leave Germany via Holland, the official taking it for granted that as he was not placed under arrest with other British subjects when war was declared, he was an American.

Do Bullets Come Down?

It is believed among the troops in France that bullets fired vertically upwards at aircraft never descend as bullets, the intense and prolonged friction of their flight to the limit of the trajectory and the subsequent descent of what is left of them, completely dissipating them into vapor. Thousands of bullets have recently been fired at aircraft, but none has been positively known to descend.

The Swiss Navy.

"Switzerland's navy" sounds absurd; yet since the outbreak of the war Switzerland has had to use the rights of a naval power. Ten German schooners have been detained in Basle harbor and the federal flag hoisted on board them.

"THE DAY."

By Henry Chappell.

(The author of this magnificent poem, based on the German custom of toasting "Der Tag" when the Teuton should overcome and conquer Europe, is Mr. Henry Chappell, a railway porter at Bath, England. Mr. Chappell is known to his comrades as the "Bath Railway Poet." A poem such as this lifts him to the rank of a national poet.)

You boasted the Day, and you toasted the Day,
And now the Day has come.
Blasphemer, braggart, and coward all,
Little you reck of the numbering ball,
The blazing shell, or the "white arm's" fall,
As they speed poor humans home.

You spied for the Day, you lied for the Day,
And woke the Day's red spleen.
Monster, who asked God's aid Divine,
Then strewed His seas with the ghastly mine;
Not all the waters of the Rhine
Can wash they foul hands clean.

You dreamed for the Day, you schemed for the Day;
Watch how the Day will go,
Slayer of age and youth and prime
(Defenceless slain for never a crime)
Thou art steeped in blood as a hog in slime,
False friend and cowardly too.

You have sown for the Day, you have grown for the Day;
Yours is the harvest red.
Can you hear the groans and the awful cries?
Can you see the heap of slain that lies,
And sightless turned to the flame-split skies
The glassy eyes of the dead?

You have wronged for the Day, you have longed for the Day
That lit the awful flame;
'Tis nothing to you that hill and plain
Yield sheaves of dead men amid the grain;
That widows mourn for their loved ones slain,
And mothers curse thy name.

But after the Day there's a price to pay
For the sleepers under the sod,
And He you mocked for many a day—
Listen, and hear what he has to say:
"Vengeance is mine, I will repay."
What can you say to God?

LAST WORD IN LIES.

Spain Is Informed That Britain Has Asked For Peace.

One of the most amazing instances of the circulation of false news on the continent in regard to the war has been achieved by a Bilbao paper, "La Gaceta del Norte" (the "Northern Gazette"). This extraordinary specimen of faked information has been received by The London Evening News. As Bilbao is a great port in the north of Spain, it is important that only the facts should be known there and also amongst the Spanish nation generally. But this is what the Bilbao newspaper gave its readers on Sept. 1. In headlines that ran right across the page it announced:

Peace! Peace!
A Solemn Historical Moment.
Gen. Joffre Resigned.
The Whole English General Staff
Made Prisoners of War.

Then, in the middle of the page, in very large and widely-spaced type, we have this:—

Let it be peace, San Sebastian (urgent). The King of Spain travelled to-night to Madrid. He was accompanied by Senor Sanches Guerra, who has made the following sensational declaration: We are on the brink of peace. Steps are being taken by England. No more troops to be sent to France. The conditions of peace are as follows:—

Cession of Algeria to Germany.
Cession of part of Belgian Congo to Germany.
A Large War Indemnity.

After the headlines the following interesting announcement appears:

Peace! Peace! While we are writing these emotional words the pen trembles in our hand, and we are scarcely able to form the letters which express our immense joy. The urgent telegram of our correspondent, Senor Ormaechea, made us believe that we were dreaming. We could not believe what our eyes read. Fortunately the good news came from authoritative sources—a Minister of the (Spanish) Home Office—who assures us of its truth.

Now, in order that our readers may note and see that we are of good faith, when we give them news, we are going to reproduce the telegram received from Rome by "La Gaceta del Norte," and published in the late edition on Aug. 29:—

"Rome, Aug. 28.—It is confirmed that England, after the first naval rout which she has suffered, has addressed peace proposals to Germany. The Government of the Kaiser answered that England could sent representatives to Germany, but in the present circumstances proposals of peace would not be accepted."

There was a paper which laughed at "La Gaceta del Norte," and said that England would never ask Germany for peace until she died of hunger. But only a few days were necessary in order to demonstrate that in this, as in other things, we were well informed.

And then the Bilbao newspaper announces that Gen. Joffre has forced his resignation on the French War Office.

Sent Nine Sons.

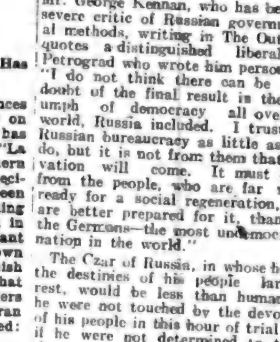
"The Widow Bonnard in Paris sent nine sons to the war and all were wounded, but all will recover.

RUSSIA'S BETTER DAY.

The German contention that the present war as waged between Germany and Russia is a conflict between culture and barbarism may be dismissed with the contempt which it deserves. To stigmatize as barbarous a nation which has produced a Tschaikovsky in music, a Verestchagin in painting, a Métchnikoff in science, a Turgenieff and a Tolstoi in literature, is to use words without meaning. It is true that Russia, like Great Britain, bears rule over barbarous and semi-barbarous tribes; it is also true that among the Russian peasantry there is much illiteracy and ignorance—as indeed there is among the lower classes of other European nations. Recognizing the important place which Russia fills and is destined to fill in world influence, the hope of all lovers of humanity is that out of the present war will rise a greater Russia—greater not so much in extent of territory as in liberty and enlightenment.

There are grounds for believing that this hope will be realized.

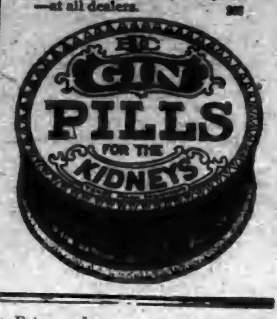
Russia's curse has been its despotic and reactionary government. No people can grow strong intellectually or spiritually except in the light and air of freedom. In Russia the people have not been encouraged hitherto to govern themselves politically nor to think for themselves religiously. In the Russian Church, even more if possible than in the Roman Catholic, the forms of faith are fixed and final, and acceptance of the orthodox creed is the supreme religious test. Hence the prevailing policy of the Church has been to discourage rather than to promote a policy of popular education. Politically also the emancipation of the people has been slow. Parliamentary institutions have been granted grudgingly, and even conceded rights have been restricted afterwards.



Now there seems to be a universal feeling that in all these respects things will be better after the war. The enthusiasm and unanimity with which the Russian people of every race and class have rallied to their country's cause is nothing short of marvellous. Account for it as we will, their conviction is that they are fighting for democracy and progress. A Russian historian and journalist, who was imprisoned two years ago for his revolutionary views, writes: "All Russia regards the war as the people's war, and a war of liberation. . . . Victory in this war is a guarantee of the advance of civilization and a liberation of its development from all fetters." Mr. George Kennan, who has been a severe critic of Russian governmental methods, writing in The Outlook, quotes a distinguished liberal of Petrograd who wrote him personally: "I do not think there can be any doubt of the final result in the triumph of democracy all over the world, Russia included. I trust the Russian bureaucracy as little as you do, but it is not from them that salvation will come. It must come from the people, who are far more ready for a social regeneration, and are better prepared for it, than are the Germans—the most undemocratic nation in the world."

The Czar of Russia, in whose hands the destinies of his people largely rest, would be less than human if he were not touched by the devotion of his people in this hour of trial and if he were not determined to trust them more fully than he has done and to make a way for their spiritual release and uplift. Those who know the Russian people best are most firmly convinced that they have within them great capacities for good. Indeed no one can read the works of the great novelists who have interpreted Russian life and character without perceiving, amid much perversity and human frailty, splendid qualities of strength and sympathy. They are profoundly, if too blindly, religious. Archbishop Platon, recently Primate of the Russian Church, in North America, addressing a gathering in New York, which included representatives of other Churches, said: "My flock is not an aristocratic part of the Russian people, whose refinement in culture would amaze you, but the lower classes where there is not so much culture in the accepted sense of the word, but where religious sentiment and good qualities of the human heart pour forth abundantly."

If one desired a satisfactory proof of the capacity of the Russian people for better things he might find it in the experiment which has recently been made among them with regard to the sale and use of intoxicating liquor. As our readers are no doubt aware, drunkenness has long been one of the besetting sins of the Russians, as it is of Anglo-Saxons. The manufacture and sale of vodka—the most common intoxicant—is a government monopoly. For the purpose of preventing disorder during the period of mobilization the Government, as a temporary war measure, closed all the hundreds of thousands of liquor shops throughout the empire. The people not only submitted to the decree, but welcomed it and co-operated with the Government to make their experiment a success. A well known Russian journalist writing in a Petrograd newspaper not long ago, declared: "The short period of total prohibition has not only been brilliantly successful, has not only shown us a striking picture of improved social conditions, but has virtually bound us to carry on the reform and make the temporary measure a permanent system. . . . An overwhelming majority of the peasants—most of them vodka drinkers—not only regard the closing of the liquor shops with profound satisfaction, but look forward with fear and dread the possible reopening of them."



Since that article was written despatches in the daily press have told us that orders have been given to the effect that the prohibition of the sale of vodka shall be continued indefinitely after the war. The orders are based principally on the tremendously improved condition of the country since the prohibitory edict was issued. Some districts have been practically transformed, and a regeneration has taken place among the peasantry which, in the opinion of the Russian authorities, is likely to have an important effect on the social and economic conditions of all Russia.

We close by quoting from the article of Mr. George Kennan to which we have already referred: "Russia is often called the 'land of unlimited possibilities' with the implication that the possibilities are only those of evil. The great spiritual awakening, however, which we now see there; the patriotic coming together of discordant elements; the new feeling of brotherhood which links Jews to Slavs and liberals to reactionists; and last, but not least, the spontaneous and universal welcoming of prohibition as a great national blessing for which everybody is ready, show that the 'unlimited possibilities' are for good as well as evil. If the war should do nothing more than free Russia from the curse of vodka, it would be worth all that it can possibly cost in treasure and life; but may we not hope, with the liberals and the revolutionists, that in some way and at some near time it will also free the country from cruelty, oppression, and despotic rule?"

A WOMAN'S RIGHT TO HEALTH.

No Reason Why They Should Suffer From Backaches and Headaches.

To every woman belongs the right to enjoy a healthy, active, happy life, yet nine out of ten suffer, often in silence, from splitting headaches, violent heart palpitation or some other of the many evils that follows anaemia, or bloodlessness.

That is why one sees so many women with pale, thin cheeks, dull eyes and drooping figures—sure signs that the blood is out of order. All suffering women should win the right to be well by refreshing their weary bodies with the new, rich blood of health that promptly transforms them into healthy, attractive women. There is no other medicine can supply this new, rich blood so speedily and so surely as Dr. Williams Pink Pills for Pale People. Through this medicine thousands of tired, suffering women have found new health and strength. Mrs. James Drost, Chipman, N.B., says: "For years I did not know what it was to be entirely free from headache or backache. My hands were cold and clammy all the time. It was difficult for me to get my work done, and to walk even a short distance would leave me completely worn out. My life was one of constant worry and I thought I would never be better. I was doctoring all the time but without a bit of benefit, and finally the doctor stopped giving me medicine as he could not help me. Do you wonder that I was in despair. My mother urged me to take Dr. Williams Pink Pills, but I said, "What's the use, medicine can't help me." However, my husband got six boxes of the pills, and to please him I began to take them. By the time I had finished them I undoubtedly had improved and there was the signs of returning health in my cheeks and hands. My husband thought the improvement so great that he got another half dozen boxes, and before these were completed I was enjoying such good health as I had not had in years. In fact, I was a well woman, and have since enjoyed the best of health. I sincerely feel that I owe my life to Dr. Williams Pink Pills, and shall always recommend them to all sick people."

You can get these pills at any medicine dealers, or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

QUESTION OF WORK AND "MADE-IN-CANADA"

Economic Situation of Grave Concern to Canadians—Co-operation From all Sides to Give Work

The war has had a sudden and pronounced effect on the "Made-in-Canada" movement which has been carried on in Canada during the past few years. Hitherto the educational campaign, to promote the sale of "Made-in-Canada" goods, has been viewed pretty much as the concern of Canadian manufacturers, and has, for this reason, been denied the sympathy and support of a section of the people. The war has changed all this, and to-day the "Made-in-Canada" policy is no longer looked upon as a matter of sentiment and patriotism, but is regarded as an economic necessity. The manufacturers and other large employers of labor are being appealed to by press, pulpit and public men generally to provide the maximum of employment with a view to relieving the distress caused by the closing of many factories as a result of the war. Obviously Canadian factories cannot be operated unless there is a demand for their products. Hence the appeal on every hand to Canadians to patronise the goods made by their fellow-citizens in Canadian factories. It is admitted on all sides that there will be considerable unemployment, and consequent suffering during the next few months in Canada, but if every Canadian would, as far as possible, patronize home industries, orders would come in to many Canadian factories that have hitherto been placed abroad, and instead of a slackening in factory activity the wheels of industry might be operated with accelerated speed during this period of trial.

Manufacturers and other large employers of labor have agreed among themselves to maintain their working staffs as fully as possible even if they operate at cost or in some cases below cost. In so doing they are not actuated by any desire for profits, welcome as these would be, but solely with a view of relieving the distress which unemployment always brings. They feel that it is far better to furnish a livelihood for Canadians through honest work and honest wages than to dole out a pittance through charitable institutions. "Made-in-Canada" is, therefore, more than ever a practical business policy today. Every Canadian housewife, in fact every purchaser of goods in Canada should practice it and encourage others to do likewise. About fifty cents of every dollar spent on the product of a factory goes to the workingman. All interests are, therefore, combining in Canada during the next few months to increase employment by distributing as much as possible in the form of wages to the Canadian workmen in the Canadian factory. The campaign of the Canadian Press Association in this direction is most commendable, and will do much to restore confidence in the business and industrial comcunity.

THE OUTLOOK IN CANADA

Handicap For Some Industries—Increased Activity For Others

Truly, it is an ill-wind that blows nobody good. One Continent's "down" is another Continent's "up." The industries of Europe are, generally speaking, at a standstill, and matters will be worse before they can be better.

The whole world is looking to the North American Continent—to Canada and the United States—for much of its provisions, machinery, textiles, boots and shoes, beverages, vehicles, cement, brick, earthenware, fancy goods, furs, glass, garments, paper, soap, tobacco, wood products, and much else. Canada must get ready to meet the demand made upon her. We have continued prosperity ahead of us if our manufacturers and merchants rise quickly to take advantage of their opportunity.

Encouraging Manufacturers

Last week was "Made in Winnipeg" week in the Manitoba capital, and manufacturers, retailers and citizens generally co-operated to bring the products of local industries before the public and to urge Winnipeg people to help build up a bigger and better city, by using goods made in local factories. The object is a most worthy and commendable one, and the response which has been made by the citizens shows that western cities, as well as the older cities of the East, are developing a civic pride and a local patriotism that will be for the good of the community."—From "Grain Growers' Guide," May 27, 1914.

SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Canadian women are continually writing us such letters as the two following, which are heartfelt expressions of gratitude for restored health:

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of womb and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully for years until I began taking your medicine. I also recommend it for nervousness and indigestion." — Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ont.

Chesterville, Ont. — "I heard your medicines highly praised, and a year ago I began taking them for falling of womb and ovarian trouble.

"My left side pained me all the time and just before my periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see any one or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated.

"I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial." — Mrs. STEPHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario, Canada.

Rennenkampf's Work Has Earned Title of "Kitchener of Russia"

THE efficiency of the huge army organization of Russia is the mystery of the present war. The report that 5,000,000 men are now concentrated on the western border and that this vast aggregation will be doubled in another month is startling when one realizes that a few months ago no person would have made any possible comparison between the unwieldly hosts of the Czar and the admirable military machine of the Kaiser. Russia has surprised Germany, and incidentally the world, with an exhibition of military efficiency, largely due to the labors of Gen. Rennenkampf, who has been responsible during the last few years for the reorganization that has taken place in the Russian army.

The disastrous war with Japan left the Russian military forces in a state of the utmost military demoralization and it was not until 1908 that the Government tackled the problem of reorganization. As a result the entire army has been reorganized, rearmed and reclothed. The peace footing was raised in 1912 from 850,000 to 1,800,000, organized in 37 army corps, of which 30 were stationed in European Russia. These have been the gigantic duties of Gen. Rennenkampf, who is known as the Kitchener of Russia, assisted more recently by the military genius of Gen. Soukhomlinoff, the present Minister of War. Gen. Rennenkampf was one of the few Russian generals who emerged from the Japanese war with undiminished reputation. The great machine that they have brought into being is now to undergo the supreme test of war.

Gen. Rennenkampf has been in command of the first army in the north flank operating in East Prussia.

Rennenkampf played a brilliant part in the Japanese war and was promoted from major-general to lieutenant-general. He won distinction in the battle of Mukden and in other great conflicts, and at the end of the war was assigned to suppress the revolution against Russia in the Trans-Baikal province.

Dogs Fight For Masters.

The Belgian newspaper Patriote tells this story:

A battery of Belgian mitrailleuses was surrounded when their ammunition was exhausted, but the men determined to make a rush with clubbed rifles, using their bayonets as daggers. As everybody familiar with Belgium knows, dogs are everywhere used for light draft, and mitrailleuse batteries are mostly drawn by fine animals. Seeing their masters roughly treated in a hand to hand fight the dogs joined in so effectually as to enable the gunners to break through.

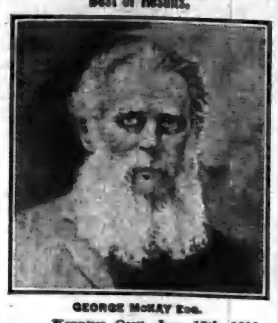
A soldier carried one of these heroic beasts in his arms, for it had a bullet through its paw, but it did not whine and kept licking the man's hand with its great hot tongue.

An Army of Gluttons.

The practice of the Germans on occupying a hostile town are clearly indicated by a proclamation now in the hands of the French, which was posted at Luneville when the Kaiser's men took possession. It calls for 100,000 cigars, 200,000 cigarettes, 500,000 litres of wine, and similar quantities of other luxuries. Failure to provide the articles requisitioned was punishable by a fine of $60,000.

It is said that the advance of the German troops into France was the coming of a horde of gluttons. Everywhere they went food, wine and tobacco were demanded without stint. Drunkenness is said to be the common rule among all classes of troops when not actually engaged in battle.

Prisoners Roped In Bog.



A Petrograd correspondent telegraphs the following: "An engagement at Krinitz, between Lublin and Kholm, where the Austrians lost about 6,000 prisoners and several guns, was decided by a bayonet charge. The Austrians got entangled in a bog, from which, after their surrender, they had to be extricated with the assistance of ropes."

Mr. Thomas Wilson, who has held a good position as engineer in a large saw mill in Parry Sound district, returned to his home in West Luther on Saturday evening. Prince of Wales Is Much Stronger Man Than He Would Seem

THE Prince of Wales has been a prominent figure in England since the war began. Not only has he been engaged in raising patriotic funds, but he has been wearing the khaki and doing drill with his regiment, the Grenadier Guards. These husky soldiers have now gone to the front to fight the Empire's battle, and the heir to the throne has been left at home, much against his will, say the despatches, and the photograph reproduced above, taken after he had said good-bye to his comrades in arms, would lend color to the statement, for he certainly looks like a keenly disappointed lad.

Prince Edward, although he has the appearance of being very frail physically, and the recent photographs taken in conjunction with members of the giant Grenadier Guards, have tended to emphasize his small stature, is said to be much stronger than he looks. His lack of avoirdupois is more than counterbalanced by his steel-like muscles and nerves. Add to this a wholehearted love of athletics, for which the prince trains systematically, and you have the secret of his royal highness' remarkable physical powers. For they are really remarkable, and have even astounded the critics at Oxford, who are accustomed to seeing men, whose deceptive appearance led us to regard them as weaklings, perform at times remarkable feats of athletic prowess.

SEEMS ALMOST TIRELESS.

It seems almost impossible to tire him out. A ten or fifteen mile walk is easy exercise for him. Last autumn, during the march of the Oxford University Officers' Training Corps, in which the prince is a private, his royal highness walked twenty-two miles, and while the other members of the corps were resting their crippled feet and tired limbs the prince, although, of course, by no means fresh, had a smoke and a bath, and motored to a friend's house to dinner.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

If his royal highness had not been heir to the throne he might have qualified as one of the finest long-distance runners and "stayers" in the country. He delights to spend the day in one long round of open-air exercise.

The story of an incident which occurred during his trip in Norway a short time ago is typical of many others which could be told of his powers. On each of the five days he stayed at Finse he had long skiing expeditions, and when those who accompanied him told of the distances covered they were not altogether credited.

Another Theory.

There have been many solutions offered as the cause of the rumor prevalent a few weeks ago that a hundred thousand Russians had passed through England en route for France. Here is the latest:

A train with Seaforths passed through Yorkshire in the night and stopped at a small station. There was a very sleepy porter on duty. A large number of the Highlanders got out to stretch their legs. They were wearing long gray coats and conversed in that mysterious language. "Where do you come from?" asked the porter. "Ross-shire," answered the Scots. Let any Scot, highland or lowland, say "Ross-shire" to an Englishman and nine out of ten will imagine he means "Russia." The porter had the evidence before his eyes, so he passed his knowledge along.

WHICH WAY ARE WE GOING?

The eyes of Canadian enterprise are now turned in two directions, toward new and enlarged lines of manufacture and toward the farm. Suddenly, the war disrupted old sources of supplies and channels of trade. Strongly organized and alert manufacturing interests may be expected to readjust their operations and launch out in fresh directions where the outlook seems large enough to warrant it, and the necessary monetary sinews are available. Already the war has stimulated some industries and slackened others. Generally speaking, it has turned attention sharply to the farm and farming, because of the quickening effect on the demand for foods and upon prices. But agriculture is not nationally nor very strong provincially, an organized industry like manufacturing, though there are healthy exceptions such as the Grain Growers' Association of the West, and the associations of growers of fruit and other specialized products in Ontario and other eastern provinces. Some of these relate chiefly to marketing rather than to production, which remains largely still a matter of individual initiative and enterprise. In so far as co-operative organizations make certain branches of farming more remunerative, they will promote production. Despite a good deal of bemoaning and occasional criticism to the contrary, we have no hesitation in declaring that farming in Canada is making substantial and encouraging progress in the face of no inconsiderable handicaps which include the long-established trend of public school education, and the shortage of rural population compared with that drawn into the professions and strongly-promoted town industries. The tide may be slowly turning toward the farm. We hope it is, because it will tend to the future security of the country. The horrors of the war in Europe certainly do not lend enchantment to town life. The masses in the stricken and ruined cities of Belgium attest this with unutterable woe, and the unemployed outside the zone of combat know it and will realize it more keenly as the winter draws on. Canadian farming is and has been advancing because men are taking it more seriously, and are giving to it the thought and application which it deserves. It is a pre-eminently safe occupation, and in many respects, one of the very best. Like any other business the better conducted the better it pays.

Said an observant business man driving across the country lately with one of the editors of this paper. "Farmers are taking more interest in their work and in the appearance of their farms." The superb crops of roots and corn, and the improved condition of the out-buildings on several farms in sight were the immediate occasion of the remark. The thousands of enquiries and the stream of communications received during the year by "The Farmers' Advocate" are perhaps the most conclusive evidence that could be given of the keen practical interest taken by the men of the farm in their work. For the future, even more than in the past, advance will be the result of individual knowledge, wise planning and personal effort. Recognition of this principle has been the mainstay of "The Farmers' Advocate" policy for nearly fifty years. Farmers who equip themselves and and will to succeed do succeed. We have observed this in thousands of cases, and are grateful to have had a share in co-operating with the toilers on the land whose assurances of the reality and value of the service rendered through these pages enhearten our efforts for the immediate future when the farmer shall realize as perhaps never before the extent to which we must rely for success, chiefly upon his own uncertain or divided voice, the farmer is entitled to demand of the state, which for its very existence depends to such an extent upon his efforts, a fair equality of conditions in order to the occupancy of land and the prosecution of farming.—Farmers' Advocate.

Practical Results of War to Canada.

We share with the Mail of Montreal confidence in British statesmanship when the question of arranging the bill to be paid by Germany must be presented. Contrary to the assumption of our contemporary we have no "worries" as to Canada getting a fair return. It is quite inconceivable that results from the subjection of the gross militarism of Germany could be measured by any such commercial gauge as "dollars and cents." The gifts of our eminent Canadians were not prompted by hope of any return, nor is the spontaneous action of the people as a whole attributable to any hope of recompense in purely a commercial sense. We are glad the Mail agrees with us on that point. At all hazards must we annihilate the power that would lay hands on the Empire and the political liberty it stands for. Such work is priceless and can only be accomplished by sacrifice — such as the Dominion is ready to make.

But when the tyrant is under heel he can be made to settle for the money the conquerers are out of pocket. British statesmen—a term which includes those representing Canada—must see that he does. We had the temerity to distinctly say they should do so and incurred the criticism of our contemporary.

Respecting our comments of a week ago it asks:

"What is The Financial Post driving at? Does it mean to argue that Canada should demand from Great Britain adequate security for any investment she may make before agreeing to take part? Does it mean that, unless such a guarantee be forthcoming, Canada should fold her hands and do nothing? What is the sense in raising such a question at this time, or what is the object of it?"

Nothing we said can be properly construed to justify this questioning attitude. Let us again state, and state quite as unequivocally, that our first duty, without heeding the cost or the consequences, is to, as we said last week:

"Support the British arms to the limit of capacity." We must admit our anxiety as to the Dominion doing all it can and as quickly as it can be done. It is true that we have already dispatched 33,000 men or thereabouts but, let us reiterate — "there should be at least 100,000 more under training now."

We have another duty, only secondary in importance to that of defeating the enemy by arms—the maintenance of our credit system and keeping business moving. Our arms can be sustained best by maintaining business confidence. The latter will not suffer by our insistence that in the final settlement the conquered tyrant be compelled to disgorge his gold in a measure equal to at least our cost for equipping, maintaining and pensioning our troops.

The Mail asks why we raise this question now. The British statesmen and the British financiers and business men at home are discussing this question freely. Leading statesmen discuss it frankly with leading neutral financiers. Under these circumstances does the Mail argue that Canadians are still crown colonists, and may not discuss the final settlement as freely as our kinsmen at home. As a matter of fact The Financial Post was the first paper in Canada to give the outline of the settlement as it was generally understood between the allies. This article gave the key to the leading Canadian papers which at once cabled for full information. These cables and editorials on them have been appearing during the last two or three days.

With the prospect of heavier national burdens, readily self-imposed, every care should be taken by Canadians to make the best of the new political and commercial conditions that will arise. To be prepared to do so is essential. What better prospect could we have, or what do we need more, than that of a larger population engaged on our as yet unplowed areas of good land. That's one thing we are driving at.

We persist that Canada should not neglect to have ready her plans for taking full advantage of the new political conditions that may arise. Our aggressive policy has incurred in more than one instance special restrictive treatment at the hands of German politicians. Bourassa or "Bourassaism" is not a political factor that "worries" The Financial Post. Under some fear of this political wasp, which stings indiscriminately, our contemporary was led into strange misapprehensions at the thought of Canada, which we suggested, having some voice in the affairs of an Empire, of which it is a part.—Financial Post.

Mrs. Eliza Sproule Dead

Mrs. Eliza Sproule, widow of the late Jonathan Sproule, lot 2, con. 1, O.S., Melancthon, died on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 15th, at the age of 84 years. Mrs. Sproule was one of the pioneers of Melancthon township and settled with her late husband on the townline of Melancthon when Shelburne had only a couple of houses. Together they began life's struggles in the solid bush, where they lived to see the wilderness turned into a beautiful country. Mrs. Sproule was of a quiet disposition and devoted most of her efforts to her home and family, consequently she was not well known except in the locality in which she lived. Deceased was a daughter of the late Thomas Cotton, one of the earliest settlers of Mono township, the old homestead now being owned by W. T. Bailey, of Shelburne. Seven sons and one daughter survive. THE VOYAGE OVER.

Across the Atlantic With the First Contingent.

Lieut. Harry McGuire Writes of Ocean Trip, Reception at Plymouth and First Impressions of England.

On Monday Mr. and Mrs. B. McGuire, West Broadway, received a very welcome letter from their son Lieut. H. B. McGuire, one of the officers of the 4th Battalion of the first Canadian Contingent. The first instalment of the letter was written in mid-ocean and the concluding pages after the transports had reached Plymouth Harbor. We are pleased to have the opportunity of publishing portions of the letter which are of public interest:—

S. S. Tyrolia, Mid-Ocean,
Sunday, Oct. 11th, 1914.

Dear Mother:—

Our mail was taken off by the battleship, Canada, on Saturday, Oct. 3rd, just before we sailed from Gaspe Bay. No doubt you received these letters alright. We received a large mail on board too. We sailed from the Bay at 3 p.m. in three columns of 11 ships each. We were accompanied by four war vessels and there were quite a number scouting ahead of the transports. I do not suppose such a convoy has ever crossed the Atlantic before. Our trip will likely be a memorable one. We are taking all precautions against any possible attack by hostile vessels. Sometimes it gives one an uncanny feeling to see some vessel slow up and allow a few of the transports to bunch together. We are not travelling at a very high rate of speed—only about 9 to 10 knots an hour, so that it will be about a 12 day trip across. Adding to this the time spent at Gaspe we will be on the water about three weeks. The transports are not all first-class passenger steamers, but are made up of all classes and represent many steamship companies. The transports and some of the accompanying cruisers are:—

H. M. S. Eclipse, H.M.S. Diana, H.M.S. Charybdis, H.M.S. Talbot, H.M.S. Glory, transports Megantic, Ruthenia, Arcadian, Alunia, Saxonia, Scandinavian, Sicilian, Lapland, Cassandra, Florizel, Caribbean, Athenia, Royal Edward, Franconia, Canada, Monmouth, Manitou, Tyrolia, Tunisian, Laurentic, Corinthian, Virginian, Andania, Ivernia, Grampian, Laconia, Montreal, Royal George.

Some boats have one battalion and others two battalions on board, so that each transport is pretty well filled up. The Tyrolia is a C.P.R. boat and carries the 4th battalion of 1065 men of all ranks and about 200 of a crew. We have a daily routine which keeps everyone in pretty fair shape. Many lectures and extra drills keep us fairly busy. Reveille at 6 a.m. and lights out at 9.15 p. m. I follow a very good routine—bath in cold sea water at 6.30 a.m.; physical drill for half an hour; breakfast at 8 a.m.; drill at 9.30 a.m.; signalling class, 11 a.m.; lunch, 1 p.m.; drill, 1.45 p.m.; signalling, 3.-30 p.m.; afternoon tea, 4.30 p.m.; dinner, 7 p.m.; lectures, 8.15 p.m.; bed (blank).

There are no lights shown at night except a stern light on each of the boats, so we sail like phantom boats during the night. The portholes are closed and blanketted, allowing no light to shine. The cruisers in front will hardly allow the German ships to get close to us anyway. There is plenty of time for sports aboard ship. These comprise shuffle board, quoits, boxing, tug-of-war and many other games.

We have not had very rough weather so far, though for a day or so the ship rolled very badly, causing a little sea sickness. The soup dishes would slide a little. It was laughable to see us trying to balance ourselves at physical drill. However, we have our sea legs now and do not worry much. I escaped the seasick feeling.

Two of the lieutenants were absent in Quebec a few days and caught up to us at Gaspe. We had a court martial which proved quite entertaining. Major A. T. Hunter was their defending lawyer and as he is the humorist of the ship he made the proceedings very amusing. A man fell overboard off the Royal Edward and there was a little excitement until he was picked up again. All strange craft are stopped, by the cruisers and only allowed to proceed on their way after satisfying the officer of the fleet.

We are practically cut off from outside news and do not know whether the war is still on or not. We are all hoping that we do not arrive too late for some of the excitement, especially the march into Berlin. The wireless is only in operation on the cruisers and all signalling is done by the battalion signallers, who are on duty for 24 hours daily. The whole battalion are rapidly becoming signallers. We received a few war items in this way, but they do not tell us much. We understand Australia has the third contingent ready, but we do not know what is being done in Canada. We have no idea just now where we are going, but will know when we land, which will be about next Thursday.

To-day we had church service in the bow of the boat. The Chaplain, Rev. Canon Major Piper, conducted the services. $100 was received in collection for the Sailors' Orphans and Widows' Home. The afternoon was occupied with boxing bouts and tug-of-war—very good for Sunday, but really nothing wrong in the exercises. You will probably know where we are going and what is likely to happen us when we get there, but we are in darkness as yet.

Tuesday, Oct. 13th.

We are into a nice storm to-day and the wind seems to be getting stronger. The waves are beating over the ship and anyone unlucky enough to be under the wave gets drenched. We have lectures below on days that are unfit to be on deck. We are south of the coast of Ireland, but still do not know where we are going to land. The fleet was to have divided into three squadrons to-day, for different ports, but the storm seems to have prevented the carrying out of the arrangement.

Sunday evening we had a birthday dinner in honor of Lt. Col. Buell. We had a splendid time and lots of music. I have a menu with the autographs of all the officers. I will get some of the snapshots taken during the voyage and send them to you. We would like very much to know just what is going on in the world. There may have been lots of excitement "over 'ome" since we left. I have a list of the officers of our battalion, the 4th, which may be of interest to you:—

Lt. Col. R. H. Labatt, commanding.
Lt. Col. Buell, second in command.

Wednesday, Oct. 14th.

It is just two months since I left Orangeville, but I can't say when I will land back again. We are anchored in the harbour at Plymouth and are liable to dock at any time. All the ships are here now and are just waiting a chance to dock and disembark. The location in which we find ourselves leads us to conclude that we will proceed to Aldershot or Salisbury Plains as a training area. We have some more equipping and training to do before we are fit to take the field. I think everyone is anxious to get into the real excitement and the sooner the better. I have a lot of equipment such as revolvers, uniforms, coats, etc. We will benefit from the lower prices in England. We were joined yesterday by more battleships and torpedo boats to secure our safety. To-day we had a great opportunity to look these over as many of them sailed quite close to us. It is not much wonder the Germans are afraid of the British fleet.

I hope your letters are here when we reach our destination as the mail will come much faster than we travelled. Altogether we had a pleasant trip, but three weeks on board is just a little too long. We did not waste many minutes of the time, however, for parades, lectures, drills, studies, etc. kept us busy. There are lots at home to whom I would like to send cards, but I may not have time. It depends altogether on how long we are in England and what latitude we are given. If anyone asks for me you can say that I am quite well and send my best regards to all my friends.

Plymouth Harbor, Oct. 15th.

We learned to-day that we were not to have come here, but for certain very important reasons. It was decided that the transports should take shelter here last night for the very good reason that they were in grave danger of an attack by German submarines had they proceeded to Southampton. We may disembark here or if the Germans are driven away we will proceed to Southampton. I expect we will go into training on Salisbury Plains.

I am mighty glad I am on this expedition. It will be the experience of a lifetime. It is fine to be a Canadian. We received a great reception from the barbor boats. No doubt our reception was to have been at Southampton, but we received mighty and hearty cheers to-day. Three old battleships of the Nelson type, one called Impregnable, are anchored in the harbor as naval training ships. As we passed hundreds of middies swarmed on the decks, into the rigging and all over the vessel and cheered for Canada, for us and everyone. It was a thriller all along the route and we shall never forget it. This afternoon a large ferry came along swarming with middies and their band. The cheering was wonderful. Immediately the band struck up "O Canada" the boys sprang to attention and remained at the salute throughout. The same way with the National Anthem. Everything was in a bustle in the harbor to-day and there was continual cheering.

The scenery from the boat is great. I never had the least idea what England would look like, but the first glimpse gives one a decidedly favorable opinion. The surrounding hills are fortified on the sea side offering an uninviting welcome to unfriendly visitors. The coast guards and the warships add impressively to this feature of the view. The hills are lovely and everything looks neat, clean and in stately order.

We are naturally very anxious to get ashore and stretch our limbs after three weeks on board ship. I will write just as soon as we get to our training quarters.

Your loving son,
HARRY.

FLYWHEELS IN WARFARE.

As Projectiles They Would Mow Down Everything in Their Way.

A big flywheel spinning rapidly involves a much greater danger than that of merely exploding. The explosion of a flywheel is due to centrifugal force and causes pieces of the wheel to fly off at a tangent in the plane of the wheel, but in practically every direction in this plane. But consider for a moment what would happen if a flywheel were to become loose from its bearings and stay whole.

The great velocity of rotation would be changed to velocity of translation, and the wheel would travel with lightning swiftness along the floor in the direction of rotation. It would act like a locomotive wheel going at tremendous speed. Of course, if it were to drop in a puddle of oil it would not go far, but simply slip like an engine wheel on an oiled track. But with no oil to check its course the results would be awful to contemplate.

Suppose that the wheel was forty feet in circumference and was rotating at 1,800 revolutions a minute. A point on the wheel would then be traveling 72,000 feet a minute, or about 800 miles an hour. This is as fast as a cannon ball and, of course, the wheel would act in a similar manner to a cannon ball—it would be a mighty projectile that would go through almost anything. It is this danger which keeps the size and speed of flywheels down in practice, especially aboard ship.

It is possible that projectiles will yet be made on this principle for certain purposes. Think what an army could do at short range if it was equipped with hundreds of big flywheels that could be released. They would travel along the ground at great speed and would simply mow down everything in their way. The only drawback to the use of flywheels in this way is the resistance of the ground, and that would not hold for a distance as short as half a mile.

While an ordinary projectile hits in one spot only, the flywheel would cover an area as wide as the wheel and as long as the path over which it traveled. Therefore it is hardly possible that any wheel would become spent without doing great damage. It could be pretty accurately aimed and, on account of its gyroscopic effect, would travel in practically a straight line. Its gyroscopic effect would not, however, keep it from going up or down a hill, but would prevent it from deviating from its path otherwise.

Defense against such a projectile would be hard to get.—New York American.

Pretty Useful Shoes.

It would be difficult to realize what the Frieslander would do without his klompen or wooden shoes, for they have a hundred uses. With them he bails out his boat, corrects his children and scoops up a drink of water wherever he may be. He places in them his worms for fishing, uses them as missiles in a free fight, measures dry goods with them and a hundred other things. The klompen are cheap. They cost about fifteen pence a pair, man's size, and Dutchmen's feet are not Cinderella-like by any means.—Wide World Magazine.

Overheard by Thackeray.

The discomforts endured by Thackeray in the United States, which he dwells upon in the letters to Mrs. Brookfield, were alleviated by some amusing incidents. After his return to London he told Carlyle that during one of his American journeys "the train stopped at Concord. Then one of the two silent Yankees opposite me turned to the other and remarked, 'Mr. Emerson, I hear, lives in this town.' 'Ye-as,' was the drawling rejoinder, 'and I understand that, in spite of his odd notions, he is a man of consid-er-able property.'"

Lover of Poetry.

"Too bad about poets, isn't it?"
"What's too bad—their poetry?"
"No, no; the fact that it doesn't pay to write poetry. I'm told they're mostly always very poor."
"You mean their books don't sell?"
"That's it. It's too bad."
"You like poetry?"
"I love it. I read all I can get."
"You buy the books, of course?"
"Oh, dear, no! I can get 'em all from the library!"

Seldom Misses.

Two "good fellows" were ambling home at an early hour in the morning after a festive evening.

"Doesn't your wife miss you on these occasions?" asked one.

"Not often," replied the other; "she throws pretty straight."—Cleveland Leader.

Where They Differed.

"I always try to look at everything from both sides."

"Your wife tells a different story."

"How's that?"

"She says you haven't seen the inside of a church for years."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Made It Short.

Newedd—What's wrong with this pie crust? It doesn't half cover the pie. Mrs. Newedd—Why, dearest, I asked your mother all about how to make them to suit you, and she said to make the crust very short.—Boston Transcript.

Precept and Practice.

"What's the matter with your wife?"
"She has fretted herself into a sick headache over her paper for the Don't Worry club."

One shriek of hate would jar all the hymns of heaven.—Tennyson.

"SUNNY SOUTH" CO.

Reserve Seat Plan Open at Banner Office.

The amusement loving public will be glad to hear that the J. C. Rockwell "Sunny South" company, the show that leaves you laughing when they say "good night," will be the attraction at the Opera House, Orangeville, Saturday evening, Oct. 31. It is about two years since this company was seen here and at that time those who attended pronounced it the best and most pleasing of its kind that ever came to town. This season it is absolutely new and up-to-the-second in every respect. It is characteristic throughout, being a mixture of fun, melody and dancing, consisting of all the features peculiar to the negro in Dixie Land, presented by negroes of the cultured and educated class, free from vulgarity, without any objectionable features, at the same time sparkling with wit and humor. Comedy is all that is aimed at and nothing else is reached bar some very clever singing, dancing and entertaining specialities, which will make the audience sit up and take notice. There are twenty jolly, catchy and brilliant musical numbers and the Olio is replete with several most high-class vaudeville stunts ever presented outside the larger cities. From first to last there is not an objectionable word spoken nor the slighest approach to vulgarity in action or glance. A good sprinkling of new songs has been introduced in the performance and with the atmosphere being of the sort where the audience leaves the theatre whistling the latest song hits, you can rest assured that you will be sent home feeling satisfied that you have received full value for your money.

The organization is accompanied by a solo concert band and a superb orchestra. The "Koontown" parade takes place at noon.

The prices of admission have been placed at 35 and 50 cents. Seats are now selling at The Banner Office.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S MEETING

Rev. J. Burkholder Speaks on Modern Missionary Developments.

Tuesday evening St. Andrew's Y. P. S. held the second regular meeting of the 1914-15 session. The speaker of the evening was Rev. J. Burkholder, B. A., of Caledon, his subject being the Development of the Missionary Movement. The Sunday School orchestra very kindly consented to be present and a great impetus was given to singing by the excellent way in which they handled the accompaniments. Selections by the orchestra, a duet by Misses Dodds and McGuire, and a short address by the President, Mr. Trueman Kellie, exhorting the members to continue to turn out in such good numbers and make all the meetings a success, constituted the first part of the program. Mr. Kellie then introduced the lecturer.

Starting from the Master's injunction to his apostles to preach the Gospel in Jerusalem, in Judea and Samaria and unto the uttermost parts of the earth, Mr. Burkholder pointed out that this applied to us ourselves and said that it was time that we should begin to realize that it was our duty to go beyond our own little Jerusalem of our hearts and our local interests into the uttermost parts of the earth and teach others to want to learn. He said it was a source of joy to all Christian workers to realize that in Africa, India, China and the very depths of the little explored countries, were men born and bred in the Christian faith, and that all earnest students believed the recent activities of Buddhism and Mohammedanism were brought about by the teachings of missionaries. Then came the astounding statement that the largest body of active communicants belonging to one church was to be found, not in the Metropolitan Tabernacle of London, Eng., nor in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, as might be expected, but in Elat in the jungles of Central Africa—an astounding proof that the Gospel is at last being preached in the uttermost parts of the earth.

After briefly sketching the most recent developments, Mr. Burkholder brought the lecture to a close with a few lantern slides.

A vote of thanks was proposed in a few well chosen words by the Rev. W. M. Morris and ably seconded by Miss Strang. A very enjoyable evening was terminated with the singing of a hymn.

Mr. Henry Wells, of the 11th line, Euphrasia, had 113 bags of potatoes off half an acre.

Out of 130 horses offered for sale at Owen Sound only 19 passed inspection for Army purposes.

Mr. C. R. McKeown, M.P.P., Col. J. A. V. Preston, Miss H. Wallace and Messrs. J. E. Jessop and Percy Harding attended a patriotic meeting in Honeywood on Friday night. The meeting, which was called by patriotic residents of Honeywood and vicinity, was well attended. Patriotic addresses were given by Mr. C. R. McKeown, Col. Preston, John Best, M.P. and the resident clergymen. Miss Wallace and Messrs. Jessop and Harding furnished a fine musical programme, giving their services free of charge. During the evening the splendid sum of $124 was raised for the Canadian Patriotic Fund. Committees were also appointed to make a thorough canvass of the Honeywood ward for further contributions.

Computing Interest.

Here is a method of computing interest on any number of dollars at six per cent., which appears simple. Multiply any given number of dollars by the number of days interest desired, separate the right hand figure, and divide by six, the result is the true interest for such sum for such number of days at six per cent. This rule is so simple and so true, according to all business uses that every banker, broker, merchant, clerk should post it up for reference. There being no such a thing as a fraction in it, there is scarcely any liability to error or mistake. By no other arithmetical process can the desired information be obtained by so few figures.

—Mr. C. R. McKeown, M.P.P. and Col. Preston will speak at a Patriotic Meeting in Hillsburg on Tuesday evening.

DISTRIBUTION OF GRAIN.

Seed Grain and Potatoes from the Dominion Experimental Farms.

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (about 5 lbs.), white oats (about 4 lbs.), barley (about 5 lbs.), and field peas (about 5 lbs.). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb. samples) will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free, by mail.

Applicants must give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms, and some account of their experience with such kinds of grain (or potatoes) as they have grown, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be selected.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. If both samples are asked for in the same letter only one will be sent. Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be acpeted.

As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early; but the applications will not necessarily be filled in the exact order in which they are received. Preference will always be given to the most thoughtful and explicit requests. Applications received after the end of January will probably be too late.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. If otherwise addressed delay and disappointment may occur.

Applications for potatoes from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest Branch Experimental Farm in that province.

J. H. GRISDALE,
Director, Dominion Experimental Farms.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

"WHO MADE THAT BOY AN OFFICER?"

There is an interesting story going the rounds of an incident which occurred at a West-end military tailor's establishment recently.

A number of Army officers were waiting to try on their khaki uniforms, when a slight youth walked in and somwhat timidly asked one of the assistants if he could be attended to. He was curtly told that he would have to wait his turn, while one of the waiting officers inquired, in a loud voice, "Who made that boy an officer?"

Meanwhile the youth had turned to another assistant and was heard to ask: "Do you know who has the Prince of Wales's cap in hand?"

And amid the confusion that followed the Prince of Wales—for it was no other—quietly proceeded to the fitting room.

Mrs. Scott, beloved wife of Mr. W. W. Scott, Police Magistrate for Marvborough, who had been suffering for months from heart weakness, passed away on October 15th.

Canadian Red Cross Society

The Red Cross Society is organized to collect money and goods for the relief of the sick and wounded in war.

Head Office and Receiving Warehouse, 77 King Street East, Toronto.

NEEDS OF THE SOCIETY.

1. Money—

This is the first and most urgent need of the Society. It can at any moment be converted into the most necessary supplies and can be easily sent to any place.

2. Other Supplies—

As some persons, more especially the women of the country, can give work and not money; and as some goods are better made by hand than bought, the following suggestions are offered to individuals and working parties who are desirous of helping.

Women organized for sewing should not spend money on buying the supplies which have simply to be shipped away as bought, as these can be better bought at Headquarters, but they are recommended to spend money on materials to work up into such garments as shirts, pyjamas, dressing gowns, bed jackets, night-shirts; or socks, wristlets, mitts, cholera belts and scarves; or kit bags, all of which require carefil making.

All the articles enumerated under A. B. C. and D. are needed unless notice to the contrary is sent out.

A.—GARMENTS.

In making these garments, Butterick's patterns as approved by the British Red Cross Society should be used. Sets of five patterns will be issued to any women's society applying for them to the Superintendent of Supplies, 77 King St. East, Toronto, enclosing 10 cents for mailing. These patterns are presented to the Red Cross Society by the Butterick Publishing Co., and should only be used in Red Cross work.

This must not be understood to mean that no other patterns are useful, but these are suggested to standardize the work.

The following garments are required.—

Bed Jackets (No. 129), flannel or eiderdown.

Pyjamas (No. 130), flannelette or lightweight flannel.

Night Shirts (No. 131), cotton or flannelette.

Night Shirts, surgical (No. 133), cotton or white flannelette.

Dressing Gown (No. 132), heavy flannel or eiderdown.

Day Shirts (No. 7003), lightweight flannel or flannelette (detachable collar, at least 16½ inch). This pattern requires a 2-inch box pleat in the back.

All collars should be at least 16½ inches, and should vary up to 16 inches. Mark all garments with size of collar and tie up each size in a separate pareel.

Bed Socks—

Cut two pieces of eiderdown the shape of the foot of a sock or moccasin, but considerably larger, and with four inches of leg. Sew the two pieces together down the back, along the sole, and over the top of the foot, leaving an opening in the leg at the front. Hem or face the top of the leg so as to form a casing, and in this run a tape, leaving the ends long enough to tie. When complete, the socks should look like a pair of eversboes, or large boots.

B.—KNITTED GOODS.

Cast on 100 to 150 stitches, No. 13 steel needles; knit 3 inches ribbed, knit on to No. 9 bone needles, and knit 8 inches plain; knit on the steel needles again, and rib for 3 inches. Sew up the back. Cast on and take off loosely. Fingering yarn No. 5, in natural or pale grey; soft quality.

Cast on and Cast off very loosely. Many men prefer woven belts. These can be obtained in three sizes, wholesale, for less than 30 cents each. Flannel belts are also useful.

Socks—

With heels, are best; in three sizes, 10 inch, 10½ inch, and 11 inch foot. For the British Army, these are made in heavy grey yarn of good quality (wheeling), and sizes are distinguished in the following way:—

Socks with 10 inch foot have 6 rows of RED wool in the ribbing about 1 inch from top of leg of sock.

Socks with 10½ inch, have similar stripe in bright BLUE wool.

Socks with 11 inch foot, have similar stripe in WHITE wool.

With 4 ply yarn, use No. 14 steel needles, casting on about 64-72 stitches.

The toe should be very carefully finished so that there is no "ridge" in casting off. "Darning-in" the stitches when reduced to 20 is the most satisfactory method of finishing the toe.

Socks knit of poor quality wool are almost worthless.

Scarves—

72 inches long, 9 inches wide, in grey or khaki. Loose stitch.

Sleeping or Balaclava Cap—

(A very simple pattern)—No. 9 bone needles. 4 ply yarn in grey or khaki.

Begin with 48 stitches and knit two flaps of 48 stitches each, 2 inches deep of 2 and 2 rib, 96 stitches in all. Then join the flaps by knitting on to 4 needles.

Knit 21 inches of 2 and 2 rib.

Cast off 30 stitches and leave a space 1½ inches deep; then cast on 30 stitches again and knit as before six inches before shaping the top. To shape the top knit two stitches together every alternate stitch. Knit one row plain. Repeat these two rows until only about 30 stitches are left on the needles, then decrease every other stitch each row.

WRISTLETS—

Grey or khaki. 4 ply fingering. No. 14 steel needles. (4).

Cast on about 60 stitches; rib for 9 inches. Cast off loosely. A hole for the thumb may be left if desired, so that the wristlet can be used as a mitt.

Mitts—

3 oz. of 4 ply yarn. Grey of khaki. 6 needles, No. 04.

Knit like ordinary man's glove, but cast off fingers and thumbs after knitting 2 inches, leaving tops open.

C.—HOLD-ALLS OR KIT BAGS.

Knit Bag or Hold-all—(To hang over soldier's cot in hospital).

Coarse linen or canvas, about 16 inches by 24 inches, with rings at corners to hang by. Pockets containing comb, brush, tooth-brush and paste. Towels, wash cloth, soap. Pair of pyjamas and socks, and soft slippers. Also 12 sheets of paper, envelopes in rubber band, and pencil, etc.

D.—BEDDING.

No pillows or pillow slips required.

Sheets—60 x 90. Ready laundered. Good quality not necessary.

Towels—Huckback or Turkish.

Washcloths—Assorted.

Blankets—Grey or Brown. 80 x 60.

E.—MEDICAL SUPPLIES.

Pneumonia Jackets—

Of cotton wool and cheesecloths, should only be made under direction of nurse or doctor.

Bandages—

Bandages 2 in., 2½ in., 3 in. and 4 in., to be made of good factory cotton or old sheets in good condition. Length, 5 yards, to be used as outside bandages. No other bandages should be made, as they will be bought with medical supplies.

Handkerchiefs (for the hospital)—

Should be of unhemmed cheesecloth, 18 x 18, laundered. Tie up in dozens.

Men's handkerchiefs, of ordinary size, ready laundered, are also acceptable. Tie up in dozens.

Money is urgently needed to purchase rubber goods, invalid foods, drugs and other hospital appliances.

PACKING AND SHIPPING DIRECTIONS.

1. Launder all cotton goods, also socks and belts, carefully, before sending them.

2. Tie up all articles in dozens or half-dozens, according to size and material.

3. Bed socks, socks, wristlets, mitts and gloves should be lightly sewn together in pairs, not pinned. Bandages should be fastened by safety pin.

4. Lists of contents should be placed inside and outside every parcel, and a copy also forwarded by mail to the destination of the package.

5. Almost all railways and express companies are carrying Red Cross packages free of charge, but charges should be paid at point of despatch and the receipt forwarded to Secretary, 77 King St. East, Toronto, who will make in due time, a general application for refunds.

6. To avoid expense and trouble in handling packages, it is suggested than no single package should weigh more than 150 lbs.

7. As far as possible, only one kind of article should be packed in each package; e.g., a case of sheets, a case of socks, etc., etc.

8. Small parcels can always be sent in to the Head Office, or Provincial Receiving Centres, but no large shipment of goods should be made without consulting the Head Office as to the correct destination of the goods, as shipping instructions must vary with the season.

CAN'T DOWN THE IRISH.

Here is an interesting item regarding the new Ontario Cabinet. Every member of it is Irish descent, except Mr. MacDiarmid, the new Minister of Public Works, who is of Scotch descent. Hon. W. H. Hearst, the new Premier, is Irish, a Methodist, and 50 years of age. Hon. J. J. Foy is Irish, a Roman Catholic and 6 years of age. Hon. R. A. Pyne is Irish, an Anglican and 59 years of age. Hon. W. J. Hanna is Irish, a Methodist, and 52 years of age. Hon. F. G. MacDiarmid is Scotch, a Presbyterian, and 45 years of age. Hon. R. F. Preston is Irish, an Anglican, and 54 years of age. Hon. I. B. Lucas is Irish, an Anglican, and 6 years of age. Hon. James S. Duff is Irish, a Presbyterian, and 58 years of age. It will thus be seen the Cabinet is composed of two Anglicans, two Methodists, two Presbyterians, and one Roman Catholic. There's nothing too good for the Irish.

You Get Bilious

Because Your Liver is Lazy

You get a bilious attack when your liver refuses to do its work. The bile does not flow. You become constipated. Food sours instead of digesting. You have that "bitter as gall" taste. "Fire's Out"

THEN comes the matter of insurance. You get out your policy and note the company in which you are insured. Certain questions should not arise to worry you at such a time.

You should not be worried by the question of whether you are insured in a company that dickers and delays over settlement.

You should not be worried over the question of whether the company can pay the claim.

You should not be worried by the question of whether you have had enough protection to cover your loss.

To be insured in the Hartford Fire Insurance Company eliminates the first two of these worries. By consultation with a "Hartford" agent before taking out your policy, he will tell you the proper proportion of insurance to carry, and that eliminates the third worry.

The evident thing to do before the fire, in order to eliminate worry, is to be insured in the right kind of company.

THE BANNER, NOV. 5th, 1914.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC.

Representatives of Provincial Commission Address Meeting in Shelburne.

The question of securing electric power through the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission was discussed by T. C. James, of Toronto, before a meeting of Shelburne ratepayers on Monday evening, Oct. 26th. The Free Press gives the following report of the meeting:—

A fairly representative gathering of Shelburne ratepayers met in the Carnegie library building on Monday evening last to discuss Hydro-Electric power for the village, both for light and power purposes. T. C. James, of Toronto, representing the Hydro-Electric Commission, was present, and gave substantial facts and figures why Shelburne should be partakers, along with some other 75 towns and cities, in the province. The general feeling of the ratepayers present seemed to be that this town has been paying exorbitant prices for power, and that something should be done to secure the same at a cheaper rate. Mr. James, in explanation, stated that Shelburne would receive power from Eugenia Falls at first cost. Cost of developing power at Eugenia would be $17 per h.p., and transmission, maintenance, up-keep, etc., to Shelburne would be about $22 per h.p. more, making the cost to Shelburne, at $39 per h.p. This figure, the speaker stated, was a high estimation, and would, doubtless, be reduced. In no case would the rate be increased, but in the majority of cases the rate is decreased. Eugenia Falls, he stated, was capable of developing 6,000 horse power, and at present 12 towns had made application for the power, Owen Sound having already signed a contract for so many horsepower. The speaker made it clear that the more towns involved in this co-operative movement and the more power used the cheaper it would be for every town in connection therewith.

When asked to compare the present rate paid for street lighting Mr. James did so. At present Shelburne is paying over $88 per month for street lighting alone, 52 lights, 60 candle power. For the same amount of lights, 100 candle power, the charge by the Hydro-Electric would be about $56 per month, or for the $88 at present paid they could instal, over 80 100 candle power lights on the streets. This, in the opinion of those present, was a great reduction. At present Shelburne partakers of light are paying 10c per kilowatt. This, the speaker stated, would not cost more than 7½c. per kilowatt, and probably less, under the Hydro system, with ten per cent. discount for immediate payment. Shelburne, if they decided to enter the system, would be called upon to purchase the present system in vogue, inasmuch as it has to do within the corporation limits, and keep the poles and wiring in a high state of efficiency. As regards the plant of the Pine River Light & Power Co., Mr. James stated that in all probability it would be taken over by the Commission at a reasonable figure and would be amalgamated with the power from Eugenia Falls. Mr. James explained fully the system as it is controlled by the various other towns and cities in the province but at present could not present an estimate of the value of the present lighting system, but stated that the same would be forwarded to the Council, after inspection, by the Commission. After the excellent address by Mr. James on the question, the feeling of those present was expressed and a vote taken as to whether it would be advisable to present the question to the ratepayers in January next. There was not a dissenting voice, and the question will likely be given to the people by a vote at the next municipal election.

ROBERT MANN DEAD.

Prominent Orangeville Man Receives Sudden Summons.

His Orangeville friends were shocked on Monday night by the startling news of the death of Mr. Robert Mann, formerly a prominent citizen of this town. The sad event took place quite unexpectedly at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Maguire, 47 Wortley Road, London. Mr. Mann was in his usual health until within a few moments of his death. He had partaken of supper with the other members of the family and had just returned from doing some errand in the cellar when he complained of feeling unwell and expressed his intention of lying down. While on his way to a couch he fell and expired almost instantly. The sudden end was due to heart collapse. The deceased, who was 77 years of age, was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, and came to Guelph with his parents when a lad of 12 years. After his marriage he lived in Paris, Ont., and was engaged in business in Walkerton before coming to Orangeville about 1880. After coming here Mr. Mann was agent for the Canadian Express Co. and was also local manager for the Bell Telephone Co. for a number of years. He also ran a fruit and confectionery business in the premises now occupied by M. E. Henry. An active, energetic and public spirited man he filled many public positions in which he displayed more than ordinary energy and judgment. He was librarian for the old Mechanics Institute, spent a number of years in the Town Council and was an exceedingly useful member of the Public Library and High School boards. He was connected with the High School board up to the time of his removal from Orangeville only a few months ago and took a laudable interest and pride in the welfare and progress of that institution. He was a Presbyterian, a staunch Liberal and an enthusiastic Mason, being a former Master and one of the oldest members of Harris Lodge and also a former officer of the Grand Lodge of Canada. He was also identified with the Sons of Scotland. Mr. Mann was a man of decided convictions and was never wanting in the courage to express and back up his opinions on any public question. In his home life he was a devoted husband and a kindly, affectionate father, whose first thought was always for the welfare of those nearest and dearest. His death will be keenly regretted by citizens of all creeds and classes and profound sympathy is felt for the bereaved widow and family. Mr. Mann was married to Miss Elizabeth Sinclair, of Ormstown, Que., in 1865. The union was a singularly happy one. The surviving members of the family are two sons, Alex., of Camilla, and Robert in Toronto, and four daughters, Mrs. F. Shepherd, Shelburne, Mrs. R. J. Bennett, Orangeville, Mrs. Hugh Polson, Toronto, and Mrs. J. H. Maguire, London.

The remains were brought to his old home for interment, the body reaching Orangeville on Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance at the funeral, which was held from the home of his daughter, Mrs. R. J. Bennett. The Queen's hotel, to the Forest Lawn Cemetery at 2.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The remains were interred with full Masonic honors, the members of the fraternity making an imposing turnout and marching at the head of the funeral cortege in full regalia. The High School closed for the afternoon owing to Mr. Mann's long connection with the Board and the male students marched to the cemetery in a body. Rev. W. M. Morris, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, conducted a short service at the house and also officiated at the grave. The Masonic service was read by W. Bro. Dr. Carson, W.M. of Harris Lodge, Rt. W. Bro. Col. Preston and Bros. Revs. W. M. Morris and J. R. Bell. The pallbearers, who were members of the Masonic Order, were Rt. W. Bros. R. Irvine and Col. J. A. V. Preston, W. Bro. J. C. Browne, of Toronto, and W. Bros. C. R. McKeown, W. H. Bowles and J. E. Smith. The floral tributes, which were many and beautiful, included a floral triangle from Ionic Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, a large wreath from Harris Lodge, A.F. & A.M., a spray of Richmond roses from the staff and students of Orangeville High School and sprays from Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Campbell and Miss C. G. Irvine.

John M. Smith.

The death of John M. Smith, one of Orangeville's first business men, occurred at his home, on Second St. on Monday. The deceased, who was 83 years and 4 months of age, had been in failing health for several months and his death was not unexpected. The end came quietly and peacefully. Mr. Smith was born in Chinguacousy township quite close to Brampton on June 4th, 1831. He was married to Isabella Hetherington, of Toronto township, 62 years ago. A few months after their marriage the young couple came to Orangeville, at that time quite a small village. For a number of years Mr. Smith operated a sawmill near the corner of Broadway and Wellington Sts. and also ran one of the two general stores which the embryo town possessed. The store was across Wellington St. from the Galbraith block, standing almost on the brow of the East Broadway hill. Having disposed of his mercantile interests, Mr. Smith engaged in farming on lot 6, con. 1, west, Mono, and afterwards embarked in the butchering business. He amassed considerable property in and about the town and was reputed to be comparatively wealthy. He retired from active business about seven years ago. The deceased was a shrewd business man, but straightforward in his dealings. He was frequently urged to accept municipal honors, but preferred the quiet of private life. He was a member of the Methodist Church, which he supported liberally. In politics he was a Conservative with pronounced independent leanings. He is survived by his widow to whom the loss of her beloved partner is a grievous blow, and a family of six sons and one daughter. The latter are Robt. I. Smith, London, Ont., John H., Mono, Major C., Toronto, Jos. C., Vegreville, Alta., Thos. H., in Caledon, and Walker and Mrs. Annie Walker, of Orangeville. The funeral was held to the Forest Lawn cemetery at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Rev. G. W. Robinson conducting the services at the house and grave. The pallbearers were Messrs. W. M. Green, D.B. Brown, John Bowers, Jno. M. Bennett, Geo. Beswick and J. M. Rowan. All of the members of the family were here for the funeral except one son, Joseph, of Vegreville.

The Late Wm. P. King.

The late Wm. P. King, whose death at his home, 492 Lansdowne Ave., Westmount, Montreal, on Monday, Oct. 26th, was noted in last week's Banner, was a native of Cooksville, Ont. He was 63 years of age, and had been a manufacturer's agent for more than a quarter of a century. He was in the undertaking business in Orangeville and also lived in Owen Sound for a number of years before moving to Toronto some 25 years ago. He was connected with the E. Turnbull Company as a manufacturer's agent for upwards of 20 years. The deceased was a member of the Baptist Church, a strong Liberal and was identified with the A. O. U. W. He is survived by two sons, W. P. jr., of Toronto, and N. A., of Montreal, and two daughters, Mrs. J. S. Cradburn and Mrs. Kinley Graham, both of Montreal, Mr. Chas. King, Zina St., Orangeville, and Mr. Walton King, Toronto, are brothers. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon from the residence of his son, W. P. King, 155 Springhurst Ave., Toronto, to Mount Pleasant cemetery. The services were conducted by Dr. J. L. Gilmore, of McMaster University.

Mrs. William Kenny.

Orangeville lost one of its early residents this week in the person of Mrs. Susannah Youmans Kenny, widow of the late William Kenny, whose death took place at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. W. Ritchie, First St. Mrs. Kenny had reached the ripe age of 88 years, but notwithstanding her advanced age the end came very unexpectedly. She was bright, active and able to go about the house until almost the moment of her death. Death was almost instantaneous, the end coming while she was seated at dinner. The late Mrs. Kenny was born near Port Dalhousie. She came to Orangeville with her first husband, the late David Youmans, about 1862. Mr. Youmans was one of this town's early merchants, building and occupying the premises now occupied by T. S. Parkinson for a number of years. The subject of our sketch was married to Mr. Kenny in 1877. Her second husband died about 15 years ago, since which time his widow has made her home with her daughter. Mrs. Ritchie is the only daughter and the late J. S. Youmans was an only son. The deceased was a fine type of woman and lived a sincere Christian life. She was a devoted member of the Methodist Church with which she had been long identified. The funeral will take place from Mrs. Ritchie's home to the Forest Lawn Cemetery at 2.30 o'clock this (Thursday) afternoon. Service will be held at the house at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Joseph Haddock.

Mrs. Haddock, widow of the late Joseph Haddock, passed away at her rooms in Mrs. Wm. Neil's, East Broadway, on Friday last. Deceased, who was 75 years of age, was born in King township, her maiden name being Mary Harris. After her marriage she lived near Relessey in Mono township until her husband, whose death on July 16th, 1911, will still be fresh in the memory of many of our readers, retired from farming and came to Orangeville about 22 years ago. She leaves two foster children, Mr. E. H. Smith, of Ottawa, and Mrs. Jos. Hilts, of Erin. The funeral was held from the residence of Mr. J. J. Laverty, York St., to St. John's Cemetery, East Mono, at 1.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Rev. G. W. Tebbs conducted the services and the pallbearers were Messrs. Geo. Allen, E. A. Robinson, Arch. Irwin, Jas. Creary, J. C. Darraugh and Jos. Holmes.

A Division Court Suit.

Watson vs. White & Maxwell was the only contested case in Tuesday's division court. John Wilson, of Erin, sued to recover on a note for $50 dated Aug. 21st, 1912, and purporting to be signed by Thos. A. White and Thos. W. Maxwell. The note was a part renewal of a note for $86 given by White in payment for some cattle which he bought at Manson Hall's sale in March, 1911. White admitted his liability, but Maxwell, while admitting that he had endorsed the original note, disputed his signature to the renewal. The Judge permitted amendment of the particulars of claim allowing plaintiff to sue on the original note. Case stands until next Court for argument. A. A. Hughson for plff.; C. R. McKeown for deft Maxwell.

DIVORCE BECOMES HABIT.

Little Good in Granting Couple Liberty.

No less than 560 divorces were granted in Kansas City at the last circuit court, and the lawyers comment on the "easy money" in working up such cases. The chief witness swears to the cruelty of the other party to the marriage, and two witnesses testify to the good character of the plaintiff and the divorce is granted. No one swears to the good character of the lawyer or the character of the witnesses.

"The number of divorce cases that were filed last summer simply is appalling," said W. W. Wright, divorce proctor.

"In the first place I have deduced facts to show that little good comes from a large percentage of divorces. The relief hoped for is not found. The women usually marries again. The second time it is for a home and seldom is the love part of it considered. It is surprising, to say the least, the number of cases that have come under my notice where the woman married the second time returns to her first husband. But this is done without formality of a divorce.

"Again, divorce becomes a habit. It is the frequent thing in a divorce case to learn that the husband has been married two or three times and the wife a similar number of times. The law which makes divorce easy is to blame.

"Every divorce case needs investigation and study. A court of domestic relations would give a chance for this. A corps of investigators such as the juvenile court has would make possible this study of every case and also the compilation of statistics that would lead to proper laws to do away almost completely with the divorce evil. Inside information is needed and it can come only through a domestic relations court."

Was Not Arrested.

A young man named Eugene Oliver Tietz, who has been in the employ of Mr. Ben Robinson, a Mono farmer, for some months past, visited Erin village recently and while there was subjected to considerable annoyance owing to the circulation of a report that he had been under arrest in Orangeville as a suspected German spy. The report was altogether erroneous as Mr. Tietz has not been under arrest at any time since the commencement of the war. Tietz is German by descent, but was born and raised in England.

WALDEMAR.

Wonder how some people would like to see their own signs hung out on Hallowe'en.

Our famous hunter, Mr. H. Evans, shot what is known as a blue hawk one day recently.

The people are wondering if the young ladies who were out Hallowe'en night would like a drink out of the town pump or a drink of separated goats milk. Probably they would like some limburger cheese with the milk as well.

Fall work such as turnip picking and plowing is nearly all done around these parts now.

Waldemar Bible Society meeting was held at the home of Mr. W. P. Tolton on Monday evening and was well attended.

W. P. Tolton & Son have made some extensive improvements in our burg.

We are wondering if G. T. intends to get his lost rib soon.

The lady proprietors of the new lithographing and printing shop turned out their first edition last week.

Mr. Wm. Worden is moving into the Hastings House on Station St.

We understand that Mr. Earl Courtney is going to move into the Carlisle house on Goose Island.

Our citizens and neighboring people are wondering when the owners of public nuisances, such as dogs and horses running the public highways, will put an end to such, as the village ours deserve the death penalty after worrying the neighbors' sheep.

The Litho and Printing Co. presented T. H. McDowell with a new sign one day last week.

MONO ROAD.

The death took place at Wellesley Hospital, Toronto, on Friday, Oct. 23rd, of Luther T. Slack, son of the late Joseph Slack, a former reeve of Albion township. The circumstances surrounding his death are particularly sad as he was taken ill shortly after his marriage on August 25th last to Miss Hanna, also a former resident of Mono Road. His illness is said to have been due to an insidious form of poisoning which gradually increased in virulence until death came to his relief. He was in his 26th year and was in the employ of the Imperial Bank of Canada in which institution he had very bright prospects. The sympathy of all is extended to the bereaved widow, his mother and other members of the family. The funeral service took place at the residence of his father-in-law, Mr. Robert Hanna, 2 Geoffrey Street, Toronto, on Sunday evening, interment taking place at Providence Cemetery in Mono Road on arrival of the morning train on Monday.

ALTON.

Hallowe'en night passed off without any serious pranks on the part of the juvenile portion of our populace. This was in a large measure due to the good offices of Mrs. W. A. Dorrington, who prevailed upon the school children to expend some of their surplus energy in an impromptu concert. The affair took place in Science Hall and was a great success. The concert was followed by a pleasant dance. The proceeds, $8.50, were donated to the Red Cross Society's fund.

Some of our boys participated in a charivari in West Caledon on Hallowe'en night. The charivari is a practice that is not viewed with general favor and is rapidly falling into disuse. On this particular occasion the couple who were thus honored "came across" with a neat donation and the boys showed their appreciation of the groom's generosity by taking an early departure.

Mr. Cecil Patterson, son of Mr. David Patterson, took unto himself a better half last week in the person of Miss Stump, of Camilla. The happy event took place on Tuesday. The Banner joins the numerous friends of the newly wedded couple in wishing them much happiness.

Raeburn-Brown

With only relatives and close friends present to witness the ceremony, a very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mrs. James Brown, of Marsville, on Wednesday, Oct. 28th, when her daughter, Belle, became the bride of Mr. William A. Raeburn, of Whitfield. Rev. R. S. Scott, of Hillsburg, was the officiating clergyman. The bride and groom were unattended. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. James Brown, looked charming in a becoming gown of white duchesse satin and allover shadow lace trimmed with large pearl and rhinestone ornaments. With this a long tulle veil was arranged as a mob cap and held with a pearl bandeau. The bride, who is a most estimable young lady, received a large number of handsome gifts indicative of the esteem and good wishes of her friends. The groom's gift was a costly necklace set with pearls. Mr. and Mrs. Raeburn left for a short trip to Barrie and other points north, the bride travelling in a navy blue tailored suit and black velvet hat. On their return they will take up their residence at Whitfield. The numerous friends of the young couple unite in wishing them an overflowing measure of happiness.

Moffitt-White.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph White, of Camilla, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon, October 28th, when their daughter, Gertrude A., was united in marriage to Mr. Ernest H. Moffitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. H. Moffitt, of Glencross. Rev. A. J. Fowlie, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, tied the nuptial knot in the presence of an assemblage of seventy-five guests. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a pretty dress of cream silk colienne trimmed with shadow lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses, lily of the valley and maiden hair fern. Miss Lottie McCabe, of Shelburne, played the wedding music. Misses Sadie McLean, of Erin, and Elizabeth Mann, of Camilla, little cousins of the bride, were flower girls and were prettily dressed in white net and carried pink and white carnations. Master Gordon Moffitt, a brother of the groom, acted as ring bearer. After receiving the congratulations of the assembled friends at the close of the marriage service, the newly wedded couple led the way to the dining room where a splendid wedding breakfast was served. The dining room was prettily done in pink and white and the tables were adorned with pink and white carnations and ferns. The marriage service took place in the drawing room beneath an arch of evergreen decorated with autumn leaves and white chrysanthemums. The hall through which the bridal party passed to the dining room was decorated with evergreens, ferns and pink and white roses. The wedding breakfast was served under the direction of Miss Maggie Ingraham, of Orangeville. The bride, who is one of the popular young ladies of the Camilla district, was the recipient of a large number of beautiful wedding gifts. The groom's gifts were:— to the bride a gold extension bracelet watch, to each of the flower girls a ring, to the organist a pearl crescent brooch and to the ring bearer a pearl tie pin. The early part of the night was happily spent in music, dancing and other amusements, the happy couple leaving afterwards for a honeymoon trip to Corbetton, Erin, Toronto and other points. The bride's travelling costume was blue serge with dainty white hat and duchesse plume. After their return about the middle of November, Mr. and Mrs. Moffitt will take up their residence near Glencross. A host of friends unite in tendering their congratulations and wishing the young couple a full measure of the joys and good things of life.

Among the friends present from a distance were Mrs. Duncan and Miss Sadie McLean, of Erin, Misses Corlienne and Henrietta Forsythe, of Alton, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Oldfield and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wilson, of Corbetton.

Declaring that if the offence had been committed in the Southern States he would have been lynched, Chancellor Boyd at the Haileybury Assizes sentenced Henry Price, a negro found guilty of a criminal assault, to twenty years in the Kingston Penitentiary.

A NOTE IN SCHOOL.

Did You Ever, on the Sly, Either Slip One or Receive One?

Did you ever get a note in school?—from a boy?—from a big boy? I suppose there are other experiences in life that are comparable to this, but certainly there is nothing else at that time which combines the same elements—dramatic, embarrassing, gratifying, triumphant, delicious, queer. Not that there was anything in such a note—the outside, as the missive first came to view, was much more thrilling than the contents.

But the very sight of it—pencilled on rough bluish scratch paper, and ragged edged and rumpled—as it was flipped across an intervening space or offered slyly behind a geography or dropped on the desk as the writer went up to the A spelling class, gave a sensation not to be duplicated in any later years.

The contents, I regret to say, were insignificant, negligible. It is to be hoped that the big boy learned more about the art in time. But the mere fact of getting such a note, of having it written to yourself, of forecasting the contents, of having the other girls see you get it, all that in addition to the exciting fear that the teacher might see—once she made a girl read a note out loud!—filled the moment with peculiar emotion.—Margaret Lynn in Atlantic Monthly.

A FAMOUS REPLY.

The Cynical Comment Made by Sweden's Greatest Chancellor.

The career of Axel Oxenstjerna is a proud chapter in the history of Sweden. In 1611 Oxenstjerna became the chancellor of the Swedish empire, under Gustavus Adolphus, and much of the glory that befell the reign of that remarkable monarch was due to "the masterly diplomatic ability, great courage, resource and moderation" of his prime minister.

For in the days of Oxenstjerna Sweden was one of the "powers" of Europe, and the Swedish dominion for a time extended over Prussian territory. During the entire period of the Thirty Years' war in Europe, Sweden, through the instrumentality of her "mighty man in peace," maintained an enviable place in the council of nations.

And when in 1648 negotiations for a general continental agreement began at Osnabruck the Swedish chancellor appointed his own son, Johan, as the Swedish representative. The son expressed his distrust of his ability to properly serve his country in so responsible a capacity. To this natural diffidence of youth the father made his famous reply:

"Dost thou not know, my son, with how little wisdom the world is governed?"

Jefferson and the Lawyers.

In the "Autobiography of Jefferson" is this passage:

"I served with General Washington in the legislature of Virginia before the Revolution," wrote Jefferson, "and during it with Dr. Franklin in congress. I never heard either of them speak ten minutes at a time, nor to any but the main point which was to decide the question. They laid their shoulders to the great points, knowing that the little ones would follow of themselves. If the present congress errs in too much talking, how can it be otherwise in a body to which the people send 150 lawyers, whose trade it is to question everything, yield nothing, talk by the hour? That 150 lawyers should do business together ought not to be expected."

Language of Music.

The members of a church choir not a hundred miles from Glasgow Cross are responsible for the following: "Allegro moderato—a famous Italian composer who wrote a large number of pieces; poco crescendo—a little swell; loco—at express speed (derived from locomotive); staccato—stick to the notes; presto—turn over; interval—a short pause for refreshments; con due pedale—with cold feet!" Not so long ago, adds the Glasgow News, we heard a young lady in raptures over what she called Chopin's "Because," and it took us some time to discover that she meant Chopin's "Berceuse."

A Great Invention.

Mr. Edison is apt to be rather crusty with visitors to his workrooms when they ask too many questions.

One day a rather talkative journalist pointed at a model. "What's that?" he asked.

Mr. Edison, who was getting very weary of the man's endless questions, replied blandly: "That, my dear sir, is a cradle that rocks by sound. You put the baby in and the louder it howls the faster the cradle rocks!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Painfully Particular.

"If you refuse me this time," he said, "I shall never ask you to be my wife again."

"Oh, please," replied the girl from Boston, "try to use better English. I never have been your wife. Why should you ask me to be your wife again?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Narrow Escape.

"Don't you regret your youth?"

"Sometimes," replied Mr. Growcher. "And then again I'm kind o' glad to get away from the period of my existence when my supreme ambition was to be a good banjo player."—Washington Star.

Stopped There.

"Did you have your salary raised last year?"

"No, but my hopes were raised several times."—Boston Transcript.

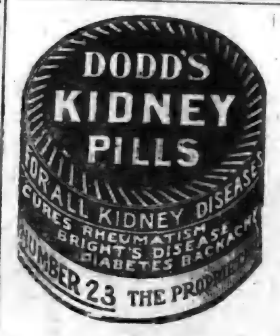
Sarah and Florence Lennox, of Mountain Station, were convicted before Sir Glenholme Falconbridge at the Cornwall Assizes on a charge of deserting a child under two years of age. Sentence was deferred.

Originally charged with murder, but found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of Joseph Knowles, Joseph Labrie, of Haileybury, was sentenced to two years in prison by Chancellor Boyd.



Three of the four Port Weller foreigners on whose mercantile premises a large quantity of liquor was found were fined $100 by Magistrate Campbell, of St. Catharines, yesterday. The fourth will appear to-day.

Following the sensational alleged graft exposure in which a number of Detroit aldermen were arrested Thos. E. Glinnan, the only one to come to trial, was acquitted. The charges against the others will likely be dropped.

Harry Dean, of Renfrew, who already has three brothers under arms, received a letter from his mother in England saying that she would be ashamed of him if he did not enlist. Dean, with a score of other Renfrew young men, has enlisted.

A letter received by Mrs. Fish, Hamilton, says that an airship sailed over Manchester and dropped a bomb. German spies were arrested with plans of the docks in their possession and sentenced to 14 days in jail.

AIR SUPPLY FOR SLEEPING ROOMS.

Room overcrowding is a very different thing from land overcrowding; but here, too, there are difficulties in the way of establishing arbitrary standards. What constitutes room overcrowding? The only standard of a minimum amount of cubic air space. In most cities this standard has been 400 cubic feet of air for each adult, and 200 cubic feet of air for each child under twelve years of age occupying a room. Such a standard is valueless. To illustrate: A bed-room seven feet wide, ten feet long and nine feet high contains 630 cubic feet of air. Let us assume that it is well lighted and ventilated, by a large window opening directly on a broad street, and that the room communicates with other rooms with sufficient windows and thorough ventilation. No better bedroom could be devised from the point of view of health and sanitation, and yet, under such a requirement of law a man and his wife, or two boys fourteen years of age, could not legally sleep in this room because there would not be 400 cubic feet of air for each occupant.

If 400 cubic feet of air is not the proper minimum, what is the proper minimum? Shall it be 600 or 800 or 200 cubic feet? Study of the problems involved leads to the conclusion that not only the question of cubic air space must be considered, but that far more importance must be attached to the kind of air supplied to the room and the frequency of its renewal. It would be much better to permit a family to sleep in a room containing but 400 cubic feet of air of excellent quality and frequently renewed, than to permit them to sleep in a room, containing four times the air space, where the renewal was not so frequent nor the source of original supply so satisfactory. It makes a very great difference whether the air comes from a broad street or from a narrow alley, from a large backyard or from a narrow airshaft. These considerations are generally lost sight of in the discussion of this problem. This question, like that of land overcrowding, cannot be solved by establishing any arbitrary standard.—Lawrence Veiller.

REED'S WITTY THRUST.

It Silenced For the Time the "Great Objector," Holman.

There are many stories of the caustic wit of Thomas B. Reed, the famous speaker of the house of representatives. One of his most amusing thrusts was delivered at William S. Holman, a member of congress from Indiana. It was perhaps the keenest witticism ever uttered in debate on the floor of the house.

Holman was a constant objector to the expenditure of money by congress and had honestly earned the title of "Watchdog of the Treasury." One day, when the committee was perfunctorily putting through a number of bills for the erection of government buildings in various cities, Holman was constantly on his feet, objecting to their consideration. But when Indiana was reached and the committee began to propose appropriations for buildings in the towns of that state Holman's objections came with much less spirit and finally ceased altogether. When at length a bill was offered that carried a generous appropriation for a building in Holman's own town, he rose and expressed hearty approval. Hardly had he taken his seat when Mr. Reed was on his feet. "Mr. Speaker!" he shouted; and then, in gently sentimental tones, he recited Byron's familiar lines:

'Tis sweet to hear the watchdog's honest bark
Bay deep mouthed welcome as we draw near home!

And the "great objector" forgot to object any more that day!—Youth's Companion.

THEY PLAYED MARBLES.

One Street Game In Which Lincoln Took a Hand.

An elderly gentleman now residing in Washington tells this story about Abraham Lincoln:

"I was about ten years of age and given violently to the game of marbles. One cold March day my companions and I were playing on the sidewalk before my father's shop when I slipped on a piece of ice and fell, cutting my chin. The other boys seized as many of my marbles as they could and made off. Wild with anger, I started after them, calling them names and threatening to annihilate them, and so on. Suddenly a hand on my collar stopped me, and a deep voice said:

"'We've got enough ill feeling going on in this country these days without you boys catching it.'

"A big man swung me around and wiped my wounded chin and then went on:

"'I saw what they did, son. Have you any agates left? Good! I'll put up three chiny alleys, and we'll see who'll win.'

"He drew from his pocket three marbles.

"'I got them from my boy Tad,' he explained, and then I knew who he was.

"There on the street I played marbles with the president for five minutes, and he let me win. Here are the marbles—a precious possession!"—Exchange.

Fed the Brute.

Sir Charles Tupper in his book, "Recollections of Sixty Years," recalls an experience of his daughter in Canada during the Riel rebellion in the northwest. She was in the region of trouble, and on a day when she happened to be alone in her home "in walked a strapping Indian, all war paint and feathers. She thought the best thing she could do was to feed him. She cooked everything in the house—potatoes, meat and bread. When all was consumed—and these Indians will eat at a meal enough to last for three weeks—he had grown to a very large size. As he could not speak a word of English or French, he evinced his gratitude by patting his protuberant stomach, with a guttural "Ha, ha, ha," and left.

Plague of the Black Death.

That terrible plague the black death, originating somewhere in the east, passed by way of Armenia into Asia and thence to Egypt and north Africa. Reaching Sicily in 1346, it spread over Italy, France and nearly all of the countries of Europe, including the British Isles. The mortality was appalling, some 25,000,000 of people dying from the dread epidemic. The nature of the great pestilence has been a matter of much controversy, but it is generally conceded that it was closely related to what is known today as the "bubonic plague."—New York American.

And he got away with it that time.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

OWES HER LIFE TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Cured Both Stomach Trouble and Headaches

PALMERSTON, ONT., June 20th, 1913.

"I really believe that I owe my life to "Fruit-a-tives". Ever since childhood, I have been under the care of physicians and have been paying doctor's bills. I was so sick and worn out that people on the street often asked me if I thought I could get along without help. The same old Stomach Trouble and distressing Headaches nearly drove me wild. Sometime ago, I got a box of "Fruit-a-tives" and the first box did me good. My husband was delighted and advised a continuation of their use.

Today, I am feeling fine, and a physician meeting me on the street, noticed my improved appearance and asked the reason. I replied, "I am taking Fruit-a-tives". He said, "Well, if Fruit-a-tives are making you look so well, go ahead and take them. They are doing more for you than I can".

MRS. H. S. WILLIAMS.

JAPANESE MONEY.

Yens, Sens and Rins Complete Their Simple Currency System.

The Japanese currency system is very simple and is based upon a gold basis. The unit of value is a yen. This equals 50 cents in gold, according to our United States values. One yen is divided into 100 sen. Each of the latter is worth just one half of an American cent. The Japanese sen is the equivalent of 10 rin, and the smallest Japanese coin consists of a five rin piece, the equivalent of one-quarter of an American penny.

The currency media is composed of paper notes, silver, nickel and copper. The Japs have their paper money in one, five, ten yen notes and upward. The silver money comes in ten, twenty and fifty sen pieces. The smallest nickel piece is valued at 5 sen. Then come the copper coins. These are valued at 2 sen, 1 sen and 5 rin.

This is the substance of the entire currency system in Japan when you step into a money changer's to procure the coin of the realm. But you do not always obtain the equivalent in values for your American currency. The various seaport towns swarm with Chinese money changers. These Mongolian financiers deduct a rebate of from 1 to 2 per cent for every $10 in American money exchanged. When you travel in the interior localities of Japan, away from the beaten track of tourist traffic, you will be compelled to pay even a higher rate of exchange, as the Jap merchants refuse to accept foreign coin in exchange for their wares unless they are easily accessible to some nearby seaport town.

The Jap nickel, or five sen piece, will buy five or six times as much for a Jap in his own country as the same value of currency would buy for an American home in the United States. The simplicity of the native currency system goes hand in hand with the frugality and the wise economies of these quaint, active little people.—Philadelphia North American.

HER MISSING NECKLACE.

Saint-Hilaire Finally Awoke and Restored It to His Wife.

The innocent ignorance of much engrossed men of science as to ordinary matters is illustrated by an amusing anecdote of Geoffroy Saint-Hilaire the younger. Saint-Hilaire was accustomed to bury himself in his laboratory, where he did not allow the affairs of his household to disturb him, and Mme. Saint-Hilaire was careful to guard him against all worry of domestic matters.

In his laboratory he was accustomed, being a naturalist, to have various strange animals, after the fashion of Rossetti. Of these a monkey was his favorite. His wife possessed a necklace of diamonds, of which she was naturally proud. One day this necklace was missing. Madame was in despair and had the house searched, with the exception of Saint-Hilaire's room. She knew his dislike of being disturbed, and moreover she had not entered this room for a long time, so that she could not have left the diamonds there.

A few days later at one of Mme. Saint-Hilaire's "at homes" her husband appeared, and a woman among the guests who supposed he knew of the disappearance of the diamonds asked him if they had been found.

"What diamonds?" he asked. He called his wife and questioned her. "What sort of a looking thing was this that you have lost?"

She described the diamond necklace.

"Ah," said the zoologist, "for several days my baboon has had in his possession, generally worn about his neck, a similar thing to that described."

"But why did you not tell me?" his wife exclaimed in indignation.

"Why," answered Saint-Hilaire. "I supposed that it belonged to him. He seemed to be very fond and proud of it."

Law of Falling Bodies.

A falling body having fallen during one exact second falls 16.1 feet. At the precise end of the second it has acquired a specific velocity of 32.2 feet per second. This carries it 32.2 feet during the second second, and this added to 16.1 feet equals 48.3 feet distance fallen during the two seconds. And at the exact end of the second second the acquired velocity is 64.4 feet per second, and so on.—New York American.

What Any Woman Knew.

"My dear," remarked Jones, who had just finished reading a book on "The Wonders of Nature," "this really is a remarkable work. Nature is marvelous! Stupendous! When I read a work like this it makes me think how puerile, how insignificant is man."

"Huh!" sniffed his better half. "A woman doesn't have to wade through 400 pages to find out the same thing."—Judge.

Their Brand of Pride.

To a millionaire who had started life as a poor apprentice a friend said, "Your women folk must be proud of you, since you are self made."

"Yes," he answered grimly; "yes, they're about as proud of me as they'd be of a homemade dress."

Beyond the Horizon.

Owens (nonchalantly)—Oh, that account? I had completely lost sight of it. Tailor (dryly)—Shouldn't wonder, sir. It's been running for a long time.—Boston Transcript.

Statistics.

Professor—Now, have I proved anything to you by these statistics? Student—Yes, professor, you have proved to me that statistics are a bore.—Yonkers Statesman.

SEVERE PAINS AROUND THE HEART

Are Nearly Always Caused by Stomach Troubles.

Don't let a pain in the region of the heart frighten you into thinking you have heart disease. Just as a pain in the back seldom indicates kidney trouble, so pain near the heart is scarcely ever present in organic heart disease. The pain is nearly always caused by stomach trouble for the stomach and heart are connected by many nerves, and gas on the stomach causes pressure on the heart.

The alarming pains will disappear if you tone up the stomach, eat the right things and don't worry. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best stomach tonic. One or two Pills after each meal soon produces a healthy appetite, the food does not distress you, you are no longer troubled with gas, sour risings in the throat, and those misleading pains around the heart. Strength and energy return, and the rich, red blood, carries renewed vitality to every part of the body. Mrs. Henry Connolly, Brookvale, P. E.I., says: "For a number of years I was a great sufferer from indigestion which, despite all the treatment I took, was gradually growing worse. I would sometimes feel as though I was smothering, and when the trouble came on I would suffer from violent palpitation and pains around the heart which greatly alarmed me. I was under doctor's treatment for a long time, but with no benefit. A friend suggested Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to try them. In about a month I felt much better and by the time I had taken another four boxes I was in the best of health and able to eat all kinds of nourishing food. It is now several years since I was cured and I have never felt a symptom of indigestion since. I take every opportunity of recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to friends who are ailing."

If your dealer does not keep these Pills you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BUTTER WRAPPING.

Official Circular Act Regarding the Dairy Industry.

During the past few weeks, produce firms in Toronto, doubtless with the best intentions but without authority from this Department, have been sending the following notice to their correspondents in the country:—

"Important Butter Notice.

"All butter in packages or wrapped in parchment paper must in future be labelled "Dairy" or "Creamery."

"This means no butter can be bought or sold in plain wrappers or in unbranded packages. No butter can be sold or bought under brand of "Separator." The word "Dairy" or "Creamery" must appear on wrapper or package.

"Failing to comply with the above Government Act you are liable to a fine of $10.00 to $30.00 for each offence.

"For further information write the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, and ask for copy of the Dairy Industry Act, 1914, Bulletin No. 42."

The information in the above notice is not quite correct. The regulations made under the authority of the Dairy Industry Act, 1914, came into force on September 1st, and provide that when dairy butter is put up in blocks, squares or prints and wrapped in parchment paper, the paper shall be printed or branded with words "Dairy Butter," in letters at least one quarter inch square, in addition to any other wording that the buttermaker may desire to use. There is nothing in the law or Regulations to prevent the use of the word "Separator" in addition to the words "Dairy Butter," but no such grade of butter as "Separator" is recognized by the law. The Butter Act of 1903 defined only two grades, namely "Dairy" and "Creamery." The Dairy Industry Act of 1914 defines a third grade as "Whey" butter. Butter makers may use any form of printing or branding including the words "Dairy Butter" which is not inconsistent with the definition of dairy butter. Butter in rolls, crocks or tubs is not required to be branded. Dairy butter in 56 pound boxes must also be branded "Dairy Butter."

The underlying principle of this legislation is protection to the consumer, the honest buttermaker and the honest trader. The whole object of the law is to prevent misrepresentation. No reasonable practice is interferred with.

I would suggest the following forms as suitable for the printing of dairy wrappers:

NURSED A HOT TEMPER.

Something Had to Give Way When William Morris Broke Loose.

Though explosive tempers may not be admirable and temperamental explosions are not always unpleasantly expended, they are always preferable to soreness, sullenness, brooding resentment or cold anger. Arthur Compton Rickett in his study of William Morris—that "jolly vivid man," as he terms him—relates several new instances of Morris' violent thunderclaps of temper and swiftly ensuing sunniness and sweetness.

Once while he was painting he was called from the room, and presently his startled model heard him furiously anathematizing some one outside whom he dismissed or ejected and then returned a moment later still boiling with wrath. He could not resume his work, but made wild dashes about the room, growling and muttering, until at last in a culminating access of rage he took a flying kick at the door and with a vast crashing and splintering smashed in a panel. It was too much for his model's nerves, and he started to flee, but at that moment Morris, with his ire entirely gone now that the explosion was over, turned with a beaming smile, and assured him genially:

"It's all right, it's all right, but something had to give way!"

FLAVOR OF FOOD.

It Is an Important Factor In Digestion and Good Health.

If it were not for flavor we should not digest our food properly. Epicureanism in eating is the handmaid of good health. Flavor has been called the soul of food. The viands that are most agreeable to our sense of taste, those we enjoy most, are those we are most likely to digest well and from which we are most likely to derive the maximum of nourishment.

A book was devoted to this subject by Henry T. Finck of New York. He called it "Food and Flavor." In a review of it the Scientific American says: "The psychic factor of desire must precede ingestion or results will be unpropitious. To each cent spent for nutriment we add five more for flavor. Flavor, in short, has an appetizing value, a health value, a commercial value.

"The evolution of a discriminating appetite and the education of the cook must go hand in hand. But your glutton is never an epicure. Rational mastication must accompany the highest enjoyment of food, and in this enjoyment lie perfect assimilation and health. It is flavor that stimulates the flow of the digestive juices; it is the digestive juices that prepare the food for the extraction of nutriment."

The Professor Was Wrong.

Several decades ago a learned professor delivered a course of lectures, in one of which he proved to his own satisfaction that the Atlantic ocean could never be crossed by steam. Steam power had been discovered and applied on land, but he was confident it could never be applied to the ocean. Under the peculiar conditions of the heaving tides, the danger of storms, the rolling of the tide, and so forth you could never apply steam to navigation across the Atlantic. The book in which that lecture was published was on the first steamer that crossed the Atlantic. The captain took it along as a sort of curiosity. That book did not have a very large sale, but there has been quite a run of steamers ever since, and the professor ceased to argue that steam could not be utilized on the ocean.—Christina Herald.

Salting One's Smoke.

The strangest way of taking his salt was probably Dr. Parr's. Telford records that he used to fill his pipe half with the finest tobacco and half with salt. After that it is not very surprising to learn that he smoked "with a philosophical calmness." On one occasion when the two met Charles Lamb's furious smoking of the strongest tobacco filled Dr. Parr with astonishment. Gently laying down his pipe, he inquired how Lamb had arrived at his power of smoking at such a rate. "I toiled after it, sir, as some men toil after virtue," was Lamb's reply.—London Graphic.

Strychnine.

Strychnine is one of the most powerful vegetable poisons known, but it has very odd effects. Up to about one thirty-second of a grain it is often used in medicine as a stimulant. Very little more is required to bring on that peculiar state known as "tetanus," in which the muscles lock themselves up into such hard masses that they are as rigid as bone. An overdose, however, has been known in at least one instance to cure itself.—Exchange.

How He Felt.

"You act as though you thought yourself superior to the government."

"Well," replied the genial egotist, "I do feel slightly superior. As a taxpayer when I owe the government anything I pay. When the government owes me anything it does as it likes about the matter."—Washington Star.

Plenty of Hopeless Ones.

At the age of twenty-five a man can be forgiven for thinking he knows it all, but if he hasn't changed his mind at forty there is no hope for him.—Toledo Blade.

Defectives.

"Here's a story about a man with a cork leg, a cork arm, a rubber ear, a glass eye and a wig."

"He must be one of those defectives there's so much agitation about."—Buffalo Express.

THE HEATING OF OUR HOUSES.

No one will question for a moment the bad effects on health of improper ventilation. We emphasize the beneficial effects of open-air treatment of tuberculosis and pneumonia, forgetting that the same fresh air treatment, if as ridigly carried out, would prevent a large proportion of cases of both of these diseases.

In the heating of our homes, the three cardinal points are: proper tempesature; proper humidity or moisture; and a current of air—in short, the securing of proper climatic conditions.

The normal out-door air contains from 65 per cent. to 75 per cent. of moisture. Pass this through a hot-air furnace, and by the time it reaches our living or sleeping rooms it will not contain more than 40 to 50 per cent. of moisture. The same is true in houses heated by hot water where no provision is made for supplying moisture. The result is that this dried-out air craves moisture, and will take it up from all surrounding bodies—from our skin, the mucous membrane of our mouths, noses and throats; and is in a large measure responsible for the dry, hacking laryngeal coughs so prevalent in winter. Furthermore, from an economic standpoint, this method of heating without moisture is very extravagant, for very dry air requires a higher temperature to produce the same sensations of warmth and comfort than does an atmosphere with a proper percentage of moisture.

To overcome this dryness, small reservoirs for heating water have been attached to the furnaces; but these are rarely kept full, and even when they are, they are not at all adequate; for instance, air at 25 degrees Fahrenheit (7 degrees of frost), even if saturated with moisture, if heated to 70 degrees, would require the addition of a half pint of water to every 1,000 cubic feet to give it a humidity or moisture of 65 per cent., which is practically normal.

Some conception of the amount of moisture required, and how far the air in our homes, schools and factories falls short of it, can be had from the following description of the precautions taken by the American Bell Telephone Company in their chief building in Boston, which has a capacity of 450,000 cubic feet and a day population of 450 persons.

The fresh air, which is distributed by a mechanical system, is drawn into the building at the rate of 26,000 cubic feet per minute, and has moisture added so as to contain about 50 per cent. of relative humidity. To secure this condition, 675 gallons of water, in the form of steam, are mixed with the air in ten hours, or about one and one-half barrels per hour. Certain parts of the building which has been heated with difficulty before are now made more comfortable; and in the whole building three degrees less heat is required to maintain a comfortable temperature. There has been a noticeable absence of coughs during the winter among the employees.

Various humidifiers have been suggested, of which a very efficient and simple one is the exposing of the air from a register or radiator to moisture, by having it pass through a surface of cotton wick—one end of which is submerged in a reservoir or vessel, containing water, and which is attached to the radiator. It has been demonstrated that by means of this contrivance the relative humidity of a room can be kept between 55 and 60 degrees Fahrenheit by evaporating about 4½ quarts per day; and a temperature of 65 degrees so maintained is as comfortable as one of 70 in a dry atmosphere.

A practical illustration of this is the fact that we can sit and read in comfort on our verandahs in a temperature of from 60 to 65, having a normal humidity; while the same temperature in our homes, with a dry atmosphere, would be very uncomfortable, owing to the more rapid evaporation of moisture from the surface of our bodies in the drier atmosphere.

Obviously then, whatever the method of heating may be, it is imperative that provision be made for having the air sufficiently charged with moisture.

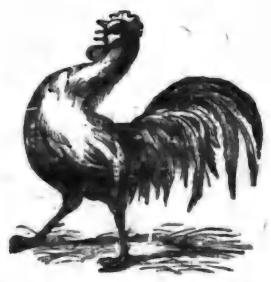
Cured of Piles and Eczema

By Using Three Boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Abram Buhr, Herbert, Sask., writes:—"I want to say that I was troubled with eczema and piles and suffered greatly from the itching, burning sensations caused by these annoying ailments. I sent for a free sample of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this did me so much good that I bought three boxes more, and after using same was cured of both eczema and piles."

This is the kind of letters we receive daily from people who have been cured of these distressing skin diseases by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. No matter how skeptical you might be, you could not read these letters for many days without concluding that Dr. Chase's Ointment is undoubtedly the most prompt relief and certain cure for these ailments.



If you have doubts send for a free sample box and be convnced. It was by use of a free sample that Mr. Buhr was convinced of the merits of this treatment. For sale at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

"An old subscriber, yes! Never missed one issue since The Banner started. Your illustrated number last December was well worth a year's subscription. The Banner's policy of giving the local news has brought it deserved success. The effort of some local sheets to give world wide news as one gets it in a city daily is pathetic. Let me congratulate your correspondents on the class of information that they send us weekly from the old familiar places. I have the honor myself to have been the first correspondent of The Banner. St. Andrew's Y. P. S.

The subject "Work" was taken up at St. Andrew's Y. P. S. on Tuesday night. An interesting Paper on the Whitby Conference was read by Miss Ruby Wilcox, of the Methodist Epworth League. Miss Wilcox touched briefly on the various Classes and Studies of the Conference and sketched out an average day's programme from the rising bell or "rude awakening" at 6.30 a.m. until bedtime. It was surprising what a lot of work was done in that time. That the Conference has its lighter side she proved by mention of the two baseball teams, the six tennis courts and croquet clubs that were organized among the delegates.

Questions were asked by the Scriptural Committee and were very clearly answered by two ladies who had kindly come prepared. A drill was given by Miss Patterson and Miss Lois Patterson and after some appointments to committees the meeting closed.

Hallowe'en Dinner.

An exceedingly successful Hallowe'en Dinner and Concert was held in the Opera House on Friday evening under the auspices of St. Mark's Women's Auxiliary. Dinner was served in the old Council Chamber, where the five large tables that the ladies had spread were filled no less than four times. While waiting their turn at dinner and during the wait before the after-programme commenced the people were comfortably seated in the auditorium where they were entertained by fine gramaphone selections. The Opera House was filled to capacity for the after entertainment. C. R. McKeown, M.P.P. presided. The programme opened with the singing of the National Anthem followed by a fine rendition of the famous marching song of the British soldiers "It's a long way to Tipperary" by Mr. Kelly. A combination mouth organ and pianoforte solo by Mrs. Christie proved a unique and acceptable number. Other numbers were a cornet solo by Mr. Russell Morrow, vocal solos by Misses Lewis and Shaw and Mr. Jessop, a piano duet by Misses Wright and Shaw and a piano solo by Miss Miriam Leighton. Addresses were given by the resident ministers and the programme was pleasingly varied by selections by St. Mark's orchestra. About the middle of the programme the audience rose and sang Rule Britannia and at the close all joined heartily in the singing of The Maple Leaf.

WON PLAYER PIANO

Miss Mabel Sanderson, of Caledon, was the Successful Candidate---Mrs. J. R. Harcus a Close Second

MILLIONS OF VOTES CAST IN THE BANNER'S GREAT VOTING CONTEST.

The Banner's Great Prize Voting Contest was brought to a successful conclusion on Saturday night. The leading candidates worked hard right up to the last minute. The keenest interest was evinced in the outcome of the Contest and despite the late hour a large crowd gathered at The Banner Office to await the announcement of the results. It was about 11.30 p.m. when the Judges finished their count and the announcement was made immediately afterwards. The lucky winner of the fine Player Piano proved to be Miss Mabel Sanderson, of Caledon, with a total of 1,658,200 votes. Mrs. J. R. Harcus, whom many people had picked as a probable winner, was a close second with a total of 1,623,200 votes. Her prize is a handsome solitaire diamond ring. Mr. J. A. McFadden, of Mono Centre, captured third prize with a grand total of 1,493,800 votes and Miss Bernice Simpson, The Maples, finished fourth with 658,200 votes. Mr. McFadden's and Miss Simpson's standing entitles them to diamond rings. The winners of the Waltham gold watches are A. L. Galbraith, Miss Bertha Nelson, Miss Jennie Hillock, Miss Chrona Lundy, Wm. Cannon and Joyce McConnell. The standing of the candidates follows :—

MISS MABEL SANDERSON, Caledon	1,658,200
MRS. J. R. HARCUS, Orangeville	1,623,200
J. A. McFADDEN, Mono Centre	1,493,800
MISS BERNICE SIMPSON, The Maples	658,200
A. L. GALBRAITH, Orangeville	595,200
MISS BERTHA NELSON, Laurel	490,400
MISS JENNIE HILLOCK, Mono Mills	482,000
MISS CHRONA LUNDY, Camilla	356,400
WM. CANNON, Caledon East	334,400
JOYCE McCONNEL, Alton	327,600
Miss Verlie Smith, Orangeville	324,000
Miss Margaret Dean, Alton	316,800
Clinton Lee, Ballycroy	306,000
Creoel Graham, Orangeville	302,000
John McGhie, Alton	300,000

In the matter of enthusiasm and the amount of new business secured the contest was the biggest event of the kind ever held in a Western Ontario town. It was a gratifying success in every particular. The Candidates were liberally rewarded for their efforts and The Banner has added several hundred new subscribers to its already large list.

Saturday was a busy day with the Candidates. As we have already stated the Contestants worked hard and nearly every person who could be reached was given an opportunity to renew or become a subscriber. The keen interest that the Contest had created was further attested by the large number of people who called at The Banner Office during the day to pay their subscriptions and have the votes they were entitled to receive placed to the credit of their favorite candidates. At night a veritable avalanche of votes poured into The Banner office, Miss Sanderson, Mrs. Harcus, Mr. McFadden, Miss Simpson, Miss Nelson, and Miss Hillock were particularly active and swelled their vote totals very considerably during the closing hours of the contest. A few minutes before ten o'clock the last batch of votes was deposited in the ballot box and promptly at ten the three Judges, Messrs. W. R. Liddy, Public School Inspector for Dufferin, W. G. Hyland, Manager of the Bank of Hamilton, and Rev. Jenkins Burkholder, B.A., of Caledon, commenced their work of reckoning up the votes. Despite the fact that all the votes up to the closing day had already been classified, counted and credited to the Candidates, it kept the judges hard at work until 11.30 o'clock to complete the summing up of the ballots. Their report, which was announced by Rev. Mr. Burkholder, from the door of The Banner office, was received with intense interest and Mr. Burkholder's remarks in announcing the names of the winners were punctuated with hearty applause for the successful candidates.

Following the announcement Mr. McAlpine, of the Canadian Circulation Company, of Toronto, which had charge of the Contest, delighted the crowd with an excellent rendering of "It's a long way to Tipperary" playing his accompaniment on the Prize Piano.

To the Candidates, one and all, The Banner wishes to publicly tender its gratitude and thanks. Without their assistance it would have been impossible to make the Contest the splendid success it has been. The winners have good reason to feel proud of the prizes they have won, especially when with the prizes they have also achieved the honor of having outrun and defeated candidates, who have themselves done well, and who, had they been pitted against contestants of less ability and energy, would have had votes enough to win prizes. In undertaking the Contest The Banner assumed a heavy responsibility but the result has justified the judgment and enterprise of the publishers. The publishers have their reward in the hundreds of new subscribers whose names have been added to its lists and in the increased prestige and advertising value which its columns will derive from its greatly widened circulation. That the hundreds of people who are now receiving The Banner into their homes for the first time will come to look for and prize its weekly visits is our sincere wish. We shall do our best to merit their continued patronage and hope that the acquaintanceship that is now being formed will widen and deepen into mutual friendship and esteem with the passing of the years.

AILING WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Doucette Tells of her Distressing Symptoms During Change of Life and How She Found Relief.

Belleville, Nova Scotia, Can.—"Three years ago I was suffering badly with what the doctors called Change of Life. I was so bad that I had to stay in bed. Some friends told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me from the first. It is the only medicine I took that did help me and I recommend it. You don't know how thankful and grateful I am. I give you permission to publish what your good medicine has done for me."—Mrs. SIMON DOUCETTE, Belleville, Yarmouth Co., Nova Scotia, Canada.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

IF I KNEW YOU AND YOU KNEW ME.

If I knew you and you knew me,
'Tis seldom we would disagree;
But never having yet clasped hands,
Both often fail to understand
That each intends to do what's right
And treat each other "honor bright"
How little to complain there'd be
If I knew you and you knew me.

Whene'er we ship you by mistake,
Or in your bill some error make,
From irritation you'd be free
If I knew you and you knew me.
Or when the checks don't come on time,
And customers send us nary a line,
We'd wait without anxiety,
If I knew you and you knew me.

Or when some goods you "fire back"
Or make a "kick" on this or that,
We'd take it in good part, you see,
If I knew you and you knew me.
With customers two thousand strong
Occasionally things go wrong—
Sometimes our fault, sometimes theirs—
Forbearance would decrease all cares;
Kind friend, how pleasant things would be
If I knew you and you knew me.

Then let no doubt thoughts abide
Of firm good faith on either side;
Confidence to each other give,
Living ourselves, let others live;
But any time you come this way,
That you will call we hope and pray;
Then face to face we each shall see
And I'll know you and you'll know me.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC.

Engineer James Addressed Dundalk Public Meeting.

Mr. James, Engineer, of the Hydro Electric Power Commission, addressed a representative gathering of Dundalk ratepayers in the town hall Tuesday evening. The speaker gave a clear and concise explanation of the plans and purposes of what he termed the greatest public ownership proposition in the world, the developing of electrical energy from the natural water powers of Ontario. A brief history was given of the establishing and growth of the scheme for the conservation of these water powers for the use of the people. Development has started at Niagara Falls and power was transmitted to Toronto in 1903-4. Other cities followed with applications for power and now about 70 municipalities are enjoying co-operative power and light. Public opinion has been growing steadily in favor of the Hydro-Electric scheme and other water powers have been developed at Ottawa, on the St. Lawrence, the Severn River and other points, each on a system of its own. The Eugenia and Saugeen River developments will be connected with the Simcoe system, generated at the Severn River. On the Eugenia system there will likely be twelve towns including Dundalk, Shelburne and Mount Forest on the south. Dundalk is favored in proximity to Eugenia and gets the low rate of $27.30 per horse power to start with. As the amount of power required on the system increases the rate drops. The Hydro Commission fixes the rates on an equitable basis for each municipality served and there being no dividends, but purely co-operative, the annual surplus goes to reduction of rates. Farmers near Dundalk may be supplied with light and power from here and possibly Proton Station and Corbetton may be similarly served.

The municipality builds its own power house and local transmission lines under regulations fixed by the Commission. The money for this purpose is arranged for on twenty year debentures of the municipality. The rates to consumers will cover the annual instalment as well as maintenance and other expenses. At the end of the twenty-year term the transmission lines and plant are the property of the municipality free from encumbrance.

The building of the intervening transmission lines is done by the Hydro Commission with money loaned to them by the Legislature, to become the property of the municipality at the end of the twenty-year period.

The plant in Dundalk would be put in first class shape and the rates to consumers would be fixed on a fair basis by engineers of the Commission with a proper system of bookkeeping and collecting. Mr. James estimated that $4000 to $5000 borrowed on debentures of the village would cover all the outlay required here. He also estimated the lighting rate at 3½ cents per kilowatt with 4 cents per 100 square feet floor space additional, probably in all 7 cents per k.w. per month to meet all contingencies.

He mentioned a number of places and the horse power rate now being paid by them. Only twenty places in the Province are on a lower basis that that offered Dundalk. Mr. James stated that it has been the policy of the Commission to base the estimates high enough to be on the safe side so that reductions in rates rather than increases may follow.

After numerous questions put to Mr. James and satisfactorily answered a resolution, moved by Mr. Nixon and seconded by Mr. Magee, was carried unanimously asking the council to submit the necessary by-laws to the vote of the ratepayers at the municipal elections in January next. —Dundalk Herald.

DESPATCHES THAT THRILL THE EMPIRE.

The most famous despatch of modern times was the one from Lord Roberts, announcing the relief of Mafeking, which sent a thrill throughout the whole Empire.

It concludes: "The flying column under the command of Colonel D. Mahon, which relieved Mafeking, marched at the rate of fifteen miles a day for fourteen consecutive days, and successfully accomplished its object, despite the determined opposition of the enemy." Simple and direct, like the man who wrote it.

Havelock's despatch concerning the relief of Lucknow is one of the nation's treasures. "The cheers of the troops echoed through the courts of the palace," he writes, "responsive to the bugle sound, and on they rushed to assured victory. The enemy could nowhere withstand them. In a few minutes the whole of the buildings were in our possession."

Of Wellington's despatches, the most interesting, and one of the longest, being that which concerns the battle of Waterloo. The first describes the action in some detail and the immensity of the result, and concludes: "Such a desperate action could not be fought and such advantages gained without great loss, and I am sorry to add that ours have been immense. The army has never upon any occasion conducted itself better. The Division of Guards set an example which was followed by all, and there is no officer or description of troops that did not behave well. I should not do justice to my own feelings, or to Marshal Blutcher and the Prussian army if I did not attribute the successful result of this arduous day to the arrival and timely assistance I received from them."

The despatches of Wellington from the Peninsula are classics of their kind, so concentrated and masterly are they, but possibly the most memorable despatch which ever reached England lies under a glass case in the British Museum.

It is the despatch announcing the Battle of Trafalgar and the death of Nelson.

It is one of the great thrilling messages of the world.

The despatch is simple and unadorned. It was written by Nelson's second in command, the noble Collingwood. "The ever-to-be-lamented death," it runs, "of Vice-Admiral Lord Viscount Nelson, who, in the late conflict with the enemy, fell in the hour of victory."

Then follows an account of the great fight, concluding with a generous note of praise for the gallant fight put up by our foe, and finishing with the words, "It pleased the Almighty Disposer of all events to grant His Majesty's arms a complete and glorious victory."

Field Marshall French has already given us despatches that have touched the nation's soul, through their strongly sympathetic tone.

When he has decisive victory to announce, no doubt he will rise to the occasion as nobly as any of the great men who have had wonderful news to impart.

BLINDERS AND CHECK-REINS.

Observers have often noticed that horses used in fire departments rarely, if ever, wear check reins and blinders on their bridles. Humane societies and lovers of horses have agitated for years that blinders be dispensed with as a useless and even injurious addition to the harness, and check reains improperly applied are often also detrimental to the horse's welfare. It is a significant fact that fire horses are generally highly educated, and among the best horses of their kind that can be found in the country. They are high strung and lifey, yet they do their work without the use of blind bridles and check reins, both of which are considered by some to be absolutely essential to the safety of the driver. It is an established fact that blinders cause more trouble than they do good. A horse is far more likely to become frightened at an object coming from behind if he has blinders on than if he has the free use of his eyes and can see in all directions, and as to the check rein, we have seen many horses with their heads drawn up until their necks appeared to be upside down, and these could not but be injured by such treatment. No horse can be in a comfortable position with his head thrown so high that he has to carry his nose almost straight out in front of him in order to relieve the draw of the check rein. Again too, he cannot work as well, and will not last as long. True, some horses are clumsy in gait and must have a loose check rein to keep them up at all, but drivers, generally, might take a lesson from the fire department, and give their horses every opportunity of vision and all the freedom of head possible in their work. There are too many silly notions, and too much so-called style creeping into the every-day use of the horse.

Chas. Fullerton, the Dundalk drayman, will remember 1914 in the streak of misfortunes which have befallen him during the past six months. In the spring he fell from a dray load of empty butter boxes on to a cement crossing, breaking both arms. He was then laid off work for a couple of months. On Monday he again broke his right arm between the elbow and wrist. In pulling a heavy commercial trunk on the high platform at the depot, the handle of the trunk broke and he fell on to the track. Much sympathy is felt for the unfortunate man in his painful accident and enforced idleness.—Dundalk Herald.

Crippled With Rheumatism

And Skeptical After Trying Many Medicines—Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Cured Him.

When the kidneys fail to purify the blood the poisons left in the system cause pain and suffering, such as backache, lumbago and rheumatism. Read how this skeptic was cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. F. W. Brown, Kingsbury, Que., writes:—"I have been completely cured of backache and lame back by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I also recommended the pills to a man who was a cripple from rheumatism. He was skeptical, as he said that he had tried nearly everything on earth. Finally he consented to try them, and to his surprise was greatly benefited in the first week, and the pains left his legs until he was so supple he could walk without pain or difficulty. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have worked wonders in this place, and we think there is no medicine like them."

DECLINE SUBSTITUTES

THE NICKEL INDUSTRY.

We are told that Canada produces about four-fifths of the nickel of the world, and that Germany has been taking three-fifths of the output. The mines in the Sudbury district of Ontario are owned by a United States syndicate, and the metal is refined in New Jersey. No doubt much Canadian nickle is being used now in warlike operations against Great Britain.

Seventy-five years ago Ontario had great pine forests. Men from the States came over and bought large limits, felled the giant pines, put up sawmills and made lumber, which was shipped across the lakes. Ontario's forests were denuded to such an extent that it was found necessary to put a stop to the reckless cutting and culling, and an export duty was put on sawlogs, and the lumber industry was given an impetus in this country.

Now, why should not our Government put an export duty on nickel and compel the refinement of the metal in this country? Had this been done ten years ago, many men would have employed here rather than in New Jersey, in turning out the finished article, and that would have been a good thing for Canada. It is said nickel can be produced for about 17 cents a pound, and the selling price is about forty cents a pound. The nickel industry is profitable.—Orange Sentinel.

ONE OF IRVING'S POSES.

His Role of Defeated Candidate in Labouchere's Borough.

An amusing episode of the Middlesex elections of 1868 was the error that the supporters of Henry Irving for their defeated candidate. The story is told by Mr. Algar Labouchere Thorold in his "Life of Henry Labouchere," as Mr. Labouchere himself narrated it:

"I was the defeated candidate for Middlesex. Those were the days of hustings and election displays, and it was the fashion for each candidate to go down to Brentford in a carriage and four to thank his supporters. On the morning of the day when I had to perform this function, Irving called upon me, and I invited him to accompany me. Down we drove. I made an inaudible speech to a noisy mob, and we re-entered our carriage to return to London.

"In a large constituency like Middlesex few know the candidates by sight. Irving felt it his duty to assume an attitude of importance. He folded his arms, pressed his hat over his brows and was every inch the baffled politician—defeated, sad, yet sternly resigned to his fate. In this character he was so impressive that the crowd came to the conclusion that he was the defeated candidate.

"So woebegone and so solemnly dignified did he look that they were overcome with emotion, and to show their sympathy they took the horses out of the carriage and dragged it back to London. When they left us I got up to thank them, but this did not dispel the illusion. 'Poor fellow,' I heard them say as they looked at Irving, 'his feelings are too much for him!' and they patted him on the back, shook hands with him and thanked him."

Had a Sixth Sense.

A medical correspondent has had brought to his notice the remarkable case of a woman possessing an extraordinary sixth sense in regard to spiders. She could, the writer records, detect the presence of a spider in any room she happened to be living in without having seen the insect or without having any reason to suppose that it was there. The discovery was accompanied by violent sickness, malaise and even debility, but all this passed away on the spider being caught and removed from the room.—London Times.

The Largest Earth Dam.

A notable engineering structure in the drainage basin of the Missouri river is the Belle Fourche dam, erected across the river of the same name in South Dakota by the government to impound water for irrigation. This dam is an earth embankment 155 feet high and one and one-fifth miles long, containing 1,600,000 cubic yards of earth fill. This is the largest earth dam in existence.—Argonaut.

WHO SHOULD HELP THE UNEMPLOYED?

As soon as the seriousness of the present world crisis gripped this country, every man with strength enough to make a noise that would be heard began to cry—"Increase production." Simultaneously with this campaign was begun an earnest effort on the part of city employers to unload the men, which they had laid off work, upon the farmer for him to winter them, and let the city man have them back again so soon as conditions began to right themselves and city business picked up. Of course, the agitator for increased production never emphasized the last phrase, but he meant it nevertheless. We recognize the need of increased production, and more care in preventing waste. Farming should be pushed to the limit during the next few years, but it does seem strange that everyone asks the farmer to hire men in the winter when he has little need for them, while manufacturing industries and business enterprises turn these men away because they have not enough work to make it pay to keep them. The farmer cannot get men during the summer when he needs them, when business enterprise is uninterrupted by any world crisis. The employers of city labor do little to help the farmer harvest his crop in the way of aiding him to get men, but, when they, for a short time, cannot see big profits ahead in keeping their men they immediately shut down or work on half time,—the men are thrown out of work, and to satisfy them and make the country believe these employers have the interest of the people and the country at heart, they start a campaign to increase production, by the farmer employing the men which they have let out for a time. They are particularly anxious that the farmer winter these men, and thus relieve, their former employers of any semblance of responsibility for their condition during the trying season. These same manufacturers and business men, by special privileges granted by governments, have, when times were good, able to make large profits largely at the expense of the man on the land. They have been able to outbid the farmer for labor, have set high prices for their products, and have been protected in every way possible. And yet when times go bad away go the men. The farmer can have them then. He can feed inexperienced men over winter, even though he has nothing for them to do. True, manufacturers and business men have given thousands to war relief funds, and willingly. For this they must be commended, but why should they not put forth some strenuous efforts to keep their men busy, and prevent suffering right here at home? Men might just as well work shorter hours and at lower wages for them as for the farmer. They would do more effective work at something they know how to do, than at farming, of which they know nothing. It is different with men who have been accustomed to farm work before coming to the city. They might do better on the land. We like the spirit of the English business man, who said, "I stand to lose $40,000 before Christmas, but that is nothing, we must keep our factories running to give our people employment and also to hold trade." Two reasons—to give work and hold trade. Here is a motto for Canadian business and manufacturing concerns. They should not expect the farmer to keep their men in hard times when they take all his men in good times, and for their good in future business they should help the men to hold and build up business after the war. The man who sticks wins. Money enough has been made in the past to carry firms over periods of interrupted trade. Some of this should be spent now. And right here let us say a word for our manufacturers. Every Canadian should make it a point in purchasing to get Canadian-made goods wherever possible. This will keep our men busy, our manufacturers operating to capacity, and do away with the unemployed problem. Buy it because it is Canadian made. Our firms are deserving of patronage. Our sympathy goes out to the worthy men thrown out of work. Farmers who can take them should do so for their sake; but nevertheless the duty of the manufacturers and big business houses is plain, keep the men of possible. Little some of them care about increased production as far as it will benefit the producer. It is as a means to make their idle employees believe they are interested in their welfare that they use the slogans, "Back to the farm," and "Increase Production." Let all good men of ability and those willing to work get back to the land. It will give them a good living, and a good home and once there they should stay. Then when the war is over and good times come again, watch the tactics to get them back to their old job. There are tricks in all trades but agriculture; watch them.—The Farmers Advocate.

Farmers Make Large Delivery at Fordwich.

The Fordwich Record says:—There was something doing at the C.P.R. freight shed in our village on Wednesday and Thursday of last week when the farmers of the eastern half of the township of Howick responded to the call of the County of Huron for a donation to the British Government in connection with the crisis through which we are now passing. Nearly two carloads of produce was laid down at the station, consisting of oats, potatoes and apples had to be barrelled, and the oats weighed, and all barrels and sacks stencilled as a gift from Huron County to the British Government, many hands were required to prepare the stuff and place it in the cars and for this work there were between twenty and thirty volunteers, several of whom were experts at barrelling produce. Thos. Aikens, Jas. A. Sanderson, Fred Gedcke, T. Bunston, J. Cattanach, Jos. McLaughlin, T. H. Gibson, W. Goggin and Squire Sotheran were all hustlers. There were many other willing hands amongst whom was Dr. Workman, who demonstrated his ability to do more than saw bones. An official representing the County, kept a record of all donors and the amount and nature of the produce donated. We are of the opinion the record might have been very justly extended to include credit to those who prepared the goods for shipment and placed them in the car as it was no small undertaking and the business man, laborer or mechanic, who gave his time, in many cases, made a donation quite equal to the man who gave the produce. The response made by the farmers of Howick to the County's call for a donation was quite spontaneous and nearly unanimous, no lines of demarcation as to nationality, creed, politics or society being in evidence. One canny Scott, who was never seen to wave a flag, or heard boasting of his loyalty, donated eleven bags of oats and twelve of potatoes—twenty three in all. The vicinities of Gorrie and Wroxeter have also contributed quite freely and if other municipalities have kept pace with Howick the County of Huron's gift will be a magnificent one. Let us hope that ere it reaches its destination the dove of peace may have spread its wings over the torn world and that the time is at hand when the nations of the earth shall recognize the brotherhood of man and the Fatherhood of God, then, and not until then, will swords be beaten into ploughshares and the commandment "Thou shall not kill" be obeyed. Below will be found the summary for Fordwich and Gorrie:

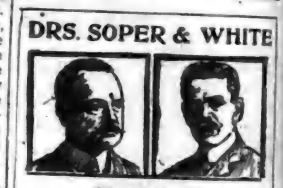
AN EXCITING EXPERIENCE.



Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gozzard, Sunnidale, had a rather exciting experience for a short time on Sunday evening that they are not likely to forget for some time. With their family of four children and another lady they were driving towards home and as they went to cross the iron bridge over the river about a mile below Glencairn, one of the horses shied, which turned the democrat so abruptly that the whole party were dumped out on the edge of the bridge. Mrs. Gozzard was carrying her baby in and before she realized what had happened it dropped out of the shawl in which it was wrapped into about four feet of water under the bridge. Fortunately the current is not so swift just there, and the child's clothing kept it afloat until it was rescued, not much the worse for its involuntary bath.—Creemore Star.

On Sunday evening 19th ult., Miss Janet McCready, daughter of the post master, of Harriston, met with an unfortunate accident. When reaching for the electric switch in the basement she came in contact with a bunch of steel skewers, one of which penetrated right through the fleshy part of her right arm.

THREE MILLION HORSES ANNUALLY.

It is now conservatively estimated that there are 1,000,000 horses engaged in the war. By far the largest portion of these horses are not included in the permanent military equipment, but are drawn from the farms and the drays in the countries now at war. All told, these countries have somewhere in the neighborhood of 40,000,000 horses, not counting those in the colonies, which would swell this by several million. If the war lasts for any length of time the loss of horses is sure to be very great, and must eventually have an affect upon prices. It is said that in the Civil War in the United States the life of a cavalry horse averaged only four months, and we are safe in saying that it will be even shorter in this war with all the modern means of destroying life, but even though a horse did last four months this would mean, if the numbers are kept up to what are now in the field, practically 3,000,000 horses a year. It will not take many months to deplete the supply, because every horse that is drawn from productive enterprise to fill his place in the army is missed. There should be, after the war is over, a steady market for good horses.

MARITIME PROVINCE WOOD USING INDUSTRIES.

"The Wood Using Industries of the Maritime Provinces" is the title of a report lately issued by the Forestry Branch of the Dominion Department of the Interior as its Bulletin No. 44. The report shows that the industries of the provinces referred to use annually over two hundred million feet, board measure, of wood. This does not include the wood used in rough building construction and for poles, railway ties, fuel and some other uses of wood. Twenty-eight kinds of wood are used, and the total quantity is valued at $3,684,000. The report is compiled from reports sent in by over six hundred manufacturers, a classified list of whom is given in the bulletin. Spruce easily leads among the kinds of wood used, which are taken up separately. An interesting part of the bulletin is that which gives the various uses of the different kinds of wood. The report may be obtained free of charge by applying to the Director of Forestry, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

Gus. Helbur was convicted of selling liquor at Owen Sound. As he had previously paid $200 for similar offence, Magistrate Creasor gave him a sentence of four months in gaol.

"Fire's Out."

THEN comes the matter of insurance. You get out your policy and note the company in which you are insured. Certain questions should not arise to worry you at such a time.

You should not be worried by the question of whether you are insured in a company that dickers and delays over settlement.

You should not be worried over the question of whether the company can pay the claim.

You should not be worried by the question of whether you have had enough protection to cover your loss.

To be insured in the Hartford Fire Insurance Company eliminates the first two of these worries. By consultation with a "Hartford" agent before taking out your policy, he will tell you the proper proportion of insurance to carry, and that eliminates the third worry.

The evident thing to do before the fire, in order to eliminate worry, is to be insured in the right kind of company.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, NOV. 12th, 1914.

The destruction of the German cruiser Emden is an exploit that has brought great glory to the Australian navy. By the destruction of this dangerous and elusive vessel the Australian fleet has rendered a signal service to the Empire. It is also one of the many evidences of the real value of the assistance which her self-governing Colonies are giving to the motherland in these days of storm and stress.

Englishmen are good sports. The tributes that are so ungrudgingly paid to the skill and ability of the captain of the Emden, coupled with the freely expressed hope that his life has been saved are indicative of the magnanimous spirit of the British people. The Emden was a dangerous enemy and every energy of the British Admiralty was bent toward her destruction, but this did not prevent Britishers from admiring the skill and daring of her commander.

Voluntary enlistment may be a comparatively slow method of securing soldiers, but it is infinitely preferable to conscription. It may not produce the number of soldiers obtainable under conscription, but any failing in this respect is amply compensated by the superior spirit, enthusiasm and initiative of the men who offer their services. It stands to reason that the man who enlists of his own volition is certain to make the best kind of soldier. He has the fighting qualities, otherwise a military career would not appeal to him.

The Grain Growers' Guide criticises the loan companies for charging the western farmers eight per cent. interest on loans secured by mortgages on their farms. The companies contend that this is not an unfair rate considering the cost of securing the loans and the serious risk of losses through crop failure. Putting this aspect of the matter aside for the moment, it will be generally admitted that the farmer must have capital if he is going to operate his farm properly and increase the productive capacity of his land. We read much these days about the importance of increasing the amount produced on Canadian farms. This cannot be done unless the farmer has the money to provide live stock, implements, buildings and other essential equipment. In many cases he must borrow money for these purposes and if the borrowing is to be profitable he must be able to borrow at a reasonable interest charge. The Canadian Manufacturers Association has been busying itself with plans for increasing the agricultural production of the country. If the Association wants to help along this line it can do effective service by devising some means whereby the farmers—particularly those in Western Canada—can borrow money on mortgage security at six per cent. An eight per cent. rate may not be exorbitant, but it is a heavy burden upon the man who is compelled to borrow.

Pastor Russell Defended

Editor The Banner :

Dear Sir:—In answer to an article in The Banner of October 22nd criticising Pastor Russell, I may say I was surprised that the Rev. J. J. Ross speaks evil of Pastor Russell, when the Bible says "Speak evil of no man," (Titus 3:2).

The Rev. Mr. Ross refers to Pastor Russell's teachings as "blasphemous." To our mind Pastor Russell's teachings are in harmony with the Bible, and we invite the public in general and especially all Christian people to read Russell's books and see for themselves if they are not in harmony with the Bible.

Does it not seem strange that Christian ministers persecute Pastor Russell? Do they not know that if he is doing the Lord's work, they cannot overthrow it, but if it is of men it will come to nought. (Acts 5 : 38-39). Do they not also know that "All who will live godly in Christ Jesus will suffer persecution" (2 Tim. 3 : 12. 2 : 12. John 15 : 20. Acts 7 : 52. Rom. 8 : 17).

Let them remember that Jesus and the apostles were persecuted by the religious teachers of their day, and let them also ask themselves the question who is persecuting Pastor Russell?

Yours Faithfully,
R. J. FALCONER.
R. R. 3, Orangeville.

(Mr. Falconer appears to take a one-sided view of the matter, when he speaks of persecuting 'Pastor' Russell. Mr. Russell invited the criticism of his doctrines and life when he brought suit for libel against Rev. Mr. Ross. The fact that his suit was unsuccessful is an effective answer to Mr. Falconer's letter. It is idle to quote Bible texts and talk about "speaking evil" and persecution in the face of Russell's admissions and his wife's evidence at the magistrate's trial in Hamilton.—Ed.)

One of them was written from Plymouth, where the Contingent landed, and the other from the training camp at Salisbury Plains. Our readers will find the following extracts well worth perusing :—

Plymouth, Eng., October, 1914.

On Tuesday, Oct. 13th, the transports with the Canadian Contingent passed the famous Eddystone lighthouse at the entrance to Plymouth harbour and a short time afterwards our boat anchored for the night.

Plymouth Harbor is a port of call for many great lines of steamships. Unfortunately a great rock, outside the harbor, lies in the course and interferes with the safe sailing for vessels calling at the port. In 1696 a lighthouse 60 feet high was built on this rock, but the waves in bad storms dashed completely over the structure until it was doubled in height. In 1703, a violent storm swept away the lighthouse. A wooden lighthouse was built in 1709, but was burned in 1755. In 1759 Smeaton, after two years' work, completed a lighthouse of 94 feet built of stone. This would have sufficed to withstand the fury of the elements, had not the decay of the foundation rock made it necessary to tear it down. A commemorative building was, however, erected in Plymouth Harbor and is known as Smeaton lighthouse. In 1822 the present famous Eddystone lighthouse was erected. It consists of 2121 stones, all of which were prepared on land and brought to the rock by steamboat. The light is 133 feet high and can be seen for 174 miles. The cost was £78,000.

Thursday morning a Government tug towed us past the breakwater, which is 1000 yards in length and cost $1,500,000. The day was beautiful and the green hills and hedges of dear old England looked good indeed.

Our arrival in England was kept a close secret, but the news soon spread that the Canadians had come and what a rousing reception we received. The boats crowded with people and the crowds on shore cheered lustily and continued to cheer throughout the day as one by one the great ocean liners steamed into the harbor. The most enthusiastic cheers came from the middies on the training ships in the harbor. Hundreds of them swarmed out into the rigging of their ships and cheered for the Canadians as only boys can cheer. Their training ships are known as the "wooden walls of old England," and are of the Nelson type of battleships.

The embarkation took considerable time and most of the vessels remained at anchor for days before docking. Daily excursion boats from the Great Western Railway visited the troopships, bringing England's welcome to the Canadians.

The navy of Old England had a great deal of interest for the Canadians. We had the opportunity of close views of battleships, cruisers, torpedo boats and submarines. Occasionally a cruiser would sail into her dock looking considerably worse of wear. We surmised that she had either experienced rough sea work or else encountered a few German shells.

The dockyards, which a few of us had the good fortune to see, cover seventy acres and give employment to 3000 men. The number of employees will be doubled shortly. The largest dock measures 2550 by 2000 feet. The naval arsenal is said to be the most complete in the world. Cruisers are constantly being built here and the sight of many now in the making and others docked for repairs is wonderful.

Shore leave was granted some of us and it was mighty good to walk on land again after nearly four weeks on board ship. An incident of the Canadians' first reception on land was the requests of youngsters for "coppers" and souvenirs. Everywhere we received splendid welcomes and markedly enthusiastic greetings.

The town of Plymouth has about 150,000 people and is governed by a Mayor and 48 councillors. It derives its name from the River Plym at the mouth of which the town is built. Our ride on the English tram for two pennies was the first land adventure. Everyone in the windows and on the streets had glad smiles for us. The streets were thronged with citizens and soldiers, volunteers and territorials who are training at the camps close to the town. Everyone respects the khaki. The Hoe Park and Promenade is just about the finest site in west, or possibly in the whole of England. The glorious Sound lies below us, but the Hoe itself rising in natural terraces from the water's edge is crowned with a broad green park intersected by a wide promenade, studded with memorials that quicken the pulse and stiffen the muscles of every true-born Englishman. The Promenade is half a mile in length, running from the West Hoe quarries to the Citadel. On the sward close to the path stand two memorials that perpetuate the memory of one of the most glorious periods in English history. They are the statue of Sir Francis Drake and the Amada memorial. The Citadel, which is specially striking, is used as a barracks, but is open to the public. The gate bears the date 1670. I don't suppose the citizens of Plymouth will ever witness such a spectacle again as that view of the Sound from the terrace with a score and a half great ocean liners at anchor each crowded with sturdy Canadian soldiery awaiting to land.

There are hundreds of places of interest here, but our limited shore leave prevented us from seeing everything. An automobile ride through the town was very interesting and took us along quaint old streets bordered with ivy-colored buildings and hedgerows. Reluctantly we went aboard ship in the early evening to await orders for disembarkation and entraining for Salisbury Plains.

HARRY.

4th Battalion, 1st Brigade,
Canadian Contingent,
Bustard Camp,
Salisbury Plains,
England.
October 25th, 1914.

As the address above will show you we are at last on training ground again. Your letters may be addressed to me as above, so that there will be no delay here. The post office system here is good and our letters reach us alright.

We had quite an experience coming to camp. We left the boat at 6.30 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 22, after being tied up at the naval docks all day. We had a splendid view of two of the latest battleships "Tiger" and "Conqueror" and several others. At 6.30 it was raining, but we went through it, marching through the streets of Plymouth to the Great Western Railway depot. The march was great. The streets were lined with ladies and kids all with a welcome and farewell for us as we marched along. The men were absent, probably in some regiment at the front and any man not in the army was ashamed to stand by applauding when he should be there, so that it was the ladies who lined the streets, walked along with the soldiers, shook hands with us, and spoke kindly to us. They handed us little gifts such as apples, matches, little trinkets with their names attached and boxes of cigarettes. This country is great for cigarettes. There are funds of thousands of dollars being raised to supply the Tommy in the field with cigarettes. There were ladies societies giving apples to us at the train, so that altogether we had a most glorious march through the town.

The trains are different here from ours in Canada. The coaches are divided into compartments, the third-class holding eight men each. The first-class hold four in a compartment. I like their style of car. It is well equipped and the road-bed is smooth, so that we travel along in comfort and without jolting. Many of the trains travel 50 miles an hour or even faster. We arrived at Lavington about 2 a.m. and started our march to camp at 2.30. It was terribly dark and raining at intervals. So intense was the darkness that at times I could not see the man in front of me. Under such difficulties we marched a distance of 12 miles. The roads, however, were splendid. A lot of men fell out through exhaustion, for we were all pretty soft after a month on the ocean. I stood it about as well as any of them. We arrived at Bustard Camp at 7.30 a.m. I will write again describing the Camp. Salisbury Plains are at least 33 miles square with lots of camps. It is said that there are 100,000 soldiers on the Plains now.

We expect to be here until January or later. It will be a long siege of training. Most of us would rather go to the front, but the War Office seems to think there will be a spring campaign. We are practically in the war zone now and right here should the Germans attempt a landing. The airships and artillery are right here, so that every branch of the service is busy around us.

PROVINCIAL ORGANIZER.

Mr. T. H. Bell Accepts Important Position with Orange Order.

Mr. T. H. Bell, a son of Rev. J. R. Bell, of Laurel, has accepted the important position of Provincial Organizer for the Orange Mutual Benefit Fund for Ontario West. Mr. Bell, whose home is in Toronto, is a graduate of Orangeville High School and is widely and favorably known in Dufferin County. The Orange Sentinel publishes an excellent photo and the following sketch of the new organizer :—

"The above cut represents Bro. Thomas H. Bell, who has been appointed Provincial Organizer for the Insurance Department of the Orange Association in the jurisdiction of Ontario West. Bro. Bell was made a member of the Order at the age of 18, joining L.O.L. No. 330, at Laurel, Dufferin County, Ont. He has been engaged in immigration work for the Government and has had a good experience in a line of work which eminently fits him for the business he has undertaken. The new organizer is a son of Rev. Bro. J. R. Bell, Presbyterian minister at Laurel, who was born at the Diamond, in Ireland, and whose grandfather was a close friend and relative (by marriage) of Dan Winter, a hero of the Diamond, in whose house the first Orange lodge was organized after the celebrated battle in 1795. The new organizer's great-grandfather and Dan Winter married sisters named Allan.

Bro. T. H. Bell has lived in Toronto for some ten years, but is not a Toronto Orangeman, having retained his membership in his mother lodge, No. 330, Laurel, Ont. He proposes to make a personal visit to each lodge in Ontario West, and the brethren will find him to be of genial personality and a man of more than ordinary ability. He will be easily recognized by his stalwart figure and frank, pleasing face. Give him a warm welcome when he visits your lodge."

Eczema and Sore Eyes.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Planford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her, and on recommendation of a friend, I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

Co-Operative Marketing.

Regina, Sask., Nov. 7th, 1914.—Co-operative marketing of live stock is suggested by the Saskatchewan department of agriculture as a means of reducing the spread between the prices paid by the producer of live stock on one hand and by the consumer on the other hand. "Co-operation has been found in actual practice to bring very real benefits to the producers of grain and of dairy products in Saskatchewan," stated A. F. Mantle, deputy minister of agriculture, when dealing with this subject, "and it can certainly be made to play an important part in securing for the producers of live animals their fair share of the price no matter to which of the great markets on this continent the producer desires to ship. This much at least has been amply demonstrated and cannot be gainsaid, namely, that a small local group of farmers can largely increase their profits from live stock production by banding together and forming for themselves in an economical and organized way an essential service which is ordinarily performed for them in a wasteful and unorganized way by a local buyer, drover or butcher." Mr. Mantle in further dealing with the matter pointed out that every group of farmers in the province who were dissatisfied with prices could form and operate a local shipping and selling organization on co-operative lines.

Drained 100 Acres.

Mr. Reuben West, Deputy Reeve of Amaranth, has this summer completed what is, probably, the largest and most complete system of tile drainage yet undertaken in Dufferin County. This problem consisted in the draining of about one hundred acres of land and in the scheme practically 30,000 tile of various sizes were used. The land drained by this system is choice land, but owing to its situation has always been so wet that crops have never been raised satisfactorily. The work of digging the drains was done with the Buckeye Traction Ditcher, owned by John A. Ellis, of Orangeville, and the whole scheme was put in under the direction of Messrs. Dorrance and Cumming, of the local Department of Agriculture. This is a demonstration that should be watched closely by farmers having similar land, since results that are being obtained on this land already give promise of the excellent and profitable results sure to follow from underdrainage.

White Shield Class Concert, Wednesday night, Nov. 11th.

The Editor Is Born.

A youngster, whose father was editor of a small town daily, was asked to write a composition on Professional Men.

"When an editor makes a mistake there is a lawsuit and swearing and a big fuss; but if a doctor makes one there is a funeral, cut flowers and perfect silence. A doctor can use a word a yard long without him or anybody knowing what it means; but if the editor uses one he has to spell it. If the doctor goes to see another man's wife he charges for the visit; but if the editor goes, he gets a charge of buckshot. When the doctor gets drunk it is a case of being overdone by the heat and if he dies it is from heart trouble; when the editor gets drunk it's a case of too much booze, and if he dies it's the jimjams. Any old college can make a doctor; an editor has to be born."

ALTON.

We are sorry to hear of the serious illness of the youngest child of Mr. John McLachlan, Postmaster of Alton. The little one was taken seriously ill very suddenly. We hear that the patient is a little better today.

Mr. Arch. McDougall, of Toronto formerly of this village, paid his numerous Alton friends a visit last week.

Potatoes have been a heavy crop in this neighborhood and it has taxed the ingenuity of our buyer, Mr. W. Houston, to the utmost to find market for the output of the neighborhood. He has shipped potatoes to many points in Ontario and also as far west as Winnipeg and Regina. Wiley is a hustler and a good buyer.

We hear that the McKinnon mill has changed hands and will likely be in operation again shortly. The purchaser, we hear, has also rented the Dixie House, which we hope will be turned into a house of accommodation for the travelling public. A place of accommodation is badly needed in Alton.

The British Government had an agent in Alton last week for the purpose of purchasing horses for the British army. There were not many suitable horses offered and the number purchased was small.

The Barber Carriage Company have the new addition to their factory almost completed. The workmen are now busy laying a cement floor. The addition will give the Company larger floor space for their growing business.

The brethren of Alton L.O.L. 77 held a splendid Royal Arch meeting on Wednesday night of last week. No less than six candidates were advanced to the mysteries of this sublime degree. A number of visiting brethren were present from Melville Cross, Charleston and Mono Mill lodges.

"The Ladies Aid Society of Mohawk Crossroads" will be put on the boards under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian Church on Friday evening, Nov. 27th. The characters will be taken by local talent. A capital evening's entertainment is assured.

The executors of the estate of the late Robt. McCutcheon are holding a clearing auction sale on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 27th. The farm, farm stock and implements will be offered by Auctioneer Jas. A. Patterson, who has charge of the Sale. The Sale will take place on the w ½ of lot 21, con. 4, west, the farm on which the late Mr. McCutcheon resided.

PILES Do not suffer another day with Itching, Bleeding, or Protruding Piles. No surgical operation required. Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve you at once and as certainly cure you. 60c. a box; at dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. HALL'S CORNERS.

Hallowe'en passed off quietly in our burg. The only noticeable damage was the converting of the Major's fence into a fortification to resist the much talked of German invasion.

Mr. Carson Jeffers, of Orangeville, visited with his cousins here last week.

Mrs. R. H. and Mr. Will Galbraith visited with Granger friends this week.

Quite a number of our loyal Orangemen attended the Ball in the Primrose hall on Friday evening and also attended the Orange service on Sunday.

The tax collector made his usual rounds this week. The taxes are still going up.

Mr. A. B. Galbraith, of Orangeville, visited in this neighborhood last week.

Having spent the past few months in the West I thought I would visit some of my old friends in Mulmur, so leaving the train at Everett I started out for Mansfield, but I had not proceeded far when I was overtaken by a young chap, who said his name was Elmer Halbert and told me that he was bound for Ireland where he intended staying until the war was over. Before arriving at Mansfield we met Albert Bowers on his way to John Clarke's to help him take up his turnips. While chatting with Albert my old friend Gordon Jamieson drove by on his way to the store. From that place I got a lift with Bill Patten, who said he had an interest in the T. Eaton branch at Perm. He added that while coming from Whitfield one night he had heard a great noise and upon investigating found Gordon Ireland entrapped in McMaster's lane, vowing vengeance upon William Thomas, who, he firmly believed, was the cause of the whole trouble. While at Perm we met George Mac, who informed us that his cousins, Herb and Palmer Ormsby, were away deer hunting. As he hadn't a license he thought he would go up to Arch. Greer's as he wanted some person to keep tab on the troublesome Hawks. Later we met in with Ned Taylor, who said Tommy had advertised for another man as Wesley was too long making his trips to and from the 7th line. He also stated that Tom Banks was getting very fond of Porter. Going up to the Fourth we met Henry Gilmour, who said he would be in the race for next year's Council and was being coached by Roy. Just here Ned told him that he would stand a good chance as this year's bunch had enormous appetites, which he thought was the cause of the high taxes this year. Just then J. C. Gallaugher drove along on his way to the Bank and funds being rather scarce by this time we went back with him. Arriving at the Corner we met Isaiah, who gave us a very cordial invitation to spend the week-end with him over in Tossorontio. We gladly accepted the invitation.

TRAVELLER.

Mrs. William Smith

The death of Rosetta Maud Holden, beloved wife of Mr. William Smith, occurred at her home, 60 Second St., on Friday last after only five days illness. A young woman in the very prime of life, her sudden and unexpected demise was a great shock to her many friends. Mrs. Smith, who was 27 years and 10 months of age, was the only daughter of Mr. William Holden, C. P. R. construction foreman on one of the Eastern Ontario divisions. She was born in Caledon East, but had resided in Orangeville for seven or eight years. She was an estimable young woman in every sense of the term and had made many warm friends since coming to Orangeville. Nine months ago she was married to Mr. William Smith, formerly of Ivy. Besides the husband and father she leaves one brother, Mr. W. T. Holden, of Stratford. The bereaved husband and family have the sympathy of all in their trying affliction. There was a large attendance at the funeral, which was held from her late residence on Second St. to the Union Cemetery, Caledon East, at 1.30 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Rev. G. W. Robinson, pastor of the Methodist Church, of which the late Mrs. Smith was a faithful and devoted member, conducted the services at the house and grave. The remains were borne to their last resting place by Messrs. Will Savage, Will Kearns, Fred Wright, Will Gillespie, Dr. Price and Edgar Sanderson. There were many beautiful floral offerings from friends in Orangeville, Stratford, Barrie, Toronto and elsewhere. Among them was a large spray from the Orangeville Epworth League and a beautiful spray of lillies, the deceased's favorite flower, from Miss Hazel Wrenn, of Stratford.

Among the friends from a distance who were here for the funeral were Mrs. Samuel and Mrs. James Cobean and Mrs. R. G. Harshaw, of Toronto, Miss Hazel Wrenn, of Stratford, Mrs. Robert Cannon and Mr. Robert Holt, of Allandale, Mrs. Stephen Beckerton and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith, of Ivy, and Miss Jennie McCaslin, of Burlington.

James Porterfield's Death.

James Porterfield, of Waldemar, succumbed to an apoplectic stroke on Friday, after about twelve hours illness. While sitting at the supper table the previous evening he was suddenly stricken, falling over unconscious. He was born in Caledon township, and after growing to manhood, threshed in that neighborhood and in Mono and Amaranth for several years. He joined the volunteers years ago, and became quite proficient, as well as acquiring a fund of experiences which gave him great pleasure in relating. A few years ago he married Mrs. Henry Carter, who survives him. The funeral took place on Sunday to Greenwood Cemetery, Orangeville.—Star & Vidette.

Mrs. Thomas Reid

The death of Mrs. Ann Jane Reid, widow of the late Thomas Reid, of Caledon and formerly of Mono, occurred at her home on lot 31, 5th line, west, in the former township, on Tuesday. Deceased, who was 76 years and 7 months of age, was a sister of the late W. H. Hunter, The Maples, and of Dr. A. J. Hunter, of West Toronto, formerly of this town. William Reid, in the West, and David Reid, of Fergus, are sons. The surviving daughters are Mrs. John Black, East Garafraxa, Mrs. Louis McFaul, Mrs. Henry Ableson, Mrs. M. Gooderham and Miss Maggie Reid, of Caledon. The funeral will take place from her late residence to Harshaw's burying ground on the Prince of Wales Road at 2 o'clock this (Thursday) afternoon.

MONO MILLS.

The result of the recent Patriotic Fund collection arranged for and successfully carried out by the men of the local branch of the Farmers' Institute is that the splendid sum of $467 has been raised and deposited by the Treasurer to the credit of the Canadian Patriotic Fund and a bank draft for that amount forwarded to the Finance Minister at Ottawa. The contribution has been gratefully acknowledged with a fitting expression of thanks and sincere appreciation of the loyalty of the people of Mono Mills and vicinity, who have so generously responded to this call. Those who collected for the various wards with the amounts they raised are as follows:—Wm. Cobean and Geo. Patterson, $95.00; W. J. Mills and Thos. McCandless, $72.50; A. R. Mills and James Haffey, $62.50; J. A. Vance and T. J. Henry, $57.00; Geo. Holmes and Chas. Crombie, $55.00; Wesley Kee and Wilson Duke, $54.00; J. E. Jackson and John Moon, $40.50; Geo. Lee and Wm. Guest, $30.50.

We are very sorry to learn that Mrs. Alex. Murray is seriously ill.

As winter comes round again some of our boys are returning from the West. This week we note Mr. W. J. Fagan, Mr. Sam. Arlow and Mr. Geo. McPherson.

Mrs. McPherson, who has been seriously ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Speers, is recovering.

Dr. Hazel Fagan, who is holding down a Government position in Montreal, renewed former acquaintanceships here last week.

Lightning on Sunday afternoon did considerable damage to some of the telephone lines and also caused the death of a valuable cow belonging to Mr. Wilson Duke.

Dr. Mercer Mason, our veterinary, is rapidly building up quite a lucrative practice. Dr. Mason is a skilful veterinarian and is deserving of the confidence of those having need of his services.

Contractors at Law

James and Alexander Cooper, Collingwood contractors, who do business under the firm name of Cooper Bros., have issued a writ against their brother, Edgar W. Cooper, of Orangeville, and the Township of East Garafraxa. The plaintiffs are asking the Court to declare that a contract which the defendant entered into with the East Garafraxa Council for the construction of a cement bridge was made as their agent and that all monies due from the township in respect of the construction of said bridge belong to the plaintiffs. They are also asking for an order restraining the township from paying over the contract price of the bridge to the defendant or in the alternative to recover from the defendant the sum of $139.40 for wages and for the use of the plaintiffs' cement mixer, plant and tools. Cooper Bros., the plaintiffs' firm, built a couple of county bridges on the Peel and Dufferin boundary last summer, the defendant, Edgar Cooper, who was at that time connected with the firm, having the oversight of the work. Later on the defendant declares he left the firm and made a contract on his own account for the construction of the East Garafraxa bridge. His contention is apparently supported by the written contract which bears the signature "E. W. Cooper" and by the fact that he was personally bonded by local parties for the satisfactory completion of his contract. Bruce & Fair, of Collingwood, are acting for the plaintiffs, and C. R. McKeown has been retained by the defendant.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S INSTITUTE.

Important Meeting at Camilla Last Wednesday.

On Wednesday of last week about 35 of the young people of St. Andrew's Young People's Society drove out to Camilla to attend the Young People's Institute meeting in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The speakers were Rev. W. M. Morris, Orangeville, Rev. Dr. Armstrong, Alton, and Rev. Dr. McTaggart, the last named being Convener of the General Assembly's Committee on Young People's Societies.

The visitors from Orangeville arrived in time to partake of a good supper, provided by the Camilla young people. Between sixty and seventy persons sat down to the tables.

At the afternoon session a fine address was heard from Rev. Dr. Armstrong, of Alton. After tea Mr. McTaggart and the majority of St. Andrew's Y.P.S. held an informal choir practice under the leadership of Mr. Morris. During the evening the choir members from Orangeville assisted the Camilla friends with the singing.

The evening session opened with a hymn followed by a prayer by Rev. A. J. Fowlie, of Camilla, who acted as chairman.

Rev. Mr. Morris then gave an address on the Method of Financing the Presbyterian Church. This he very clearly illustrated by a diagram hastily sketched on the blackboard. Starting with the requisition from the Presbytery he discussed at some length the manner in which the Home and Foreign Mission Boards pared down the estimates and passed them on to the Finance Board, more than 50 per cent. of the latter Board are prominent business men. The Finance Board prepared the Budget, and apportioned the amounts among the seven Synods, which in turn distribute them amongst the Presbyteries. In his address Mr. Morris effectively dispelled the fallacy that it costs 99 cents to send one dollar to the Foreign Mission field.

"Face to Face" was exceedingly well sung by Miss Nina Bremner, whose singing certainly deserved the praise that Mr. McTaggart gave it.

Mr. McTaggart, who was the chief speaker of the evening, addressed the meeting for an hour on the subject, "The way to organize and run a Y. P. S." So interesting was his talk that when he had finished it was hardly possible to realize that he had been speaking so long. Moreover not a phase of Y.P.S. work was overlooked from the forming of a Society to the last detail. The Guild was to be considered, said Mr. McTaggart, as a Model School for the Church, and its duty was to train young people to take an interest in the work of the Church. The Society was to give young men and young women an opportunity to gain confidence in themselves, to become able and to lead in prayer. Helpful advice was given to the various committees as to their work and the address was brought to a close with a few general remarks of an exhortatory nature.

Afterwards Mr. McTaggart answered a number of questions propounded by Endeavorers.

After the collection Misses Dodds and McGuire rendered "Saviour, lead me lest I stray" very sweetly. After a few words from the chairman, Mr. Morris proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Camilla young people for their hospitality. The motion was seconded by Mr. Trueman Kellie, who also heartily endorsed the invitation to pay a return visit to Orangeville. Mr. McQuarrie also spoke briefly and after the entire gathering had joined in singing the National Anthem the service was brought to a close with the benediction pronounced by Rev. Mr. Fowlie.

GOOD—EAST.

A very pretty autumn wedding took place on Wednesday at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. McClelland, 150 Sorauren avenue, Toronto, when their eldest daughter, Ethelle Mary East, was united in marriage to George J. Good, of Grace street. The Rev. J. C. Speers, D.D., of North Parkdale Methodist Church, officiated. The bridal party stood under an arch of evergreens and autumn leaves. The bride entered on the arm of her father, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, rendered by Miss Hazel Watson, of Grand Valley, cousin of the bride. The fair bride wore a pretty gown of white Japanese silk crepe, trimmed with lace and pearls. Her veil was caught up with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The young couple were unattended. The groom's gift to the bride was a bracelet set with amethysts and pearls, and to the pianiste a jewel case.—Star & Vidette.

WENT ONE BETTER

An American, who was paying his first visit to London, was met at Waterloo Station by an English acquaintance of his, and after leaving the station they happened to pass through Trafalgar Square. Pointing to Nelson's Monument, the Yankee asked, "What is that?"

"Oh, that's Nelson's Column," replied his friend. "A fine one isn't it?"

"Rot!" said the American, "we have cigars as big as that in the States."

After a while when they were crossing London Bridge, a large dray drawn by three horses, on which there was a long steel beam about 20 feet in length, passed.

"What's that for?" again asked the Yank.

"Oh, they are building a big hotel up along the Thames and that is the kitchen poker!" answered the Englishman.

The Too Much Trained Nurse

(With apologies to Robt. W. Service)

I wanted the training—I got it!
I scrabbled and mucked like a slave.
Was it typhoid or D.T.—I fought it;
I hurled my youth into a grave.
I wanted the training; I got it—
Come out with an R. N. next fall,
But somehow life's not what I thought it,
And somehow an R. N.'s not all.

No! The real life: (Have you tried it?)
It's the blessedest thing that I know,
To leave all this trouble behind you
And strike out and let yourself go.
Some say New York is a gay city;
Some say it's a fine place for fun;
Maybe: but there's some as would trade it
For just the outdoors—and I'm one.

You come to get trained (darned good reason);
You feel like an exile at first;
You're batted around for a season,
And then it gets worse and still worse.
You're chucked on a ward (your first inning),
You're given sick patients to mend;
It's thus it's been since the beginning,
And thus it will be till the end.

I've stood in Miss M.'s private office
That's plumb-full of hush to the brim
I've watched the door open before her
And hoped that she wouldn't come in;
Till she stood in full stature before me
And my knees were just ready to flop,
And I've felt that my sins were stupendous
With the weight of the world piled on top.

The summer—no hotter was ever;
The pavements and bricks all aglare,
Like the furnace recorded in Scripture,
And you long for some really fresh air;
Some woods, with nobody about you,
Except just a squirrel or tree;
The freshness, the freedom that calls you,
Just that will be plenty for me.

The winter! hot water bags! blankets!
The patients all chilly and numb;
You chase through the basement half-frozen—
To find that the "el" will not run.
The corridors older than history,
The cracks where the wintry winds slant;
This life is a terrible mystery—
I want to go home—but I can't.

There's a place where you don't have to hurry,
And there's plenty of time and to spare;
There are people who don't have to worry,
And never give thought to a care.
There are hardships here nobody reckons;
There all is just peaceful and still;
There's a place—oh, it beevons and beckons,
And I want to go back—and I will!

They are making my conscience diminish;
I'm sick of the scold and the blame.
Thank God! When I'm trained to a finish
I'll pike to the homeland again.
I'll live—and you bet it's no sham life;
It's heaven! I've been there before,
And it's better than this by a darnsite—
So me for the Northland once more.

Last year it was won by the foreman of the Mono Road section. The prize is for the section that has the best line, guage, surface, fences and tidiness. THIS WOMAN'S SICKNESS

Quickly Yielded To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Baltimore, Md. — "I am more than glad to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I suffered dreadful pains and was very irregular. I became alarmed and sent for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it regularly until I was without a cramp or pain and felt like another person, and it has now been six months since I took any medicine at all. I hope my little note will assist you in helping other women. I now feel perfectly well and in the best of health." — Mrs. AUGUST W. KONDNER, 1632 Hollins Street, Baltimore, Md.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

STEWED PUMPKIN.

Upon the careful stewing of the pumpkin depends in a considerable measure the excellence of the pie. Because it is difficult to do the work right, without experience, many people steam the pumpkin since it is best quite dry. To prepare the pumpkin cut it in halves and remove the seeds if you are going to cook the whole, otherwise leave them in the uncooked half, as it keeps better. Cut in rings, which are easier to peel than squares, and then cut in small squares. To cook in a fireless cooker half cover with water, bring slowly to boil on the stove, and then put in the fireless with one stone. Cook for at least three hours or leave in over night. If cooked on the stove use simmering burner with water to cover. If the pumpkin is too wet, when it is perfectly soft, put it in a frying pan and dry somewhat over a hot fire, stirring all the time.

BILLETING BRITISH TROOPS.

Householders Must Feed and Attend Upon Soldiers.

Many London householders have already been warned that they must be prepared to have soldiers billeted upon them. West Londoners seem to have had the first experience in the metropolis, but reports that come in indicate that it is becoming general. Officers are going along whole streets of the suburbs commandeering accommodation for the growing army of the Territorials. Two to half a dozen are being billeted upon each house, according to the space available. Householders who have been or may be requisitioned for this form of war duty will be interested to know what is required of them.

A soldier may be billeted on a house with "full subsistence," with "partial subsistence," or "without subsistence." In the first event, the family must feed and attend upon the soldier, but need not give bedding or furniture, receiving in return about two shillings a day for an officer and one shilling and nine pence for a private. Billets "without subsistence" — that is to say, a mere lodging, with attendance and the use of cooking utensils, but without board—is not generally paid for.

In subsistence billets, of course, the officers have to see that the ordinary fare of the family is up to the proper standard. The military authorities have full power in such times as the present to enforce whatever billeting they may direct; but it is not likely that householders will be unpatriotic enough to raise unreasonable objections to what, at the worst, is only an inconvenience. In this country no family need have any fears as to the behavior of the British soldier.

Friendship is a strong and habitual inclination of two persons to promote the good and happiness of each other.—Meredith.

TEACH CHILDREN TO WALK CORRECTLY.

Watch carefully the children with regard to this manner of walking from the time they take their first toddling step, for upon the habits of walking formed early in life depend strength and health in after years. It is not enough to simply support a child until he is able to walk from chair to chair, for that is but the beginning of locomotion. As the child becomes more confident and is able to understand instructions, he should be shown correct methods of walking.

If this practice were carried out this world over, there would be less broken down arches, less organic troubles, due to improper carriage of the body, less pain and aches.

The child should be taught to walk with toes straight forward and not turned out. To turn the toes out throws the weight of the body upon the heels, and the step is not elastic. The arches of the feet are not brought into play and they settle to flatness through lack of exercise.

It is doubly important to be careful in teaching a child to walk for the reason that the bones of the legs are soft and are easily moulded in conformity to the muscular action in walking. There are innumerable cases of "bowed legs" which could have been avoided had the afflicted ones had proper advice and instructions when they were small children.

In all cases of apparent deformity of the feet, a mother should give a child the benefit of a surgeon's advice, for chances are the child has not been walking properly, which is the cause of the bones becoming out of place, or misshapen. Foot deformities yield to manipulation or require surgery, but whatever is required they should be attended to without delay. When there are pains in the nerves of the limbs, or the muscles do not perform their functions, it is safe to look to the arches of the feet for the cause of the trouble.

OWEN SOUND'S DRYDOCK.

A long step toward the realization of the drydock scheme was taken this week when the difference between Mr. F. E. Wood, of Niagara Falls, and the American interests, who have been active here through Mr. E. E. Trask in securing options on sites for a drydock, have been entirely composed and both are working in harmony. The plans for the new drydock have been filed this week by Mr. Wood, with the Department at Ottawa. This is the most important movement toward bringing the drydock to Owen Sound which has been consummated within the last four months. Since the warring factions in the promoters of the concern have got down to brass tacks and are working in harmony they may be expected to make some progress. It will be remembered that Mr. Wood has appraised the Mayor of the fact that the money for the drydock has been raised in the United States, and this fact is the rosiest yet in prospective drydock circles. If so it also stamps Mr. Wood as something of a financier. According to a letter which has been received by the Mayor the first work will be let by contract within a few weeks now, though it will be impossible to do much before spring. At the same time during the winter the necessary materials for construction work will be contracted for and laid down on the ground. So far as is known the new concern when it comes will be let by contract and will probably be built in the neighborhood of the ice-house of the Davis-Smith-Malone Company.—Owen Sound Sun.

The Presbyterians of Meaford, are building a cement and brick church shed. Holley Bros., formerly of Vandeleur, have the contract.

A BUSY BURGLAR

Made Fruitless Visits to 3 Brampton Homes Within a Week.

County Clerk Kirkwood's Home Among Those Honored.

There is a burglar at large in Brampton whom Chief Kidd is very anxious to locate before he leaves us for Peterboro.

So far the marauder has entered three houses without gathering any plunder and each time his operations have been interrupted and he has had to flee.

Tuesday night about 11.30, Miss Kirkwood, daughter of County Clerk Kirkwood, was sitting reading down stairs. The rest of the family had retired. Miss Kirkwood was startled by a sound from a door leading to the cellar. Some one was trying the latch, but failed to open it because the door was bolted. Miss Kirkwood, much alarmed, ran upstairs and alarmed the family, who were inclined to be skeptical about "the man in the cellar." However, another of Mr. Kirkwood's daughters, who had been reconnoitering from an upstair window, saw the figure of a man slipping along the house side-path to the street. She called to him but he did not answer. When an attempt was made to telephone Chief Kidd it was found that the telephone was out of action and it was later found that the wires had been cut where they enter the house. A neighbor's telephone was used and the Chief called up. He and Night Constable Barrett were quickly on the job and although they scoured the neighborhood no sign of the man could be found. Mr. Kirkwood's house has an outside cellar door and he had forgotten to fasten it on Tuesday evening, so that the entrance for the man was easy. The fellow was very quiet in his passage through the cellar and Miss Kirkwood heard no noise until the door was tried.

Last night about 10 o'clock the Misses Kirkwood, of Nelson St., while in their lighted sitting room heard mysterious sounds as of some one trying to raise a window. This morning they found a ladder raised against the porch at the back of the house. They suppose the intruder was frightened away by the noise made by the window.

Near twelve last night Mrs. Booth, whose family residence is the old K. Chisholm place, was awakened by someone by her bedside. She cried out and then the somebody stuffed a cloth into her mouth which she is sure was saturated with chloroform. Miss Daisy Booth, the fifteen year old daughter, who slept in another bed in her mother's room was awakened. The young lady jumped out of the bed and grabbed the man through the arms behind at the same time crying loudly "Come Granpa, a burglar." In one of the adjoining rooms, Mr. Hy. Schooley, one of Brampton's best known citizens was calmly reposing, but the cries of his little girl aroused him. With the promptness of the typical Irishman he sprang from his bed with alacrity despite his seventy odd years and grasping his trusty oak shillaleh he rushed to the hall. Just at that moment the burglar too was making for the hall with the young lady clinging to him. Managing to release one arm he struck the girl in the face and dashed through the door. Mr. Schooley just missed him with the trusty stick. "You should have heard the fellow making the walnut staircase in three bounds," said Mr. Schooley of what followed. Through the lower rooms the burglar ran falling over a rocker and breaking it in his rush for the outside. When Mr. Schooley went to telephone the police he found the instrument not working and later investigation showed the wires cut where they enter the house. The man left behind him in the bedroom a small 22 calibre revolver. Mr. Schooley describes the man as medium sized, wearing a peaked cap with red handkerchief with large spots, tied about the lower part of his face. The man must have had on felt shoes for he was noiseless in his walking. Mr. Schooley's encounter with the burglar was in the dark except for what light filtered into the hall from the moon.

This has been a great year for Mr. Schooley—a visit to Ireland and a burglar in the house in the twelve-month.

He is as proud as can be of his granddaughter, Daisy. "She's the brave lassie," he informed us and our readers will think the same thing.

The curious thing about these burglaries are that all three households are Presbyterian and mostly Scotch, who have been brought up to lay up not corrupt or thieves break in or words to that effect. Besides when a Scotch Presbyterian has a bawbie to spare there is the bank.

This burglar must be an amateur surely or one who has taken a correspondence course.—Peel Banner.

SASKATCHEWAN FARMERS

Were Successful Exhibitors at Dry Farming Congress.

Regina, Oct. 31st, 1914.—The Department of Agriculture of Saskatchewan has announced that several of the Saskatchewan farmers who sent exhibits to the dry farming congress at Wichita, Kansas, during the present month, won prizes. Seager Wheeler, Rosthern, was again successful in carrying off the most improtant events, winning first and sweepstakes in wheat and also in barley; William Henley, Qu'Appelle, won first reserve for wheat and first and sweepstakes for peck of flax; H. H. Carter, Ft. Qu'Appelle, won sweepstakes for sheaf of rye grass, and also for sheaf of brome grass; W. G. Creighton. Stalevart, won sweepstakes for peck of rye grass seed. The Department of Agriculture is encouraging the farmers of Saskatchewan to compete in such grain competitions by paying the express on all exhibits which meet with the government's approval.

Owen Sounders had a scare recently. Someone filled a piece of gas pipe with explosives and lighting the fuse threw it behind the armouries there. It exploded and shattered some of the windows.

MUCH NEEDED TELEPHONE DEVICE.

Eavesdropping should be changed to receiverdropping, for the dishonorable listener now makes use of the modern device. Party or rural services running through many homes are not free from this kind of espionage, and anyone can listen to the conversation of friends and neighbors. This has become such a passion with some that there is an authentic record of a lady tying the sounder to her ear while operating a sewing machine.

All this will be ended by the device of an inventive American. He has patented an attachment that will not only inform users if a third party breaks into a service line, but will give them the number of the intruder. There will be no satisfaction in listening if the invasion of privacy is known. While this invention will end the practice of listening on rural circuits and will thus bring them into more popular use, assured privacy through the central exchanges must wait the general adoption of automatic connecting devices.

SLEEP WELL.

A great part of your life is spent in sleep. If you didn't sleep you wouldn't have any life, and if you don't sleep well you cannot live well. The way to sleep well is to act well.

It isn't your good deeds that keep you awake. Conscience can murder sleep, but before conscience can do its deadly work you have to give it something to work on. Take a good thought to bed with you, the remembrance of something beautiful, the desire for something better.

If you have failed in something during the day, don't worry about it. Thrust out the morbid thoughts and fill their place with thoughts of good things, the big things you are going to do the next day.

Don't think too much about sleeping when you go to bed. Lie down grateful for the rest that is coming, grateful for the ending of the day, and hopeful for the dawning of the morrow. If your mind has been freed from painful thoughts sleep will come without coaxing.

Don't try to solve any vexing problems after you go to bed. Your mind will be much clearer in the morning. Save your worries for when, refreshed by sleep, you can approach them with renewed mental and physical vigor. Keep each worry in its own day.

Fresh air helps to soothe mind and body and induce sleep. Keep your windows open. Unless there is a decided draft you won't catch cold. Don't use drugs. There is nothing more harmful. Practice self-control, keep your mind at rest, and you will sleep like a child.

Gently souse up and down, and if there are any grease spots, rub soap on your hands and manipulate the sweater, but do not soap directly on the wool. Rinse in three clear warm waters, and add a few drops of bluing to the final water. Press the water out, place the sweater in a large pillow-case, and suspend case, with the four corners spread out, over the tub for three days, then spread the sweater on a sheet in the sunshine for a day or two until dry. Never hang a sweater to a line, as it is likely to stretch into points.

Put into a closed box and leave for three days, then shake and brush well. Finally, pat the furs well on the wrong side to raise the nap.

LIVING IN MONTREAL ON NOTHING A DAY.

Thousands of Italians Without a Cent and Without Credit—How They Manage to Keep Life in Their Bodies.

"I haven't any money," said a quite well-known Montreal business man to a storekeeper, when asked to buy some extra luxury the other day. It was his way of expressing the tightness of money, so much talked of, and he meant that for the present he was not having extra luxuries. He was playing at economy.

"No work —no money —got no food," was the plaintive statement of an Italian ex-city laborer. He lived with his wife and five children in an evil-looking scarcely lighted and unventilated abode. He had five boarders, all of whom had been out of work for months.

This Italian meant that he was literally facing starvation. There was no food in the house and the grocery store had stopped credit.

The man and his wife and the five children lived in two rooms on the ground floor. The boarders occupied similar space upstairs. For that house, which is situated on St. Timothee street above St. Catherine street, the landlord charged $11 a month, unlighted, unheated and unfurnished.

That is a particularly mild case.

• • •

There are 100,000 foreigners in Montreal. Some of these—many in fact—are living on literally nothing a day.

They are earning nothing, having been out of work for months, they have nothing, and they cannot buy.

Of the hundred thousand, some 15,000 are Italians. In the district around St. Timothee street there are more than 5,000; in the vicinity of Latour street about 2,000; in St. Henri, Cote St. Paul and Ville Emard are another 2,000; in "Little Italy," above Mount Royal avenue and between Park avenue and Amhurst street, the population of Italians is between 5,000 and 6,000.

In the "Little Italy" district there are a couple of churches and schools, an athletic association and a benefit association. On St. Elizabeth st. the Italian Y.M.C.A. under Mr. Sebastiani, is doing what it can; but apart from these nothing is being done for the Italians, according to those few workers.

It costs an Italian laborer $3 or $3.50 a month for sleeping accommodation. For $3.50 he has a bed to himself; for half a dollar less he shares a bed. In every case he has from one to two other men in the room with him.

He may have ten or twelve. It depends on the size of the room, for always as many beds as will fit are crowded in.

A few months ago there were many more Italians in Montreal. Some 5,000 have gone back to Italy; but some have come in from the west, as railway construction has been stopped.

That there are fewer than usual is very apparent from the unused beds in the tenements. So accustomed are these people to the one kind of treatment that it never seems to occur to them to use a greater number of beds when beds are plentiful.

If there are six men in a room which contains four beds, or even six beds, two men will use one bed. Such are the instincts of economy.

Living on other than "nothing a day" is impossible for very many of these people.

• • •

The case mentioned on St. Timothee street is not bad enough to be really illustrative of the conditions.

Further down the same street, a short distance below St. Catherine street, I visited another house in company with two Italian friends.

This was an Italian boarding house. There are boarding houses and there are families that take in boarders.

The house consisted of three floors, each similar in appearance and occupants to the others.

On the second floor in the front of the house were a large and a small room with a connecting door; the centre space was a kitchen and living room and in the back was a very small room.

The rent of this house was $18 a month, the keeper of the place told us.

In the larger of the front two rooms there slept five men; in the smaller, three. They were two in a bed, the odd man in each room having a single bed.

Eight men in two rooms the total size of which was about 8 by 20 feet; and a lot of the boarders had left.

In the small room at the back of the house there were three men, two in a double bed and one in a single bed. These two beds took up the entire floor space, save a few inches by the door.

For this sleeping room the occupants of the double bed paid $3 and those of the single beds $3.50 a month.

The space in the centre of the flat was a kitchen and living room. It contained a large stove, a few chairs and boxes and a couple of tables. In addition were spiders' webs of clotheslines on which the boarders dried the garments they washed; for each man washes his own clothes.

As a rule the Italian boarding house supplies no food. The boarder buys that and brings it home and cooks it on the stove in the common kitchen.

On each of the other floors of this house were similar scenes.

A few, a very few of the men, are working in the C.P.R. The rest are in the "out-of-work" category.

The cost of living for an Italian laborer, is, in addition to the $3 or $3.50 a month, from $1 to $1.50 a week. This latter sum buys his food.

The Italian groceries are supplying food on credit to the men they know. Some of the others are being kept by the boarding house people.

The Italian is usually scrupulously honest. The number who are getting credit now is evidence of that. They will live on credit for months sometimes, but as soon as money comes, the debt is paid.

For that $1 or $1.50 a week the living is not precisely sumptuous; but it keeps the people alive. They get bread and cheese mostly, with now and then a little macaroni.

From St. Timothee street we went to Hebert street. In a small, comparatively new looking house there, we found Fred Trencia and Vincenzo Mastracchi, the latter having rented the lower flat for $11.

For this $11 monthly payment he received the right to live in three hare, almost unlighted rooms.

He has a wife and five children and two boarders.

All are out of work and have been for many weeks. But the landlord got his rent—until just now.

One of these men told me that he used to work for the city. A short time ago he went to see one of the "bosses" at the city waterworks to ask for a job.

"We don't want any Italians round here," replied this "boss." "Italy won't go to war for us—so you get to h—— out of here."

It would be unbelievable in any city with a municipal system different to Montreal's.

One of the other men, his industry finding outlet even during his forced unemployment, had made a step-ladder which he claimed to have invented. The advantage was a fair sized platform, extending from the top rung, which platform was quite capable of bearing the weight of a man on any part of it.

The whole ladder folded up neatly and was exhibited in trying to make sales.

Off Montcalm street are some of the worst tenement houses in the whole badly housed districts of Montreal. They are an all too long lasting monument to the incapacity and sloth of the building inspection and whatever other departments of the City mall are responsible for such things.

Walking down Montcalm street one comes to a low archway. Underfoot is mud and filth, inches deep; overhead a low timbered roof.

At the further side of this archway are two shaking and unsafe wooden ladders.
